A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

& SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

BATGER'S

in ½-lb. and 1-lb. Drums.

Prepared and packed by machinery, thus ensuring cleanliness and uniformity.

Saves time, trouble and loss of weight.

The three kinds of Peel, Lemon, Orange and Citron, properly blended, are all cut ready for immediate use. If you once sell this line to your customers they will always ask for it, because every housewife likes BATGER'S Machine-Cut Peel, once she uses it. Your profit is sure and substantial. Ask your jobber for it. In ½ and 1-lb drums.

"Pride of Canada"

CAPTURES FIRST PRIZE AT EXHIBITIONS.

We have been anxious to show people that "PRIDE OF CANADA" Maple Syrup and "PRIDE OF CANADA" Maple Sugar are absolutely the best on the market.

So we went to the Ottawa Exhibition with a display; also to the Dominion Exhibition at Sherbrooke.

In Ottawa our display stood pre-eminent above all others. WE SECURED ALL PRIZES except one third.

The same thing happened in Sherbrooke. We were also awarded the silver medal at the Dominion Exhibition.

All of which proves our statements made weekly for the past year in The Grocer that "PRIDE OF CANADA" brand is the market leader.

Phenix Washing Powder is the Best on the Market

BECAUSE:

It cleanses more thoroughly than any other powder.

It cannot be equalled as a household washing powder. There is no dirt it will not dissolve.

It is the best powder for use in business houses. Printers find it invaluable. Painters use it in preference to all others. Machinists get greater satisfaction from its use than from any other brand.

These reasons, and the reasonable price at which PHENIX WASHING POWDER retails, should convince you of the desirability of handling this famous brand.

Write to-day for a trial lot. All jobbers sell PHENIX.

Some Ancient Philosopher

who was certainly not a retail grocer said:—"Uncertainty is the spice of life." From his point of view uncertainty may have been very enjoyable. But if he had been in the grocery business

he would have known that the more certain the quality of canned goods the surer his profits. You are in the business for money. Therefore you cannot afford to offend customers by handing out canned goods of inferior quality.

The inference is that you can't be too particular about the brand you handle. Most grocers who cultivate the high-class trade handle only

Old Homestead
Brand
Canned Fruits and Vegetables

and there certainly are lots of reasons why.

In the first place

we only buy fruits and vegetables which are absolutely sound through and through,

and in the second place

we can those perfect products of the orchard and garden in a factory which has not a peer anywhere for absolute spic-and-span cleanliness. That factory is manned by skilled people who are subjected to rigid rules of personal cleanliness. Moreover our process results in preserving the delicious flavor of ripe fruit and vegetables for an indefinite time.

We invite inquiries and inspection!

Freight Bills Saved—Larger Profits!

If Eastern Townships merchants could buy at better prices, or obtain better goods, in Montreal or Quebec, they would buy in those centres.

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR PROFITS?

DID IT EVER OCCUR TO YOU to think how much money you could make in the course of the year just by pushing the sale of some of the smaller items of your stock.

Take JELLY POWDERS and FLAVORING EXTRACTS for example, goods that never aggregate much money in your stock, but which pay handsome profit in the selling. Try it and see how many packages and bottles you can sell in a day just by suggesting it to the customers in your store. The result will be, ever so much larger profits than can be obtained from the same effort used in selling heavy goods, on which your margin is so light. Particularly so, if you push high-grade lines like "Greig's White Swan Jellies and Flavors." Their quality is such that your patrons want more Your profit on these is especially attractive. Try a sample lot at our risk and see how they go.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

Less work and better results

If Allison Coupon books merely reduced work, they might, in some small establishment, be considered a dispensable luxury.

But you can entirely disregard the time and labor-saving element, and still the system more than pays for itself in the cutting out of ACTUAL MONEY LOSSES, the increased satisfaction to customers and the large trade it entails. Hundreds of merchants that are using this system, could not at any price, be induced to revert to the old fashioned method.

ALLISON COUPON BOOKS

How They Work:

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear off and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

YES, IT DOES MATTER!

It matters a whole lot which brand of Canned Goods you handle. Just as it matters what kind of friends you cultivate. If you cultivate the acquaintance of disreputable people, you have no kick coming if the respectable element drops away from you. On the other hand, the more respectable the company you keep the greater the confidence of the respectable public. That's the point—choice of the best. It naturally follows that the better the quality of your stock the better the quality of your business. That's why the

A Well-Appointed B. C. Grocery

A Store That is a Credit to the Town—Some New Ideas in Fittings and Display From the Garden of Canada's Western Province—A Really Clean Grocery.

Up in Chilliwack, a little town of 1,800 population in the Fraser Valley, the garden of British Columbia, is a grocery store that will compare very favorably with anything in the trade, either in the east or west of Canada. The store is the property of Carl Grossman and a look at the photographs here reproduced will prove this assertion.

The building, which is on the main street of Chilliwack is of cement block construction, and is both fire and frost-proof.

Two large plate glass windows are used to good advantage in display and the contents of these are always kept bright and are changed frequently.

The store is equipped with modern, up-to-date fixtures, built after Mr. Grossman's own design, and is a model of neatness and cleanliness. The regular stock shelving on the right of the store rises 8 feet over all. In front of this 2 counters extend the full length of the store. The first one is a combination, the front half being plate glass and is used for confectionery, the other half, which has a dummy display front, carries the candy scale and cheese cutter, allowing wrapping space for one clerk. The second counter is arranged with a dummy front, used for showing a large assortment of English and Canadian biscuits. The biscuits are kept in their original tins immediately back of the samples displayed in the front. These samples are plainly marked with the name and price. On this counter are placed the cash register, scale, coffee mill and paper cutters. A counter and partition surmounted by an arch extends across the rear, dividing off a store-room for broken packages. This counter and wall are generally used for meats, etc.

The left side of the store during the winter was utilized to display imported fruits and vegetables. With the arrival of warm weather the fruit stands are removed and a soda fountain, tables and chairs installed, for a very profitable ice cream and soda water business, which continues up to Oct. 1.

The room in the rear is shelved on two sides. These shelves hold the surplus stock for the store shelving. Vinegar and syrup barrels are kept convenient to the partition entrance and a counter for weighing and tying up bulk goods, teas, etc., gives every facility for handling a large number of orders with a minimum of labor.

The warehouse is divided from the store by a 6-foot truck way, which connects directly with the side street and permits the handling of incoming freight independent of the store.

The best class of trade is catered to, and as the town is growing rapidly the business is increasing every month.

Carl Grossman, the proprietor, as may be seen from his photograph, is a young man, but is notably enterprising.

Outside his business he takes considerable interest in municipal affairs and has been largely instrumental in booming Chilliwack and the Fraser Valley generally, as a fruit and vegetable producing district. For two years he has had charge of and has arranged exhibits at Victoria and New Westminster, which have carried off awards, placing the

EFFECTIVE GROCERY ADVERTISING

The Why and Wherefore of Its Production.
Helpful Criticism and Suggestion Brightly Put.
Occasional Chats by W. F. Ralph.

"Every one knows the 'busy bee,'
But that is not surprising;
It couldn't be otherwise, you see,
With so much advertising."
—Walker Jones Willson in Profitable Advertising.

You will excuse me for starting out in rhyme, won't you? It isn't mine, anyway. But, like many another little four-line song, it contains a germ of truth well worth enlarging upon.

"As busy as a bee" is the universal phrase used by mankind (English-speaking mankind, anyway), to describe a state of great activity. Now, why is this phrase so universal if not because the honey-collecting insect has been so widely advertised as the very symbol of industry?

It's a fact, isn't it? I know of several stores in small Ontario towns who call themselves the "Bee Hive." It is used to convey the impression that the proprietors are full of business activity, and anxious to industriously serve the public.

It is quite safe for you and me to say that there are a good many people on this earth who are accustomed to the use of the phrase we are talking about, who never in their lives took the trouble to personally investigate the habits of a bee. If they relied solely upon their own peregrinations into the world of "beedom," they would never know enough about bees to say that those lively insects were industrious or otherwise. They rely for their information upon what they have heard other people say. In other words, upon bee advertising.

This is quite as it should be. Can you imagine a world where the people had to start right in and find out for themselves everything which they now hear about from their fellow mortals? In such a world it is safe to assume that the genus ignoramus would be the chief human species.

No, to be informed about most things we have to take the information on trust from other people. Information, to become widely disseminated, has to be widely advertised. For the spread of information, when it comes down to the fine point, is nothing more nor less than the advertising of the person or thing about which information is spread.

Of course, you understand all this, even though you may never have thought it out in detail. All I am saying it now for is to show that advertising always has been, is now, and ever will be necessary to civilized man.

Coming down from generalities to particulars, why is it that there are still some grocers who declare they don't believe much in advertising as a means of building business? I have heard men say, with a wave of the hand, and scornful cast of countenance, "Yes, advertising may pay some people, in some businesses, but I can't figure out where I'm going to get back any hard cash which I pay out for advertising." That kind of man is the man who would attribute to chance alone, any increase in his business. He can't trace the connection between more business and advertising expenditure. I'm sorry for him!

Advertising is strictly an investment. No man who properly advertises can class money paid for advertising as money spent for which no dividend may be expected. Dividends from good advertising are as sure to come as the world is sure to revolve upon its axis every twenty-four hours. Good advertising is no more a gamble than is the purchase of a shipment of groceries with the idea of realizing a profit.

One would imagine, in view of this plain fact, that retail advertising would be less spasmodic; that more grocers would lay aside a calculated percentage of their profits for advertising purposes alone. When the good business man takes stock, he always allows something off his estimate of fixtures for depreciation in value. He can see at a glance that his fixtures, having undergone more or less wear and tear, are not now worth the price he paid for them when new. This percentage for depreciation is, in reality, an indirect estimate of a proportional cost of new fixtures. He would, in fact, be justified in setting down the amount of that depreciation among his estimated expenditures for repairs.

In estimating expenditures, surely the item of advertising through which new business may be expected, should be included as well as an estimated expenditure for repairs, light, heat, rent or anything else. Advertising should be a fixed annual charge, and it will be found a charge which increases the wear and tear of the cash register and demands to be increased as the business grows. Having begun this talk in rhyme, let's end it in a similar manner..

"The man who advertises,
Is the wisest man we trow;
And it does'nt a bit surprise us
To see his business grow."

Western Canada is a big place; and that's probably why westerners like to do everything on a large scale. I have before me a full page ad. It is a whopper! It comes from J. F. Cairns, of Saskatoon. It is not exactly a grocery ad., but a sort of department store ad. Contrary to the usual practice of department store ads., this one doesn't advertise a bargain sale, but advertises an unique premium offer. Every cash purchase to the value of $1 made between Nov. 1st and Dec. 31st, entitles the purchaser to a numbered coupon. A duplicate of each coupon will be placed in a sealed box and will remain there until the time of drawing. When the box is publicly opened on Dec. 31, a little girl will draw from it ten coupons. The holders of duplicates of these ten coupons will then, according to number, be entitled to prizes, ranging from a team of heavy draught horses down to a doll outfit for a little girl.

F. J. LAYMAN

This scheme partakes somewhat of the lottery idea and ought to be a drawing card. The way it is advertised ought to make it doubly effective, as the ad. is well and tersely written, and well set up.

A lively and confidence-inspiring ad. is one of F. J. Layman, Parkhill. I should like to reproduce it all on this page, but can't because it is too long, being almost a newspaper column in length. A part of it, including the opening argument, is, however, produced. This idea of a long column set-up is rather a good one, especially if interestingly written as this ad. is. The reader starts at the top of his paper and his eye easily and naturally travels down the full length of the ad. The headline of this ad. is "Cheapside." This reference to cheapness doesn't strike one very favorably at first, as one is usually inclined to be suspicious of too much emphasis on cheapness in groceries. But the talk of cheapness ends with the headline, and the composition of the rest of the ad. is strong on quality and store service. prices are given to a lot of the items and the plan followed with regard to them appears to be that of: "These goods are cheapest considering their fine quality." This is really a splendid sample of effective grocery advertising.

If we may be allowed to say so. Mr. Layman may be a layman in name and as far as the church goes, but he is no layman when it comes to advertising.

Woodman & McKee have sent in an ad. with a request for criticism. Now, criticism is commonly understood to mean saying something nasty. Of course that's a wrong interpretation of the word. We never say anything nasty in this column unless we positively have to. We endeavor to make any criticism we indulge in, of the constructive variety. With regard to this particular ad. so far from saying anything nasty about it, we are reproducing it as a rattling good oyster advertisement. Oh ! if the jolly blue-point bivalves referred to in this ad. could only have known in their lifetime what a complimentary obituary notice was in store for them. Surely they would have burst their shells with swelling pride ! "Fat, juicy, solid meat and no water," as the ad. says, tersely describes what humanity loves to see in an oyster. This is really good description, calculated to make the public mouth water for some of those blue-points of Woodman & McKee. This ad. is attractively headed, brightly written, and wisely set up. We have nothing to suggest in improvement of this ad., except that perhaps the price of the oysters if given, might have considerably helped sales—and again it might not.

The grain market here was a little easier on Saturday. Wheat declined two cents and is selling for 95 to 98 cents; barley, 70 to 74 cents; oats, 45 to 50 cents. With flour 10 cents cheaper in Winnipeg we are looking for a drop here.

EDMONTON.

Let every grocer who does even a moderate business stop and consider the quantities of biscuits he handles in a year. These are made from wheat or oats and are used by people everywhere. Now, Edmonton is situated in the centre of one of the richest districts in western Canada. The city is in a position to become the distributing centre for the country for 500 miles, east, west, north and south. This country is not only a good agricultural area, but is also rich in mineral wealth. Towns and cities will spring up very rapidly, as it is opened up by the railways, and the supplies will be drawn from Edmonton. In spite of these glowing prospects and in spite of the fact that grain of all kinds may be grown here, there is as yet no biscuit factory in Edmonton. Experienced men have looked into the situation and have remarked upon the opportunities for such an industry. All that is required is an energetic man with a little capital and plenty of brains and with progressive, up-to-date ideas to start such a factory, and he will soon make good. And the man that gets in on the ground floor is the man who is going to succeed.

"Nothing pays a man better than consistent and persistent advertising," said a prominent Edmonton grocer recently to The Canadian Grocer's representative He had just finished dressing his window and a particularly attractive display it was. "By advertising, I don't mean only advertising in newspapers and other publications, I mean letting the people know in every way possible that you carry a good line of goods, and are prepared to give them entire satisfaction. A person advertises his business by the clean, natty appearance of his store, a good display of his goods in his windows, a neat delivery rig, well swept sidewalk, neat, attractive clerks, and in many other ways. It all helps and it's the man who attends to all of these details who makes a success of his business." These words from one of the most successful grocers in Edmonton are well worthy of attention. When you go down to your store in the morning just take a look around and see where you can improve the appearance of things in many ways. Make them and watch for results. They'll come.

The Calgary Hundred Thousand Club visited Edmonton on Thanksgiving day to see the progress being made by the capital city of Alberta. The town was rather quiet, for it was a public holiday and all places of business were closed. Many flattering comments were made, however, on the attractive window displays in almost all of the stores, and the enterprise and skill of our Edmonton merchants was highly commended.

A comprehensive report on the crop returns for the Province of Alberta is being prepared by the Provincial Department of Agriculture and will be issued shortly. This will tend to disprove much of the knocking and pessimistic prophecies as to the western crops throughout the country.

BRANDON.

The Ingersoll correspondent made some good remarks about providing accommodation for waiting customers. It would be wise to have seats provided for tired shoppers, but the great trouble is to find room in a grocery store for them. If a grocer were building a new store to suit himself, I think the idea of providing seats would be a first-class idea. But I think a better idea still would be to have a room set aside for ladies from the country, where they could change their wraps. My idea would be to have a wash room and lavatory in connection with this room.

All places of business were closed in Brandon on Thursday morning, Nov. 6, on account of the funeral of our late provincial member, Dr. S. W. McInnis. He was Provincial Sectetary as well as Minister of Education and was most highly respected by everybody.

Ontario winter apples are coming in very freely now and are selling well considering the high prices.

I notice the Calgary correspondent says the leading grocers of that city would like to close at six o'clock. Why don't they close at 6,30 and give the laboring man a chance to come in and pay his bills and also to buy what he wants? It is the only chance he has, because the stores are never open when he is on his way to work. Of course, there are always some "second raters" that would keep open after hours, but the best thing to do is to have a strict by-law and make the police look after them.

J. B. Smith, late manager of The Dominion Produce Co., has opened up in business for himself. He will handle butter, eggs, cheese, potatoes, etc. He should do well, because he is a hustler and uses the trade well.

There is some talk that the big grain buyers have quit buying wheat around here because they think the price is too high and it is not good buying. Others are not buying because money is so scarce. It will make it bad for Manitoba, because everything was shaping n cely for fall trade, but if the farmers do not put the money in circulation, no one will. We will realize more how dependent we really are on the farmer.

Farm produce is very scarce. Fresh eggs are selling at 35c a dozen and butter from 30 to 35c per pound. Poultry is always pretty dear here. At present turkeys are retailing at 22c per pound and chickens 20c per pound. The grocers do not handle poultry here, they leave it all to the butchers and fish stores.

MONTREAL.

The question raised by The Grocer's Ottawa correspondent, relative to the market by-law in that city, caused a Montreal representative to call on Ald. J. G. Duquette, chairman of the Market Committee. Mr. Duquette said: "There has never been any regulation put upon the market here. They open at 5 a.m. and business can begin at once." Continuing, he said: "I do not see what advantage could be gained anywhere by prohibiting dealers and hucksters from buying before 8 a.m. in the summer and 9 a.m. in the winter; and I am sure it would act injuriously to Montreal trade. In this city dinner, for the vast majority, is at noon, and not in the evening, consequently, it is necessary for the retailer to have his meats ready for his customer by 9 a.m., which could not be done if they were restricted from buying before that hour."

The state of the streets is a question of more importance perhaps to the grocer than to any other man of business, and there is considerable dissatisfaction felt in Montreal over the condition of the leading thoroughfares. It is of little importance to a delivery wagon whether a street is clean or not, but it is a serious matter when the rails of the street railway are four inches above the street level. When a leading grocer whose store is at the junction of two street car lines was spoken to on this subject he said: "Few realize that every time my wagons go out or come in, they are forced to turn across those high rails. It is not only a great inconvenience, but it takes much more repairing and therefore a greater cost to keep my delivery rigs in shape." What is true for this grocer is true, only to a less extent, perhaps, for every grocer of any consequence in Montreal.

There has never been a grocers' clerks' union in Montreal. What is the reason? That is what a number of grocers' clerks here are asking. It is perhaps the only business which has not got its union. One clerk of long experience stated it to be his belief that a union properly conducted would be a great factor in bringing about uniform early-closing, which, from the clerk's view point is very desirable. At present the hours are so long that it is becoming very difficult for grocers to get really efficient help.

Business for this time of year is rather dull. The uniform high prices are beginning to tell on the retail trade here. One of the direct results is that there are now more capable grocery clerks out of employment than at this time last year. As a rule, many of the larger grocers increase their staff at this season in anticipation of the holiday trade. But this year many are curtailing expenses. One of the most progressive grocers of Montreal said: "Recently I put an ad. for a clerk in one of the daily papers, and I was really astonished at the number of likely-looking fellows who responded. I did not think there were so many out of work."

STRATFORD.

Some of the grocers are already commencing to display their Christmas goods in their windows, and such goods as raisins, currants, prunes, cranberries, etc., are noticed. When dressing windows some people apparently want to put a sample of everything in the store in the window. Don't overcrowd the window. Be reasonable and put in that article which you think will attract somebody's attention.

There was a very large attendance at the market here on Saturday, and if anything, the market appears to be increasing. Prices varied little. Butter sold at 27 to 28c. per lb., eggs 29 to 30c., chickens 25 to 50c. each, ducks 45 to 55c., geese 80c. to $1, turkeys 14c. to 15c. per lb. Turkeys are very scarce. Probably they are being held for Christmas trade. Potatoes brought $1 per bag, and apples 70 to 90c. In grain and foodstuffs there has been a decline in price. Wheat is now quoted at 90c. standard, oats 47c., barley 65c. to 70c., peas 75c. to 80c., bran, $22 ton, hay $15 a ton.

The chief of police made a tour of the market and on Saturday found one farmer selling light-weight butter. There were 28 prints which ran about 3½ ounces short on four packages.

The Whyte Packing Co. dress some really fine windows. Their produce (meats) generally occupy a good, conspicuous place. For Thanksgiving, one of their windows contained several very small pigs, all ready for the dinner table. They were purchased by one of the local hotelkeepers.

Last week several carloads of apples were shipped from this city to the Old Country. It will be interesting to know something about the packing of these apples. One packer and shipper remarked, "Our apples are picked in bags and emptied into boxes, which are hauled on large, low, spring wagons to the packing house at the corner of the orchard. There they are packed. Canvas stretcher sorting tables and a cushioned packers' table for four packers are used. A box press and a nailing bench completes the outfit.

"As the apples come from the orchard the boxes are piled at one side of the packing house. Sorters empty the apples on the sorting table and grade them into No. 1s, No. 2s, and No. 3s. The culls are placed to one side in baskets.

The baskets of No. 1s and 2s are emptied on the packers' cushioned table in different compartments.

"The packer wraps the apples and places them in boxes in tiers. When full, he marks on the box the grade and the number of apples that it contains. The box is then taken to the press, the pressman puts on the cover and cleats and nails it. The variety of apple is then stamped on the box. The boxes are piled on the other side of the packing house, where they are ready to be hauled to the station."

PEMBROKE.

Now that the Thanksgiving turkey has disappeared, the local traders are looking up the specials for Christmas and filling up stock to meet the demand for the festive season. If prices keep advancing in the manner they have of late, it looks as if there will be but little money to spare for luxuries. It is quite a treat to be able to tell a customer these days that an article has not gone up in price, for nearly everything has gone up lately.

Merchants are now selling rolled oats at 5c a pound or six for 25c. 30c and 32c a dozen is asked for eggs, while butter is retailing at 32c for creamery and 30c for dairy. A plentiful supply of meat on the market keeps the price down. The price of poultry also keeps down, chicken selling at 60 to 65c a pair, geese at 75c each, and turkeys at 17 and 18c a pound. With the arrival of five or six cars of apples, merchants are getting busy booking orders. Spies are selling at $4.75 to $5 a barrel, and other varieties from $4 to $5 a barrel. Dried fruits are also beginning to appear, but very little display has yet been made of these goods. One leading merchant had a dainty display this week of a line of Chinese figs, which proved good sellers, owing to the scarcity of the ordinary variety.

Pembroke grocers are handicapped as well as other towns with a market by-law, prohibiting them from buying before nine a.m., and this too at a time of the year when produce is scarce. It is hardly worth the trouble of their attending when nearly everything worth buying is swept up. Lately a by-law was brought forward to prevent farmers from selling their meat in small joints. Not less than a quarter of beef was to be sold, but owing to the strong opposition brought against it, it fell through, and the public are still able to get anything they want from a pound of steak upwards.

In one of my recent letters I mentioned that one of the merchants had advertised the fact that he intended doing a strictly cash business, but whether he found that local circumstances were a little too much against such a system or whether he possessed a soft heart and could not resist the appeal of "Mother will pay on Saturday," I find, that although not giving quite as much as formerly, there are still a few.

A very useful class for show card writers has been started at the local Y.M.C.A., open to members and non-members. This should prove a valuable incentive to good window dressing. The clerk that can write a good card for a window, will scarcely want to take it home and put it on a shelf. He would rather see it displayed in a window together with a dainty display of the goods it was intended for.

Where do they all come from and how do they get a living? one might ask oneself on seeing the crowd of travelers that each train brings into the town. The other day I heard a merchant remark to his clerk, "I am going home for an hour or two to write some important letters. I cannot do it here, with the swarm of drummers there are about."

The local bakers have for some time been selling a one and a half pound loaf for 6c., and now the milkmen have put on another cent per quart for their milk, bringing the price to 8c.

VICTORIA.

"Fine Thanksgiving Turkeys" is the headline of one of the editorials in the special Fall Number of The Canadian Grocer, and a truer statement was never made if all the turkeys were like those which reached Victoria this season. Raising turkeys is not a large industry in B.C. and consequently we have to look to Eastern Canada to supply our wants in this respect, and just in passing I would like to mention a few details that may be of interest to eastern shippers. In previous years many of the turkeys have arrived on this market in a very unsatisfactory condition, some with wing feathers and some with tail feathers, and some with both. Once in a while one would find a nicely picked bird with all feathers removed, and then probably in the same case there would be one or more birds with not only the feathers removed but generous chunks of skin and flesh as well—and occasionally one would find a skeleton that may have resembled a turkey when it had a full dress of feathers on. Now just let us travel with a case of these "assorted" turkeys from, let us say, Smith's Falls, to Victoria. First of all, this conglomeration of legs, wings and necks, etc., are all jumbled into a case and weighed, and the gross, tare and net weights marked thereon—sometimes accurately and sometimes otherwise. Then they are very conspicuously stamped "Selects." After this they are frozen, and not any too soon, for surely some of them should have received a chill about a week previous. Now let our imagination take us without any particular reason into a retail store in Victoria, the proprietor of which has bought eight or ten cases of selects, probably two months ago, in order to have them arrive in time for his Xmas trade. Now he opens a case, and what does he find? Just a frozen mass of birds. He allows them to remain as they are for a few hours to thaw out, and then what does he find? Just imagine those wing and tail feathers all sopping wet, and the nice plump bird so badly disfigured that any respectable grocer would be ashamed to hang it in his shop. Now what is this dealer to do? He can't ship the turkeys back, and worse still, how is he going to fill his Xmas orders? If Mr. Shipper from Smith's Falls had really gone along with those turkeys he would have had quite an interesting time. Your eastern readers may laugh and say that this is an exaggeration, but the writer has had many such experiences. But to return to where I started, I am glad to say that the turkeys that arrived here last month for Thanksgiving were as fine a lot of birds as anyone could wish to see, and sold readily at good prices. They were really "Selects" and fine plump young birds, with all feathers removed and heads off, necks wrapped in parchment paper and feet tied down, and when thawed out and carefully dried off none but an expert could tell that they had ever been frozen. Let the eastern dealers send us such birds as these and charge an extra two cents a pound, and the result will be satisfaction at both ends of the line.

The Grocer has been giving some timely talks on rats lately. I use the word timely, for there seems almost to be a plague of rats on the Pacific coast just now. The San Francisco and Seattle authorities are unceasing in their efforts to keep them down. In Victoria they seem to have overrun the city during the last few months and the authorities are now offering a bounty of fifty cents a dozen for them.

Your Ingersoll correspondent seems to be rather horrified at the prospect of paying more than thirty cents for butter. The wholesale price here to-day is forty-three cents for fresh creamery in one pound prints, and this retails at fifty cents, and even at these prices the supply is not nearly adequate. Of course there is cheaper butter on the market, such as Alberta creamery, which finds a ready sale at thirty-five and forty cents a pound. Fresh eggs are almost a luxury and what few are to be had are selling for seventy cents a dozen, but this will not last long for in this mild climate the hens lay well as soon as the moulting season is over. Bread has advanced to six cents per one pound loaf; flour and potatoes are both high; in short, there is still an upward tendency in nearly all lines.

A few small trial shipments of Australian dried fruits, such as sultana and valencia raisins, have been brought in here recently. These fruits opened up in a very satisfactory condition and proved much cleaner than the Smyrna fruit usually is. This is an important event to the grocers throughout Canada, for one of the most serious problems that the western grocer has to contend with is getting their fruit here in time for Xmas trade, in fact many shipments arrive here entirely too late and consequently are dead stock for some months to come. The Australian fruits arrive here early in September, thus giving ample time for distribution. It seems that all Australian goods are earning an enviable reputation for themselves, for the moment they reach this market they are eagerly sought by the retailer. This applies to apples, butter, onions and canned meats. The writer has had some little experience in handling these goods, and here ventures a prediction that in the very near future Australian dried fruits will be important factors in the grocery business throughout Canada.

POST-OFFICE MISMANAGEMENT.

"In the matter of the theft of letters from the post office in which one young man was found guilty and sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary we are compelled to call public attention to the small salaries that these clerks receive. It was shown in evidence that this man was married. His hours were long, his responsibilities important and his salary nine dollars per week. We mention this, making no excuse for the criminal, but we are fully persuaded that the conditions are such that in the end the public service will be filled with incompetent and unambitious men and the present intention to save money will, in the long run, end disastrously for the service."

In the above words the grand jury at Toronto in their presentment to Judge Winchester the other day, condemned, as the MacLean newspapers have been doing for a long time, the post office administration inaugurated by Sir William Mulock and some of his personally-appointed and incompetent officials. The Post Office Department of Canada is the largest business organization in the country, bigger than the Canadian Pacific Railway. What would the public think of the directors of the C.P.R. or any big corporation if they selected a village doctor with no previous experience in railroading to be the general manager of the system? Yet Sir William Mulock made as head of the post office system just such a man without regard to the needs of the system, but merely as a reward for political services, or, as some assert, to get a possible opponent out of the way. Business interests in all parts of Canada are suffering. Hon. Mr. Lemieux has done much to improve the situation, but he cannot make the progress the country demands unless he has a competent organization to support him at Ottawa. It should be a clearly understood rule that all appointments in the Post Office Department at Ottawa are to be given as a reward to permanent employes who have shown, by their ability and interest in the service, their capacity to handle it.

They are undermanned and underpaid not only in the Toronto office, but it is the same in the extreme west. A recent issue of the Colonist, Victoria, B. C., says:

"The post office staff is working energetically to cope with the receipt of mail at the local post office, but the staff of sorters is all too inadequate to prevent the accumulation and delay, especially of the second class mails. Efforts are made to give as early a distribution as possible of letters, but the newspaper mail is delayed daily. Often newspapers lie for a day on the floor of the post office unsorted. Yesterday much of the newspaper mail received by the steamer Charmer at 7 a.m. was still unsorted at 5 p.m.

"The delay is entirely due to the utter inadequacy of the staff. The situation has existed for some time and attention has been drawn to the poor service as a result. Officials of the post office however have been unable to secure permission for the necessary increase of the staff, and the staff has struggled short-handed to cope with the accumulating piles of newspaper mail. Often the day staff leave the accumulated mails for the night staff and in the morning when the day staff return to work there is still a large pile to which further additions are made as the incoming mails are brought in."

GOOD NEWS FROM THE WEST.

Recognizing the growing interest, through all lines of business, in trade conditions in the Canadian West, and pursuing the policy of adequately representing each district of Canada, the proprietors of The Grocer have recently taken a step which will assure to our readers the possibility of a satisfactory acquaintance with these conditions. We have secured, as one of our representatives a well-known journalist who is recognized as an authority perhaps unsurpassed, on trade and market conditions in the Western Provinces. Regular weekly articles written on the spot will be contributed to The Grocer by this representative and it is hoped our readers will make full use of the advantage thus offered.

TOO MANY TRAVELERS?

Canada is just now thronged with commercial travelers. Her highways and byways are filled and every little town, as well as the larger centres, is being visited by more genial knights of the grip than perhaps ever before in its history.

Reasons for this are various. The steady and remarkable increase in all lines of business is one good answer, and yet there is another which is perhaps more material, if more obscure. The conservative feeling which seems to be everywhere prevalent in business circles as a reflection of the threatened period of trade depression is also having an important, if an indirect, effect. Manufacturers and wholesalers, finding that their goods are not selling according to expectations, are sending out more men, seemingly with the idea of forcing the conservative buyer, by more thorough canvass, to take regular-sized orders. We are told that in some cases even the heads of firms are on the road chasing their travelers to find out what is the matter.

Results from this accelerated campaign are bound to be more or less unsatisfactory. Many of the men who are at present on the road are new, both to the goods and the customers. Many have been taken from their regular work in factories and warehouses and sent out, without experience and education in salesmanship, to cover part of a regular man's territory. When it is considered that these men have no established connection and probably only a perfunctory knowledge of the goods they handle, it is not to be wondered at that a satisfactory amount of business is not being booked. Again, in the long run the regular travelers will suffer, for these inexperienced men are certain to leave a less pleasing impression with the firm's customers. The individual business houses who are following this plan will, however, suffer most and they must work out their own salvation.

Looked at from a lighter side, the situation has a humorous, though, perhaps, an important aspect. This oversupply of travelers is filling above the brim the hotel accommodation, not only of the smaller towns, but also of some of the larger centres. It is a very common thing these days on the arrival of a train in many an Ontario town to see four or five travelers sprinting for a hotel, regardless of dignity, fuss or grips, in the effort to secure a sample room and accommodation. In the height of the Christmas selling season and with conditions as noted above the inadequacies of hotel accommodation in Canada were never more apparent. This is a condition which will remedy itself as the country grows older.

THE WESTERN CATTLE TRADE.

Changes have come about in the western cattle trade in the past three years that merit the very thoughtful consideration, not only of men engaged in the breeding and rearing of live stock and the placing of the same on the markets of the world, but also of men engaged in every line of trade and commerce that depends for its ultimate success on the purchasing power of the farmers both east and west.

Gradually, but surely, the days of the great ranches are passing away. This has been recognized for some time, and though in Alberta the ultimate end may be longer postponed by the opening of new territory in the Peace River country, the closing out of ranches that carry from 10,000 to 20,000 head is in sight. This is true, not only because the farmer is crowding the rancher, but because more and more the British market, as well as the domestic, demands the finished article and it is gradually, but slowly, dawning on the western wheat growers that the really profitable method is to combine wheat-growing and cattle-raising, so that much of the grain raised can be converted into beef and mutton on the spot, and thus reach the market in a concentrated form. Prof. James W. Robertson told the Manitoba farmers nearly eighteen years ago, when they were clamoring for reduced freight rates. that the most effective method of reduction would be found on marketing all they produced in its most concentrated form.

In ten years time the West will have fifty farmers raising 1,000 to 3,000 bushels of wheat yearly and finishing 100 steers, where to-day there is but one ranch.

Though the trend of events is in this direction, the whole scheme of ranching and stock farming has received and is receiving a very serious set-back this fall. and it is the duty of every man in business to acquaint himself with the facts, and do all in his power to stop the present retrograde movement, which, if not checked speedily, will bring about a condition of things little short of disastrous to the live stock interests of the West, and for that matter the whole of Canada, for it is from the West that the bulk of the export trade is done.

There is no manner of doubt that a number of ranchers found it needful to sell all the cattle they could this fall, but even allowing for that, there is something of a panic among them after last winter, and there has been a tendency to sell out everything and get out of business, which most assuredly was not warranted by one bad winter. To such an extreme has this been carried, that although nearly double the number of cattle are coming forward than was estimated last spring, the percentage of good export steers is below normal. During the past six weeks the Winnipeg stockyards have been crowded with cows, good cows, nice two year old heifers and fine blocky young steers, running from eighteen months to two years old, splendid stuff to breed or feed, but absolutely useless for export. This has brought the prices down, and bunches of export steers have sold from $2.75 up to $3, and it is questionable if the buyers got their money out of them even at those figures, as they were ill-finished and soft and would shrink terribly in transit.

There is one truth that cannot be hammered home too hard or too often, and that is that the British market wants none but the best, and every additional lot of scrubs shipped over there reduces the average price to the seller.

Many farmers are short-sighted enough to tell you that it pays to sell the cattle for anything that can be got for them, and sell the feed because prices are high, but though on the face of it this seems a good argument, as a matter of fact it will not bear inspection. In the first place, there is no guarantee that the high prices for feed will continue. Already there have been serious fluctuations and it is now so near the close of navigation that it is not possible for more than another 25 per cent. of low grade wheat to be shipped out of the country; it will not stand all rail freight; and British millers and dealers will not accept it after April for fear of damage from heating in transit, so that it looks as if a large quantity might after all, be left in the country, and if there are no cattle to feed it to, as seems likely at present, it will be sheer waste.

Even supposing the immediate monetary return showed a profit, the fact that by thus denuding the country of stock, the farmer will, next year and the year after, have to pay an exceptionally high price for beef, will very speedily turn that profit into a loss.

Men well versed in the cattle trade state, that next spring the price will be 6 to 7c per pound for stall fed and 5½ to 6c for cattle fed in the open during the winter.

During the winter of 1906-7, feeding in the open was found quite feasible in both Manitoba and Saskatchewan, but this year only a very few farmers are preparing to feed in this way. Experiments have proved that two men can care for 500 head of steers, and all they require is a sheltered bluff, plenty of straw for feed and bedding, salt and fresh water always available, and a moderate amount of meal or bran, or a mixture of both.

In sections where farmers have a lot of damaged grain, which is not likely to be shipped before navigation closes, it might prove a very profitable venture for local business men to join the farmers in the purchase of some of the cheap ranch stock, now to be had, and feed with a view to selling next spring. It would be quite possible to contract with dealers both in Winnipeg and Calgary for a fixed price for such cattle delivered next April and May. The present is a most opportune moment for local business men and farmers to draw closer their business relations for their mutual profit.

THE WESTERN SITUATION.

There has been practically no change in the situation during the week. The financial stringency continues unabated, the wheat market has had small periods of recovery, but to-day cash wheat sold at three cents under last Saturday, and during the week there have been times when the drop was 8¾. Money to finance crops is no more plentiful than it was last week, the close of navigation is a week nearer, and the receipts of wheat for the week have shown fully fifty per cent. of wheat No. 4 and lower. An incident that shows which way the wind blows, is the fact that Canadian bottoms are offering lower rates for carrying wheat, an offer without a precedent in the grain trade in the last weeks of open water, and this means that at a period when boats are usually chartered a month ahead, and shippers falling over each other in their haste to secure boats, Canadian vessels are actually seeking cargo. Receipts continue to pile up at the lake fronts at the rate of 350 cars daily.

Business in the West is beginning to feel the closing of the elevators which has occurred at a number of points.

The banks still maintain their assertion that they are supplying all needful money to move the crop, but in view of actual conditions this is merely a matter of form.

WHAT A CONTEMPORARY THINKS

The American Grocer, one of the leading grocery trade journals in the United States, handed out the following little bouquet in a recent issue. It is of particular interest to us and may be so to our readers:

"The fall number of The Canadian Grocer is, as usual, a very handsome issue, not only from a news standpoint, covering as it does every important locality in the Dominion, but typographical as well. It contains 208 pages and cover, the front of which is an attraction in itself. The subject matter, much of which is illustrated with half-tone illustrations, is of a high-class, whilst its advertising pages are ample evidence of the enterprise of the Canadian manufacturers and the high regard in which the journal itself is held."

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY

A Good Idea for a Grocer's Christmas Card or Calendar—An Attractive Window From Victoria, B.C.

What can be done by a good man with a good window is well illustrated in the accompanying photograph—which comes to us from Victoria, B.C. The window was trimmed by Harry Young in the store of Fred Carne, jr., one of the most enterprising grocers of that city.

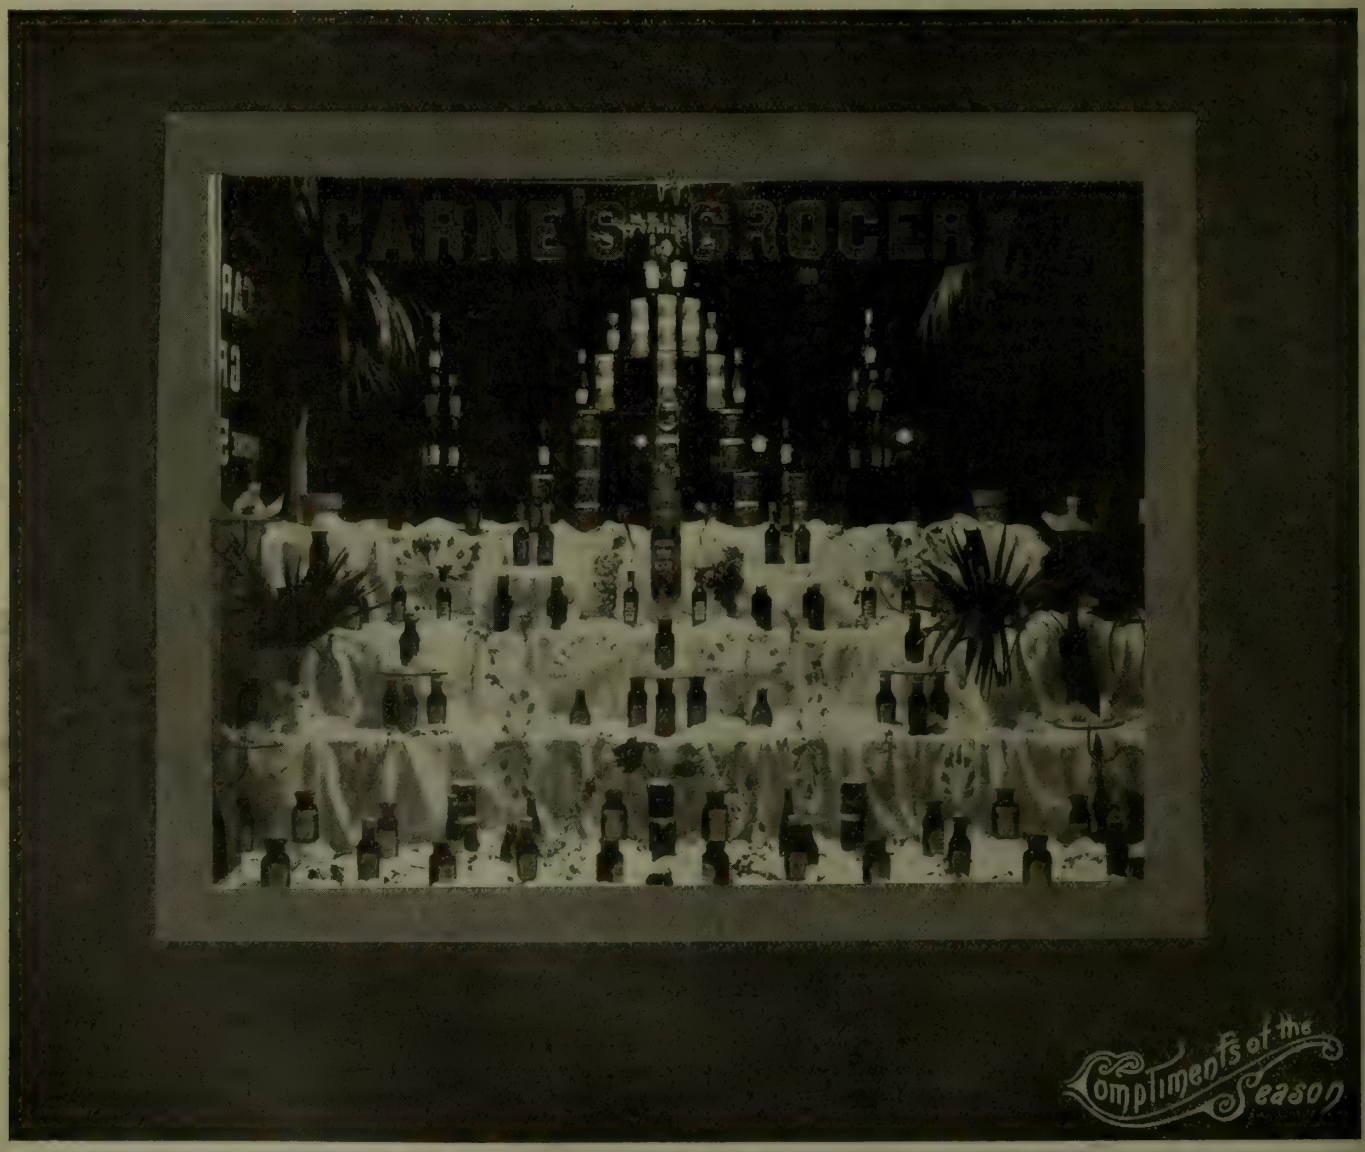
Evidently the proprietor has not been averse to reasonable expense in accomplishing the admirable result and Mr. Young has made good use of the material furnished. The series of step-shelves is covered with a good grade of cotton, this, the foundation, conveying at once an idea of cleanliness and purity. Then, tastily arranged on these shelves, are samples of a good many of the "57 varieties" of the well-known Heinz goods.

The use of glass plates on which to build the tiers of bottles and the fans made from crepe tissue, are both helpful features. The palms at the top and sides of the window and the small branches of bloom scattered sparingly among the bottled goods, add materially to the attractiveness.

This window illustrates a frequently mentioned principle of window-dressing which is worth while remembering. Do not show too many lines. Mr. Young appreciates this fact and has produced a window which gives no suggestion of crowding.

The photograph was taken at night and the three gas lights showing dimly in the window are the reflections, Mr. Young tells us, from a drug store on the opposite side of the street.

The mounted photograph, as it was sent to us, gives a mighty good suggestion for a grocer's Christmas card, and it has evidently been used for some such purpose. The print bearing the photo of the window is mounted loosely on a light buff card and this mounted again on a stiff olive card, the latter bearing on the lower corner, printed in gold, the words "Compliments of the Season." Such a card would make a very pleasing Christmas remembrance or with a calendar tab attached would mean a lot of pleased customers and a mighty good advertisement which would be referred to all year.



Suggestions for a Grocer's Christmas Card.

Above some open boxes of crackers in his store a grocer has hung this sign: "The Lord helps those who help themselves, but the Lord help the man who is found helping himself here."

G. A. Witmer, who represents Gorman, Eckert & Co., of London, in Toronto, and the East, called on The Grocer last week between trips. He reports the fall business as opening up well.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Rice—Unsettled.
Dried Fruit—Easier.

Montreal, Nov. 14, 1907.

The markets this week show a tendency to easing off on certain lines. A new feature in green fruits is Porto Rico sweet oranges, seen for the first time on this market. They are of very good quality, and are in strong demand, as they are the only sweet oranges to be had at this season. The season for fresh salmon is over and, only frozen stock is now obtainable. The vegetable situation is quiet. Domestic tomatoes are finished and imported ones from California at $4.25 per box of 30 pounds, are taking their place. Feed is easier, the prices having fallen away $1 per ton. Rolled oats is in brisk demand and much difficulty is being experienced in obtaining oats fit for milling purposes. Rice remains very unsettled, owing to the many unconfirmed reports of a famine in the United Provinces and Delhi regions, India. Scaled herrings have firmed up somewhat and are now quoted at 18c per box. The new crop of Sicily filberts is in, and are quoted at from 11½c to 13½c in quantity. There has been an easier feeling in tapioca, and the prices have fallen off somewhat. Peanuts are also down from ¼c to 1½c per pound, according to quality. There has been an easier feeling in cheese, and small cheese of 20 pounds are ½c per pound lower than last week. New Tarragona almonds are here. They are much later than usual. They are being quoted at from 12½c to 13½c. Pecans have fallen off somewhat in price and large, fancy are now quoted at from 17c to 18c. Salad oil has become quite a feature of this year's trade. It is quoted at from 90c to $1.10, which is a great reduction in former prices. It is being extensively used for "shortening," and also by certain religious orders, who abstain from oils taken from flesh. For food purposes the Trappist Monks use large quantities, buying the oil in 45 and 50-gallon lots. There has also been a falling off in the price of American pork, to the extent of 25c per barrel.

SUGAR—The sugar market continues steady. Prices are firm, although there has been a slight easing off as regards demand.

The market is steady and prices continue firm. The supply of the lower grades is still scarce. Blacks are stiff. Japans in first hands are practically cleared up.

DRIED FRUITS—The second direct steamer laden with new dates from Persia has arrived at New York, and prices have fallen ½c. The second Mediterranean steamer with a cargo of all kinds of dried fruit arrived here the first of the week and will fully supply the local market. Prices remain unchanged. On the foreign markets currants are reported a shade lower, but this change is too late to affect the local holiday trade. The first of the new crop of almonds reached New York the first of the week, but prices are so high that local importers are afraid to handle the goods.

The importers here are having great difficulty in filling their orders. The congestion of freight, both on the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway is so great that on certain occasions shipments of dried fruit have been a full week in the railway freight sheds before being delivered, in spite of the utmost exertions on the part of the importers.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—There is a report that in India in the regions of the United Provinces and Delhi the rice crop is in great danger through want of rain. Although the extent of drought is not known, the outlook for this time of year is worse than in 1896 and 1899. The Government is prepared to import rice and foodstuffs if it should be necessary to do so. The latest cable received here is dated Nov. 6 and says that the famine is still increasing and the situation is considered serious. Japan rice is a little easier however, than the opening prices.

Prices on tapioca continue firm, with a fair amount of business being done.

BEANS—The prices on beans are a little easier. The supply continues scarce, although a larger movement coming from the West is expected by the end of this month. This year there is about a 30 per cent. crop of first-class and about a 40 per cent. crop of very common beans. Peas continue unchanged in prices, with very short deliveries.

Choice prime beans	2 20	2 25
Soup peas, whole, bag 2 bushel	2 50	2 60

EVAPORATED APPLES—The market is not strong. However, a fair amount of business continues to be done at unchanged prices.

Evaporated apples	0 10	0 10½

MAPLE PRODUCTS—There is practically no maple syrup in bulk on the market. Other lines continue firm. Demand is good, and a fair amount of business is being done.

Compound maple syrup, per lb	0 04½	0 05½
Pure Townships sugar, per lb	0 08	0 08½
Beance County per lb	0 09	0 09½

PROVISIONS—Lard continues very firm in price, with a brisk demand. There has been a slight easing off in smoked meats, the demand being a little less active than last week. On the whole, the market remains steady, with a good quantity of business being transacted.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL.—All orders in canned goods are being filled as rapidly as possible. There is a shortage in tomatoes, corn, strawberries, raspberries and peaches. There is practically no rhubarb, as the crop was almost a total failure. There is still uncertainty about a good many lines of canned goods as the reports from the canners are not all in. In corn and tomatoes the present high prices are likely to be maintained and may even advance, and a very brisk demand is anticipated, as the pack this year is about 100,000 cases short of that of last year. The quality of this year's goods compares very satisfactorily with that of last year.

TORONTO.—Deliveries seem to be rather more satisfactory than for the last few weeks. The delay has no doubt been attributed to the late season and the fact that the packed goods must be kept at the factory for some time to detect spoilage. The earlier varieties of goods can now be passed with assurance and it is probable that the situation will be relieved shortly.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Steady.
Tapioca—Easier.
Raisins—New valencias advanced.
Collections—Generally fair.

Toronto, November 15, 1907.

The new fruits which are now arriving in large quantities are the centre of interest in the wholesale markets this week. The Jacoma, with a heavy cargo of raisins, currants and nuts, has called at St. John and was expected in Montreal yesterday.

Business continues generally active in the wholesale markets and surprisingly little effect seems to be felt from the prevailing financial stringency. The buying of Christmas goods of course makes matters a little brighter, but wholesalers generally say that more business is being done than was transacted at the same period last year. Retailers are not buying large supplies with a view to speculation, as is sometimes the case, but orders generally are pretty satisfactory. The wholesalers, however, are keeping matters well in hand, and are not allowing perhaps as much freedom as usual in the matter of accounts.

TEAS—The situation remains about the same as last week, with prices exceedingly stiff, and this seems likely to continue for some months at least. Ontario markets have only comparatively small stocks.

Gow, Wilson & Stanton, of London, Eng., in reviewing the situation, say in regard to Indian: "The slight irregularity noticed recently gave place to a distinctly firmer tone, everything up to about 8½d per lb. being a rather dearer market, while teas above this price were very firm. Practically nothing can now be obtained under 7½d per lb., either in whole leaf or broken. It is remarkable that in spite of the high price of commonest teas, the average from the commencement of the season is only 40d per lb. above last season. Owing to short outturn in October, as well as the large quantity of tea diverted to foreign markets, the season's quantity available for London seems likely to be considerably less than last year."

As to Ceylon they say: "There was a slightly dearer market in which all grades participated, teas up to 9d being ½d per lb. dearer, whilst commonest kinds brought 7½d per lb. Export demand continues to be of assistance to the market, especially for medium and fair liquoring Pekoes.

COFFEE—There are some signs of a slight advance in local quotations, but nothing of material interest has occurred as yet.

SUGAR—The local situation remains practically the same with a steady market. Several American refiners have been forced to close down during the week as a result of the prevailing financial situation. The refiners who control the market forced the market down 10c on Tuesday. This, however, will have no immediate effect on the Ontario prices.

DRIED FRUITS—Interest is centered in these goods just now all over the country. The principal event of the week was an advance in new Valencias of 5-6 per cent. This will work out at about 6 shillings per hundredweight. The advance is attributed to short crop and prices will probably continue at or above this level.

NUTS—The first of the new crop Grenoble walnuts have been received by local brokers. They are of excellent quality. Advices state that later shipments will also measure up to this standard. Reports on Bordeaux and Marbots are not so reassuring. The season is very backward and rains and contrary weather will likely have an injurious effect on the quality.

SPICES—Business is comparatively quiet with no material changes in prices. The prices of cocoa and chocolate have declined at American points as the result of an easier bean situation, but local dealers did not advance their prices so sharply when the general advance was made a few weeks ago and are consequently not called on to drop them at the present time.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The rice market continues strong, particularly in the higher grades. Tapioca is slightly easier.

BEANS—The scarcity of beans keeps prices up so that not much business is passing. Some foreign beans are being brought in but not enough to affect the local situation.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Not much interest is being shown at this time of the year though the market is perhaps a shade firmer.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Nov. 14, 1907.)

There seems to have been a halt, for a short time at least, in the advance in prices in groceries. This is probably occasioned by a material falling off in general demand. People are being more careful and are doing without a good many things they cannot well afford at the present high prices.

CANNED GOODS—The demand is not at all active. Prices are unchanged.

WITH ANOTHER FIRM.

The item regarding the marriage of Albert S. May, in last week's Grocer, inadvertently stated that this well known representative was with H. P. Eckardt & Co. Mr. May made a name for himself with Eckardt & Co., and some remembrance of this must have affected the writer of the item. He is, however, manager for R. S. McIndoe, with which firm he has been connected for eight years. The Grocer's best wishes go to Mr. May and his bride in their new relations.

It Is Profitable to Buy Now

WE are now receiving the balance of our imported goods, in larger consignments than ever. We are cramped for space, and to save warehouse and cartage expenses, which are very large, we have decided to quote special prices to buyers for immediate delivery from the wharves. Our patrons will thus profit by an advantageous reduction on the prices of goods, together with the savings thus effected through the suppression of warehouse and cartage dues.

Amongst the goods thus consigned we may note the following :

Port Wines from the Real Companhia Vinicola of Portugal
Sherry Wines from Diez Hermanos de Jerez of Frontera
Claret Wines and Sauternes from Vigneau & Cambours, Bordeaux
Burgundy Wines from Morin Pere et Fils, Beaune
Madeira Wines from Blandy Bros., Madeira
Malaga and Muscatel Wines from Garrett & Co., Malaga
Mass Wines, "Vatican," "Sanctuaire et Colli"

CORRESPONDENCE

TORONTO.

Out at Toronto Junction, in spite of the wretched condition of the main thoroughfare, there are signs of prosperity on all sides. Factories are busy, money is being freely circulated, and there is but little complaint about collection. The Junction grocers are wide-awake and "wise" to all the tricks of the trade. They seem to realize fully the value of bright, attractive windows as business bringers.

The Junction has been seriously hampered all summer by the local improvements on Dundas St. This roadway has always been famous for its sticky mud in rainy weather and its clouds of dust in fine weather. This summer steps were taken to change all this and lay down a modern pavement. In undertaking these improvements but little consideration seems to have been made by the proper authorities. Instead of tearing up one side of Dundas St. or accomplishing the work in sections, the whole street was torn up for a considerable distance, thus making the highway well-nigh impassable. It has caused a great deal of annoyance and injury to the merchants. Trade with the farmers especially suffered. As one grocer put it: "I had to go into the country to buy a cabbage." However, the road will soon be completed, and the street cars will once more be lending their noisy presence.

Junction grocers, unlike their brethren in the city, do a considerable trade in flour. It is evident that the baking of bread is not yet a lost art among the women of this locality as it practically is in Toronto. The prices of butter and eggs, much to the consternation of the thrifty housekeeper, are still soaring. Butter is selling at 34 and 36 cents and is none too plentiful. Select eggs are retailing at 31 cents. Biscuits have also advanced, an advance which apparently is not welcomed by the grocers.

At the corner of Dundas St. and Western Ave., A. L. Anderson is building up a rattling good grocery business. Not only does he pay particular attention to the dressing of his window, but he also manages to display his goods in a very suggestive manner. He handles a special line of cakes which he claims pays well, a tip well worth the consideration of all live grocers.

A rumor has been in circulation to the effect that an esteemed citizen, Arch. Campbell, M.P., has been slated for a Senatorship. For many years he has occupied a prominent position in public affairs and has rendered valuable services to his country. Everybody, irrespective of political leanings, wishes that he may receive the appointment. Mr. Campbell is well-known to the grocery trade as the proprietor of the Queen City Milling Co.

In the western part of Toronto, building operations are but little affected by the money stringency. Brick houses and stores are being constructed to meet the growing demands of the city. In the last few months there have been lots of changes in the appearance of this region. It seems quite certain that before long this once sparsely-settled section will be as populous and progressive as the older parts of the city. A short walk along Bloor St., west of Bathurst, impresses one with this western boom.

Henderson & Co., are doing a mighty good business at the corner of Shaw and Bloor Sts. The proprietor is young and energetic and spares no pains to remove his store's appearance from the class of "eye-sores." He has a convenient show-case of cigars and tobaccos and it pays him handsomely as does a similar display of choice confectionery. Everything around the store is in A1 condition and it goes without saying that more than one customer has left the store with larger purchases than anticipated on entering. Too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of paying very close attention to both exterior and interior appearances.

Shaw St., between Bloor and College Sts., is popularly designated as "Commercial Row." It is said that fully 60 per cent. of its residents are commercial travelers. It would be marvellous indeed if the west-end didn't forge ahead with these hustlers as citizens of the neighborhood.

Gordon's Cash Grocery, Givens and Bloor Sts., has been sold to Jas. Hannighan, the late proprietor having accepted a position on the road.

Near the corner of Bloor and Dovercourt Road is to be found a real live grocer in the person of A. E. Lush. Though his store is not as commodious as some of the big fellows down town, A. E. has a business of which he may well feel proud. He is thoroughly up-to-date and never neglects his window display which is for him a trade-creator. Despite keen competition business has been steadily increasing. A specialty is made of fruits and with big results judging from A. E.'s humble remark, that he sold nearly 20,000 baskets of fruit alone this summer. This information should be of the greatest value to grocers all over the Dominion. He is firmly convinced that the only system of payments is spot cash.

W. W. Hutchison, of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Montreal, has just returned from a short business trip to the West.

TRAVELERS' ASSOCIATION MEETS

Nominations for New Officers—Lewis A. Howard Re-elected President.

At the general meeting of the Commercial Travelers' Association, in St. George's Hall, Toronto, on Saturday evening, November 9th, the following nominations were made for officers for the new year: President—Lewis A. Howard. Elected by acclamation. 1st Vice-President — John Gibson, George West. 2nd Vice-President—Robert Gemmell. Elected by acclamation. Treasurer—E. Fielding, John H. Kenney.

Hamilton Board: 1st Vice-President—John H. Herring. Elected by acclamation. 2nd Vice-President—E. J. Fenwick, R. M. Stuart. One to be elected.

Montreal Board: S. O. Shorey, vice-president. Elected by acclamation.

Lewis A. Howard, the re-elected president, was elected to the Board of Directors of the Association in 1897, and since then he has occupied the position of 2nd vice-president for two years and then became vice-president. For nine years he covered Ontario from Toronto to Kingston, and in 1891 changed to Western Ontario, and covered the territory from Toronto to Windsor. In 1895, on the death of his father, he took up the management of the Toronto business with his brother.

Mr. Howard is the youngest occupant of the president's chair of the C.T.A., and through a close connection with athletic and fraternal society circles, as well as in business, he has made a host of friends.

Leon Foutanel, of Leon Foutanel & Co., Montreal, called on The Grocer this week. Mr. Foutanel says that his Western business is increasing so rapidly that he is intending to open a branch in Toronto early in the new year.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

A further drop in cheese prices is to be recorded this week, though the decline dos not amount to much.

Quebecs are selling at the time of writing, from 12 to 12¼c, though some dealers are glad to take 11½c for what they have to offer. For Townships prices range from 12¼c to 12½c, while dealers are asking 12⅝c to 12⅝c for their holdings of Ontarios, sometimes getting as high as 12¾c for colored. These prices are for October cheese.

Such of the September make as still remains is being quoted from 13c to 13⅛c for white. to 13¾c for colored. Supplies of September cheese are light, however, and it is chiefly Ontario grades that are offered, Quebecs being practically cleaned up.

Export business has been very good during the past week, there being noticeable the same anxiety to catch last boats, as was mentioned in the report of a week ago.

Receipts of cheese last week amount-to 39,806 boxes, against 41,764 boxes for previous week, and 58,857 boxes for same week of 1906. Total receipts since May 1 amountd to 1,972,577 boxes, against 2,229,325 boxes for the same period in 1906.

Official export figures give shipments for the week as 35,262 boxes, against 47,471 boxes for previous week, and 55,083 boxes for same week of 1906. Total receipts since May 1 are 1,862.-579 boxes, against 2,105,662 boxes for same period last year.

According to advices from England there seems to be a fairly good consumptive demand, Canadian cheese moving freely enough in a small way. Large transactions are not frequent. Stocks held this year are not a great deal over half of what they were at this time in 1906.

While butter is quoted at slightly lower prices this week, there is a feeling in the trade that quotations will not go much lower, some asserting that bottom has already been reached. Once the first of the winter make is disposed of, they think, a firmness will characterize the market which will result in steadily maintained prices, or even advanced figures towards January. It remains to be seen what the developments will be.

The range in prices offered is sufficiently wide to permit one anxious to buy to secure stock at fair figures. For finest creamery 27½c to 28½ are ruling prices, though it seems in some cases hard to get the latter figure. On the other hand, one dealer is asking as much as 30c for choice creamery. Dairy continues scarce and high, and to-day's prices are about the same as ruled a week ago, 25c to 26c.

The recent cold snap has made dealers hopeful for better things, and they are looking forward to better butter and better prices.

The New York market has advanced about 4c within one week. At present 28½c is the ruling figure there. At one time the market was as high as 32c, but it declined to 24½c. The recovery which has taken place occurred within one week.

English market prices are rather high to permit of butter being brought into either Canada or the States. Demand for English butter seems to be very good, while receipts of English butter have not been as large as they were expected to be and Australian not being any too plentiful neither, a firmness has crept into the market in the Old Country.

There is some foreign make being imported. Irish factory is still arriving, while some Siberian is expected next week. The former is being quoted at 26c and sometimes 27c, while the Siberian will be worth around 27½c.

New Zealand butter is expected toward January and February. At present buying prices it would have to be sold at 30c to net importers any profit.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 8,063 packages, against 4,685 packages. for previous week, and 7,002 packages for same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 have been 372,841 packages, against 567 662 packages for same period of 1906.

Only 3 packages were exported last week, against 5 packages for previous week and 482 packages for same week in 1906. Total shipments since May 1 amount to 66,769 packages, against 360,418 packages for same period last year.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The decline spoken of last week has continued and the situation has become rather serious. "The English market is bad," said a prominent packer this week. "and there is much uncertainty as to what may happen in a few days." Danish deliveries were considerably lighter last week, as a result of the heavy shipments of the week before and this week's killings will probably also be lower. American shipments have also been light, the figures for last week aggregating 13,000, though this was somewhat above reports of the week before. Canadian shipments have been considerably lighter, and for the past three weeks have been at least 1,500 less than for the corresponding three weeks last year.

Prices offered for Canadian hogs have again declined, seemingly as a result of the bad condition of the English market. F.O.B. country points bring $5.50 $5.75 and fed and watered $5.60 to $5.75.

The money stringency continues to affect the situation materially. The Journal of Commerce, in its weekly review, gives some details in regard to this. The article says:

The past week has witnessed more activity in hog products, owing to the increased pressure to sell, because of financial stringency and some rumors of embarrassment among the packers, who are unable to get their usual bank accommodations at this season of the year, when their winter operations begin and the usual laying off of stock.

Receipts of hogs continued light also until the latter part of the week and offerings of cash stuff were not pressed, especially of lard; demand is equally slow and only for immediate wants, as no one is buying anything he can avoid and sellers are demanding cash for what little they have as the packers did last week in the case of lard, until their offerings were so reduced that no cash could be bought in Chicago this week except in exchange for the November option at 40 to 45 cents premium. Yet, packers have been depressing the hog market and talking 4-cent hogs and have made considerable headway in the reduction of prices of nearly ¾c per pound, though farmers are said to have been holding back their hogs for cash.

The absence of heavy hogs lately would seem to indicate that they are not yet ready for market and are probably held for new corn to feed them. In beef products there has been no accumulation as yet and prices have scarcely declined, though by-products have been lower on inability to sell, except at a decline, owing to the stringency in money.

PROVISIONS—A slightly easier feeling prevails throughout the local market. Large arrivals of hogs have had a shading effect on lard and bacons, and a falling off in demand consequent on continued high prices is felt in other lines. Venison is being sold but the supply is not large enough to allow it to be generally quoted. Beef prices have fallen off slightly in consequence of dullness in fresh meat.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Grain Markets Are Unsteady—Flour Declines in the East—Money Stringency Affects Movements of Wheat.

The advance in oat products prophesied last week has not as yet materialized. Oats are exceedingly scarce in the east and what shipments are arriving are of too inferior a quality to warrant any increase.

Flour has declined in eastern Canada as much as 20 cents per barrel, but this is not general and the market is not at all steady.

Local demand is very fair and considerable export business is being transacted through the chief Canadian and United States ports.

The wheat in store at the head of the lakes is not being brought out with anything like promptness. The movement a year ago was slow, but it improves by contrast with this year's. Despite the fact that the amount of grain received at Port Arthur and Fort William elevators this season has been less than in 1906, stocks in store at the Twin Cities already show an increase of 1,410,000 bushels and the grain is still piling up, this week's amount being 804 000 bushels in excess of the preceding week.

The Western wheat market has had brief periods of recovery, but at the beginning of the week cash wheat sold at three cents under the week before and there have been even further declines during the week. The Western banks still continue to assert that they are supplying all the money needed to move the crop, but those on the spot who ought to know state that this is merely a matter of form.

Receipts of wheat at Winnipeg recently have far outstripped the corresponding totals last year. Inspections on Saturday amount to 454 cars, compared with 199 cars in 1906. The grading returns were: No. 1 hard, 1 car; No. 1 northern, 52 cars; No. 2 northern, 85 cars; No. 3 northern, 164 cars; No. 4 northern, 34 cars; 163 cars of other grades and 15 of winter wheat. Forty-one cars of barley and 27 of oats were inspected.

World's shipments of wheat were 11,416,000 bushels, compared with 11,215,000 bushels last week and 11,000,000 a year ago. This exceeds expectations by about 1,415,000 bushels, but Russian shipments showed a sharp falling off, only amounting to 2,184,000 compared with 3,144,000 last week. Shipments of corn were 2,545,000 bushels last week 2,455,000, last year 4,915,000.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—There has been a decline in prices of 20c a barrel. The market is quiet. There is a fair local demand, and a certain amount of export trade continues to be done through New York and St. John, local navigation being practically closed for the season.

ROLLED OATS—The market in rolled oats is very brisk, and prices continue firm. It is becoming very difficult to obtain oats fit for milling purposes. There are very few offerings. Some small Western firms report the local market to be slightly easier than last week. No change in prices is noted.

CANADIAN PRODUCE IN ENGLAND

Favorable Reports Regarding Recent Arrivals of Cheese, Eggs, Apples, Etc., in England.

P. B. MacNamara, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Manchester, in a recent report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, says that he is advised by Manchester commission merchants that Canadian cheese is arriving this year in much better condition than usual. "The market for Canadian eggs and bacon is particularly profitable to Canadian shippers at present," says Mr. MacNamara. "Apples and other fruit shipped to England this fall are arriving in particularly good condition and are commanding unusually high prices."

TRADE CONDITIONS IN NOVA SCOTIA

Farmers Discuss Produce Prices—Potato Imports Late in Arriving—Large Shipments of Salt and Dried Fish.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 11.

The grocery markets are very steady here at the present time and trade be very good considering the high price of all food products. Prices of flour are very firm, but there is a feeling among some of the trade that there will be no further increase, at least for some time to come. Collections are generally good, considering the condition of the money markets.

Very few cargoes of potatoes from Prince Edward Island have been marketed so far this season. The importation of potatoes this year are later than usual. Most of the potatoes now on the market are Nova Scotia grown, and they are quoted at 50c per bushel.

There is no change in the butter markets, last week's high prices still prevailing. Some large tubs of dairy butter marketed during the week sold from 25c to 26c per pound.

Fresh eggs are very scarce and the price is high. The receipts are very light for the season. On the market on Saturday fresh eggs sold from 40 to 45c per dozen, something unusual at this time of year. The existing conditions are hard to understand. The weather has been very favorable for the hens laying, and the receipts should be larger. The only explanation is that the farmers are killing off their poultry earlier this season than usual.

The fruit steamer Jacona, which arrived here last week from Mediterranean ports, landed about 16,000 packages of raisins, grapes, nuts, figs and wine.

A meeting of some of the leading agriculturalists of Yarmouth county, was held at Yarmouth last week, when a spirited debate was carried on for upwards of two hours. One of the topics under discussion was the relative prices of farm produce in comparison with wages, and the prices of other commodities. Many of the speakers alluded to the fact that every class of artisan except the farmers, had formed unions for mutual protection. Following up the line of debate, a committee was appointed to draw up some resolutions, which would be laid before a future meeting. The action of the farmers is awaited with considerable interest.

Activity continues in the apple markets, high grade stock commanding good prices on the local markets. Large shipments are still being made to the European ports.

The receipts of dry and pickled fish at this port are now very heavy. Among the arrivals last week were the schooner Plekoma, from the Canadian Labrador, with 1,100 qtls. cod ; Alice E., from the same place, with 300 qtls. cod ; the Reliance, from Boutitier's Cove, with 65 barrels pickled herring, and the Rising Sun, from Prospect, with 55 barrels of herring. The steamer Rosemary, from Port Monton, had 200 barrels of herring; the schooner Werra, from Bay St. George, Newfoundland, had 938 barrels of herring, and 162 qtls. of cod. The schooner St. Patrick brought 200 qtls. cod and 39 barrels of herring from Larry's River; the Annie May, from May Bay, had 50 barrels of herring, and 30 qtls. of cod; and the steamer Acadia brought 600 packages of dry and pickled fish from La Have.

NOMINATIONS FOR D. C. T. A.

Officers Next Year Will Include Prominent Members of Grocery Trade.

The Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association held a meeting for nomination of officers for the ensuing year, in Montreal, on Saturday evening, November 9. The nominations are as follows.

President—W. J. Egan, of W. R. Brock Co., Limited; Geo. A. Mann, of J. L. Cassidy & Co.; R. C. Wilkins, of R. C. Wilkins & Co. Vice-president—J. B. Giles, of Drummond, McCall Co.; S. Mathewson, of Mathewson's Sons. Treasurer—Max Murdock. S. J. Carter was nominated, but withdrew. Directors, to take the place of the five retiring directors—L. W. Anderson, of Greenshields, Limited; Hugh Glassford, and J. A. Dawson, of Lyman-Knox; P. M. Lemaitre, of the Salem Co.; A. O. Thibeau, of Menzie Wall Paper Co.;

S. J. Mathewson.

Chas. Petrie, of Hart & Adair; F. N. Picquart, S. D. Stuart and E. Duckett, of A. McDougall.

It was decided to close the poll December 13 at 5 p.m.

In business afterwards discussed it was decided to hold a dinner as usual and a dinner committee of eighteen members was appointed.

About seventy-five members were present, and throughout the liveliest interest was shown.

Several of these nominees are prominent in the grocery trade in Montreal. S. J. Mathewson, one of the candidates for vice-president, is one of Montreal's leading wholesale grocers and has innumerable friends, in the grocery trade and other business lines, who will give him the warmest support in the race for the vice-presidency.

"S. J.," as he is known to his confreres in the grocery trade, entered upon his business career when he was but 15 years of age, and from the very first he aimed at success. He entered the employ of his father, the late J. A. Mathewson, and eight years later, at 23, he was given a partnership. That was in 1884. Since that time he has been continually connected with the old house of Mathewson.

There are few men in Montreal who can give him pointers on the grocery business. He has made it a life-study, and has a surprisingly intimate knowledge of the various lines handled by the firm.

Mr. Mathewson is a booster of the most optimistic kind. He is native-born, and thinks there is no place like Canada. By the same token he is a fighter in the cause of right, and a thorough believer in the square deal. Charitably inclined, few know of his donations to good causes, but he has a host of friends among the unknown to society, the unfortunates who have not been blessed with health and the ability to earn their own living.

If Mr. Mathewson is not elected it will be no fault of his. As he said himself: "The boys want me to run. I will. I am in the field, and I am there to stay."

He has been 26 years an active member of the association.

R. C. Wilkins, nominated for the presidency, has been 26 years a member of the association and has served two years as director, and has been twice elected by acclamation as treasurer which office he now holds.

He is well-known to the travelers and business men of Canada from ocean to ocean; is a member of the Montreal Board of Trade, and a member of the executive council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Mathewson, having retired from active traveling, can give the time necessary to the affairs of this important association. Last year his firm gave $1,000 to the hospital fund, which donation aided greatly in the endowment of a travelers' cot in both the General and Notre Dame Hospitals. He is a member of the Montreal Board of Trade.

NEW CROP BROOM CORN.

The new crop of broom corn has just arrived in Canada and all brooms are now being made from the new season's corn. Brooms of all kinds will be held very firm this year, as all old stocks were exhausted and several factories were forced to close down for lack of material. There is no chance of brooms being any lower in price, and merchants should order early for fall and winter trade, as factories will soon be unable to make prompt deliveries unless orders are placed in advance.

Chausse & Co., Montreal, have opened a branch office in Ottawa at 49 Anglesea Square, where wants of customers in Ottawa and district will in future be looked after.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

New Oranges and Lemons Arriving—Good Demand for Hot-house Vegetables —Fresh Arrivals Keep Fish Markets Active.

With the disappearance of almost all lines of Canadian green fruits from the markets, foreign goods are being demanded much more strongly. Porto Rican and Florida oranges are arriving in quantity and the quality is pretty good. New crop Messina lemons have also arrived and though they are in most cases rather green, the quality is generally good.

Even with the season's high prices for produce the public is demanding seasonable green stuff, and in the absence of Canadian truck, considerable American goods are being brought in. California celery and hothouse lettuce and cucumbers are selling well at fancy prices.

Regular late fall business keeps the fish markets active. Two or three lines of lake fish are out of season, but, peculiar to say, are still being offered. Haddock continues exceedingly scarce, but cod is coming forward in somewhat larger quantities.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Porto Rico sweet oranges are arriving. These are the only sweet oranges now on the market, as the season for Floridas is somewhat later. This is the first season Porto Ricos have been offered on the local market. The quality is very good, being considered in every respect equal to first-class Floridas. They are being quoted at $4.75 per box. The season for Canadian grapes is practically over. Generally speaking, this year's fruit is superior in quality to last year's especially Spanish grapes, which are very fine. The market continues steady in feeling.

VEGETABLES—Domestic tomatoes are finished, and their place is being filled by imported goods from California. Potatoes continue very scarce, especially the best quality. The New Brunswick crop, on which the local market largely depends, is very unsatisfactory. An advance in prices is anticipated. There is a very limited demand for mushrooms. The cabbage crop has been very abundant, and the vegetables of excellent quality. On the whole the market continues steady, and rather quiet, owing to high prices and the scarcity of money, which is affecting all business.

FISH—The season for fresh salmon is over, and frozen stock is taking its place. A considerable quantity of bullheads are coming in. Haddies continue firm owing to the scarcity of haddock. There is an active demand for all kinds of salted and pickled fish, especially for green cod and salt herrings. The demand for oysters is good, supplies continuing light.

GREEN FRUITS—The market is a little brisker this week, with an encouraging demand. Several lines of new crop fruit are creating considerable interest. New Messina lemons are on the market in considerable quantity and though arrivals are rather green, the quality is generally pretty good. Floriday oranges are also arriving well and are selling pretty freely. A good supply of Canadian grapes, probably the last of the season, was on the market early in the week, but the quality was not particularly inviting. Apple prices continue firm.

VEGETABLES—A firm potato market brought prices up a notch during the week and both New Brunswicks and Ontarios are quoted about five cents higher. New Brunswick arrivals continue to be of irregular quality. California celery, which looks exceedingly crisp and tasty, is just coming on the market and Boston lettuce and hothouse cucumbers are being supplied in some quantities for the class of trade that cares to pay high prices. EARLY CLOSING IN EDMONTON.

Troubles Among the Grocers Over—Municipal By-law Involves City Council.

Edmonton is in turmoil just now over an early-closing by-law. The history of the by-law and the present situation are given in the following article from our correspondent in that town:

After a chequered life of four or five months the early-closing by-law has at last been repealed by the city council, as it was feared that it was not legal. The Retail Clerks' Protective Association will take up the matter with the other unions in the city in an endeavor to have the by-law passed again and there will likely be interesting times in the city shortly.

The city had an early-closing by-law in force last year and everything was progressing satisfactorily until the police summoned an offender for keeping open after 6.30, the prescribed hour for closing. Dr. C. H. Stuart Wade, the magistrate who heard the case, dismissed it, holding that the by-law was null and void. The city was without an early-closing by-law after that and the merchants closed their stores any old time they chose. When the new council was elected for this year they passed another early-closing by-law. This was in force for about a month until a case was tried and thrown out as the by-law had not been properly advertized. Once more the council set to work and in spite of the opposition of some of the aldermen and ratepayers, succeeded in finally passing the by-law. Two or three cases of violation of this by-law were brought up before Police Magistrate Cowan and fines of $10 and costs imposed. The cases were promptly appealed to the Supreme Court.

During this time there has been a strong agitation among the east-end store-keepers against this early-closing by-law. These were, for the most part, some of the smaller merchants in the city who did much of their business in the evening with workingmen. They presented several petitions to the council to have the by-law rescinded and this persistent agitation on the part of these merchants resulted in its repeal. The aldermen held that it was not good policy to insist upon the operation of a by-law when there was doubt as to its legality or when a large number of the ratepayers were opposed to it. As Mayor Griesbach said when the matter was under discussion: "The unanimity of the council in repealing the by-law was created by grave doubts as to whether this by-law would stand the test of a judicial decision." With the by-law repealed, the council would have a clean slate next year for preparing another by-law if the people desired it.

As to whether there should be an early-closing by-law in the city there is a division of opinion among the citizens. Jasper Avenue merchants, and indeed, all of the merchants who do an extensive business, are in favor of such a by-law, as the retail merchants would then be all on the same basis. Those merchants, however, who are located on the side streets or on the outskirts of the city, are bitterly opposed to such a by-law and state that they will do all in their power to prevent the enforcement of such a law. They argue that a man has a perfect right to keep his place of business open after six o'clock if he wishes. It might be a hardship on the clerks, but as one alderman put it: "They have their remedy for injustice along this line by forming an association or union for their protection." If such an association were formed and came to the council asking for certain hours of labor, the aldermen would be in favor of fixing these hours, providing the by-law of the association did not prohibit a clerk from working after hours if he wished.

The clerks, however, are not viewing the action of the council in repealing the early-closing by-law with equanimity and are determined to do all in their power to have the by-law passed again. They have recently formed a Retail Clerks' Protective Association and they are only waiting until they receive their charter when they will take prompt action in the matter. They intend then to appeal to the council, to their employers, and to the citizens generally to have an early-closing by-law passed and enforced, and if their efforts are not successful they will probably enlist the sympathy of the union men in the city and call a general strike.

It is hardly probable that anything further will be done this year in the matter. November is already well under way and the term of office of the present city council is drawing to a close. The municipal elections take place early in December and probably one of the first questions that will confront the council of 1908 will be the early-closing question.

TRADE NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Cereals Have Dropped in Price—Produce Markets Generally Dull—Large Grain Shipments From West.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 11, 1907.

The feature of the grocery markets during the past week was the decline in the price of all grades of flour. Ontarios dropped 15 cents on Thursday and on Friday Manitobas went off 20 cents. The advance in all grades seems to have been stopped, and it is probable that prices will not go any higher. The decline will have a tendency to frighten buyers, the local jobbers think, and it came at a very inopportune time as all the wholesalers have been carrying pretty heavy stocks. If it had held off for a while it would have suited them much better, but as one merchant remarked, "We can't always have it the way we want it."

With the marketing of the new crop the price of oats is beginning to go down, but middlings have advanced considerably in price. Cornmeal has dropped 15 cents, beans are slightly lower, lard is easier, compound being half a cent lower than last quotations.

In the provision and country produce lines, the market is dull. While the price has not advanced, beef is not so plentiful and pork is a little higher. Notwithstanding the large quantities being shipped in, the price of potatoes keeps up. Butter and eggs are steady, though fancy prices are asked for first-class stock.

Owing to the large trade being done in the province in partridges this fall, an agitation is on foot to have a law passed prohibiting their sale.

Indications point to large shipments of grain this season through the I.C.R. and C.P.R. elevators. Over 300,000 bushels are now on their way to the C.P.R. elevator and advices of more than 100,000 bushels for the I.C.R. have been received. A Montreal despatch under date of Nov. 7, says:

"A striking feature of the fall wheat movement on the C.P.R. is the increase in the all-rail shipments to the seaboard. As a general rule, little wheat is shipped to the coast for transportation to the Old Country until the close of navigation. Possibly, owing to the lateness of the harvest, and the consequent rush of wheat, for any kind of transportation eastward, whether by lake or rail, the shipments by rail have this year started weeks earlier than usual and are already assuming considerable proportions. Already the Canadian Pacific has shipped no less than 321,000 bushels of wheat by the all-rail route from the west over the north shore section through to West St. John, whence it will be loaded on the Atlantic boats for shipment to Liverpool.

"It is expected that owing to the short wheat shipping season on the lakes this year an unusually large proportion of the western wheat crop will find its way to St. John by rail."

An important change was announced at St. Stephen last week. Ganong Bros. have disposed of their retail confectionery and cigar business to Hill Grimmer, V. V. Vanstone and others, and will retire from this field of their activities. The new firm are fitting up the store formerly occupied by Grimmer Bros., grain and feed merchants. Grimmer Bros. have disposed of their business to Thos. R. Speedy, who will carry it on in the store adjoining.

The cheese and butter factory at Salisbury owned by A. E. Brown was destroyed by fire on Nov. 6. The factory was unoccupied and the fire is supposed to have originated from a chimney, as men were about the building clearing up the place. The factory has been closed two or three weeks. There was $1,500 insurance on the factory.

Father Burke, Captain Read, M.P.P., and J. E. B. McCready, of P. E. Island, addressed a largely attended meeting of the Moncton Board of Trade Friday night, Nov. 8, on the tunnel project between the mainland and P. E. Island. The Island speakers strongly urged the scheme and asked the co-operation of Moncton as being particularly interested.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted: "That the Moncton Board of Trade expresses its appreciation of the act of the gentlemen from P. E. Island in coming to Moncton and addressing this board upon a subject of so great interest and such vital importance to the mainland, and that we do express our hearty sympathy with and promise our energetic support to the project of construction of a tunnel between the Island and mainland."

The Donaldson line steamer Alcides arrived in port Nov. 5, after occupying more than seventeen days on the trip from Glasgow. Included in her cargo were 231 barrels and 1,266 bags of sugar.

Henry Estabrooks, a general storekeeper, of Upper Gagetown, was assaulted and seriously injured by a drunken Indian on Tuesday night, Nov. 5. Mr. Estabrooks caught the redskin breaking into his premises and was injured while attempting to drive him away.

NEWS OF THE ANCIENT COLONY.

Lobsters are away up in price. Never in the history of the colony have they been so high as now. They are worth in St. John's, $17.50 per case of four dozen one-pound tins.

Bowering Bros., St. John's, are increasing their grocery department by taking in the store next to them. Over the store their general offices will be extended, giving more office room, which with the firm's largely increasing business, is needed. Their offices will be furnished with the most up-to-date appliances obtainable.

There promises in quite a number of outports to be a coal famine this fall. Coal cannot be obtained even in Sydney.

P. Templeman, the merchant prince of Bonavista, was a heavy loser by the late gale, losing seven schooners and a lot of merchandise. His fine schooner, Mandamus, was lost on the French shore and the report was current that the crew and Mr. Templeman's eldest son had perished, but all hands got safely ashore.

Joseph Morris, Trinity, lost a fine schooner in the recent gale. All hands perished, fourteen in number—all married men but one—leaving a large number of widows and fatherless children. A public subscription was started for their relief and over $2,000 subscribed. It was doubly sad when taken into consideration that these hardy sons of the colony were returning home from their summer work on the Labrador, with a full cargo, to get within a short distance of home and then perish.

C. F. Bishop, of Burin, is in the city settling up his fall business. Mr. Bishop is one of the largest dealers on the west coast.

J. Burgess, of Burin, left by Thursday's express for Lunenburg, N.S., to purchase a large schooner for the bank fishery. Mr. Burgess is a large exporter of fish and is branching out in the business.

M. F. O'Toole, of Conception Harbor, Conception Bay, has all his schooners home from the Labrador fishery. Mr. O'Toole is one of the few who have done well on the Labrador this year.

Fred. Linfield, the well known merchant of Twillingate, is in St. John's attending to business for the fall trade.

Dave Osmond, of Morton's Harbor, is in the city. Mr. Osmond's schooner, the Pauline, which went ashore in the recent severe gale, is also here. Fortunately little damage was done to this fine schooner.

Flour has taken quite a rise the past week, best grades now selling at $6.80 per barrel. T. & M. Winter recently received a large shipment of Five Roses, Volunteer and Olivette flour. This well-known firm is handling more flour this year than ever.

W. A. Outerbridge, of Harvey & Co., St. John's, left by steamer a few days ago for England. He is expected to be away about six weeks.

Harry Crowe has the store privileges of the large lumber and pulp company that will be erected at Bishop's Falls by the F. R. Reid Co., of London, England. This company will do a large pulp and paper business and will employ a large number of men.

The apples that are arriving in Newfoundland from the Annapolis valley are not equal in quality to those received last year.

TOBACCO TRUST UPHELD.

Interesting Decision on Vexed Question by U.S. Supreme Court.

The following item from a recent issue of the New York Herald will be read with interest by members of the trade generally:

In dismissing the appeal of John A. Locker, in his suit to have the American Tobacco Company declared a combination in restraint of trade because it and its agents had refused to sell goods to him, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Second Department, declared that a so-called "trust" as organized to-day cannot be considered a combination or conspiracy within the meaning of the State Anti-trust law unless it is shown that by separate corporate acts the individual corporations controlled by the parent company have conspired to violate the law.

Judge Gaynor, one of the most prominent justices, connected with the case, in writing the supplementary opinion, says:

"The American Tobacco Company, like any corporation or person, may lawfully refuse to sell its goods to the plaintiffs or to any one, for any reason or no reason—at all events, unless it has such a monopoly that sufficient tobacco goods can be got of no one else, which is not alleged. That one corporation or person owns all or a majority of the stock of several corporations does not legally combine them. The notion that several corporations with a common dominant stockholder are thereby legally united and free to act together in restraint of trade is a false one. This complaint is lacking in any allegation of a combination of the corporations alleged, to refuse to sell goods to the plaintiffs."

Mr. Locker, the plaintiff, alleged that when the American Tobacco Company failed to buy his business it ordered the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, one of its constituent companies, to refuse to sell him any more of the American Company's products.

NEWFOUNDLAND NOTES.

The increase in the price of whale oil in Europe has been the reason for the large shipments of these goods that have been rushed forward from this country of late. Large stocks were held in Glasgow, but these have now disappeared and the whale factories over here will in consequence show a good profit this year.

T. C. McClure, representing Armours, Limited, was in St. John's last week, and left with a big batch of orders.

The new Newfoundland Bank is a certainty, so those interested say. Outport merchants are already writing in for shares. It is understood that the Government will give it their support, which means the saving of thousands of dollars a year to the colony. Those interested are the progressive men of the colony.

F. McNamara, the wholesale merchant, has just received a large shipment of black, and mixed, and rolled oats, which he is making special prices on.

T. & M. Winter received by the last Montreal Dobell steamer the largest consignment of Gillett's goods ever shipped at one time to this country.

Rothwell & Bowring are making a specialty of "Union" Gluten Feed, which is meeting with a good sale. The manager of this well-known firm, Geo. Williams, is very popular with the trade of the colony.

The Clerks' Association has been formed among the retail clerks in St. John's for the improvement of their condition and to settle any differences that may arise between employer and employes. Sir E. P. Morris and Mayor Gibbs have taken quite an interest in the formation of the association. There is no trouble between the employers and the clerks, but the formation of the association is mainly for better acquaintance among the clerks.

Fresh codfish in tins is meeting with a large sale on both sides of the Atlantic. H. J. Earle, of Togo & Twillingate, has recently erected a large plant for putting up these goods. Shipments have already been made to New York, Boston and other American cities, and to England, Spain and other foreign countries. It is a splendid article and will, without doubt, be a great seller.

The potato crop of the colony is a dead failure this year. Turnips and cabbage are very good. The weather has been so wet the entire summer that a large quantity of hay has been spoiled. Imported hay is selling in St. John's at $30 per ton.

Knowledge Is Power

THE SUCCESSFUL GROCER is the man who takes an interest in life outside the grocery business. He is the man who is capable of applying general knowledge, whether gained from reading or otherwise, to his business. It is his capacity to apply this general knowledge to his business that puts him in the REALLY SUCCESSFUL CLASS.

How is the average grocer to acquire a general knowledge of affairs? He has not the time necessary to search all the various magazines and periodicals for what interests him. Must he trust to one or two publications and miss the many which do not come his way?

NO. There is a method by which he can procure the interesting, timely and instructive articles appearing in every publication, both on this side of the Atlantic and the other.

The Editorial Department of

THE BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

carefully ransacks these hundreds of publications, and culls the choicest and the best appearing in each of them. The readers of the Busy Man's get the Cream of Hundreds for the price of one. Every article is select. No turning over a dozen pages to get one good one; every page is interesting. All articles not reproduced are classified under suitable headings, so that any reader can see at a glance what the magazines of the month contain in his line.

A review of the latest books is given in each issue.

This many-in-one magazine will cost you only $2 per year, if you are a subscriber to Canadian Grocer, $1.50. You cannot afford to do without it.

The following opinions of its regular readers prove its value:

"I consider The Busy Man's Magazine the best I have yet come in contact with." Henry Wilson, Toronto.

"It is the most interesting publication of its kind I have ever subscribed to." G. F. Haworth, Toronto.

"There is no better printed in the world to-day for busy men." B. W. Petch, Regina, Sask.

"Your magazine is the best I have ever had the privilege of perusing." S. W. Wynn, Yorkton.

"We would not like to miss the future copies of The Busy Man's Magazine." Ingersoll Packing Co., Ingersoll.

"I am pleased to say that each number is becoming more valuable and interesting." A. B. Musselman, Berlin.

"I am more than pleased with my investment in The Busy Man's Magazine, believing it to be the best magazine I have had the pleasure of perusing." A. B. Burrell, Amigari.

"I have been delighted with the Busy Man's Magazine. The articles are well chosen, are concise and ably written. For a busy man I know of no other magazine that will compare with it." Geo. Anderson, Toronto.

"The articles in The Busy Man's Magazine are just what we want, short and so well written that a busy man can afford time to read them and feel benefitted for the short time given to each article." Wm. Thoburn, Almonte.

Our name on the label is the grocer's safeguard. During all the years we have been in business we have stood behind every bottle of our products—we are doing so to-day—and will ever do so.

YOU ARE PROTECTED

when you handle our lines. YOU get value—your customers get honest value for their money. YOUR profit is good and sure, because the goods SELL. What is more, you get satisfaction; because UPTON'S appeal to your customers as no other preserve will, and as a Canadian you build up your trade on Canadian lines.

When you ask your jobber for Upton's Jams, Jellies or Marmalade be wary of the "just as good"; insist and you can get the real thing.

The Upton Company, Limited, Hamilton, Ontario

QUOTATIONS FOR PROPRIETARY ARTICLES

Quotations on staple articles, prepared by our own staff, will be found in the market reports in the centre of the paper. The following are prices of proprietary articles which are supplied by the manufacturers or their agents, who alone are responsible for their accuracy. For charges for inserting quotations in this department apply to Advertising Manager, The Canadian Grocer, at our nearest office.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

BATGER'S

in ½-lb. and 1-lb. Drums.

Prepared and packed by machinery, thus ensuring cleanliness and uniformity.

Saves time, trouble and loss of weight.

The three kinds of Peel, Lemon, Orange and Citron, properly blended, are all cut ready for immediate use. If you once sell this line to your customers they will always ask for it, because every housewife likes BATGER'S Machine-Cut Peel, once she uses it. Your profit is sure and substantial. Ask your jobber for it. In ½ and 1-lb drums.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

Allison Coupon Books

Eliminate the Non-essentials

Many a business man is so loaded down with details that his really important problems can receive only secondary consideration.

This condition is overcome in any mercantile house by the adoption of the Allison Coupon system. With it, accounts are kept better and more accurately, at about one-tenth the usual cost.

THE PLAN

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

Significant Facts

Sealshipt Oysters were the only oysters admitted to the the Cleveland Pure Food Show, this season. Why?

The Sealshipt Oyster booth attracted more attention than any other at that show. Why?

Sealshipt Oysters were bought for examination by one of the city Meat inspectors. This was done at the request of one of our competitors. Why?

The analysis of the sample of Sealshipt Oysters showed that they were free from any trace of preservatives. Why?

The answer in each case is plain—Sealshipt Oysters are PURE FOOD packed in a sanitary way, absolutely free from preservatives and affording customers not only purity and quality, but unequalled delicacy of flavor.

The Pure Food Inspector is abroad in the land. Be on the safe side. Be ready for him. Handle Sealshipt Oysters only, and you may welcome his coming.

To responsible dealers we will gladly mail catalogue and give full particulars of the Sealshipt System. In your letter give us the following information:

Provincial Horticultural Exhibition in Massey Hall Attracts Wide Interest—An Incentive to the Fruit-Growing Industry—Some Particular Features.

Representing, as it does, lines of industry of rapidly increasing importance the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition, which was held in Massey Hall, Toronto, from Tuesday to Saturday, November 12 to 16, commands the interest of all Canadians.

The exhibition sprang from the old Chrysanthemum Show, which had been a feature of the fall season in Toronto for many years, but with the infusion of wider interests and under government control, it has come to be perhaps the most comprehensive annual representation of Ontario horticultural and agricultural products. To what an extent the exhibition has developed in prestige may be seen from mention of the following organizations under whose management it is now held: Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, Ontario Bee Keepers' Association, Toronto Horticultural Society, Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association, Toronto Agricultural Society, and the Ontario Department of Agriculture. How it has developed from the standpoint of exhibits may be judged by the fact that this year's exhibition more than filled the two immense floors of Massey Hall, and it has been suggested that a larger building must be secured.

Horticultural Exhibition. —The Floral Department.

Magnificent Apple Display.

Naturally, the practical interest was centred, to a great extent, on the display of Ontario apples. The Province has, roughly speaking, about seven million apple trees of bearing age from these an average annual harvest of twelve million barrels is gathered. One of the aims of the Government in recent years has been to bring together at the Exhibition an adequate representation of the apples grown in each Ontario county, and these exhibits were, without doubt, one of the most interesting features this year. These county collections, grouped together as they were, showed, for instance, how an apple which reaches early maturity and is, perhaps, larger in Southern Ontario than the same species in a northern county, will not stand shipment, and, consequently, will not command so high an export price as the fruit grown in the latter section. This year eighteen counties sent displays of apples, and this feature of county representation was much more complete than ever before.

Another feature in which this year's Show surpassed last, is the progress shown in the packing of fruit for export. Packers seem to be rapidly recognizing the fact that export fruit must be stowed away in the most scientific and latest devised manner to stand the "misery," as fruit men appropriately call the incidents of shipment, and to arrive in satisfactory condition in the foreign markets. This is evidenced in improved boxes and barrels, and in the adoption of proven methods. The display of packed apples, both in boxes and barrels, was very large.

A large exhibit of Ontario vegetables, showing the many varieties and the excellent quality produced in the Province, was also shown.

Another feature more largely developed this year was evidenced in displays of fruit of various varieties exhibited by agricultural or horticultural societies or fruit growers' associations in table space, limited to thirty feet. There were four entries in this class, the honors being carried off by the St. Catharines Cold Storage & Growers' Association.

The earlier summer fruits were displayed in alcohol and each of the Government's experimental stations showed the various varieties grown in its vicinity. Algoma, too, had a worthy exhibit of hardy fruits.

One feature, which was of particular interest to lady visitors, was the exhibit of the Woman's Institute. This was arranged with the idea of demonstrating in how many and various ways the apple might be prepared. Canned apples, pickled apples, apple marmalade and various other apple preparations were shown and described.

Ontario Apples—County Exhibits on Plates—Methods of Box Packing.

British Columbia Fruit.

In connection with the exhibit of boxed fruit a shipment of apples and pears from Chilliwack, B.C., attracted a great deal of favorable comment. The exhibit was forwarded by Cawley & Paisley, a Chilliwack real estate firm, with the ostensible purpose of inducing Easterners to move to the West by showing the possibilities of British Columbia's products. The exhibit included twelve of the varieties of apples which are ordinarily grown in Ontario, and two of the best varieties of pears. As regards size, the Western fruit was, perhaps, larger than any of the same varieties shown from Ontario, and in a test as to quality conducted by several of the leading fruit growers of the Province during the Exhibition, it stood well up with the local varieties. The exhibit was a revelation to many Ontario fruit men.

The Flower Show.

The main floor of Massey Hall contained bloom to the value of $1,000. The major part of this was in chrysanthemums, and the magnificent and gorgeous banks of these splendid blooms placed on the steps of the large platform, as may be seen in the accompanying photograph, were a delightful sight. One point which shows the progress in methods of floriculture during the year is evidenced in the fact that the largest bloom this year measured twenty-six and a half inches, which is four inches larger than last year's best, and seven inches better than the year before. One plant which contained twenty-five different varieties, was a rather interesting peculiarity. The fact that the show is a week later this year than usual, allowed more satisfactory time for the maturity of the chrysanthemum blooms, and, as a result, the quality was notably more uniform through all classes than it has been heretofore.

To Be Exhibited Elsewhere.

A good representation of the best of the fruit, sixty-six boxes in all, of apples and pears, has been purchased by the Government and is to be shipped to England and exhibited in competition with fruit from the other colonies at the Royal Horticultural Show, which is to be held in Kew Gardens, in London, in December. This is the first year the Government has made such an exhibit.

A smaller shipment, this containing several cases of honey, as well as the Ontario fruit, is being forwarded direct to King Edward VII., and a similar shipment is being sent to Earl Grey.

Society Conventions.

In connection with the exhibition several conventions were held by the various societies interested in its management.

The Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, to which a great deal of the credit for the development of the apple industry in the province must be given, met on Wednesday and Thursday. The program included a series of addresses, among which might be mentioned several of particular importance. Alex. McNeill, chief of the fruit division, Ottawa, spoke on "The Place of the Fall Apple in Future Planting." "Market Conditions in Great Britain" were discussed by J. A. Ruddick, dairy and cold storage commissioner, Ottawa. J. L. Hilborn, of Leamington, spoke on "Express Rates in Relation to the Fruit Industry," and H. Dawson, Toronto, discussed "The Necessity for an Improved Fruit Market and Terminal Facilities in Toronto."

The Beekeepers' Association of Ontario met during the three days of the fair and discussed questions of particular interest to that industry.

The Ontario Horticultural Association also held their second annual convention in the city hall on Thursday and Friday, November 14th and 15th, and listened to a series of addresses relating to floriculture and the development of the society.

The programme of the convention of the Ontario Vegetable Growers Association, which was held on November 14th and 15th, contained several addresses of interest, but one on "The Vegetable Canning Industry," by T. B. Revett, B. S.A., of Toronto, who has for some time been making a careful examination of facts and statistics in connection with the Ontario canning factories, attracted a good deal of comment. Mr. Revett's paper claimed that, regarding tomatoes particularly, the estimates of the canners regarding the amount of product from a bushel of raw fruit are unreasonably low, and thus the growers are being paid too little for their product. This has been borne out by experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, during the present season.

ALEX. McNEILL,

Chief of Fruit Division, Ottawa, one of the moving spirits in the Horticultural Exhibition.

These conventions, with the exhibition itself, attracted a great many of the leading horticulturists and fruit growers of Ontario to the city last week.

Exhibit of Apples and Pears from Chilliwack, B.C.

Excellent Honey Exhibit.

The exhibit of honey, while not large, was of exceedingly good quality. The exhibit, indeed, made such an impression on one gentleman who came here from the United States to deliver an address at the Beekeeper's Convention, that he hesitated about giving the address. The three varieties of honey commonly produced here were shown, together with the wax product in various forms.

Notes of the Exhibition.

There were not many evidences of the small apples the fruit growers prophesied a little earlier in the season.

It remains a significant fact, however, that the best commercial apple is not the one which takes the prizes at the fairs.

The display of apples on plates was purchased by Eugene Moore, fruit broker, Toronto.

During the last days of the exhibition cards bearing the inscription, "Sold to T. Eaton & Co." were very evident around the different sections. This company purchased the entire display of apples and pears packed in boxes or barrels.

Over the exhibit of the Biggs Fruit Company, of Burlington, was a large placard bearing the words, "Let greater Canada be known by her fruits." The company were taking orders for boxes of apples of a particularly high grade, which they ship to England and Europe as Christmas presents.

The exhibits of decorated dining tables which was one of the most interesting features of the exhibition a year ago, did not at all measure up to the standard then set. This is a feature which would repay encouragement.

The musical programmes rendered during the afternoons and evenings of the exhibition were a most attractive feature.

THE SITUATION IN THE WEST.

By this time the country at large is more or less familiar with the effort being made to relieve the situation with regard to money to facilitate crop movement. On Tuesday, Nov. 12, an order-in-council was passed at Ottawa. by which the Dominion Government came to the relief of the bankers, and made it possible for the banks carrying large grain accounts to obtain any amount necessary to further extend lines of credit in order to help in the movement of as much wheat as possible before the close of navigation.

The action of the Government was prompt and decisive, once the facts were placed before the Minister of Finance and when the news was wired from Ottawa there was a general expectation that the tension would be relieved and movement of wheat from the head of the lakes would increase rapidly. Such, however, has not been the case, up to closing of market to-day, Saturday. The banks are standing on a silly matter of punctillio and will not accept the relief offered and the situation is really no better from the standpoint of crop movement than it was a week ago, and a whole week of open water has been lost.

In the meantime conditions have materially changed and there is not the demand for low grade wheat that there was two weeks ago, or more properly speaking, there is not the demand at high prices, and this alone is costing the farmers of the west millions.

The bank managers still stand pat and declare they are furnishing all the money required for legitimate trading, though every day's market and almost every elevator point in the country gives the flattest kind of denial to their statement, while the meagre shipments from Fort William and the empty boats making bids at low rates for cargoes add their testimony.

Wholesale houses are flooded with letters that state that cars of wheat are loaded, shipped and the out-turns received, but they can get no money. Others write, there are three, four, five and six elevators at our point, (as the case may be) but none of them are buying. They claim it is because they cannot get money.

The present situation is without parallel in the western grain trade, and every man that has been up against it this year, be he farmer, elevator man, or commission merchant, will earnestly pray that he may never see it like again. Meantime, the wheat continues to pour into Fort William in a never-ending stream, 2,569,480 bushels having passed inspection during the present week. Of this wheat only about 45 per cent. was of contract grade, while there was 10,871 bushels of "no grade;" 285,690 of feed; 139,170 of "feed tough:" 177,420 of No. 5 and 119,940 bushels of No. 6 wheat. It is doubtful if the outward shipments for the week have totalled a million bushels.

The keeping qualities of this low grade in its present condition are absolutely nil, and it is a very unsafe proposition to handle, and dealers and banks alike must see from 6 to 8 cents a bushel margin before they can touch it, for the simple reason that more than one car, leaving an elevator point apparently quite dry, has graded "feed tough" when it reached Winnipeg, and by the time it got to Fort William was heated.

The Saskatchewan Government have taken a hand in securing cars for the movement of the low grade wheat, and getting it to Ontario as feed, and the railway companies have promised all possible aid in the matter of cars. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has stated that for the movement of western wheat Winnipeg is to have eighteen additional locomotives in a few days.

Charles Castle, the Winnipeg warehouse commissioner, who was summoned east to give information to the Finance Minister as to the actual conditions in the west, while in the east arranged for a thorough test of the low grade wheats, to see what can be done to make them keep so that they can be exported after May first next year. If it is found that this can be done at a shrinkage of not more than 10 per cent. it will mean a saving of from three to four million dollars to the west, as without the guarantee of keeping, the banks will not advance a dollar on any low grade that may be held for shipment after May first. The samples that have been sent are Nos. 5, 6 and feed. Communications from the British markets show that very considerable quantities of even our lowest grade wheat can be used by millers for manufacturing flour to be used for sizing and glazing in the cotton and kindred trades.

At the moment the only other thing that occupies anything like relative importance with wheat in the western mind is the proposed new freight tariff, which will be found under a separate head.

BETTER HOTEL REGULATION.

The indifferent hotel accommodation provided in all parts of Canada is being well illustrated just now when the country is unprecedentedly crowded with commercial travelers. The matter is making itself evident in several ways. It came out the other day in a petition forwarded to the Provincial Government from the Canadian Travelers' Association, which, referring to municipalities where a local option by-law has been passed, begs that before the act goes into force it shall be the duty of the community to show the Government that ample accommodation for man and beast will be provided. In case the community fails to do so, the petition requests that the by-law shall not be put into effect, but that the Government shall step in and take charge, making such provision as may be necessary for proper accommodation, either by continuing the licenses or in some other way.

The petition seems to be based on the understanding that proper accommodation is furnished in communities where licenses are in operation. The travelers themselves know that very frequently this is not the case. It might well have requested the Government to provide for satisfactory accommodation in all communities.

It is a generally admitted fact that in districts such as are referred to in the petition, hotel accommodation is provided merely as an adjunct to the liquor selling business, in a good many cases simply because the Government requires it. In such cases the accommodation is anything but satisfactory, and in a good many Canadian communities sanitary conditions exist in connection with the hotels that the local Boards of Health would not tolerate in a private property. The travelers know this better than anyone else, and they suffer from week to week and from year to year because such conditions are allowed to exist.

When considering the petition from the Travelers' Association, the Government should consider the advisability of providing for satisfactory hotel accommodation in all communities frequented by travelers, whether they are under the control of a local option by-law or not.

BARRIE.

The little snow flurries did not seem to mar the attendance of Saturday's market, the farmers and townspeople turning out in large numbers. Young chickens were very plentiful, but were not up to the standard, being small and poor. The farmers here seem to be getting their fowl in early on account of the great cost of feeding this year. Geese were very plentiful and were extra fine for this season. Some very fine turkeys were brought in and found a very ready market. Butter was in evidence everywhere, but found no rush sale as the consumer is buying very sparingly, owing to the high prices and consequently the prices have become easier. About twenty loads of apples, mixed varieties, sold very well, being a good size and sample. A few loads of potatoes arrived, but were bought up very quickly by the various merchants, there seeming to be a great demand for this line. Butter sold at 27c to 28c, eggs 25c to 27c, chickens from 5c to 8c, ducks 8c, geese 8c to 9c, turkeys 12c to 12½c, apples, Spys, $2, other varieties $1.25 to $1.50. Potatoes sold at 75c to 80c.

J. F. Brown, who for some years has conducted a carriage factory here, has sold out and moved to Toronto, where he intends starting a grocery store.

J. J. Brown, H. B. Myers and Wm. Bothwell were among the crowd that attended the Fruit and Flower Show at Massey Hall, Toronto, last week. They all speak very highly of the show, particularly of the vegetables.

George Copegeorges is fitting up a magnificent candy kitchen in Bothwell's Block this week.

Over $45,000 worth of clover seed has been shipped from Beeton district this fall. Not so bad for a poor season.

Piles of hay, valued at $3,000, were burned just below Bradford Marsh last week. Incendiarism is suspected.

BELLEVILLE.

Local grocers are in quite an excited state these days. They have good reason to be, if the proposed raising of the tolls on the Bay of Quinte bridge, the only artery which connects the rich county of Prince Edward with this city, should materialize. This is one of the longest bridges in Ontario—600 yards—and spans the Bay of Quinte. It was built about seventeen years ago at a cost of $120,000, of which Belleville contributed $30,000 and the township of Ameliasburg $20,000. Through the foreclosure of a mortgage the bridge finally came into the possession of the present owner, Dr. Sprague, of this city, at a cost of $72,000. The present move upon the part of the bridge company to increase the tolls has no doubt been largely induced by the judgment of the courts lately, sustaining the action of Ameliasburg in assessing the bridge, rendering the structure liable for taxes. An increase of tolls would largely assist the owners in paying these taxes.

A meeting of the Board of Trade of this city was held on Nov. 7, which was called specially to consider the bridge matter. Nearly all the merchants expressed the belief that if the amendments to the present charter for which the owners were applying to the government, came into effect, they would seriously affect the trade of the city as well as increase the price of produce on our market. It was pointed out that if the rates were raised, it would drive the people of Prince Edward to Picton, Trenton and other places, which they could reach without paying toll. It has never been disputed that the lower the tariff the more frequent the people of Prince Edward would come to Belleville. At the meeting of the Board of Trade a lot of warm discussion took place. It appeared to be the unanimous opinion that the proper course to pursue was for the city of Belleville and township of Ameliasburg to raise a certain amount of money and petition the government to pay the balance and make the bridge free. This was strongly advocated by ex-Mayor Graham, H. Corby, ex-M.P. Col. Lazier and many of the prominent merchants. A committee was finally appointed to act with a committee from the city council, to see the owners and find out on what terms they will sell.

AN INQUIRY FROM FRANCE.

The following note from our Ingersoll correspondent will bear out our assertions regarding The Grocer's wide circulation:

"Readers of The Grocer will remember a picture of the interior of the store of A. Beattie & Co., which recently appeared in its columns. Among the mail which the firm of A. Beattie & Co. received a few days ago was a letter bearing a foreign post mark. On opening the letter, imagine the surprise of the manager when the first thing to meet his gaze was the picture of the store, which had been clipped from The Grocer. The letter was from an enterprising firm in France who were desirous of establishing business relations with A. Beattie & Co. with whom they had been placed in communication through The Grocer. This is a point which should not be overlooked by advertisers and intending advertisers. The fact suggests a world-wide circulation, and the attention that some firms devote to their advertising policy."

LONDON.

The local Retail Grocers' Association appears to have taken on fresh vigor. The regular meeting last Wednesday night was the best attended of any yet held, and the members present entered into the discussions with an earnestness that proves they are beginning to realize that the organization is serving an important purpose and may be made of even more value to the trade. In the absence of President Harry Ranahan, who is recuperating with friends in Chicago, Vice-President Shaw presided, and the discussions were of especial interest.

Local biscuit manufacturers having advanced the price half a cent a pound, owing, it is said, to the high price of new material, the Retail Grocers' Association at its meeting last week decided to put up retail prices from one to three cents a pound.

It is said that the make of cheese in Western Ontario this year will probably not be more than half that of last season.

The Western Dairymen's Association has determined to seek legislation requiring all cheese and butter makers to hold certificates before being allowed to take charge of factories or creameries.

Johnston Bros., leading local bakers, are making arrangements to handle their rapidly increasing business. They propose to erect an addition to the old building of about 75 by 132 feet, three storeys in height. The new building will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000.

The cigar manufacturers of London held a meeting recently to discuss the advisability of advancing prices, and a joint meeting with the Montreal manufacturers will shortly be held to further consider the matter.

John McLean, formerly of the firm of McCutcheon & Co., has purchased the Liddicoatt grocery business on Dundas street east.

Thos. McCormick, of the retail grocery firm of A. McCormick & Sons,

Richmond street, was married last week to Miss O'Dell. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Nilestown.

KINGSTON.

"I tell you boys," said Jim, the grocer, on the market square last week, "it costs more to run a grocery now than it did twenty-five years ago. Then we used to tie up sugar in straw wrapping paper or make our bags by hand. Now the paper is in rolls and bags are used by the million. People used to bring their baskets and carry off their tea, sugar, etc. Now you have to send off at a moment's notice or get called down by a harsh voice coming along on a wire, through a hole in a box hanging up in your store. No brown jugs come for syrup and molasses any more. No, you have to put it in paper pails or sell them a tin. All this means more work and less profit.

"Merchants send clerks around after orders—a very bad system, in my mind—encouraging the credit system that every merchant should try to discourage and aim at getting his business on a cash basis and avoid the worry that kills by looking after books and accounts. How much nicer to see your drawer full of money than to look at a big book full of accounts, many not worth the paper they are written on. Yes, a dollar in your pocket is worth ten in your ledger."

The present day fixtures are a big item of expense and lots of merchants buy new fangled things they cannot pay for. They are simply talked into the purchase by men who are schooled in arguments that knock out any opposition they meet from their victims.

Some of these travelers and their circulars and mail matter have become a nuisance to merchants, robbing them of time that should be used to look after cleanliness in their stores.

Labor saving devices are all right if you can see your way clear to pay for them, but it is a mistake for a man with limited capital and with a stock of less than $1,000 to buy a cash register at $300 and a lot of silent salesmen, oil tanks, cheese cutters, meat cutters, etc.

They are all nice things to have, but one needs a good start and lots of capital for the interest on them is a salary in itself.

The wise prophets say that man is the architect of his own fortune, but from the way some clerks act it looks as though they were laying poor foundations. Too gay, too extravagant in dress, going to operas, smoking expensive cigars, etc., etc. They are either spending all their salary or spending someone else's cash. Should these few words fall under the eyes of any such, I hope they will right about face. They will be richer every way in the end.

A short time ago a gentleman introduced a friend to a grocer and said he was a competent clerk, a good window dresser and stockkeeper. The young man (married, by the way), looked shrewd, sharp and his general makeup showed symptoms of a valuable man for some grocer. The young man said he worked for So-and-So, in the northwest. The merchant wrote the firm on the quiet and got this answer: "He was a nice boy ten or twelve years ago but later on we found him anything but reliable in the acts he committed. Well, I guess he won't come back to this frigid climate again."

Young man, remember this: The theft of cash or candies or anything which costs your boss money, is an awful mistake on your part. Don't do it, not even in a small way. Live within your means, for a slip will follow you around the globe. You might as well have "thief" printed on your back. Be honest and upright. Do not take any short cuts.

You don't need a cash register to catch a dishonest clerk. Rumor does it. The public watch him and say So-and-So is going it fast. Must be spending more than he is earning. Rumor tells the boss and off he goes with no recommend to aid him in getting another job. Think of what it all means.

MONTREAL.

Retail grocers here are clearing ground for their holiday displays. A few already have some of their new goods in, but the majority are cleaning up, preparatory to the incoming of new lines and new supplies of old goods.

A rather paradoxical result of the "financial condition" is that in one sense it will be beneficial to the grocery trade here. This is the way one grocer, who caters largely to Montreal's "four hundred," put it: "Formerly a large number of my customers spent the Christmas season at various winter resorts on the Mediterranean and elsewhere, and consequently they required little or nothing here; but this year quite an appreciable percentage of these will be here during the holiday season, which will mean something in the way of regular trade for us."

However shallow or deep the "tight money situation" may be, the retail grocers are evidently not going to let it prevent them from making enticing holiday displays. Some of the leading ones are ordering largely in fancy biscuits and confectionery. The reason they give is that their customers have been so long used to good living, especially during the holiday season, that they will not make a change until they are obliged to do so, and that condition has not yet arrived.

A representative of The Grocer called on Walter Paul, one of Montreal's veteran and most successful grocers, and one who knows the business from its smallest details to its largest problems. Mr. Paul spoke of the effect the telephone has had on the grocery business. "In the first place," he said, "the telephone is the enemy to good salesmanship in clerks." When asked how that resulted, he explained that in houses where the ordering was left to the servants, everything was transacted over the phone, the clerk merely putting down what was asked for, and when at regular intervals the bills are sent, payment was usually made by cheque. Thus from one year's end to the other, the people to whom the goods were sent were very seldom seen. Under these conditions, clerks get out of the way of speaking to customers about new lines of goods, which is a vital point in good salesmanship.

Another somewhat unexpected result of the use of the telephone is that, from the grocer's point of view, it is very expensive. Mr. Paul said: "At the present day very nearly all my customers have the telephone. They order a few things at a time, just as they find they need them; with the result that in the course of a day one person will often order half a dozen separate times, which means that the delivery wagons are never done going. If the customer had to come to the store to order a list would be made, and everything attended to at one time. However," added Mr. Paul, laughingly, "we are so wedded to the telephone that if it is out of order for a single day, we are demoralized."

The Fraser, Viger Co., another retail grocery, catering to the aristocratic trade, have some of their new goods in already, and are busy preparing space in which to display the special holiday lines.

John Mines, a grocer in Point St. Charles, had quite an exciting experience with two "crooks," who tried to induce him to play poker. The result was that after a scuffle, one of the crooks escaped, while the other got a pair of black eyes, was arrested and fined into the bargain. This is the second time Mr. Mines has had trouble of this kind. The first time was in 1906, when he was assaulted and robbed of $30.

RICHMOND, QUEBEC.

A member of The Canadian Grocer staff happened to be in Richmond for a couple of hours last week and made use of the time in calling upon a few of the progressive grocers of that enterprising little town. Richmond is quite a grocery centre. There must be fifteen or twenty grocery and general stores in the place, catering to the wants of a population of 2,500 or more.

Strangely enough, there are no manufacturing concerns in Richmond. The population is such as would lead one to believe that one or more concerns turned out goods there. It is chiefly upon the farmers and railway men that the merchants depend for their trade. The town is a G.T.R. division centre and a large number of employes live there. The country around the place is suitable for agricultural purposes, and the farmers deal largely in the town.

MacRae Bros. do as good a grocery business as any firm. Like practically all the other grocery stores, their place of business in on the main street. The store is a large one, and the stock carried is complete. They do a nice hardware business also. Mr. MacRae chatted interestingly with The Grocer on general grocery topics. He said they found times rather quiet as compared to other seasons owing to the stringency of the money market. The Eastern Townships are affected like all other sections of Canada. "Still," said he, "a man with money can do the business, and we are not behind the rest in this respect."

Jameson's store is a busy place also. and Mr. Jameson is a man who knows the grocery business. He has given considerable thought to the credit system and expressed himself as being in favor of taking reasonable risks in the matter of selling to new people, particularly since the retailer in the country has to do so more frequently than his city brother. "Yes," he said in answer to a query, "we find the tight money market affects us here. It is a peculiar fact, too, that the farmers are very anxious these days to get our money for their produce instead of accepting the usual exchange. And by the same token they pay us when they are ready. But they are good for their accounts and we have no fears as to 'final payment.'"

Most of the grocers here close at six every evening, except Tuesdays and Saturdays.

McKee Bros. are the nearest approach to a jobbing house. They handle flour, provisions and oil in large quantities, doing a nice trade in the Townships within a radius of twenty miles.

STRATFORD.

The excellent weather tempted a large number of farmers to the city on Saturday from the surrounding country, with the result that the market was well attended. Fowl was particularly plentiful, chickens, ducks and geese being found on every side. The prices remain on about the same level as the past few weeks. Eggs were selling at 30c per dozen, and butter brought from 28c to 30c per pound. There was a large quantity of beef on the market, as well as the usual supply of garden vegetables. And just while poultry is being mentioned, one or two of the grocers complain that the farmers are bringing to the city an inferior quality. It would appear that the fowl are not sufficiently fed, and certainly they look skinny enough, the breast bone protruding like a miniature mountain. And the whole facts of the matter are that flour and grain demand good prices and the farmers are selling all their surplus grain and starving their fowl.

Does it pay to go after the trade of the children, or more particularly those children who go to school and who pass the grocery store three and four times a day? It does. How is it that in other lines of business the merchants are keen enough to attract the younger generation to their stores by offering them blotters, etc., while the grocers, as a rule, are content to let matters slip along in the same old way, without paying any attention, or at least very little, to the children. The chief reason why other merchants, boots and shoes, for instance, offer blotters or cards to the school children is because they want to get them in the habit of coming to their stores. Children know how to appreciate kindness, and if the grocer is kind to them they will return to him again, and in most cases they will have a certain amout of influence with their mothers and will get them interested in your store. What better means of advertising do you want? It pays to go after the trade of the children.

Do grocers ever stop to think how best the business can be benefitted and prospered? No doubt they do. But did it ever strike you that if you have a good article for sale it is only right that you should push the sale of it. Indeed it becomes a moral obligation to see that the article is properly noticed, or that it is properly advertised. Many a good article has been practically lost to the world because its merits were never adequately made known to the customer or to the public. The fault is not altogether with the article, but rather with the manner of handling it, and selling it. Give the article you want to sell some display room.

NEWCASTLE, N.B.

As in other places all along the line, the rapid increase in cost of food is the prevailing topic among all classes, especially the working men, whose wages are increasing somewhat, but not as fast as the cost of living.

There is serious talk of a co-operative store for Newcastle next spring, along lines similar to those of Glace Bay, Dominion and Sydney, in Nova Scotia.

Eggs here are 30 cents a dozen, and extremely scarce at that. Butter retails at 30 cents, whereas last year at this time it was not more than 24c or 25c. Beef retails at 11c and 12c a pound and upwards. Milk has been six cents a quart all summer, and some dealers are charging seven cents this fall. Hay for cattle is bringing $16 a ton.

Some dealers claim that oatmeal has gone up about $1 a barrel lately, and wheat flour has increased about the same. Bread retails at 8 cents a loaf.

Much of the potato crop along the Miramichi this year was a failure, rot setting in, and early frost damaging the yield a great deal. Much of the hay on low lands was left unharvested because of wet weather. Buckwheat was largely a failure, and some of the oats failed to ripen. Oats have climbed to over 60 cents a bushel.

A peculiar complaint comes from Harcourt, a village on the main I.C.R., 42 miles south. Moose meat has been sold so cheaply in that place this summer that the local butchers were nearly put out of business.

Frank Hachey, general merchant, of Rogersville, 22 miles south of Newcastle, has made an assignment to Sheriff O'Brien, of Northumberland county.

WOODSTOCK.

A peculiar condition exists in regard to the Woodstock market, and for the present at least, that institution is being boycotted by a great majority of the farmers and their wives from the district, who formerly brought all their produce here, and are taking it to Ingersoll and Brantford and Stratford and St. Thomas now. The trouble started when the city council amended the regulations governing the market, making it compulsory that all fowl offered for sale have the head and crops removed, be dry picked instead of scalded, and be sold by weight. There was immediately a storm of protest, and the farmers got together and passed a resolution that they bring no more fowl here until the amendment was rescinded. Nobody expected that they would live up to the resolution, but last Saturday there were less than a dozen chickens on the market, and many homes were without fowl for the Sunday dinner. Indirectly it helped the grocers and butchers, for the city has not the power, or at any rate does not exercise it if it has, to regulate the sale of fowl anywhere but on the market, so some of the people who would have bought on the market went to the stores. But, in another way, the regulation hits the grocers and all other dealers here very severely, for it undoubtedly kept scores of farmers away from the city who went to other places and took their trade with them. Woodstock cannot afford this. and the new regulation has aroused a good deal of indignation among the citizens and the farmers, and very few apparently are supporting the city council in their action. The farmers can get along without their city brethren, but the city people will find it more difficult to get along without the farmers. Farmers have just now more money than anybody else to spend, and the merchants are in a position where they need the money and the custom.

Wm. Kirkpatrick, of Burgessville, has clearly demonstrated that because a merchant is in a rural village, is no reason why he should not advertise and get as much business through the medium of newspaper publicity as his brother-dealer in the city. Mr. Kirkpatrick has a typical village store, and sells everything from needles to binder twine. He began a systematic newspaper campaign, using a medium with a wide circulation for the purpose, and the results he secured were really astonishing. People came from miles around to patronize him, and the advertising paid for itself in very short order. It was not unusual on week days to see from half a dozen to a dozen rigs tied up in front of the store, and the proprietor and his clerks were rushed to death. Other general dealers throughout Oxford country are showing their enterprise by advertising, and it is safe to say that they will not regret taking such a step, which shows that they are alive to their advantages.

Woodstock is feeling the effects of the prevailing scarcity of money, and the situation is as serious as it can become without interfering to an alarming extent with business operations. A few days ago, the Canada Furniture Manufacturers, one of the largest industries of the city, laid off sixty men, and the remainder are working only eight hours per day, instead of the accustomed ten. In fact, most of the local manufacturing establishments are working short time, and also in most of them occasional hands are being dropped off. The situation has led the city council to decide to lay over the proposed by-law for a new city hall, which was to have been voted upon at the coming elections, for another year, as it was felt that it would be submitting it to certain defeat to ask the people to sanction an expenditure of over sixty thousand dollars at the present time. The scarcity of money re-acts on all kinds of dealers, grocers especially, for when the people haven't got money, it is certain that they cannot spend it. What is spent is pretty much for actual necessities, and luxuries are not on the lists of many people just now. Most households where the men are wage-earners are finding it absolutely necessary to cut down living expenses in proportion as their incomes have been cut.

It is very nice to talk about cash business, and the theory is a beautiful one, but in times like the present, it is difficult to carry the theory into practice on all occasions. Perhaps a man has been a good customer for years, and has paid cash or paid accounts promptly when rendered. Now, he is out of work for the time being, or is on short time and short pay. He comes along and wants something for running his house, says he hasn't the money just then to pay for them. What are you going to do about it? There is an important problem involved. Perhaps the business man is just as hard up as the buyer, and needs the money badly to meet his obligations, yet if he refuses the man credit he offends a good customer likely for all time, and the man's trade goes to his rival. Local dealers are running up against these problems every day now, and do not find them easy to answer. They are living in hopes that present conditions will not last very long, and meanwhile have to deal with each case as it comes along, and can lay down no hard and fast rule by which to guide themselves.

Two little occurrences in this city during the past few days show that honesty is not all extinct in this world, despite pessimistic utterances of those who look only on the dark side of things though sometimes that same honesty takes a long time to make itself visible. One day last week a well dressed stranger walked into the Hotel Oxford, and paid the clerk seventy-five cents on a nine-year-old debt. He said that nine years ago he stayed at the hotel over night and had his breakfast. He was dead broke and skipped out without settling. He said the incident weighed on his conscience all these years, and he took the first opportunity of coming back to the hotel and paying the old debt personally. Then he left the hotel, without revealing his identity. The other was more remarkable still. A woman entered the customs office, and insisted on paying the duty on a dress worth $30 which she smuggled into this country thirty years ago. She said her conscience had given her no peace since that time, and insisted upon paying $30, but the officer would only accept $10.50, which was the duty calculated at the present tariff rate.

INGERSOLL.

The attendance at the Ingersoll market was swelled on Saturday to almost double its ordinary proportions under conditions of a most peculiar nature. Among the vendors were a large number from the Woodstock district, who had previously been marketing their produce in that city. On the preceding Saturday, however, many of the women marketers there became dissatisfied with new regulations governing the manner in which fowl should be placed before the public. The result was that the women held a conference, and the announcement was afterwards made that their decision was to boycott the market. That they were sincere in their stand was evidenced by the large number who journeyed here with their produce. The scene within the market building was anything but typical of the Ingersoll market. Every available inch of space allotted to vendors was occupied and poultry was piled high, while butter and eggs were conspicuous in quantities that made one wonder at the prices being so high. But notwithstanding the abundance of offerings, there was no decline in the prices. The determination of the women in regard to their stand on the boycott plan, was equally strong in regard to maintaining present prices. All along the line on either side of the building it seemed as though their prices were strictly according to "schedule." One price to everybody was the motto, and the purchasers were disappointed, as about the only way in which they benefitted was in the advantage of having larger displays from which to make their selections.

This is what might be appropriately termed the preparation period with merchants. There has been a slight falling off in trade activities, which is always anticipated at this season. Christmas deliveries are being made and the enterprising grocers are wrestling with the details incidental to the big rush. The stock on the shelves is being replenished, and a touch given the store here and there by way of beautification. Many grocers attach a great deal of importance to having their stores harmonize with the various seasons, and if there is any virtue in this contention it should be apparent at the Christmas season. Christmas is a synonym for joyousness, and the store that has a cheerful and seasonable aspect will undoubtedly attract greater attention than the one which has the appearance of being left to take care of itself. Nuts and fruits are conspicuous among the new deliveries, and these are already being displayed by the grocers in a manner that is suggestive of the Christmas season.

What it is hoped is the high water mark for creamery butter has been reached. It is now selling at 35 cents per pound retail, and even at this exorbitant figure is not to be had in any thing like plentiful quantities. The supply of fresh eggs is also very limited. On the market on Saturday 28 cents per dozen was the ruling price, but since then the price has advanced to 30 cents at the stores.

The Town Council has taken the first step in the direction of distributing Niagara power. The conditions here are somewhat different to those in other municipalities. It is contended that the Ingersoll Electric Light & Power Co. have a perpetual and exclusive franchise, and that it would be folly for the corporation to enter into a contract with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission without having first acquired the present plant or made some arrangement with the company to distribute the power. Some time ago when the question of the purchase of the public utilities was before the Council, the Electric Light Co. submitted $55,000 as the price they wanted for their plant. Anxious to make progress in regard to bringing cheap power here, the Council has referred the matter of Niagara power to a special committee, instructing them to procure the service of an electrical engineer to furnish them with a valuation of the local plant. It has been pointed out that in the event of the Council and the company not being unable to make an amicable settlement that the matter be decided by arbitration.

PEMBROKE.

Meat was the principal article on the market here again on Saturday, and prices were away down. Poultry, too, made a fair show with prices fairly reasonable, excepting turkeys, which took a jump of 2c a pound, bringing the price up to 20c. There was a trifle more butter brought in, but 30c per lb. was still asked, while eggs brought 30c and 32c. Potatoes took a step higher, and now sell for 90c and $1 a bag. Turnips were offered at 40c a bag, and parsnips at 80c. Cabbages sold at 60c a dozen. Other vegetables were scarce and price high. This will probably be about the last market at which vegetables will be offered, as the weather has been rather cold and there is the danger of goods being badly frozen. Apples this year that have been imported fall badly short of those of previous years, the No. 1 of some varieties being little, if any, better than No. 2. A few baskets of grapes were imported and sold at 35c and 40c, these being about the last of the season.

Some of the grocers are beginning to display their fruits for the Xmas trade, and some very fine Valencia raisins are being shown in trays.

I was rather surprised to hear from your Montreal correspondent that in such a large city there was no retail grocers' union, as among so many there should be a really strong body. I was at one time connected with the National Association of Grocers' Assistants, in the Old Country, and can testify to the good done there by amalgamation. Next year, through the efforts of their General Secretary, the firm of Goodall, Backhouse & Co. have offered the splendid prize of a fully fitted up store, to the value of £300, or $1,440, open to the member of the above society who proves on examination to be the best all-round man with the greatest knowledge of his trade. Besides this, technical classes have been started in nearly all the large business centres, open to members and non-members, for a small fee. Nor has the social side been neglected. Concerts and dinners are of frequent occurrence, at which mny always be found some prominent member of the Wholesale or Retail Merchants' Association. Added to this, a sick and out of employment, and old age pension is connected, to which a member may subscribe if he desires. Your clerk readers will see from this how great a benefit such a union would be to them. Although the society was received at first with distrust by the employers, they have been quick to recognize the advantages both to themselves and the men in their employ, because they are always able to apply to the branch secretaries to obtain proficient men from among the members of the society. I should like to see the formation of a union, with branches all over the Dominion.

LONDON.

Messrs. Graves and Slate, representing the Heinz Pickling Works, of Pittsburg, Pa., appeared before a special meeting of the Board of Trade one day this week for the purpose of obtaining information regarding the advantages London offers for the establishing of a branch concern here. Several members of the county council were also in attendance. The delegates seek information as to available sites for a factory and also for a farm suitable for raising vegetables about ten acres in extent.

Produce dealers report a great scarcity of fresh eggs. There is, however, a good supply of packed eggs in the storehouses.

GUELPH.

Representatives of the canning factory which it is proposed to start in Ontario, were in the city this week again. They had another conference and looked at some of the sites, but have not decided to locate at present.

Those new 2½-lb. boxes of sodas to sell at 25c. and 30c. are much better than a 3-lb. box that we have to change odd cents for, such as 27c. and 32c.

Geo. Williams, who has one of the finest grocery and baking businesses in Ontario, returned to the city from the west to-day. He looks fine and enjoyed his trip immensely and also met many old friends. But he saw no place that suits him like Guelph. By the way, at his store at present, is displayed in one of his handsome windows a great variety of California fruits and vegetables, for which his store is noted. They are very tastefully set out and reflect credit on the window dresser.

Choice hothouse tomatoes at $2 per basket, before the common tomatoes are done, is something unusual in this city.

The shops have all got going again and business in the grocery line has already begun to feel it. This was quite noticeable on the market Saturday by the crowds of both buyers and sellers.

It was reported last week that flour had dropped 20c. a hundred, but it turned out to be only a report.

TRAVELER GOES SOUTH.

Chas. Newman, city traveler for the Davidson & Hay, Limited, left on Tuesday for Port Orange, Florida. Mr. Newman has been with this firm for eleven years, and has made a host of friends among business men in the city. Latterly he has been pluckily fighting against poor health, and his trip to Florida is an effort to regain health. Mrs. Newman and the family are still in the city, but will join Mr. Newman in their new home shortly.

On Saturday afternoon the employes of Davidson & Hay, while giving Mr. Newman a little send-off, showed their good wishes by presenting him with a traveling bag, a tobacco pouch and pipe. In making the presentation, Lieut.-Col. Davidson spoke of Mr. Newman's good record with the firm. Mr. Geo. Moffat wil fill Mr. Newman's position.

TRAVELER'S SAD LOSS.

The sympathy of members of the trade is being extended to J. H. Boyd, traveler for the Red Rose Tea Co., who lost his wife last week. Mrs. Boyd, nee Miss Nina Smith, was a Toronto young lady whose home was at 48 Yorkville avenue, and was of particularly bright disposition. The young couple were married about a year ago, and have been particularly happy in their home in Hamilton. The matter has come as a very serious blow to the young husband, whose happiness has been wrapped up in his home.

OUR TRADE WITH MEXICO.

Canadian Commissioner Addresses Toronto Board of Trade.

In an address before the Board of Trade last Thursday, A. W. Donly, Canadian commercial agent in Mexico, showed that immense opportunities existed for the development of Canadian trade in that country.

After dealing briefly with some misconceptions in regard to Mexico, Mr. Donly said that its population was about 13,000,000, and its foreign trade was worth about $300,000,000 a year, or half that of Canada. About 75 per cent. of the people were "peons" or peasants, who received low wages and whose purchasing power was low. But the rest of the population was about equal in purchasing power per capita to the people of Canada. About 70 per cent. of the Mexican trade was now in the hands of the United States.

The Mexican Government and people generally are very friendly to Canada and this, with the recent subsidization of the Canada-Mexico steamship lines on both Atlantic and Pacific would seem to offer particularly good opportunities to Canadian exporters.

Mexico's resources are varied. She could sell us hemp, sisal, sugar, tobacco, oranges, bananas, cocoanuts and other tropical fruits. Her credit is particularly good and the country's finances are in excellent shape and although in some cases payments might be a little slow, returns would be sure. There are scarcely half the number of failures there that we have in Canada. Canada could advantageously sell to Mexico railway ties, pulp, barley for malting purposes, potatoes, apples, cattle for breeding, fish, agricultural implements, plumbers' supplies and other things.

In discussing why Canadian trade has not developed with greater rapidity Mr. Donly said that while Canadian and United States prices are about even, the United States manufacturer gives a 70 per cent. discount, while Canadians stick to a reduction of 40 per cent. The Statesers, too, send their drummers right into the country, and conduct a decidedly more aggressive campaign.

In conclusion, Mr. Donly advised the Canadian manufacturer to take a trip to the republic before opening up a business campaign. He said further that our business men who wished to develop the trade should have good local agents, should advertise in good mediums, and should be particularly careful about packing.

Speaking to The Grocer after his address, Mr. Donly said that the great trouble was that the greater part of the Mexican goods which come to Canada were bought through American firms who have developed the business there. The oranges and coffees and vanilla beans which come to Canadian markets from Mexico come via New York firms and Canada gets no credit for this business. Canadians must stand on their own feet.

J. E. Richards, the well-known Markdale merchant, had the pleasing experience the other day of shooting a good sized deer in the vicinity of the town. This is Mr. Richard's first deer, and he is as pleased as Punch over his success.

A NEW CHRISTMAS WINDOW

How to Work Up An Attractive Snow Scene—An Idea Which Any Grocer Can Readily Carry Out.

Christmas time is rapidly rolling round and in a few weeks most grocers will be so busy with holiday trade that they will have no time to devote to anything out of the ordinary. Now is the time to plan Christmas window display.

Here's an idea which should provide for a very attractive window which could be used in various ways and which may be inexpensively built up from materials every grocer has around his store. It is a representation of a snow scene and should be particularly applicable all over Canada.

Take large sheets of pasteboard sufficient to a little more than cover the flooring of the window; the reason why the pasteboard is required in sufficient quantity to more than cover the flooring is because it is proposed to moisten the board with a large sponge or brush in order that it may become pliable, so that while it remains in a moist state it can be readily shaped into the semblance of miniature hill and dale with a background of snow-covered mountain peaks.

The moistening of the pasteboard causes it to shrink, also the forming of a sheet up into a high mountain peak greatly reduces the space it will cover in the window, all of which you should take into consideration.

Care should be taken that in moistening the pasteboard it does not become too wet. If this occurs no damage will result, aside from an unnecessary delay (waiting for it to partially dry out again) before it is capable of retaining the desired forms in which it is to be moulded.

The board, while drying, is apt to expand at the base, and therefore should be pressed back to shape whenever this occurs until it is sufficiently dry to retain its shape, and when perfectly dry it will be found to become quite rigid and immovable, thus greatly helping to maintain the symmetry of the vista.

Everything must be in perfect harmony. Assuming that the mountains have already been created out of the pasteboard, the next thing is not to wait for the snow storm, but rather to take a brush and liberal supply of flour paste and besmear a small section of the mountain or valley at a time, having near at hand a supply of granulated sugar, powdered sugar or salt, which sprinkle on top of the paste while it is still moist. It is only necessary to apply the paste in sections where one is engaged in the work. If two are employed, one can apply the paste, while the other follows with the application of the sugar or salt, and for this reason it is far better that two persons should undertake this part of the work, as it will save time and add to the neatness of the "fall of snow."

Ice palaces, castles, forts, houses, bridges, etc., can be readily made by utilizing loaf or lump sugar as building blocks with which to construct any of the above.

The window can be still further improved by placing here and there toy trees upon the mountain sides, and in the valley toy trains of cars, highly colored, houses, etc., all of which would be in marked contrast to the white background and tend to enliven the window. Sticks of candy may be utilized to build fences and even buildings and various other ideas which suit particular cases will arise as the window develops.

This window will prove not only a trade winner by day, but at night, under artificial light, the display will also stand out brilliantly and the sparkling sugar will glisten like real snow.

PRIZE CHRISTMAS WINDOWS.

As in former years, The Canadian Grocer again offers prizes for a Christmas window-dressing competition. This year, however, on the suggestion of one of our readers in a country district, the competition will provide for two classes, as follows:

CLASS I.—Open to grocers and grocery clerks in city stores.

CLASS II.—Open to grocers and grocery clerks in stores in country districts.

The division has been made because it was thought that those who will enter under Class II. had not the same opportunities nor materials so conveniently at hand as those engaged in retailing in the city.

Two cash prizes are offered in each class, 1st, $7, 2nd $3. The photographs will be judged by a competent authority in the trade. Photographs for competition will be received up to December 31st.

If you have a first-class Christmas window, and every grocer ought to have one, have it photographed, and send it on to us with a description of it and the name of the man who dressed it. The result will be announced early in the new year.

STORE DECORATION.

There is just as much difference between two stores as there is between two persons. A store has a personality. It pleases or displeases, attracts or repels. Since this is the case, it is well worth while considering how we can make the personality of the shop pleasing and attractive. There are just as many different elements in the personality of a shop as there are in that of a being. In the limits of one short article it would be impossible to treat satisfactorily of all of these elements. We will consider only one of them, the interior decoration of the shop, which is one of the most important and fundamental.

The retailer is frequently so engrossed with his duties that he fails to realize the importance of having his shop correctly decorated. In decorating, as in dress, it is always preferable to avoid extremes. Simplicity should invariably be the keynote of every scheme. It not only shows much better taste, but it also shows a keen appreciation of the value of appropriate decoration as a direct aid to business, for the plainer and simpler the background, the greater is the opportunity to set off effectively the various articles of men's wear in an attractive display. Where the decorations are elaborate, the attention of the customer will invariably be diverted to some extent, and the goods will not so strongly impress him.

In general, when considering the decorative scheme of the shop, the color chosen for the side wall controls the colors to be used on the ceiling and on the floor. Starting always with the coolr of the side wall as the basis, the tones of color become lighter in the border, frieze, and cornice, or any of them, or up to the centre of the ceiling, where the lightest tones should be, to make the shop look brighter and give the ceiling the effect of greater altitude. As the tones of color should get lighter toward the centre of the ceiling, so also they should get darker toward the centre of the floor.

In decorative color schemes, as in all color schemes, there are always two methods of choosing colors, either color schemes of contrast or color schemes of analogy. In a color scheme of contrast we find such colors as green and red, or blue and orange. Whenever we find a color scheme done in harmony of analogy, such related colors are used as yellow, green, and blue, or, perhaps, blue, violet, and red; or orange, yellow and red.—Storekeeper.

WINDOWS REFLECT THE MAN.

Show me the store with tastefully dressed windows, always clean and brightly lighted, writes T. S. Fettinger, and I will show you a store that is aggressively managed, up-to-date, well stocked with seasonable goods, and run on a plan that is almost bound to make head.

Show me a store with slovenly windows, ill dressed, seldom changed, poorly lighted, and I will show you a store that is lazily managed, if managed at all, equipped with poor stocks, and pursuing methods that lead to failure and extinction.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Green Fruits—Firm.
Beans—Easier.

Montreal, Nov. 21, 1907.

Whatever may be the amount of truth contained in financial crisis reports, certain it is that two at least of the largest wholesale grocers here are on the point of refusing further orders, from sheer lack of force to handle the goods. There have been few decided changes since last week. There has been a decline in the price of camphor. Ceylon is playing an important part in the camphor market. There has been a sharp advance in sardines, owing to the fact that the catch has been almost nil, and stocks are very low. Demand continues good, especially for French sardines. These have advanced from 50c to $1 per case. Norwegian sardines have also advanced 50c per case. One firm here contracted for 300 cases of sardines, and they will not receive a single case. Pot barley has firmed up somewhat, and is now quoted at $6.50 per bbl., and $3.25 per bag. Some lines of biscuits have advanced about ½c, and demand is very brisk, especially for the higher quality goods. One line of cocoa has fallen off 4c per pound. One of the largest grocery firms in Montreal has decided not to ship by freight from this date at their own risk, any more goods damageable by frost. In consequence, light wines, all goods in vinegar, mineral water, cheese, extracts of malt, ales, bitters, stouts, aerated waters, and such lines, will be shipped by express. Export trade is practically ended. On the whole, however, reports show that this year's trade compares very favorably to date with last year's, both in volume and collections.

SUGAR—There continues a brisk demand for immediate consumption, as was noticeable last week. No speculation is being done. Generally speaking, the market continues featureless.

DRIED FRUITS—The stringency in the money situation has not affected the volume of holiday orders. Arrivals are mostly being taken up immediately. The local market is firm for prompt deliveries, but these are very hard to obtain, owing to the disorganized state of shipping facilities. The situation in the prune market is expected to be very firm, as there are only 15,000,000 lbs. of prunes this year, against 185,000,000 lbs. last year. There has been an advance in Valencia raisins. Currants are a little easier in the New York market, but continue unchanged here. The first of the new crop Grenoble walnuts have reached New York, and small lots are being forwarded here. Prices quoted are from 14c to 15c. The new crop shelled walnuts are now due in New York. This will place them on the local market much earlier than was anticipated. Prices quoted in advance are from 25c to 26c.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—There has been no further news either to confirm or deny the Indian famine reports. As a result buyers are simply watching developments, and the rice market remains unchanged. There have been some new arrivals of tapioca on the local market, and better deliveries are being made. The primary markets are fluctuating considerably in a small way, but there has been no decided change. On the local market prices remain unchanged.

BEANS—The bean situation is a little easier this week, owing to more offerings from the west. Peas, especially the higher grades, are scarce. The crop this year is far short of last year's, and the primary markets are already nearly exhausted. High prices are anticipated.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The market is in a state of stagnation. New crop apples are quoted at easier prices, with practically no demand. The supply will be very short this year because of the high price of green apples in barrels. Very small lots of dried apples are coming in, and these are not nearly up to last year's in quality.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—No further information has been received from the canners regarding shortage. The market is slightly firmer in feeling. On the whole, the situation remains unchanged.

TORONTO—There has been a rumor among the trade during the week of a movement which would affect canned goods' prices, but this could not be definitely confirmed. Under the prevailing conditions of short supply, it seems scarcely probable that any such movement is possible. As a matter of fact, those who know say that several firms are oversold in the lines of tomatoes and corn, in which there seems to have been the greatest shortage. The greater part of the canners' stocks of vegetables appears to have been already sold, though various firms say they are holding on to small lots. Under these conditions deliveries are anything but brisk.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Steady.
Beans—Easier.
Evaporated Apples—Lower.
Collections—Somewhat stiffer.

Toronto, November, 22nd 1907.

Business generally continues good and Christmas buying is well on the way. Mediterranean fruits have arrived in considerable quantities and are being rapidly distributed.

Though prices in several lines of groceries have eased slightly during the week, wholesale houses generally seem to be adopting a somewhat more conservative policy, probably because collections are to a slight extent less satisfactory. Business houses do not anticipate any trouble, but they are exercising care to provide against a possible contingency.

TEAS—Stocks held locally, particularly of low grades, are small, and supplies are very difficult to obtain at the ruling prices.

The season for Indians is practically closed in Canada by the end of the year, and no further supplies can be expected from that source till June. In Ceylons there is no close season, but shipments diminish considerably during the winter months. These facts, coupled with the knowledge that there are practically no reserves to draw on, lead to the conclusion among those interested in seeing a decline that there will be no relief for at least six months.

All low-priced package teas are being sold at a loss under present prices, and there is a strong probability of a number of packers discontinuing the sale of the 25-cent package.

Japans have been on a higher level than any other teas during the season, but as the season's shipments are practically over, and very small stocks are held locally, there can be no material change for six months.

It seems to be the general opinion in the trade that just now the retailer will consult the best interests of both himself and his customers by encouraging the sale of higher priced teas. A package at 30 or 35 cents will prove more satisfactory in the end by furnishing the customer something better than rubbish and providing for a reasonable profit to the grocer.

COFFEE—The stationary position of Brazilian markets, which, owing to the enormous quantity exported, virtually controls the market, would seem to tend towards higher prices. The United States, however, which is a very heavy consumer, is troubled by monetary conditions not favorable to free import, and as this is felt to a lesser degree in Europe, prices are on a slightly more favorable basis for buyers. It is considered probable that these relaxed conditions will shortly lead to another upward tendency.

SUGAR—The Ontario market remains steady with no appreciable change. The slump in American business appears to have been quite serious, but none of the trouble has been felt on this side of the border.

DRIED FRUITS—Deliveries are being made pretty generally and new arrivals are going out very fast. A mail advice from Petras to a local broker, regarding currants, says that stocks have been well cleared out up to date. Shipments are considerably below last year. Indications are that the whole crop will be run off at good prices.

Valencia raisins continue fairly steady at the advance noted last week.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The market is considerably easier this week. Some firms which have been holding stocks in anticipation of advances have begun to unload and this has had an immediate effect on prices. Demand is quite brisk, for supplies are being rushed to the lumber camps before the close of navigation.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Nov. 21, 1907.)

Although general business in the West as in the East, is adversely affected by the money stringency, the Winnipeg wholesalers have no complaint to make of a shortage of orders. Merchants are of business compares favorably with the of busines compares favorably with the corresponding months last year.

New currants and raisins are on the market, and prices will be noted below. These are among the few lines in which advances have not been made. The oatmeal market continues very firm, and no declines are expected, although the high prices have very appreciably curtailed the sales.

CANNED GOODS—Prices are unchanged. The demand is far from active, owing to the high prices charged.

BUTTER—

Offerings of dairy butter are larger and the market is reported a little easier. For choice No. 1, the price is about 24c, delivered in Winnipeg; No. 2, 20c to 22c; No. 3, 17c to 18c. One large house has stopped buying dairy butter and the market is accordingly narrowed.

In creamery, the market is unsettled. There is very little Manitoba creamery offering. Sales are reported by one creamery as high as 35 cents per lb., but there is not much to be marketed at that high price. The butter at that price is, of course, extra fancy. Some sales of Manitoba creamery have been made as low as 25 cents. Large quantities have been brought in from the east and there is a fair supply in town. The average price to the trade is 30c to 32c per lb.

EGGS—

The market is reported weaker, owing to lower prices in the U. S. markets. The average price paid for eggs delivered in Winnipeg is 24c, Offerings are light.

CHANGE IN POSTAL RATES.

Preparatory to the annual Christmas rush of mail matter, the Post Office Department directs attention to the fact that the public can now send to Great Britain and all parts of the British Empire letters weighing up to one ounce for two cents. Since 1898 the rate has been two cents for every half ounce. This recent change makes the rate conform with that in use for domestic correspondence.

CORRESPONDENCE

CHATHAM.

Though grocers in other towns may indulge in a pessimistic outlook, those in Chatham certainly do not. Enquiry as to the general tone of business in the city elicited responses which were most encouraging. Local grocers are doing a good business, and thus far, every month is at least equal to, if not in advance of the same month the preceding year. Where business men are affected, it is merely by local conditions.

Harry A. Andrew, of the Liverpool House, has made a further advance in the direction of early closing. Beginning with Monday, November 18th, the store closed every evening at 6.15, Saturday and evenings before holidays excepted. Hitherto, Mr. Andrew has made a practice of closing at 7 o'clock sharp. After looking into the matter very carefully, however, he decided on this further advance, which he anticipates will be better for all concerned—employer, employees and general public.

The regular meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association here recently was well attended. In addition to the transaction of general business, manager Jas. Simon, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, delivered an interesting address on banking in its relation to business. The executive intend to make such addresses a regular feature of future meetings. Incidentally, the local branch received a pat on the back from Provincial Secretary E. M. Trowern, of Toronto, who congratulated Chatham on the active interest being taken in association work.

The proposed annual banquet was strongly favored. Messrs. Stone, Westman, Anderson and Poile, being appointed to make arrangements. January 14 was suggested as an appropriate date. Mr. Spencer Stone suggested, with a smile, that the grocers' section provide provisions.

With reference to the sale of new goods by auctioneers on the market, something definite has at last evolved. Secretary Winter Stein interviewed the mayor, the mayor referred him to the city solicitor, and the latter stated that nothing could be done till the licenses expired; but that a clause prohibiting the auctioning off of new goods might be inserted in next year's licenses. The present licenses, however, don't expire till September, 1908. The association intends to keep pegging away.

Transgression of the rule prohibiting members from advertising in programs was brought to the notice of the association. Four members advertised in the programme of the Collegiate Institute annual sports recently. The association administered some mild reproof, the comment being made that as the transgressors lost more than anybody else, they could be safely left to their own reflections. A member of a leading hardware firm confirmed the statement. "The ad. cost me $2," he said, "and the only return I received was an invitation to loan them a coil of rope. It cost me $2 more to put the rope into such shape that I could sell it."

President Cowan stated that, since the association's rule was passed, the practice of soliciting program advertising and of selling tickets had fallen off perceptibly, and was to all indications rapidly dying out.

The grocery firm of Ruttan & Lindsay, Wallaceburg, has been dissolved. Mr. Noble Lindsay has disposed of his interests to his partner, Mr. Ruttan, and will embark in business at Charlemont, where he has purchased the general store of Johiel Walker, the transfer taking place November 15.

As forecasted some time ago, bean prices have slackened. They now range from $1.30 to $1.50. the latter being the price for choice hand-picked. The drop is the result of increased deliveries, due to the high prices offered and the favorable weather conditions for bringing in the beans. A large section of the growers seem to have regarded the prices offered as too good to be passed by, and to have considered that a bird in the hand was worth two in the bush.

J. R. Palmer will leave Tilbury shortly for this city, to take charge of his new bakery on Patteson Ave. The building, which cost about $5,000, is thoroughly up-to-date. Mr. Palmer will do a wholesale business only.

The Hawken Milling Company, of Wallaceburg, are already prepared to buy grain. The machinery is being installed and operations will commence in the near future.

The potato crop, as far as can be learned, has turned out somewhat better than was expected. Potatoes just now are selling pretty steadily at $1, though a rise is anticipated as soon as farmers commence to resort to their pits.

Albert Baxter, of Dresden, who recently disposed of his bakery, will leave shortly for British Columbia.

It is anticipated that the Wallaceburg Sugar Company will begin refining imported raw sugar as soon as the beet campaign is concluded. The company has now six pulp driers in operation, turning out 600 bags of stock food per day. Next year more are to be added.

The employes of the Kent Canning factory claim the record of the province for labelling and casing goods. On Thursday they put up 1,360 cases, each case containing 24 cans, all labelled by machine in nine hours. The average day's work is about 800 cases.

Bradley & Sons had a couple of very attractive windows recently. One advertised Red Rose Tea, the display being a fireplace, constructed of tea boxes, the grate being lined with tea paper and containing a pot and sticks, red tissue helping out the illusion of a fire. The mantle above the fireplace was surmounted by a clock, teapot, etc. The big corner window contained a fortress built of canned goods, with cannon—otherwise catsup bottles—peeping defiantly through the embrasures.

SASKATOON.

A brisk trade is being done here and grocers are looking forward for their Christmas stocks, which will be heavier this year than ever. Good butter is not too plentiful, but there is a sufficient supply for immediate consumption, and the outlook for a winter supply is by no means promising. The price has advanced for creamery butter to 40 cents per pound. Eggs are not so scarce, being shipped in from outside points.

Fruit is now plentiful on the market and continues to arrive in abundance. Grapes form a large percentage of the fruit deliveries and there is a constant supply of Ontario apples. Winter apples are making their appearance. They are of the Ontario varieties. Shipments of California fruit are also being received.

Wheat is again assuming a normal price. The last two weeks have seen many fluctuations, the price to-day being 3 cents better than a few days ago. That there is a demand for Saskatoon wheat in other western points is now an assured fact. A few weeks ago parties from Edmonton and Prince Albert sampled "Hub" wheat, as they wanted a good article for milling purposes, for the manufacture of high-grade flour. The result has been that the Saskatoon Flour & Milling Co. have entered into a contract to supply Edmonton with 10,000 bushels, and an agreement is pending to supply a Prince Albert firm with a monthly shipment of four or five cars.

Speers & Paul have vacated the premises occupied by them on Twentieth St., and have moved their stock into their new building on Twenty-second street, which is more commodious.

John McConnell has moved from Saskatoon to Asquith, where he has opened a bakery and confectionery business.

G. C. MacDonald, of the City Store, Prince Albert, announces a removal sale. The stock consists of groceries, dry goods, and boots and shoes, and must be reduced before being transferred to the new premises.

N. H. Russell, Prince Albert, who is the district agent for J. Y. Griffin & Co., has received a carload of bacon, hams, pickled pork and bologna,; also a shipment of eggs, consisting of four hundred and fifty cases.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Activity in cheese this week is slight. The season is pretty nearly over at this port. Last vessels are leaving, and already dealers are beginning to plan for the winter. Winter rates, storage, and other such questions are occupying the minds of the trade.

Prices are about the same as they were a week ago. For September cheese holders are asking 13c to 13¼c, sometimes demanding a little more. Later makes are selling at various prices. Some ask as low as 11½c, while others are demanding 12½c. The average price seems to be about 12c.

Dealers are not offering early makes at all freely. Present prices do not pay them. They bought this cheese at pretty good prices and carrying charges have helped to make it more costly. By holding on for a while they will be able to obtain figures which will let them off with some kind of profit.

Demand from England is fairly good, and exports last week show up well, being considerably ahead of those of the previous week, though below the corresponding week last year.

Receipts for the week were 44,685 boxes, against 39,806 boxes previous week, and 47,737 boxes same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 have been 2,017,262 boxes, as compared with 2,277,062 boxes same period, 1906.

Shipments were 49,668 boxes, against 35,262 boxes previous week, and 58,964 boxes for the corresponding week in 1906. Total shipments since May 1 have been 1,912,247 boxes, against, 2,164,626 boxes same period last year.

Good demand for butter is reported by dealers, who continue to transact a satisfactory domestic business. Nothing is being done with the other side. Canada is taking all the butter produced in the country, and firm prices rule everywhere.

Since last week quotations have changed but slightly, and the range might be called almost the same. For September-October make holders are asking 29c, some of them 30c, but later receipts are not so stiff in price. In the trade 27½c, 27¾c and 28c are the prices which are most frequently quoted. Sometimes 28½ cents is obtainable.

Receipts are falling off considerably. With the coming of the really cold weather factories will be closing up, and from now on the make will show an appreciable decrease almost weekly. With a more marked scarcity, and stocks not particularly heavy here, better values will be obtainable. A great many factory owners will close up around the first of the month, while there will be few who will venture to run all during December.

Importations are still arriving. It is mostly Irish factory butter, which is being received, and, as usual, it does not meet with the entire approval of users, particularly since it is scarcely as good as our late fall dairy butter.

So far there has not been a great deal of Siberian butter brought in.

Dairy butter continues exceedingly scarce in western, as well as eastern, Canada. Demand on the part of eastern dealers continues strong, but so great is the call for butter in the west, firms cannot ship to the east in anything like usual quantities. Creamery held by easterners is wanted badly by merchants in the west, who are getting what there is to spare.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 6,057 packages, against 8,063 previous week, and 6,185 packages same week last year. Total receipts since May 1 amount to 378,898 packages, as against 573,847 packages for the corresponding period in 1906.

Shipments last week amounted to but two packages, against three packages the previous week, and 747 packages same week last year. Total exports since May 1 amount to 66,761 packages, as against 361,165 packages same period, 1906.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

As reported last week, the English market has been in a very unsatisfactory condition, and at latest reports it continues very weak and ragged. This condition made itself felt in a material drop in prices during the week, Danish bacon coming down 5 shillings, and Irish shipments 3 shillings. As yet, however, there has been no material change in the Canadian situation.

The financial stringency which is seriously affecting American packers, does not seem to have had any noticeable effect here. Canadian packers are experiencing no difficulty in securing money enough to conduct business comfortably.

Danish deliveries last week were only moderate, the figures being 36,000. American shipments have been even lighter than previously, aggregating only 11,600. Credit deliveries of Canadian bacon have been moderate.

Prices for Canadian hogs remain at about the same figures as in last report, as follows: F.o.b., country points, $5.50; fed and watered, $5.80, and on cars at factory $5.50.

The New York Journal of Commerce, in its regular weekly review of the American situation, says: "Finances have been the controlling factor in local markets this week. Packers have been the chief sellers of futures at declining prices, both in and out of sympathy with grain, as financial pressure has been greater in this trade than in the grain trade at the West. Packers are all avoiding accumulations of spot stuff. Deliveries are light, owing to continued small receipts of hogs, but the supply has been sufficient to enable the packers to break prices further during the week in their effort to get products to a lower cost of production. Exporters have done little and transfers of cash lard have been made between packers in the West for financial reasons, reports having been continuous for two or three weeks that some of them are compelled to take this course to secure cash to carry on their business, as farmers have demanded cash for their live stock. There has been no other feature of interest or any change in the situation."

MONTREAL.

BUTTER FROM WHEY.

A New Discovery in the Dairying Industry Promises Considerable Revenue.

In the past the butter fat not utilized in the making of cheese has gone to waste. Incidentally it has contributed largely to the unpleasant odors that emanate from cheese factories. Though used in many localities as a food for hogs, it was practically an economic loss. As far as the cheese industry is concerned it has always been a nuisance.

Within the present year several cheese factories in the Province of Ontario have turned this more or less despised whey into a valuable asset of the cheese industry. A few enterprising cheese men have poured the whey into a separator and have made butter from the fat retained, such excellent butter that samples have taken prizes in competition with home-made and creamery butter.

At a recent meeting of the Peterboro Cheese Board samples of such butter were passed around among the members and pronounced by those present to be equal to that made from cream. It is estimated that approximately four pounds of butter can be obtained from 1,000 pounds of whey.

Plausible as this may seem, serious doubts have arisen among some cheese men as regards its ultimate success. No one appears to question the practicability of the scheme, but rather its real gain. The real issue rests on the amount of butter fat in whey, and on this important fact opinions differ. One critic claiming that the amount of butter fat in whey is 1-10 of 1 per cent. estimates that out of 25,000 pounds of whey there could be manufactured only 25 pounds of butter. In addition, there would be the labor of one man for at least eight hours in passing it through the separator. Then, there would be a depreciation in the value of the separated whey as a food product. On the whole, he concludes, the process would be unprofitable.

Against these views we have the unbiassed opinion of a dairy expert, Frank Herns, chief dairy instructor for western Ontario. According to his estimate, there is an average of over 3 per cent. of butter fat left in whey when it is ready to dip or to be run off the curd in cheese-making. On this basis over three pounds of butter can be manufactured from 1,000 pounds of whey. At the same time, he concludes, that the whey is not injured for feeding purposes. Coming as it does from one having a scientific grasp of the situation, this information is valuable, if not decisive.

That the new process has already attained considerable magnitude is evident from the fact that one cheese maker has written the Ontario Agricultural Department claiming to have realized $1,500 on whey butter this year. With the prevailing high price of butter there seems to be no reason why it should not be a paying proposition.

These facts are most significant. They go to show that the manufacture of so-called "whey butter" is passing out of the experimental stage and obtaining a recognized position in the dairy industry. Not only is this a distinct economic gain, but it will prove eventually a profitable source of revenue.

Flour Quotations Recovered, Though Markets Continue Unsteady—Government Helps to Finance Crop Movement—Winnipeg Inspections.

The decline in flour prices on Eastern markets, noted last week, did not last long, for the markets recovered toward the end of the week, and the old basis was established. The mills have orders enough to keep them busy for some weeks yet. Merchants in the interior seem anxious to get in their winter's supply before the close of navigation, and thus orders from the country are generally pretty fair. City trade also is reported good. The demand from European sources has been fairly active and some sales have been made to English account, but this business is not very free, as freight space on Atlantic steamers is very scarce.

It seems likely that the fact that the Government has taken definite steps to assist the four or five banks most interested to finance the movement of the Western wheat crop, will reflect at once in an easier situation. The exact nature of the arrangements made has not been made public, but it is now definitely settled that a good share of the two millions gold reserve of the Treasury which the Government has advanced, will be used for this purpose.

Inspections of wheat at Winnipeg on Saturday were 305 cars, compared with 192 for the corresponding day in 1906. Grading returns were: No. 1 northern, 32 cars; No. 2 northern, 72 cars; No. 3 northern, 70 cars; No. 4 northern, 28 cars: No. 5 northern, 17 cars; No. 6 northern, 13 cars; winter, 12 cars, and other grades, 61 cars. Fifty-eight cars of oats, 32 cars of barley and 12 of flax were also inspected.

Wheat on passage to Europe decreased 1,832,000 bushels during the past week. Corn decreased 2,088,000 bushels.

The visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States decreased 1,591,000 bushels during the past week, compared with an increase of 923,000 bushels last year. Visible corn increased 54,000 bushels, and last year decreased 834,000 bushels.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—The flour market has completely recovered from last week's falling off, which was due to the money situation, and not at all to supply and demand. Prices are now steady and no change is anticipated. Demand continues fair.

FLOUR—The local market dropped somewhat in sympathy with the recent slump in Montreal, and as yet has not recovered. Local millers have been able to secure considerable supplies from reserve stores and have not felt very seriously as yet the delay in moving the western wheat crop. The market, however, is very unstable and changes may occur at any time.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN NOVA SCOTIA

Flour Market Recovered Front Recent S lump—High Freight on Ontario Flour —Canning Factory Burned With Large Stock.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 18th, 1907.

The flour markets continue the centre of attraction. Early last week the price dropped 20 cents per barrel, but it has again advanced to the old figure. Some of the jobbers here hold very large stocks, but they are not overly anxious to dispose of their holdings. The high cost of flour is a serious matter for the civic authorities here, as they have to provide for about five thousand barrels annually for use at the City Home When the tenders were opened this year, the figures were so high that the committee declined to accept any of the tenders. The authorities are now buying flour in 200 barrel lots, with the hope that the price will ease off later on.

Business generally is good, and there is considerable activity in many lines, such as produce, etc. Large shipments of potatoes, turnips and oats are now being received here from Prince Edward Island ports. Potatoes as usual are quoted at 45 cents per bushel, but they are expected to go down to 40 cents. They will not likely be less than forty cents this season. Nova Scotia are quoted at 55 cents. There is a good demand all round for potatoes, due it is said, to the shortage of the crop in the United States. Six schooners are now loading at Prince Edward Island ports for the American market. The steamer Dageid, which sailed from Charlottetown last week for St. John, had 6,000 bags of potatoes and oats.

Messrs. Rod. McIsaac and Stephen McPhie, have entered into partnership at Bridgeport, N.B., and are conducting a produce business on Main street. Both are popular young men and will no doubt make a success of their new business.

Conductor Foster, of the Halifax and South Western Railway, has resigned his position and entered into a partnership with R. S. Trask, of Yarmouth, in his provision and grocery business. The new firm will renovate the premises and extend its business.

A car load of flour from Chatham, Ont., arrived at Glace Bay last week. The flour weighed 45,000 and the freight on the car amounted to $210. The latter amount is considered to be very high.

The Portland Packing Company have built a new up-to-date lobster factory at Howard's Cove, Prince Edward Island. The plant will be one of the most complete on the Island.

The Acadia Creamery and Canning Company's plant at Kingston Station, N.S., was completely destroyed by fire early last week, causing a loss of nine thousand dollars, which was covered by insurance. The plant was complete in every respect and one of the best in the valley. The destruction of the plant at this season of the year, will be severely felt by the owners, as they had a large stock of canned goods on hand. Two cars of canned apples ready for shipment, and 750 barrels of apples, which were to be canned were destroyed. The company also had a large butter business, and canning at a season of the year when this article is scarce, will cause much inconvenience to the customers.

KEEP ON THE MOVE.

Are you actually busy all day long? Busy with business? Busy accomplishing things that count? Judging from past experience a writer in an exchange believes that the average retailer in the small town wastes at least a quarter of his time. He not only wastes the time, but is at the same time firmly convinced that he is the busiest man in the town and does not have half enough time to take care of his business properly.

Many retailers will not only waste a great deal of time between jobs in the store, but will even go outside and play croquet, pitch horse shoes, or waste an hour or two in some other occupation while he has work to do inside, which, if properly cared for, will increase his profits considerably in the course of a year.

Many fail to realize that their time is charging himself up with every minute they take from their business they are cheating that business out of. They are not accustomed to put a price on their own time, even though most of them draw a certain salary from their business each month.

One retailer recently brought himself to realize the value of his own time by charging himself up with every minute thus wasted, at the same rate he allowed himself a salary. It was a great surprise to him the way his salary was thus reduced, and any retailer who will honestly follow up such a plan for a month will see where there is a leak in the business at a very vital point, and once such a leak is found, he is not a shrewd merchant if he does not stop it.

TRADE NOTES.

GROCERY NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

General Drop in Prices With Advance of Season — New Assistant Receiver-General—Hog Markets Well Supplied.

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 18.

During the past week there has been a drop in the price of many kinds of groceries. In some cases this is due to the advance of the season, as the new crop is coming in; but the stringency in the money market is also affecting prices in the local market. Manitoba flour remains firm, and Ontarios have returned to the top notch mark reached three weeks ago. Cornmeal shows a tendency to decline. In the country market there is little change in prices, and sales are reported somewhat dull. Lamb has advanced a little, being somewhat scarcer. There is a good supply of all kinds of vegetables.

The following despatch from Hartland, Carleton county, under date of Nov. 14, will be of interest to provision dealers: "Joseph McGee and H. N. Boyer, buying dressed pork for shipment to Halifax, met with a deadlock in their business this week. They had purchased a large quantity which they were to ship to-day when they received notification that, to comply with a law enacted during the last session of Parliament, hogs dressed for export or interprovincial trade must have the heart, lungs and liver left in the carcass and pass Government inspection. Through ignorance of the law these conditions have not been met and the proposed shipment to Halifax is off for the present. This is a severe blow, not only to shippers, but to the farmers, as the price realized from pork sent to the Halifax market is about $10 per ton more than that in St. John or elsewhere in the Province.

As matters stand now the local market is glutted and the price has fallen from eight and a quarter to six and a half cents, a difference of $35 to the man that has a ton of pork to sell."

Another Hartland despatch says: "Upwards of 100 carloads of Carleton county's big hay crop go out each week and the business will continue throughout the winter. Ten to twelve dollars per ton is a price easily obtainable by the farmer. Local shippers are getting frequent orders from sections that in ordinary years produced hay to ship. Oats continue firm at 40 to 45 cents. Eggs and butter continue scarce and high—24 cents for either. As yet poultry is not seen in the market, except for local demand."

The death of Frederick E. Flewelling, aged forty-five, took place Nov. 10, at his residence, 66 Bridge street. Mr. Flewelling had been in failing health throughout the summer, but had been confined to his room but a few days. He was a son of the late Isaac Flewelling and had lived in this city all his years. He conducted a grocery store in Bridge street, and was well and favorably known.

The much talked of increase in the price of milk has failed to materialize. Several of the largest producers refused to advance the price, and the rest were forced to fall in line. The price remains at 7 cents, though the probability is that there will not be any great supply this winter as farmers say they will not force production owing to high prices of feed.

Retail grocers report that the Lipton Limerick contest has resulted in a large increase in the demand for Lipton teas.

George Robertson, M.P.P., who some years ago conducted one of the largest wholesale and retail stores in St. John, has been appointed assistant receiver-general for New Brunswick, and entered upon his new duties to-day. Mr. Robertson took an active part in promoting the opening of trade in the West Indies. His many friends all over the Province will extend him congratulations on his appointment.

J. T. McLean, London, has taken over the grocery business of E. L. Liddicoatt.

Joseph Lablanc, of the Marotte, Leblanc Co., has returned to Montreal from New York.

J. D. Bell, Montreal representative of Thos. Bell, Sons & Co., Liverpool, England, has just returned from a short visit to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Henry Adams, of Dienslam & Sons, Ltd., of London, Eng., a noted tea house, was in Toronto for several days recently, with Geo. Musson & Son, the well known local tea brokers.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Markets Continue Brisk With Prices Easier on Several Lines—Potatoes Firm and Rising—Fish Prices Slightly Easier.

The fruit markets are quite brisk, in spite of the much-talked-of financial stringency. Buying for Christmas business may account for this to a great extent, but conditions are very encouraging. Imported new crop oranges from Mexico, Jamaica, Florida and Porto Rico are coming in quite freely in good qualities. New crop lemons are also being received. All this new fruit means good demand.

In vegetables recent reports indicate an abundant crop of cabbages, with quality excellent. The onion crop seems to have been affected by late fall rains and is not at all satisfactory. New Brunswick potatoes, which have for some years been considered standard, are not being bought so readily this year, as the quality is not at all regular. Imported truck is scarce and therefore higher in price.

Large supplies of frozen fish have eased the markets slightly, though demand continues brisk. Both Pacific and Atlantic fish are arriving steadily in quantities.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUIT—Lemons, oranges, cranberries and Almeria grapes are the market favorites this week. In these lines demand is very brisk. The new crop of lemons is arriving. The quality is very satisfactory, and this year's crop is at least up to the average. There are some very fine quality Cape Cod cranberries in the market. Prices are a little easier than last week. The apple crop has been considerably injured by frost, and prices are firmer. Late Valencia oranges are still on the market, but demand is limited.

VEGETABLES—There is a scarcity of celery on the local market, due to slow shipment from the country. The crop of celery this year is very good, both in quantity and quality. The market continues full of very good quality cabbage. It is reported that the country is also full of cabbage, owing to the abundant crop. Turnips are not so plentiful as formerly, and are being quoted at from $10 to $12 per ton. Hothouse cucumbers are scarce on the Boston market, and, as it rules prices here in these goods, there has been a decided firming up this week. There is practically no demand for mushrooms. The wet wether this fall has had an injurious effect on the onion crop, which otherwise would have been very satisfactory. At the time of gathering, onions need sunny weather to properly dry out the lower point, or root end, of the bulb, otherwise they will not keep. Many nice lots are this year defective in not being thoroughly dried.

FISH—There is an easier feeling in cod and haddock owing to the supply being more plentiful. A large supply of frozen fish, including sea herring, halibut, salmon, pike and dore, is now on the market. They are reported to be very nice lines of goods. There is an active demand for salt herring, and prices for green cod are firm, under a brisk demand. The market for shell oysters is not so firm as for oysters in bulk. The demand for the latter is quite strong.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—The market is becoming quite brisk. Hard times have but little effect on the fruit situation. The demand for some lines of imported fruits is active. Mexican oranges are in and are well colored for the first arrivals. Navels are beginning to arrive. Small lots of Canadian grapes continue to come in, but the quality is not the best. Apples are firm in spite of their unsatisfactory condition. Cranberries are plentiful and a little easier.

VEGETABLES—The feature of the week is the firm potato market. Prices of Ontarios have made another advance and are in sharp demand. Delawares remain unchanged. Judging from the present outlook it seems probable that prices will continue high. California celery is arriving in considerable quantities, and is a good quality. There is a steady demand for onions, beets, carrots, lettuce and parsnips, with a slight stiffening in prices.

Finlay Coons, of A. Sweet & Co.'s department store at Winchester, Ont., was recently married, and has taken a house in his native town. "Fin." as he is nick-named by his friends, is very popular among the travelers in this section of Ontario. Winchester, a thriving farming and cheese section of eastern Ontario, had the misfortune of losing considerable of its business places by fire a short time ago, as also the hotels, so travelers are a little handicapped at present there by scant accommodation.

SPANISH FLOODS DELAY RAISINS

Serious Conditions in Malaga Affect Exports of Raisins.

Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, have received advices from the Malaga Chamber of Commerce, which illustrate present conditions in Spain as a result of recent floods and explains the delay in the shipments of Malaga raisins this year.

The report states that over 50,000 people in that country have suffered losses. Of these, 20,000 are left totally destitute, and are depending for the necessaries of life on charity. So far, no reliable estimate of the financial loss has been made. The people of Malaga are living in a state of consternation lest there should be a repetition of the great floods, as the rainy season has set in. Another circumstance which adds to the difficulty of the situation, is the threatened outbreak of an epidemic, due to the germ-laden vapors rising out of the morasses, in which are to be found much organic matter, such as dead animals, and even human bodies in a state of putrefaction.

The Chamber of Commerce, Industry and Navigation of Malaga, is spreading the news through every channel, and at the same time is asking assistance from all quarters.

One of the direct results of the calamity is that the local markets will be kept waiting longer than could have been anticipated for shipments of Malaga raisins.

RELY ON RETAIL GROCER.

Maconochie Bros., Ltd., London, England, manufacturers of high grade pickles, sauces, marmalades, fish, etc., express their belief that the retail grocer is personally the best medium for advertising the merits of a really good article, claiming that his verbal recommendation will carry more weight with customers than any printed matter can possibly do. To keep their goods prominently before the trade they use the columns of The Canadian Grocer, and this, coupled with the liberal inducements offered to gain the grocers' cooperation has been productive of wonderful results. The goods now being on sale in almost every retail grocery store from coast to coast in Canada, demonstrating that quality and fair prices win the confidence of the consuming public, and that salability and fair profits gain the support of the merchant.

As a measure of reciprocity to grocers who have pushed the sale of their products, Maconochie Bros., some six months ago, inaugurated a wrapper competition, the conditions of which were very simple, viz., to remove the wrappers from the bottles and send them to their Canadian agents, the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Ltd., 69 Front St. E., Toronto, before Dec. 1st. Nine cash prizes, aggregating $250, are offered to the senders of the largest number of wrappers, and the winners will have good reason to congratulate themselves upon any special effort made to thus augment their profits. The result of the competition will be waited for with interest, as there is much speculation as to just how many wrappers will be required to win the first prize of $100. There is certainly a wide diversity of opinion in regard to this, ranging all the way from 100 to 1,000 wrappers.

DRIED FRUITS DELAYED.

Montreal Firms Experiencing Difficulty in Having Goods Forwarded.

A peculiar condition of affairs somewhat alike to the Canadian car shortage question is bothering the wholesale men in Montreal. Dried fruit importers are having great difficulty in getting their shipments through. Wm. C. Christmas, commission merchant, of Montreal, reports that a shipment of dried fruit which left Red Bluff on November 1st, had not reached Chicago on November 9th. The cause of this delay is not a want of cars, but a want of power on the Southern Pacific Railway. A member of one of the large importing firms who has just returned from an extended trip to the Pacific coast, confirms the above statement and adds that he saw hundreds of cars laden with dried fruit with no engines to take them over the Southern Pacific Railway.

Whatever the cause of this condition may be, it is certainly causing the merchants in Montreal much uncertainty regarding their shipments of dried fruits.

Northwest Association Holds Nominations at General Meeting in Winnipeg.

The general meeting and nomination of officers of the Northwest Commercial Travelers' Association was held on Saturday, November 9th. in their new building at the corner of Bannatyne and King streets, Winnipeg.

President J. E. McRobie occupied the chair, and after a short address, nominations of officers and directors for the ensuing year were made as follows :— President, Geo. Wilson, by acclamation ; vice-president, A. S. Lock, by acclamation ; treasurer, L. C. MacIntyre, by acclamation, for Winnipeg. Vice-president for Calgary, E. Dogg, B. W. Libby ; vice-president for Edmonton, George Stockand, F. M. Morgan ; vice-president for Regina, P. Cooper, by acclamation ; vice-president for Vancouver, L. D. Birely, by acclamation ; vice-president for Victoria, Herman Erb, by acclamation.

The results will be reported at the annual meeting, which is to be held on December 21st.

It was decided that the new building should be formally opened by a conversazione on Dec. 30, for the travelers and their lady friends, expenses of same to be borne by the association. It was also decided to hold a public reception New Year's day. The president and officers with the club officials be composed as a reception committee. After a full discussion regarding the club, its fees and dues, the meeting then adjourned.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS MEET.

The regular meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association was held on Thursday, Nov. 7th. As was expected, the attendance was large, despite the bad weather.

The first important question to be dealt with was the financial report. Secretary J. A. Beaudry submitted a detailed statement. This statement is of great importance at the present moment, for on it hinges the whole question of the relation between the retail grocers and the retail merchants. On Nov. 14th there is to be a special meeting of the retail grocers, when Mr. Boileau will put the matter before the members. If the report submitted proves satisfactory; that is, if the grocers think they are getting full value for their fees, the retail grocers and the retail merchants will probably remain united. But if otherwise, it is probable that there will be a separation.

A resolution was passed which may have very far reaching effects on the trade, viz., to petition the Department of Trade and Commerce to create a special bureau, analagous to the Railway Commission, to regulate prices. This step is necessitated by Act 520 of the Criminal Code, and the Co-Operative Bill. These, explained Mr. Beaudry, are directly opposite in their effects. Act 520 prevents merchants from entering into any agreement, whereby competition is lessened, whereas the Co-Operative Bill extends the right of such agreement to include retail grocers, and therefore its effect would be to kill competition.

The next resolution passed by the meeting related to peddlers' and hawkers' licenses. At present a peddler or a hawker has to pay $50 per annum. The meeting expressed itself in favor of having the license fee increased to $200. The reason for this is as follows. Formerly St. Henri and St. Cunegonde were separate from Montreal, and each required all peddlers and hawkers to pay a fee of $100. Now, however, these places are parts of Montreal, and the license fees have in consequence been abolished, leaving only the old Montreal fee of $50 to be paid. The grocers hold that their resolution is really a reduction on the former rates, because, under their resolution, a peddler or hawker can cover the same territory for $200 for which he would have had then to pay $250. On the other hand, they claim that the present fee of $50, covering all parts is inadequately small.

The most practical, perhaps, of all questions came up next for discussion. The creation of a "black list." One of the greatest banes of the retail grocery business is bad pay. And it is to deal with this difficulty that the "black list" is to be organized. The association is proceeding with great care and regularity in order to protect itself against possible legal actions. Each member of the association is furnished with printed forms. Suppose Mr. A—— fails to pay his grocery bill. His grocer fills out one of these forms, notifying him that unless he pays within a certain stated time his name will be sent to the association to be black listed. If Mr. A—— still does not pay, the grocer makes out another form and sends it to the secretary of the association, who in turn informs Mr. A—— that unless he pays his account within a specified time his name will be entered on the black list. If this does not have any effect, the grocer then fills out form No. 3, which he sends to the secretary, who forthwith enters Mr. A—— on the list of bad pays. These lists are sent to all the members, who in turn will refuse credit to every person therein enumerated. There is a form, No. 4, by which the grocer notifies the secretary of the association when Mr. A—— pays, and the secretary then has his name removed from the black list.

The system is very perfect and should have a most salutary effect on that class of trade, which saps the profit from the retail grocery business.

The meeting throughout was very animated and the manner in which the members took part in the discussion clearly showed how keenly they were interested.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENT ABROAD.

Harold F. Ritchie, manufacturers' agent, 18 Church street, Toronto, left on the Lusitania last Friday for Great Britain and the continent for a buying trip. While abroad he will be on the lookout for a few lines to add to his Canadian list of agencies. Among these latter are Taylor & Pringle, Owen Sound; Imperial Extract Co., Toronto; Moos & Co., Paris, France; C. H. Cochrane & Co., Ottawa and Geo. S. McConkey. Mr. Ritchie represents these concerns from Toronto to Vancouver. His present trip abroad will extend over two months.

M. F. Goddard, representing the Maple Tree Producers' Association, of Waterloo, P.Q., was in Toronto last week on the lookout for fall business.

On Nov. 7 Dakers Cameron, the popular secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Montreal, was married to Miss Elsie Margaretta Fenwick, of Montreal. They have gone south on their honeymoon trip.

INTERESTING MONTREAL CASE.

E. D. Marceau Co. Remain in Their Old Premises.

A case replete with interest has just finished its journey from the Superior Court through the Court of Review to the Court of Appeal, final judgment having been given but recently by the latter court.

The facts are as follows: E. D. Marceau, Montreal, leased premises from one Valois, for the sum of $1,000 per annum. In February, 1906, Mr. Marceau installed a coffee roaster. Valois took action to have the lease cancelled on the ground that the presence of the coffee roaster converted the premises into a factory. Damages were also asked. The Superior Court decided for the plaintiff, the Court of Review for the defendant, and the Court of Appeal for the plaintiff, sustaining the decision of the Superior Court.

A representative of The Grocer called on Mr. Marceau, who said: "A court of justice can base a judgment they render only upon existing facts. They cannot take motives into account, if they could, I venture to say that a different decision would have been reached in this instance." He explained, further, that at the trials the plaintiff contended that a coffee roaster would shake the building down. However, since judgment has been rendered the lessor has agreed to allow him to stay in the premises, and to retain the coffee roaster, for an increase of rental from $1,000 to $1,320 per annum. The Court of Review, in reversing the decision of the Superior Court, held that a coffee roaster was a necessary accessory to the business of the defendant. Mr. Marceau thought that the following fact would bear that out. When he installed the roaster, he roasted 3,000 lbs. of coffee during the first month, whereas last month he roasted over 30,000 lbs., an increase of over 1,000 per cent., and all within less than two years.

Mr. Marceau expressed his intention of purchasing the property in the near future when he intends to make extensive changes.

MONTREAL FIRM LIQUIDATES.

Ernest Bouthillier, the pickle, jam and catsup manufacturer, Montreal, doing business under the name of Joseph Lamoureux & Cie, went into liquidation on Saturday last. The assets consist of a stock of groceries, food stuffs, other merchandise stored in warehouses, certain licenses, book debts, and chattels, pertaining to the premises.

The principal claimants are: Joseph Lamoureux, $13,974; Hochelaga Bank, $13,000; Edwardsburg Starch Company, $1,979; Rattray Sons Co., $945; St. Lawrence Vinegar Co., $1,540; H. R. Silver, $2,951; W. & F. P. Currie & Co., $704; Acme Can Works, $770; Indiana Glass Co., $1,835; Wilson Patterson Co., $3,765; M. P. Darwin, $1,004; William H. Dunn, $2,202; La Cie de Conserves de St. Isidore, $1,054; J. Pinder & Co., $1,846; Laporte Martin & Co., $1,050; Theo. Lefebvre & Cie, $1,390,- Doyle & Jackson, $3,300; A. J. Hughes, $4,910; Leon Tanguay, $10,000. Bilodian & Chalifour have been appointed liquidators.

GETS ANOTHER DIRECTORSHIP.

President Meighen Now on Montreal Street Railway Board.

Robert Meighen, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, has just been elected to the directorate of the Montreal Street Railway Company.

Mr. Meighen enjoys the reputation of being one of the leaders in the business community of Montreal. He is a financier of no mean ability, and his name on a board of directors possesses a power all its own. Consequently, he is much in demand in this respect, and occupies a place on the directorate of several leading Canadian concerns, including, outside of his connection with the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, the presidency of the New Brunswick Railway, seats at the directors' tables of the Bank of Toronto, Canadian Northwest Land Company, Dominion Transport Company, St. John Bridge and Railway Company, Montreal Street Railway Company. Mr. Meighen will be a valuable addition to the Street Railway board. He replaces the late Lt.-Col. Fred. Henshaw.

ROBERT MEIGHEN,
New Director of the Montreal Street Railway Company.

EXTENDED TRIP IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

T. T. Cartwright, special representative of E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, has just returned from a five months' trip through Newfoundland. Mr. Cartwright circumnavigated the ancient colony, touching at every port and fishing village. In conversation with The Grocer, Mr. Cartwright stated that business generally was good, although very late, owing to the most backward season known to the colony. Receipts for fish are very good for shore catch. Labrador fish are a little short and prices somewhat lower than last year. Cod liver oil is very cheap and it hardly pays to refine it, the price being around 30c per gallon. The large production of Norwegian cod liver oil is one of the principal factors to this low price. Salmon fishing is very good, large amounts of fresh salmon being shipped to Boston, and this trade is increasing with every season. The Atlantic Fish Co., of Canada, ship from the west coast by express to North Sydney, where the fish are re-iced and met at the Straits of Canso and taken to the freezer at Canso, and later sent to Boston. Development of the pulp and paper industry at Grand Falls is going on in a stupendous way and Lord Northcote (Harmsworth) when plant is completed will have the most complete establishment in the world. Already over two million dollars have been spent at Grand Falls and in connection with the plant. A. E. Reid Co. are also building large pulp mills at Bishops Falls. Mr. Cartwright speaks most glowingly of the colony's prospects. Before going on his next trip to the island, Mr. Cartwright will make a business canvass of the Eastern Townships.

Cellar Outfit for Heavy Oils.

LINSEED OIL TANKS

The Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tanks will handle Linseed Oil, Turpentine, Varnishes, Shellacs and Dryers just as readily as they do Kerosene and Gasolene.

The Bowser saves oil, saves time, saves labor, and so pays a bigger return than any other part of a store equipment.

The Bowser will handle the heaviest, stickiest oils without gumming—with absolute accuracy of measurement, without leakage, evaporation or waste.

The Bowser will draw and measure five gallons of Linseed Oil in less time than is required for one gallon with any other arrangement.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

BATGER'S

in ½-lb. and 1-lb. Drums.

Prepared and packed by machinery, thus ensuring cleanliness and uniformity.

Saves time, trouble and loss of weight.

The three kinds of Peel, Lemon, Orange and Citron, properly blended, are all cut ready for immediate use. If you once sell this line to your customers they will always ask for it, because every housewife likes BATGER'S Machine-Cut Peel, once she uses it. Your profit is sure and substantial. Ask your jobber for it. In ½ and 1-lb drums.

BRADSTREET'S

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

THE TIN AND THE TEA

A writer in the "Canadian Grocer" says: "Don't you know that tea is sensitive to the odors and the conditions surrounding it? It will absorb the smell of onions in less than 24 hours. It loses its flavor when exposed to the air."

Of course we know it. We knew it years ago. Hence our perfect TIN for holding it until the buyer is ready to brew out the delicious liquid of

Windsor Salt

There wasn't a cent's worth of Windsor Salt found in the stock of John Smith, the grocer, who failed last week. Way up on the shelves, though, were no less than six different kinds of salt under various names—every package, box and bag of it was dirty and fly-specked.

Seems as if every successful retail grocer in Canada sold Windsor Salt—grocers who are not tempted to buy "just as good" kinds for the saving in price. Poor John Smith was tempted too far! No Windsor Salt for him—rather have dirty salt, salt that cakes, salt that's not all salt, salt sold for its attractive name—than the pure white, dry salt crystals of Windsor Salt.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

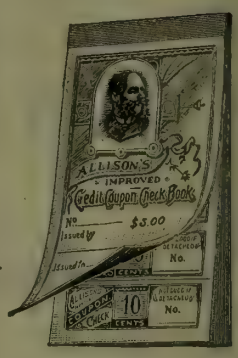
Allison Coupon Books

Eliminate the Non-essentials



Many a business man is so loaded down with details that his really important problems can receive only secondary consideration.

This condition is overcome in any mercantile house by the adoption of the Allison Coupon system. With it, accounts are kept better and more accurately, at about one-tenth the usual cost.

THE PLAN

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

Keep the Store Bins Closed

Pertinent Ideas as to What the Retail Grocer Ought Not to be—Cleanliness in Every Department and Provision for Modern Methods of Handling Goods Necessary in the Grocery of To-day.

In a recent issue The Grocer reproduced an article from a series in the Woman's Home Companion on "Cleanliness in the Grocery." The paragraphs following are taken from the second of the series. All the conditions spoken of herewith may not exist in Canadian groceries, but it is safe to presume that a good many of them do, though we do not believe that many stores into which this paper goes would for a moment countenance the existence of the disagreeable things which are mentioned. The article will be valuable, however, as conveying ideas of what a Canadian grocery ought not to be, and may give some hints from which a good many of our readers may benefit.

To the Consumer.

"How can we secure clean, sanitary groceries ?"

The question was addressed to Bayard C. Fuller, chief of food inspection, Department of Health, city of New York.

"By implanting in the hearts of unclean grocers the fear of God, which, being interpreted, means fear of arrest and punishment," was his prompt reply.

Again the question was addressed to the manager of a model grocery store.

"By educating the housewives of America to visit their groceries in a critical, observing frame of mind, to demand cleanliness in the store, its owner or manager and his assistants, and to make cleanliness a possibility by treating the grocer and his clerks in a businesslike way."

Both replies are correct. Both remedies are practical in either the large or the small city. Every city, every town, every hamlet that is incorporated and has a municipal, a borough or a village government has its department of health. The degree of authority invested in the department of health or the individual health officer varies in different cities and towns.

Generally speaking, however, a health officer can bring about the following reforms: He can condemn and destroy over-ripe, decaying fruit and vegetables, also dried fruits that are wormy and infested with parasites of any sort. He can order a filthy cellar cleared of all decayed matter and then properly whitewashed. He can order all bins containing food to be supplied with covers. He can order dirty counters scrubbed. He can insist that proper receptacles be supplied for sputum, and can see that these spittoons are kept clean. He can order the display of green vegetables and fruits to be raised to such a height that no dog can commit a nuisance upon them. And he can see that butter and cheese are kept in refrigerators or coolers that are absolutely free from bacteria.

What the Housewife Can Do.

Every woman is a power for food cleanliness, whether she boards a street car and hurries down town to attend a grocery sale of a much-advertised department store in a bustling city, or rides across the plains, five, ten or fifteen miles, in a spring wagon or buckboard to do her trading at one of the two general stores of which the county seat may boast.

The health officer cannot force the grocer to provide oiled paper with which to handle butter, cheese, etc., when cutting and weighing it, but the housewife can, by going to a store where oiled paper is used. He cannot force the grocer to supply his clerks with running water, a decent sink or basin and clean towels for wash purposes, but the housewife can, if she insists on clean hands. He cannot force the grocer to equip his store with the proper scoops and forks for ladling out foodstuffs, but the housewife can, by refusing to trade with a man who digs out prunes, pickles and mackerel with his hands, and wipes the accumulation of filth off on his already overworked and discolored waiting apron.

Value of the Inspector.

Call him what you will, health officer or inspector of foods, the man who thrills the heart of the untidy grocer with "the fear of God and imprisonment" is a power for good in every household. He is often the one thing that stands between the household and wholesale poisoning, trichinosis, ptomaine and all the train of evils which follow unsanitary food conditions. He does the work which every individual housewife should do, which thousands of housewives are either afraid to undertake or are too lazy to do—and that is, detective work, whose influence reaches the family kitchen and saves the family health.

Follow one of these food inspectors through a crowded but thrifty section of a great city. In front of a store where groceries and green goods are sold he pauses. His trained glance has caught behind the tray of sound scarlet tomatoes a basket used apparently to prop up the tray. In reality he finds that it is filled with half-rotten tomatoes, which some "thrifty" housewife on bargains bent will purchase to cut up for soup, or, perhaps, after cutting away the best parts, to serve raw to her unsuspecting family. This arouses his suspicion regarding the entire store.

He darts inside and catches the proprietor of the shop by the apron strings. The man is sneaking into a back room with a huge tray of bread, cake and pies which have been uncovered and exposed to dust and dirt on top of a filthy glass case.

Next he makes a quick move in the direction of the tumble-down refrigerator. As he opens the door a most unpleasant odor salutes his nostrils. Cockroaches and water bugs run this way and that. The pipe is clogged up, and the water has settled in a slimy pool beneath the rack. He gives orders for the necessary cleaning—and there his power ceases. He cannot force that grocer to remove his filthy shirt and don something half way clean. He cannot order into confinement a great parrot, which goes everywhere at will, perching now on a pile of bacon, now on a bin of cornmeal, now on the edge of a barrel of bulk pickles. He has forced the grocer to provide covers, but he cannot stand over him and see that the covers are kept in place; nor can he condemn a pet that the customers of the store seem to like, even though it flits at will among the bulk food that later is served on some one's table.

In another store a thrifty grocer has pressed into service his slovenly-looking wife. A customer at the delicatessen counter was debating between sliced corn beef and smoked tongue. While she contemplated the dainties, the wife of the grocer stood with one hand holding the butcher knife ready for action and the other scratching her frowzy head. And when the order was given, the grocer's wife removed her hand from her hair, and without so much as wiping it on her apron, laid it on the huge piece of corned beef. The customer looked like the sort of woman who would have a fern dish on her polished table and hand-embroidered doilies under her plates, but she did not notice, apparently, the slovenly, disgusting actions of the woman who was waiting on her.

"But," you say, "these are scenes in a crowded city with a large foreign population."

The Country Grocer.

That is true. Perhaps your grocer is a man of a different stamp—a self-respecting citizen whom you are glad to know, whose family belongs to your church, whose store, like his home, is sweet and clean and pure. We know such grocers, and we are proud of them. But you may not be so fortunate in all your tradesmen. You may find that your grocer neighbor, after all, is not clean; and then, too, where can you escape the so-called foreign population ?

Come with the writer to two stores. One is in a pretty Connecticut village. This is a hot Saturday afternoon, and suburbanites are pouring into the store. The distracted grocer needs every bit of help he can rally. So his wife comes in, wearing a suspiciously clean shirt waist with much cheap lace adornment above a black mohair skirt filthy enough to stand, like the proverbial painter's towel, quite alone. She brings the children with her, because she is too poor to employ a "girl," let alone a nurse maid. One of the children, a little girl whose curly hair is matted beyond recourse to the ordinary brushing and combing, with hands that suggest mud pies and a pinafore that only the most vigorous treatment could restore to freshness, is happily entertained building a fort with block sugar in one bin. A brother, only a year or so older, in the same need of bathing and clean raiment, is filling an order for bulk crackers from another bin. The littlest one, a babe just able to sit up and play is lying in a wicker carriage whose pillows and fittings are nothing short of sickening. Suddenly the baby sets up a wail, the mother starts to carry it into a rear room, when an urgent customer appears on the scene, and the baby, arrayed in a single garment, is literally dumped into a big bin of rice, where it sits contentedly digging in the pretty white grains! And this is not an imaginary scene.

"But why," argues a critic, "jump always on the small store?"

Well, we won't! Again make a trip to the store of a large grocer, one of a string of stores under the direction of a well-known firm.

The Large Stores.

The shelves, ostentatiously hung with rather dusty-looking mosquito netting, are half hidden by flamboyant announcements of cut sales, reductions in canned goods, "specials" in coffee and tea, "cuts" in butter and eggs and potatoes. Men are scurrying about the store, clad in long coats that were once white. Customers elbow and shove. Small delivery boys dart in and out of doors. The entire place radiates enterprise, push and run of custom dear to the heart of the modern merchant.

But step behind the counter. Papers are strewn thickly all over the floor, which is slimy almost to the point of being dangerous, and yet the papers are not thick enough to hide the telltale marks of the chronic spitter. From a bin of coffee hangs a dirty rag. It was dropped there by a man who had just filled an order for kerosene. Some other man will look at his wife across the breakfast table, and inquire: "I wonder why this coffee tastes of coal oil?" And she will not know—because she never really knows her grocer or looks behind the counter. Nor does she go back to the refrigerator, where she would find open lard pails next to open butter tubs, and some especially high-priced bacon in the slab next to a freshly cut cheese. Nor does she find her way into the back room, where a hard-pushed delivery lad is sniveling over a fall, the result of stumbling over a big piece of bacon thrown to the floor by a busy clerk.

"These are extreme cases," exclaims a housewife. "I never saw such scenes in the store where I trade. The man who takes my order always looks very nice."

Yes—but what of the man who fills your order? Do you ever look behind the counter, into the refrigerator or the back room?

Look at the slice of cream cheese delivered at your door. Is there a dark gray line just below the rind on either side, becoming fainter toward the centre of the slice? If so, you may be sure that the dirt on the knife used in cutting it has gradually been wiped off on the cheese and absorbed into its creamy body. That means dirty knives in the cheese box or cooler, and dirty knives in one place mean dirty scoops in another.

The Model Store.

Now let us move on to the model or sanitary grocery.

Suppose you start with the grocery section of a large department store.

"Ah," exclaims a champion of the untidy grocery, "look at the staff of clerks you have here! Hundreds where the small grocer has a dozen."

Yes; but where the small grocery has two or three hundred customers in the course of the day, this grocery has from five to ten thousand shoppers on the floor at once. Its floor space covers nearly half of a large city block. And all through those broad aisles are men, women and children buying and sampling and dropping crumbs and papers on the floor. And close on the heels of the shoppers come the sweepers, three of them, armed with long-handled brushes who pace the aisles day in and day out preventing the food samples from being ground into the flooring.

In some departments, such as meats, delicatessen, butter, baked stuffs, etc., the clerks wear white coats and aprons supplied and laundered free by the firm. The girls are encouraged to wear white aprons. The motto of this store is, "Cleanliness Regulates the Volume of Trade."

Another model store inspected was that of a firm which handles only staple groceries, branded goods, perfumes and candy, and no fresh or green groceries save oranges, lemons, imported grapes and grapefruit. In this store, of course, package goods predominate—a fact which adds materially to the cleanliness of the store, the convenience of the grocer, the speed of the service to the customers, and lastly, to the safety of the customers' health. There isn't a woman in the land who would not enjoy spending an hour or two in this clean, sweet-smelling store. Here, with a staff of two hundred and fifty men and boys, ten thousand orders are filled in a day. No spittoons are provided for workers, but at every turn of the rooms or floors where orders are filled are signs. "No Spitting Allowed."

In this store the employe who is a chronic spitter is admonished once, warned once and then dismissed.

Instead of advertisements announcing cuts in groceries, at intervals above all bins and in all the storerooms where orders are filled are signs "Keep Bins Closed."

The twelve-year-old lad who suggested the posting of this sign received an award of two dollars for his suggestion. This firm distributes among its employes bulletins or leaflets, advocating tidiness, cleanliness promptness, courtesy, etc., and offers an award of two dollars for every practical suggestion made by an employe for the betterment of the service or the appearance of its stores.

In this store one boy does nothing but wield the long-handled, soft brush that does not raise dust on the showroom floor. One man does nothing but fill butter orders. He is dressed in white apron and coat, is well supplied with oiled paper, so that his bare hand never touches the butter. Close at hand is running water and a clean towel. Another man washes bottles in which vinegar and molasses as well as bulk liquors are delivered. He has an enormous fresh towel daily, running water of course, and works in front of a gas jet, before which every washed bottle must be held for inspection. Across the aisle from this man is a scouring table, where a brisk colored youth polishes scoops, spoons, ladles, etc.

A Result of System.

Mr. Gerald Byrne, superintendent of a mammoth grocery department in one of New York's largest stores, said: "The clean grocery store, large or small, is the result of system, organization and management. The manager or proprietor of a grocery who will not tolerate personal untidiness or uncleanly handling of goods will soon have a force of capable clean clerks through force of example and fear of dismissal. He can take a raw boy from a dirty home and make a clean grocery clerk, through sheer force of character and training, but you cannot expect the man whose home is filthy to maintain a sanitary, clean grocery. Pick your grocer, as you would your servant, for cleanliness first, last and always."

And the truth of this statement can be seen in your own town, where you can find the model grocer if you hunt for him. Make a tour of the groceries in your own neighborhood. You will be able to choose between clean groceries and groceries of varying degrees of uncleanliness. You will be supplementing the efforts of the health officers, doing your part of the team work, and getting one step nearer to the point where you can say, with truth, "I know my grocer."

TRADE NOTES.

A. H. Mace, manufacturer, Montreal, has returned from an extended business trip to New York.

Jas. S. Keys, who has been conducting a general store at Pinkerton, Ont., has made an assignment.

The general store of J. W. Richardson, Bladworth, Sask., has been taken over by the Bladworth Mercantile Co.

W. J. Bartley, of Bartley & Reid, tea merchants, has just returned to Montreal from a trip to the Canadian West.

Angrignon & Frere, Montreal, have purchased the pork packing business carried on for years by V. Castonguay.

The road race conducted by the Marathon Athletic Club, of St. John, on Saturday, was won by Holmer, of Halifax, with Geo. A. Stubbs, an employe of Bowman & Cole, wholesale grocers, on Water street, second. Holmer's time was 26.31 1-5, and Stubbs', 37.15. The distance was about seven miles, from Renforth to the Victoria grounds, in this city. Stubbs received an ovation from his friends on his excellent showing.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

EX-MAYOR PATRICK HENNESSY, Newcastle, N.B.

One of the most successful business men of Newcastle, N.B., is ex-Mayor Patrick Hennessy. Born in Wexford County, Ireland, in March, 1837, he came to New Brunswick with his father, Michael Hennessy, in 1853, settling on Beaubair's Island, at the confluence of the South-west and North-west branches of the Miramichi and directly opposite Newcastle. There he became apprenticed to John Harley, shipbuilder, with whom he continued till the latter's failure in 1856. The family then removed to Rosebank (now called Nordin) where they lived for many years, engaged in the shipbuilding industry, which was then a leading occupation in this section. At Rosebank Mr. Hennessy was employed with the well-known master builders, R. Hutchinson and John A. Hawes.

In 1873, Mr. Hennessy removed to Newcastle, where in 1875 he engaged in the grocery and provision business. He has gradually extended his operations until at the present day his establishment is one of the largest on the Miramichi and indeed on the North Shore.

In 1883 Mr. Hennessy became a school trustee, a magistrate and Alms House Commissioner. He is still a Justice of the Peace and chairman of the Alms House Board. He remained on the school board until the town's incorporation in 1899.

He has been an active member of Newcastle Board of Trade for many years, having served as president of that body for about ten years, and still being on its executive.

He was elected to the Town Council in 1900 and was re-elected regularly for several years. In 1906 his fellow townsmen honored him with the highest office in their power, voting him into the position of Mayor. At the close of his term, in 1907, he retired from active civic life, but still takes as keen an interest as ever in the business affairs of his adopted home.

Mr. Hennessy has long been a prominent member of the Ancient Order of Hiberians, and has been highly honored by his brethren of that order.

Mrs. Hennessy who has for many years been her husband's active and capable colleague, was a Miss Bannon, sister of Michael Bannon, another prominent merchant of the same town.

DISSATISFIED WITH NEW LAW.

Hog Raisers in Kent and Essex County Complain of Recent Regulations.

Kent and Essex are just now in the throes of a vigorous agitation against the Dominion Government's new Meat Inspection Act. The trouble is all on account of the otherwise quiet and inoffending hog. The farmers in these two counties have, in consequence of the facilities for raising corn, gone largely into the breeding of hogs. Many hog raisers number their hogs by hundreds. The industry, encouraged by good prices, has grown to large proportions, both live and dressed hogs being shipped from almost every station in the two counties to packers in Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and other points.

A couple of weeks ago the price of hogs on the local market, live weight, was $6 per cwt. Last Saturday it had dropped to $5. The farmers lay the blame upon the new regulations, which, they declare, have placed them at the mercy of the packers and compelled them to sell their hogs live and at the packers' prices.

The outcry against the regulations has political as well as commercial aspects; local Conservatives availing themselves to the utmost of the opportunity to embarrass the Government, and Government candidates. Nevertheless, the antagonism to the regulations embraces farmers on both sides of politics, is, in fact, universal, rather than political.

The chief objection is raised against clause 35 of the new regulations, which provides that dressed hogs must be shipped to the packing houses with the liver, lungs and other organs intact, in order to facilitate the Government inspection at these places. With respect to this clause, Kent and Essex are in an entirely different situation from all the rest of Canada, east of the Rockies. Here, the winters are uncertain. Zero weather may reign one day and the country be blessed with spring warmth the next. As a result, hog raisers declare that it is impossible to ship carcasses under the new regulations with the certainty of reaching the packers in good condition, the presence of the organs leading, they say, to possible deterioration. Producers have hitherto been accustomed to sell some of their hogs live and others dressed, about half and half being the ratio. Such as were dissatisfied with the live hog prices in November would hold their hogs over till January, slaughter then and sell them dressed. For instance, one farmer last year was offered $490 live weight for his hogs in November. He fed them till January, at a cost of a little over $100, and sold them dressed for $750. Farmers are accustomed simply to turn their hogs into the cornfields, and let them forage for themselves. By the time the field is exhausted, the hogs are ready.

Farmers declare that the new regulations have practically killed the dressed hog trade in these counties; that hogs which could, without the organs, be shipped in perfect safety and with the certainty of reaching the packers in good condition, cannot be shipped now with any such certainty. Hence, hogs cannot be held over with the certainty that when slaughtered and dressed they will not be condemned, even though not diseased. Hence, also, farmers, without the alternative of holding them over to sell dressed, must sell live; and, being compelled to sell live, must sell at the packers' prices. At $5, the price quoted on Saturday, they declare hogs cannot be profitably raised with corn at the present figure. This, in brief, is the logic of the protest against the new regulations.

On Wednesday week there were more hogs weighed at the local market scales than on any one day during the past four years. They totalled 340, making four cars, most of them going to Hamilton packers. All were good quality, the price then paid being $5.35 per cwt. At the same time, dressed hogs were little in evidence. Farmers declare that the fall in prices is due to a glut of live hogs, the feeling being that the new regulations have killed the dressed trade.

Last Saturday, in consequence of the strong feeling of opposition, a public meeting was held here, which was addressed by Hon. Sydney Fisher, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, and Dr. Ward, of the veterinary staff. The Minister explained the causes leading to the passage of the new Act, and accompanying regulations.

Discussion and suggestions were invited from those present, and several farmers presented their side of the case. The suggestion was made that for these counties, where the climatic conditions apparently preclude shipment of the organs to the packing houses, the Government inspection take place at the points of shipment. The Minister promised to take the suggestions into consideration.

TO PREVENT FROSTY WINDOWS

Proper Construction and Arrangement for Thorough Ventilation Will Obviate This Difficulty in the Winter Season.

During the winter season frosty windows are one of the greatest bugbears with which grocers in Canada have to deal. While many methods have been tried to obviate the difficulty, only one has seemed to be at all effectual. This is to box in the window so as to keep the warm air in the store from coming in contact with the glass, and then to provide adequate ventilation. Various methods of heating the glass have been tried, but do not seem to prove generally satisfactory.

The following article from the Zenith, the house organ of Marshall Neil & Co., Chicago, treats more fully the methods of preventing frost on the boxed-in windows.

"During the course of the season merchants are confronted with great inconvenience whereby the goods are rendered practically invisible, and consequently cease to attract customers.

In nearly every instance a careful examination of the window will show that the construction of the woodwork casing, position of the window panes or the lack of adequate ventilation is to blame.

On putting in the window panes, whether the framing be of wood or iron, a row of ventilating holes should be provided below, extending all across the window front. These holes should be broad and set low down, but not covered with protecting covers on the outside, since these covers only catch dust and help to stop the draft. The idea is to cause a wide current of air to enter the window so that the same may spread over the whole front of the window; and this is more easily realized with wide holes than by round ones or vertical slits. To prevent an inrush of dust raised by the street traffic or blown about in the summer time, a sliding damper may be arranged inside the window so that the holes may be closed when required.

Above the level of the window panes, but still within the casing of the show window, should be provided hinged ventilator to allow the heated air in the window to escape out into the street. For this purpose a row of holes similar to those underneath the window would be insufficient, owing to the increased volume occupied by the heated air, and on this account the upper opening must must be of larger area in order that the circulation of air inside the window may be intensified. This hinged ventilator must be mounted right at the top of the shop front, and open inwards and outwards, since otherwise it would oppose an undesirable resistance to the outflow of air or divert it, and thus lead to a deposit of mist on the upper part of the window. Furthermore, inlet holes must not be surmounted by a ledge or beading that can reflect the flow of air and allow ice to form; and it is an equally erroneous practice to extend the flooring of the show casing right up to the window, and bore a number of inlet holes through the flooring.

In order to keep the glass free from frost, the inflowing cold air must ascend close to the window panes and escape at the top without hindrance. When this is possible the window will never be dimmed with either mist or frost, since the moisture that would be deposited on the glass is carried away by the ascending current of air the instant the particles of water are formed.

In some cases it happens that although the ventilation is believed to be satisfactory the glass gets dimmed, but this is due to defective construction of the window frames or of the casing. For instance, if the door leading into the show window from the store does not shut quite tight, or there are any cracks or holes in the woodwork the warm moisture-laden air from the store flows into the cooler windows, and a fine dew is deposited on the panes and mirrors. Hence the doors should never be of the sliding type, admitting air and dust, but should open and shut and be beaded and fitted into a rabbeted frame to make them air-tight.

The window lights should be inclosed in glass cases, to isolate them from the actual show space, because in the case of gas the lights would heat the air more rapidly than the ventilator could carry it away, the result being a deposit of moisture on the relatively cold window pane.

ON PRICE CUTTING.

A new man in business nearly always cuts the price or does things that have a bad effect on the trade as a whole. He suffers as much as the others, but doesn't know why until experience teaches him a severe lesson in the art of doing business on business principles.

The salesman who believes that he can sell goods at a wrong price without his action being discovered by competitors was never more mistaken. Not one buyer in a thousand will keep the secret. He is so proud of his achievement that he will tell the first competitor that comes along all about how he "worked" the other salesman down in price.

It is better to lose some business than to lose the profit on all business. A salesman who has the courage to refuse unprofitable business, seldom fails to get an abundance of business of the right kind in the long run.

MAKE COLLECTIONS NOW.

For the past few months the MacLean papers have been advising merchants generally to collect accounts as far as convenient and to get in every cent of cash possible. The prevailing scarcity of money at the present time shows the wisdom of this advice and those who have taken advantage of this, no doubt, find themselves in pretty satisfactory condition financially.

To those who have not yet made a special effort to get their business on a good cash basis we would impress the necessity of doing so at once. Now is the time to make collections. Money is always fairly plentiful around Christmas time, and there is very little to be secured thereafter. A persistent and well-planned campaign should bring very satisfactory results at this time of the year.

Canada seems to be in for a period of more or less dullness in business which may last for a year or longer. With this in view, it is incumbent on business men to retrench in expenses as much as possible. There is no reason, however, with the growth which is bound to steadily continue in this country, why there should be any loss in net income. There are many means of encouraging and carefully extending business so that actual results will be just as satisfactory as in the period of expansion through which we have recently passed.

Now is the time to advantageously get a business on a cash basis. Retailers should only allow monthly credit, and this to customers who have well founded assets or assured incomes.

More attention should be given to the details of business. The little leaks should be hunted up and stopped, better system should be introduced into the different departments, greater care should be exercised in buying, and exact cost systems should be applied with a view to finding out what departments of the business are giving the best returns.

Business may be stimulated by careful, though not extravagant advertising in the local newspapers, by careful window trimming, and more attractive store display. Then again, the best trade papers should be studied for hints which may lead to reduction in expenses or expansion in business.

With Canada's enviable position as regards resources and with the present period of growth, the conditions which are certain to be materially felt elsewhere cannot be very serious or long continued here. It remains, however, for us to take advantage of this by being careful to avoid any contingency and to build up business with all possible activity.

THE COMMERCIAL SIDE.

The Ontario Horticultural Exhibition held recently, should not be regarded merely as an opportunity for the display of the Province's fruit and flowers. It has a far wider purpose, a practical commercial side which is much more important than appears at first thought.

In the first place, the Exhibition and the conventions held in connection with it, attract hundreds of fruit growers from all over the Province. These men come not only to see, but also to learn, and not only in the conventions, but also in impromptu discussions among the fruit displays, under the tutelage of a staff of Government officers, an immense amount of information and interest is picked up. These men are becoming interested in spraying and other forms of culture, and go out among their neighbors emphasizing more and more the importance of growing really good fruit. Again, through the exhibition, growers are beginning to understand how a box or barrel of apples should be packed, a feature that materially affects our export trade. The improvement in methods used is quite apparent from year to year. Further, the general public is becoming impressed with the importance of the industry, and this fact reflects with advantage on the fruit grower. The comparison of the varieties and qualities of fruit grown in different counties is invaluable, as demonstrating the varieties which should be grown in certain districts. All these facts are active in pulling up the export side of the fruit growing industry.

Other features encourage the wider use of Canadian fruit, particularly the apple, at home. City people who visit the Exhibition more to be entertained than for purposes of education, carry away favorable ideas of the Province's fruit and are likely to make more regular use of it. The Government, too, has done good work through its Women's Institute representatives, in impressing by demonstration and explanation, the possibilities of much more extensive use of the apple for cooking purposes.

The floral department of the exhibition has also its commercial value in demonstrating the possibilities of floriculture, and again in popularizing the use of flowers among the general public.

Altogether, the exhibition, as it has been conducted in recent years, is doing a very important work, not only for Ontario, but also for Canada, as a whole, and it deserves all possible encouragement.

SOME NEW FEATURES.

As in former years The Grocer is offering a series of cash prizes for competition among its subscribers at Christmas time. This year, however, the offer has been extended, and two distinct competitions have been arranged.

The Christmas Window Dressing Competition is being carried on under slightly different conditions than last year in that competitors will be divided into two classes. Class I. includes grocers and grocery clerks in city stores. Class II. includes the same brethren in the trade in stores in country districts. First and second prizes of $7 and $3 respectively are offered in each class. The division was made at the suggestion of one of our subscribers in the belief that it would present a more favorable opportunity to competitors coming under Class II. by reason of the fact that materials and facilities for window dressing are not so convenient in the country as in the cities.

The new competition—for the best advertisement of Christmas groceries in a local newspaper, has been arranged with a view to showing the trade how the best results can be reached in advertising. $5 is offered in this competition. This should be exceedingly popular as almost every grocer who is at all enterprising runs an advertisement for a short time preceding the Christmas holidays, even if he uses no space during the rest of the year.

Another new feature inaugurated in this issue is "The Travelers' Page." Recognizing the interest being taken in The Grocer by traveling men in the trade all over Canada and with a view to showing our appreciation of this and at the same time providing for a closer relation between salesman and retailer, a condition which will be mutually beneficial, this new department has been instituted. The Travelers' Page will be made up of news concerning men well known and who ought to be known to the grocery trade in Canada with stories about them, brightly put, and while space may not permit of its being run every week, it will be inserted frequently enough to keep up a live interest.

The articles by a member of our staff in the west, on the local situation, which have been running regularly for several weeks, have created considerable interest. They have the true western spirit and are filled with western pride and patriotism. Written from a local standpoint, they give a valuable idea as to the real western outlook.

THE SITUATION IN THE WEST.

It would take a wise man to say whether conditions have actually improved or grown more critical in the past seven days. The banks are apparently still standing shy of the Government offer of aid, and perhaps it was hardly expected that there would be a general announcement that it had been accepted, but on the other hand, there is evidence that some measure of relief has been afforded and some lines of credit extended. The last three days of the week saw trading much more active than the first three. At the same time our wheat has very largely gotten away from an export basis and the season is growing so late that exporters are by no means as keen as they were two or three weeks ago. One cannot help suspecting that having been deprived by the banks (either justly or unjustly) of the opportunity of doing business when profits were good they feel like resting on their oars and buying at their own price when the market slumps after the close of navigation, as it is sure to do. Perhaps because the month is further away and therefore easier to finance, there has been great activity in May wheat and the price has been maintained at a very high level, closing Saturday at 11c over Chicago, 4⅜c over Minneapolis, and 3¾c over Duluth, which is completely out of line, especially when it is remembered that American wheat can enter many European ports closed to Canadian wheat on account of discriminating duties. One of the factors in maintaining a high price for May wheat has been the heavy purchases, amounting in all to over a million and a half, made by local brokers for Minneapolis milling concerns. This is a speculative proposition, because the wheat has all been bought Fort William delivery, so there is no question of its going to United States to be ground in bond. The movement for the week has been very heavy, over two and a half millions going into lake terminals, but it is understood that there has been an improvement in outward shipments, also, and though stocks are still abnormally high for the time of the year they have not increased in proportion to the increase of the two preceding weeks.

Boats are offering very freely and the indications now are that there will be a fair clearing out of terminals before winter sets in.

The amount of low grade wheat in store is very high and great uneasiness is felt by railway and elevator companies until this is moved.

There is a tendency on the part of some farmers to hold both low and high grade wheat looking for higher prices, but the majority of them would part with every bushel readily enough if they could find elevators to take it.

Although it is not being much talked about, there is practically a suspension of the Grain Act at some points, to endeavor to enable the railway companies to relieve the congestion occasioned by car shortage.

The basis on which this is arranged is practically to give the farmers what cars they can actually load over platforms and then give the elevator all that they can load and have ready for shipment in a day. There is no doubt that the car distribution clause of the Grain Act has aided materially in the general tie-up of things this season, and if its unworkableness can be really brought home to the farmers and it is shown to them how it is militating against their own pockets, there will likely be a permanent change in the act before long.

In the meantime the effect of these things on trade is of interest. A very thorough inquiry shows that on the whole payments on land are being met with a commendable degree of promptness and regularity. On the other hand, wholesale merchants continue to meet with many excuses from country merchants, and, in some cases, extended credit is asked for. The universal complaint is that payments on land are being met in exclusion of the country storekeeper's account. In some districts very little money has even yet been received on this year's crop, and when it has not ben received it cannot be paid over.

There is no doubt that the whole wheat situation will right itself in time, but it is a question whether that time is not some months hence rather than in the immediate future.

The cattle trade is feeling the financial stringency as well as the wheat, and there has been a complaint that a large number of cattle have had to be turned back on the ranches because the promised buyers have not come forward. Like many lies this is also a partial truth. Some cattle have had to be turned back on the ranges, but it is quite safe to say that very few indeed of them were export steers of good quality. The weaker the British market has become the more fastidious it is as to the quality of animal offered, and it is absolutely no use to send the unfinished ones forward, even if dealers had money to finance such shipments, which very evidently they have not.

If any scheme can be devised by which the men with cattle and no feed and the men with feed and no cattle can be got together, there is no question but that both would realize a handsome profit next spring, when demand will be keen and prices high, but at present the solution of this problem has not been reached, though probably it will be before many months are past.

All this talk of financial stringency might create the impression in the east that there is something of a panic in the West, but nothing could be further from the truth of the situation. In fact, to be quite candid, the east is worrying far more about the west than the west is worrying about herself. Matters are moving forward very much in the usual way, there are difficulties, of course, but to westerners that is only something to overcome. The west has been in tight places before and come out all right, and will do it again, it is only a question of a litle time and patience. Up to the present labor is well employed, and Christmas shopping is going forward steadily and cheerfully. The weather is fine and open, and this is giving an excellent opportunity for the finishing of building operations which are being pushed forward with all possible despatch.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Sugar—Declined 10 cents.
Valencia Raisins—Firmer.
Teas—Firm.
Beans—Decline.
Evaporated Apples—Lower.

Montreal, Nov. 28, 1907.

Not a great deal of attention is being paid by the wholesale trade to their retail customers to-day for the reason that the average grocer is just a little too busy to devote much time to his generally welcome friends. Again, wholesale houses are still receiving fall importations and these goods are arriving in such quantity keep them pretty busy every day. The retailers in turn are receiving Christmas and holiday goods, though several lines are late in arriving this year.

The feature of the market is the decline in sugar. This amounted to ten cents and it took place the end of last week. Canned goods are quiet. Teas continue strong with limited buying. Beans are easier, and prices to-day are more favorable to buyers than they have been for some time past. Peas are also selling at more advantageous prices. Syrups are moving freely with the coming of colder weather. Interesting currant export statistics will be found in the dried fruit market report. Evaporated apples are easier. Lard has declined ½-cent, while pork meat is lower owing to the decline in hog prices. Dairy produce is steady with an easier feeling. Collections are reported good in some cases, but many say they find it difficult to gather in accounts.

SUGAR—Sugar declined ten cents the latter part of last week, but since then there has been no change in the situation. There is not a great deal of buying being done. Grocers are purchasing only for what they require at once.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Transactions in currants are fairly good, and stocks held locally and abroad are not large. Advices from Patras show that shipments from that port have been in excess of what they were a year ago. To the 15th of October, 66,244 tons in all had been exported, against 63,824 tons for the same period last year. Of this amount 1,726 tons came to Canada, against 1,476 tons during the same time in 1906. Raisins do not show much change. Valencias continue firm in feeling. Recent advances in the Old Country amount to 2s. Californias are not a feature in the market at the moment. Malaga reports are of the same tenor as those which have been received during the past couple of weeks. Prunes are firm, as are also peels. All peels are one cent above opening prices, and it is not easy to obtain first-class stock even at the advanced prices. Considerable quantities of "skins" found their way onto the market and these are not being cleared away very rapidly. New shelled walnuts are now on the market, prices running about 24 cents for new cracked and 27 cents for new. Walnuts are late, but they are some two weeks ahead of the supply of last year. Other nuts are unchanged. The cargo of the Bellona, which arrived in port a couple of weeks ago, is rapidly being distributed in the trade. It will be remembered she carried 75,000 boxes of Valencia raisins, and 15,000 boxes of Malagas. The Jacona's cargo is also finding its way into the warehouses of the wholesale and retail trade. Those who have a good memory will recall that she was loaded with 5,000 boxes almonds, 3,500 boxes shelled almonds, 800 boxes more from Denia, and 45,000 packages of currants.

Beans—Beans and peas are both much easier in feeling this week. Reports were circulated that the bean crop was very short, and some good sales were made in a wholesale way at $1.90 to $2 on the strength of this information. Now offers are being made at prices which will mean a loss to holders of goods bought at "scarce" prices. Some attribute the decline in a measure to the presence on the market of Austrian beans. These are being offered around $1.60 in a wholesale way in some instances.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal—Late deliveries are being made by wholesalers to the retail trade, but otherwise there is little activity in the canned goods line. Prices are steady without likelihood of a change for some weeks.

TORONTO—Practically all the pack seems to have been shipped out from the factories and deliveries are not at all active. The rumors of two or three firms having been oversold have been confirmed, but satisfactory arrangements will probably be made. There is nothing new in the situation.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Sugar—Declined 10 cents.
Dried Fruits—Firmer.
Beans—Steady.
Collections—Fair.

Toronto, Nov. 25.

The tightness in financial circles does not seem to have much effect on the grocery business. Sales continue generally pretty satisfactory, and Christmas selling is keeping business brisk.

The past two weeks have seen a slight stiffness in collections and latterly some renewals have had to be accepted, but wholesalers generally are optimistic over the outlook. The only material change during the week has been a decline of 10 cents in all grades of sugar. What has caused this is rather difficult to state, as the European markets show no change from their continued steadiness. The American market, which slumped recently, has no appreciable effect on the local situation and indeed, cable advices yesterday showed a recovery in New York on the better grades.

The decline seems to be the result of dull business and the practical close of the selling season for sugar. Prices now ruling are as follows:

TEA—The local market is quiet with no change in the continued high prices. Late mail advices from London, however, note a slight decline generally with common to mediums most affected. Quotations for useful common leaf declined to 7¼d and a few inferior grades to 7d. In regard to this reduction, Gow, Wilson & Stanton, in circular dated Nov. 15th, say :

"This will probably give some confidence to buyers, and if only the offerings during the next few weeks can be kept on a moderate scale, it seems likely that producers will reap considerable benefit, because not only is home consumption increasing, but the stocks of all tea in the United Kingdom are nearly 6,000,000 below what they were this time last year, whilst there seems no doubt that the Indian tea available for this market will show a heavy reduction upon last season's figures.

"Although re-exports for the first ten months of the season show a falling off as compared with last year, they are well above those of 1905. The chief reduction has been to Russia, where supplies are being now more largely taken direct from countries of production."

In regard to Indians the same firm reports : "There was a dull tone in the market and large quantities were in consequence withdrawn for higher prices. Where sales were effected, a fall of ¼d per lb. occurred in common and medium teas. For the higher class teas the drop was greater, ranging in some instances up to 1d per lb. Commonest grades, which were selling at 7½d a week ago, can now be purchased at 7¼d and occasionally even at 7d per lb. Reports from India point to an earlier closing of the season than last year."

Ceylons, too, have shared in the decline. The same report says regarding them : "Although the auction was extremely small, the supply was more than the market could take at last week's rates, and prices generally gave way, especially for common and medium grades, which must be quoted fully ¼d per lb. lower, commonest whole leaf tea being obtainable at 7¼d per lb. Better grades sold with an irregular and slightly easier tendency."

In regard to Java, they say : "The small quantity brought to auction met with rather more competition than Indian and Ceylon, but prices were hardly up to last week's rates."

While these declines seem pretty general they are, of course, but a mere bagatelle when compared with the heavy advances made during the year. They seem to have been the result primarily of a dull market and the prevailing financial stringency.

KINGSTON.

Mr. Cockburn, of Comfort Soap, was around shaking hands with his friends, the grocers this week. He is a square fellow, and his soap is all right.

I understand there is a law making it a penal offence for anyone not having a creamery of certain standard, marking creamery on labels. No law is more violated than this one. Some of the most abominable trash is put up by dealers and marked finest creamery. A Kingston dealer got a dose from a western jobbing house, and every box had a different maker's name on it. I suppose each one had four or five cows.

The Kingston dairy school has again opened up under the supervision of Professor Mitchell. It is a hard problem where sufficient cream can be had to answer demands this winter.

Corn and peas are selling 10c straight and tomatoes 12½c. There is very little price-cutting here. The fact is, we cannot afford to do it and keep up with the times.

The Bijou, Wonderland and the Princess, three 5c theatres, are doing a big business and are crowded night and day. Sunday they put on moving pictures, such as "The Prodigal Son." There are many patrons who might better spend 5c for a loaf of bread, which, by the way, has gone back to 1½ lbs., instead of 1¾ lbs. The bakers got at loggerheads and the people get the benefit.

Kingston merchants are fast falling into the principle of soliciting orders. Too bad. It seems more independent to have people come to the store and buy. Better for both parties. If we all could sell for cash what a lot of worry we would escape, and it's worry that kills.

W. R. Eby, of Eby, Blain & Co., Toronto, called on the best trade last week with the finest grip of fancy grocery samples seen in a long time here. He booked some large orders and we will be glad to see him again. We only knew him before through the columns of The Grocer. I tell you, wholesalers who do not advertise in trade papers are practically unknown out of their own city. Rose & Laflamme's traveler sold a lot of fancy West India molasses. This is just the thing for pancakes, and is away ahead of syrup.

Since the license for selling fresh meat was reduced from $50 to $2 a year, fully 50 per cent. of the grocers started in selling it, and it seems quite a drawing card. I wonder, do the meat inspectors ever analyze sausages or ground hog products ?

NEWCASTLE, N.B.

Bay du Vin oysters are in greater demand this fall than ever before. Fishermen are getting $4.50 per barrel for them in bulk, whereas a few years ago they could not get more that $1 for them. Our oysters here are of superior quality, hence much of the increase in price.

Fishermen are commencing to prepare for smelt fishing, which opens on December 1st. The prospects are good.

Cod has been scarce this season. All kinds of fish are higher in price than last year.

After the end of this month, Campbellton meat market will be run on a strictly cash basis.

Poultry and dressed hogs are being largely imported into this province from P.E.I.

The Sussex Packing Co., with a capital of $150,000, and head office in Sussex, has been incorporated, with power to prepare meats. The incorporators are, Simeon H. White, merchant; Alfred J. Mathews, manufacturer; Geo. W. Hoegg, packer; Walter J. Mills, merchant, and Howard Robinson, all of Sussex.

In Fredericton market last week, hay sold at $14 and $15 per ton; chickens, 50c to $1 a pair; beef, 5c to 6c; potatoes, $1.30 per barrel; butter, 25c; eggs, 30c; turnips, 50c; carrots, 80c.

Hay in Newcastle is at a premium. Few local dealers have any.

Sackville parties are asking $19.50 a ton for hay delivered here. In Millerton, near this town, the best hay is held at $20 a ton, the poorest going for not less than $15.

The potato crop in Victoria county was very poor this fall.

James A. Rundle, wholesaler, has sold out his provision business here to Baird & Peters, of St. John. W. E. O. Jones is temporarily in charge. Baird & Peters will enlarge the business. Mr. Rundle will devote all his energy henceforth to lumbering.

QUEBEC.

A heavy autumn trade is being done in groceries, but with the first snow fall business is becoming a little quieter, although satisfactory orders have been received by wholesalers during the last week. Good sales were registered for canned goods. It is true that prices were high, but this did not affect the trade, on account of the supply being limited. Retailers are well occupied and some of them are making their inventory. Business in fruits, butter and cheese is not so active as last week, but is still good. Flour and grain are not selling so well as during the advance, and the market is not so strong.

Grocers of our city are following with great interest the actual question of the selling of meats, poultry and game, pork, fish, vegetables and other provisions outside of the public markets. At the last meeting of the City Council this interesting question was taken into consideration and quite a discussion arose on the second reading of the by-law for private butchers' stalls. Finally the by-law was carried. One of the principal remarks was made by Ald. Hall, who says that if butchers were allowed to sell meats in store there would be considerable complaints, as meats and other provisions could not be given a thorough investigation, except by the construction of abattoirs in this city. He says that certain Montreal firms intend starting the butchers' business in Quebec if the by-law was adopted, and no later than a few days ago three carloads of cattle arrived here and the dead cattle which numbered five, had been sent to an adjoining parish to be slaughtered, and then sold in Quebec. The license for private butchers' stalls will be from $60 to $100 a year.

There has been in this city a bakers' trust for a couple of weeks, and on account of this consumers were obliged to pay 20c for their bread, instead of 18c. But a division has declared in their association on account of this advance, and from the thirty-nine bakers, who are members, twenty-one have refused to raise their price. The consequence is that grocers encourage bakers not belonging to the trust, and take the bread they need from those that have not raised their prices.

TORONTO.

The grocery trade is none too brisk at present. Both the big and little grocer complains of the state of affairs. While it is no uncommon thing for business to be rather quiet at this season yet there is not the slightest doubt but that the prevailing high prices of many household necessaries has injured trade. For instance, the consumption of butter has dwindled down until there are many families here to-day who are denying themselves the use of butter. As one grocer put it, "People simply won't pay the price." It is the same with eggs, honey and cheese. Business in these commodities is very dull. They are not being used as luxuries, but merely as necessaries. Advances have been made in many other lines. As a result there is a great deal of wrangling among Toronto citizens.

Out in Parkdale the majority of the grocers are rubbing their hands in a self-satisfied way. Parkdale is essentially a residential section, the home of business people. As such, conditions are somewhat different from other parts of the city. One is at first greatly surprised to learn the extent of the credit system among its merchants. Nearly all the grocers carry accounts of considerable size on their books. Indeed, one of the most progressive grocers in Parkdale admits that over 75 per cent. of his business is conducted on credit. At first thought this seems a startling revelation, but this grocer claims that he knows his clientele thoroughly, has studied conditions and is quite satisfied with his business methods. This statement is interesting. It shows that there are grocers who seem to prefer the credit system to the strictly cash system. As as off-set to this grocer's opinion it may be remarked that the failure recently of a certain Parkdale grocery firm was indirectly attributed to the credit system.

ALEX. W. GRANT IN DIFFICULTY.

On Wednesday of this week Alex. W. Grant, butter and cheese exporter, Montreal; announced that he had temporarily suspended payment, and that a meeting of creditors had been called for next week, probably Tuesday. When seen by The Grocer the firm was not in a position to make a statement as to its assets and liabilities, but this is being prepared to be submitted at the meeting of creditors. The firm is one of the oldest and best in Montreal, having been in existence twenty-seven years. Mr. Grant is known to the butter and cheese men all over Canada.

MORE IMPORTED BUTTER.

One of Montreal's largest butter and cheese dealers, who has just returned from a trip to the coast, in speaking to The Grocer this week, said that 4,500 packages of Australian butter had just been received at Vancouver. Local merchants claim it is better than the Canadian product, and it sells at from 37c to 40c retail. Considerable will likely be brought in during the winter. He said further that Irish butter is coming in at Montreal in some quantity, and with the continued scarcity of Canadian it is estimated that 25,000 packages will be brought in this year. Asked regarding the quality, he said that this Irish butter ranks much better than the Canadian, and can be brought in to sell at 25 cents.

NO CREDIT DISCOUNT.

The Department of Customs has issued an order discontinuing the giving of discounts for certain specified terms. In the past it has been the general rule to give 2½ cents discount at ten days. The new regulation forbids this practice. No discounts will be given on credit transactions. In the future the discount will only be allowed on spot cash transactions.

GALT RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Galt Retail Merchants' Association held a successful annual meeting on Wednesday evening, Nov. 27th, and the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, T. A. Rutherford; first vice-president, A. M. Edwards; second vice-president, J. H. Laird; secretary, G. F. Hamilton; treasurer, F. H. Chapple; executive committee, J. Sloan, Alfred Taylor, William Mullet. The association is entering upon the second year of its existence with very favorable prospects.

MAKING STRIDES.

The business of Minto Bros., proprietors of the Melagama Tea Co., has been making noteworthy strides during the last two years. Two years ago F. J. White assumed the management of the company, and since then "Melagama" business has been increasing remarkably until this package tea is becoming favorably known in most of the homes in Canada. Not only that, but latterly the business has been extended across the border, and a profitable trade is being built up. This firm were fortunate enough to buy extensively before the advance in prices and are offering some particular values in black and green teas.

F. D. Cockburn, Montreal manager of the Comfort Soap Co., returns to-morrow from a short trip to Ottawa.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Nov 28, 1907.)

Christmas trade is now in full swing with the wholesale houses, and it promises to be large. A better feeling is evident among all branches of the grocery trade, and talk of hard times is not so often heard. It is recognized that the country has a year ahead of it a little less prosperous than was hoped for, but the business of the west is on a sounder basis than before, and there is no reason for undue anxiety.

There are few price changes of importance this week. Oatmeal has declined a trifle, but is still held at a high figure. Clover Leaf salmon has advanced 10c per case. Evaporated apples are cheaper than was expected owing to declines in Ontario. The new fruit is selling at 10c per lb., and the old at 9¼c.

CANNED GOODS—Wholesalers report sales of canned fruits and vegetables slow owing to the high prices which have been set for this season and they are much dissatisfied with the state of affairs. Clover Leaf salmon has been advanced 10c per case, the price now being $7.60, with a reduction of 10c for five-case lots. We quote :

EFFECTIVE GROCERY ADVERTISING

The Dodger versus The Newspaper as a Medium for Grocers.

Helpful Criticism and Suggestion Brightly Put.

By W. F. Ralph.

There's more to advertising than writing the copy—there's the placing of it. The placing of an ad., indeed, is more important than the copy. Because no matter how attractive the copy may be, if it isn't in the right medium, it might as well be stuck on the ice-clad side of one of Greenland's icy mountains, as far as getting business is concerned.

Properly speaking, there are only three ways by which you can announce your offering to the public, excepting show cards, letter enclosures and other in-the-store forms of advertising. Those three ways are, billboard, circular (commonly known as "dodger' ')and the newspaper.

As far as retail grocery advertising is concerned the billboard is almost, if not quite, useless. True, it may be of some value if set up on the roads leading into your town, directing the incoming farmer to your place of business. As a general way of keeping your name and address in the public eye, the billboard has a certain value. But in speaking of grocery advertising I am speaking of the live kind, gotten up with the intention of selling specific goods from time to time.

The choice, then, lies between the dodger (very aptly named, though more often dodged than dodging), and the local newspaper. There are advocates of each method, and quite a number of men who advocate both. But let us, for a moment or two, consider each method on its merits.

The dodger, judging by the samples which I have seen from time to time, is usually a piece of the cheapest grade of printing. I have seen some dodgers, however, which have been worded pithily, strikingly set up, well printed, and having prices gaily sprouting all over them. But such dodgers (save in the matter of prices) are the exceptions. The majority of dodgers coming under my notice have been but poor specimens of the printer's or the ad. writer's art. The item of typography, on a dodger, is not of course, one to cause its writer and user much worry, because, if read at all, the dodger is usually quickly crumpled up and cast into the fire. Every dodger user seems to realize that the main thing in dodger construction is to have the prices printed good and big.

The fact that little more than price prominence, no attempt at a quality talk, ever figures in the construction of a dodger, has led me to believe that the dodger is frequently regarded, even by its user, as a sort of "last straw" of publicity. Circumstances under which I have frequently come across the dodger, have tended to confirm me in the belief that the retailer who regards it as such is within hailing distance of the strict truth.

For instance. the other day I had occasion to visit a number of vacant houses. In the hallway of every house I entered, there was a miscellaneous collection of dodgers ranging from the one sheet grocery announcement to the patent medicine almanac. Now, throwing dodgers into the hallways of unoccupied houses, is casting the bread of advertising upon the waters of uncertainty, with a compound, double-action 'steen horse-power vengeance. Who's going to read them? Of course the sender of the dodger doesn't mean it to land in an empty house. And probably the youthful distributor responsible for such a miscarriage of advertising effort would make a close acquaintance with a massive boot-toe, were his dodger-delivering delinquencies to become known to his employer. However, that may be, and however good the intentions of a dodger user may be, the fact remains that a good many dodgers never reach the spot where the possible customer may see them. So there is a good deal of "waste circulation" in dodger advertising.

On the other hand, a whole lot of any given batch of dodgers, are bound to dodge the vacant house and other popular depositories known to distributors, and land in the letter box or upon the hall floor of an inhabited place of human abode. What is their fate? Do they induce people to trade at your store?

Judging by what happens to the average dodger which dodges through my letter box, the dodger quite frequently is never read at all, but forms a useful article with which to start the morning fire. With good newspapers so cheap, and so plentifully besprinkled with advertising announcements, it is quite reasonable to assume that few people who are at all busy ever read the ordinary dodger.

As to the question of whether the dodger, even if read, is liable to result in business it is hard to say. If the announcement is properly written, and the prices are right, and the dodger is read at the proper time, there ought to be a chance for business. To sum up the case for the dodger, I am inclined to the opinion that the store which trusts to dodger advertising would find it much more profitable to use the money in newspaper space instead.

Few people who have tried it, will deny the all round efficiency of the newspaper as an advertising medium. It is relied upon to-day by tens of thousands of successful business men—particularly retailers—as the main bulwark of their advertising plan. Without the assistance of the newspaper, many and many a huge retail establishment must have remained a small and petty affair. The most prosperous retailers in the world to-day are those who realize the value of the newspaper as the advertising medium par excellence.

There are various natural reasons for the efficacy of the newspaper as an advertising medium. In the first place, a newspaper costs its reader something, and therefore has more value in his eyes as reading matter than has a dodger or pamphlet flung through his letter box. Having a certain cash value, a newspaper is bound to be read.

Then a newspaper contains that which the reader is anxious to read—news. In the case of women it frequently happens that the offerings of regular advertisers form the most attractive news in the whole paper. Thus, advertising is not only looked for, but is read with intent. It is expected. The paper would lose half its interest to half its readers were the retail announcements to be eliminated.

A newspaper is never thrown by a distributor into a place where it will never be read. Only about sufficient to cover the paid circulation—street sales and subscriptions—are run off the press; and the subscriber who doesn't receive his paper when it is due, wants to know the reason why. Thus you don't (as in dodger advertising) pay for copies which never reach a possible customer.

A newspaper is generally read when the reader is in a receptive mood—particularly an evening or a weekly paper. When a person takes up the weekly paper in the evening, he or she is prepared to mentally absorb the contents thereof. In other words, the reading of a newspaper is a deliberate act, as distinguished from the accidental and cursory scanning which a dodger receives if it is read at all.

The natural consequence of a paper being read when the reader is in the right mood to absorb information, greatly enhances the business—building chances of a well-written and displayed newspaper ad. If you place your ad. in your local paper or papers you will reach practically every person in your locality who is likely to have money to spend. You will reach them at a time when their minds are open to receive information; and it usually rests with the nature of your ad., and the inducements offered, to determine how far you will be successful in inducing the people to buy.

Prices invariably figure in the ads. of the great retail establishments of big cities; and there seems reason to believe that such should be the case with the ads. of stores in smaller places. Particularly the prices of seasonable goods. About this time of the year, Christmas groceries, tersely described and commended, and having the prices attached, should figure largely in the grocer's newspaper space.

The ad. of Thomas Harker is another case where a few lines mentioned with the prices attached might have made a more effective ad. The heading and introductory paragraph is good, and the emphasis laid in promptitude in delivery is a good point. We suggest an alternative ad., with a few priced lines introduced.

That the agents of the Heinz Pickle Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., are favorably impressed with the advantages which London offers as the site of the big branch factory they propose to start in Canada is shown by the fact that President Stevely, of the Board of Trade, has received a letter from the company, announcing that the agents would return to this city shortly and go further into the matter. Everything seems to indicate that the company will locate here, in which case a factory will be erected and a plant installed costing altogether in the neighborhood of $200,000 and giving employment to several hundred persons.

Poultry promises to be cheaper this Christmas than last. One thing is certain. Turkeys and fowls are more plentiful. The manager of Flavelles Limited states that they are killing from 1,000 to 1,500 chickens daily. Large shipments of poultry have been arriving here of late from all over the province and these have been passed through the factory and stored in greater quantities than has been known for some years.

Wholesalers report an improvement in the monetary outlook, collections having been much freer during the past couple of weeks.

The firm installs canning plants and seeks information regarding the possibility of a company being organized here for the purpose. The Manufacturers' Committee will look into the matter.

Brokers report trade very fair. Montreal sugars are down ten cents; raws are very dull, with little change in price. Rice is very firm, with an upward tendency. The coffee market is becoming more than ever of a speculative character, as is evidenced by recent rapid fluctuations. Still while the ups and downs have been unusually frequent of late there has been no movement of a pronounced nature either way. Teas are quiet and unchanged. Raisins are advancing and currants also are steadily rising.

News of the Knights of the Grip, Particularly Those Who Sell Groceries.

Some Items Worth Reading.

DINNER TO JIM McLEAN.

Most travelers who have covered Eastern Ontario know "Jim" McLean. He has been trotting up and down over that country selling groceries for twenty-seven years, and he has friends in about every store in that territory. For the last seventeen years Mr. McLean has been connected with the firm of T. Kinnear & Co. Recently he bought a livery and hack business in Port Hope, and to show their appreciation and good wishes the firm made him the guest of honor at a house banquet at McConkey's on Thursday evening, November 21st. The gathering included, beside the heads of this sterling old house, the travelers and heads of departments. Around the board were seated the following gentlemen: T. Kinnear and T. Kinnear, jr., Jas. McLean, R. Keys, A. H. Lawson, J. B. McRae, E. G. Bingham, A. G. Fleming, T. Wheater, W. J. Ramsay, F. Anderson, G. T. Morris, E. J. Peters and J. J. Hardill, travelers; A. E. Cutler, accountant; G. H. Rennie, cashier; C. B. Rennie, and R. W. Telford, salesmen; Jas. McLean, jr., W. B. Campbell and V. Brooke, head and assistant shippers; C. Clarridge, head packer, and The Grocer representative.

The jolly crowd did hearty justice to a generous dinner, and then R. Keys, on behalf of the firm, presented Mr. McLean with a magnificent Morris chair in weathered oak with inlaid front.

And then came the fun. The head of the house, T. Kinnear, inaugurated things by proposing a toast to the King. This was followed by one for the success of the retiring employe, which was drunk with a chorus of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Then followed brief speeches by each of the twenty employes around the table in praise of Mr. McLean. Not one was given a chance to sit still and none wanted to. Everybody had a good word to say for "Jim." Some had known him seventeen years, some seven, some only a few months, but each one liked him, and was able to scrape up a mighty good reason for doing so.

"Why," said "Tom," the junior partner, "it always made the day go better when I shook hands with 'Jim' on Saturday mornings. He carried a sunshine factory with him and always kept it grinding."

Some of his fellow-travelers told stories of him—how he had gotten turned round after driving over the big bridge at Hastings and drove back over it again in an hour or so, thinking he was at Campbellford—how he used to mix politics in with raisins and tapioca—how he always had a good joke to tell on himself or somebody else—but they all told of his popularity among the firm's customers and of his success through honest and straightforward methods. All of them wished him success in his new venture, and several of them promised to patronize his big Port Hope livery. Mrs. McLean was not forgotten, either, and reference was made to the way in which she regularly helped her husband to make up his order sheets.

Following this tribute a toast to the firm was drunk, proposed by "Bob" Keys. In reply, Mr. Kinnear, sr., spoke of the principles of integrity and straightforwardness which had always been present in the business, and attributed to this and to the high quality of goods sold the successful position they had reached. He desired that the employes should look upon themselves as a part of the firm, not as mere wage-earners, and expressed himself as proud of the staff of men he had gathered round him. "Now, Tom," he said, when it came to the junior partner's turn, and T. H. Kinnear responded in similar terms, trusting that kindly relations would continue to exist in the business.

The last toast was to The Canadian Grocer, a compliment which this paper appreciates exceedingly, coming as it does from this old firm, which occupies such a strong position in the trade of Canada.

The gathering broke up with cheers for "Jim" McLean and a host of good wishes from his fellow travelers and employes.

DEATH OF JOHN BAKER.

When John F. Baker came in from his last trip, a few months ago, and his kind-hearted employer told him to put his grip to one side and take a few weeks' rest, no one thought he would remain there long, for John in his long career on the road never lost many hours through sickness, for he was robust, sober and of a cheerful mind.

He rallied many times and hopes were entertained for his recovery, but death claimed him, and the news has cast a gloom over the city of Kingston.

Instead of the usual post card announcement of his coming, his many friends and customers on his route received a notice of his death in a neat folder with black border, sent out by his late employers, George Robertson & Son, grocers.

The merchants on whom he has been calling for years, will miss the friend that will talk to them no more. No traveler ever lifted a grip who had a warmer place in the hearts of those with who he did business.

After graduating from the W. H. Coombs academy. Mr. Baker commenced his commercial life by joining the staff of John C. Carruthers & Co., wholesale grocers and exporters, as bookkeeper about the year 1870. After a few years in the office he took up his grip and samples. He also traveled for their successors, A. Gunn & Co., and latterly until his death, for sixteen years past has done faithful and valuable service on the road for Geo. Robertson & Son. He was an ardent supporter of Queen's University, and the students remembered the fact and sent a letter of regret and a beautiful wreath of flowers to be laid on his casket.

LONDON TRAVELERS ACT.

The executives of the London Travelers' Club and the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association held a joint meeting on Saturday night for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken to bring to the attention of the Provincial Government the hardships to which the traveling public are subjected in the matter of obtaining suitable accommodation in municipalities where local option has been adopted. The various speakers agreed that prevailing conditions were intolerable and that something must be done. Lengthy resolutions were adopted in which the belief was expressed that any municipality choosing to do away with the bars should be compelled to maintain the necessary accommodation for the traveling public, even though the maintenance of such hostelries should require the financial support of the municipality. It was also recommended that all lodging and eating houses be placed under special license and a medical certificate for cleanliness and sanitation accompany each application for license. The specific grievances to which government attention is directed are impure water, filthy lavatories, washrooms and bathrooms, bedrooms and sitting rooms. The resolutions will be duly signed and forwarded to the Provincial Secretary.

BRANDON.

There is nothing very startling in business circles here just now. A talk with some of the principal business men here well shows that trade is very quiet. The merchants out West won't know how to take this quiet spell, because they are always so busy as a rule. There is one thing sure, we shall have to be very careful with our accounts and especially so with opening up new accounts. However, we will have to make the best of it because we have had four years in succession of the very best kind of business.

They had their opening Saturday night with an orchestra in attendance.

The price of flour has declined 10 cents per sack recently, but wheat is starting to go up again. The bakers here don't seem to hitch together very well. Some sell bread at 5 cents and others for 6 cents.

GALT.

Affairs in Galt are rather quiet as yet. The fruit season is over and trade is rather slow. Everything is high. Butter and eggs are away up, selling at 30 cents each. Flour has advanced and also milk and bread. The advance in the prices of all necessities has furnished material for many jokes in the Canadian press, but it is a matter that should be regarded seriously. There appears to be no reasonable explanation why the price of necessities should be advanced. Granted that there is a reason, is there also not a reason for a corresponding advance in salaries and wages. Undoubtedly the matter will adjust itself, but there is room for action on the part of all parties concerned.

The first annual banquet of the Galt Retail Merchants' Association was held in Galt last week and to say that it was successful would be a mild expression. It was by far the best banquet ever held in Galt. The speeches were full of information and the local association will be much benefitted. A pleasing feature was the number of grocers present, every concern in Galt being represented. Mr. Trowern, Dominion secretary, was the chief speaker.

The police of Galt are most efficient regarding the Weights and Measures Act. They have recently weighed the coal supplied by local dealers and found everything all right. The bread was next, and this also measured up to the standard. On Saturday the butter offered by the farmers on the market was weighed, and found to be full weight. It would appear that the Galt merchants are trustworthy.

In his speech at the retailers' banquet, Secretary Trowern bitterly denounced co-operative businesses. He declared them to be trade's worst enemies and declared that in time they would stamp out all beneficial competition.

The Saturday market was largely attended, and prices still continued on the increase. Merchants and public alike claim that Galt prices are too high in comparison with those of surrounding towns. Some of the prices were as follows: Eggs, 35c doz.; butter, 35c pound; apples, $2 to $2.50 per bbl.; pears, 60c basket; potatoes, $1 per bag; chickens, 25c to 65c each; ducks, 60c to 70c each; geese, $1 to $1.25; pork sausage, 12½c lb.; beef, 5½c to 7c lb.; pork, 10c to 12c; lamb, 10c to 12½c.

As Edmonton is a very young, though a very ambitious city, there has never been much of a market. As a consequence we cannot reply to a recent query from Ottawa regarding market regulations prohibiting buying before certain hours. Now, however, the City Council are awaking to the necessity of establishing a good market and several improvements in the present market square and regulations to govern the market have been proposed. This will be welcomed by everyone, the retail grocers, as well as the consumers.

The City Grocery, located at the corner of Eighth St. and Jasper Avenue, has changed hands recently and in future will be known as Prentice & Company. The new proprietors are making extensive arrangements for the handling of their already large trade and several additions have already been made to the staff. Their store is completely equipped with a first-class line of groceries and provisions while more stock is constantly arriving. It is the intention of the management to open a bakery in connection with their store in the near future as this district is much in need of a store of this kind.

Grocers in the city report a big increase in the wholesale price of almost every line of goods they carry. This has necessitated a corresponding increase in the retail price so that living is, as a consequence, more expensive in Edmonton. During the past three months there has been an increase of between 30 and 60 per cent. in the price of some of these necessaries of life. It is announced that the increase is due to the greater demand and to the scarcity of the article.

Porridge, one of the staple articles for breakfast, particularly among the Scotch, has increased 60 per cent. in price during the past three or four months. Earlier in the year an 80-pound sack of rolled oats cost $2 wholesale, while now the price is $3.15 wholesale for the same sized sack. Flour, also, a few months ago could be purchased from the wholesaler for $1.75 per cwt., while now it costs $2.60, an increase of 85 cents per hundred pounds. The advance in the price of these two lines has been caused by the shortage in the oat and wheat crop in the country this year and the consequent increase in price.

Speaking of the price of rolled oats, one prominent grocer in the city stated to The Canadian Grocer that he had been in business in Edmonton for fifteen years and had never seen the price higher than it is now. Even when they had to ship it in from Winnipg before mills were established in the West, the price was no higher than it is at present.

In canned goods, such as tomatoes and corn, there has also been an increase in the price. Tomatoes are now 20 cents per case dearer than formerly and corn costs 10 cents a case more.

A shortage in the fruit crop has caused an advance in the price of canned raspberries, peaches, pears and other fruits.

Perhaps the increase in the price of fruits can be illustrated best by a comparison of the price of apricots now with that of former years. At present they cost 40 cents per pound in Edmonton or 30 cents a pound at the Pacific Coast, wholesale price. Last year the wholesale price was 20 to 22 cents per pound while two years ago the price was from 10 to 12 cents per pound. Three or four years ago apricots could be purchased for from 7 to 9 cents per pound by the case.

In butter there is an increase in the price over that of last year. The grade of butter that costs 30 cents per pound to-day could have been purchased last year at this time for 25 cents per pound.

The price of bread, too, has taken an upward bound. A year ago 20 loaves could be purchased for $1, while at present 14 to 16 loaves for $1 is the prevailing price.

Milk now costs ten cents a quart or 12 quarts for $1, a considerable increase over the price of a year ago.

Grocers and provision merchants generally feel that there will be no great improvement in these prices for some time, till next spring, anyway.

It is estimated that there are about 75 grocery stores of various sizes in the city. Many of these are operated by foreigners who cater to the wants of residents of their particular nationality in Edmonton.

A LOVE-TAP FROM GALT.

"The special number of The Grocer was the best example of a trade publication I have ever seen," was the remark made by a prominent grocer, to your correspondent. The whole grocery trade in Galt is immensely proud of its official organ.

The excitement which usually attends every municipal contest in Edmonton is on now, as the time draws near for the next municipal election. Already some of the candidates are in the field, filling the newspapers with their platform and election addresses, and speaking at public meetings in all parts of the city. The election this year promises to be as exciting and as closely contested as in former years and will be of especial interest to grocers, as two retired grocery merchants are candidates for the mayoralty. These are John A. McDougall and J. H. Picard. Both men have resided in the city for years and have made successes of their business, and retired, and both are thoroughly conversant with the municipal situation in Edmonton. Opinion in the city is divided and the issue is doubtful. Both candidates are Liberals, so the election will not be fought on political lines. In any event, as there are as yet no other candidates in the field, it seems pretty certain that the mayor of Edmonton for the year 1908 is going to be a grocer. To be mayor of Edmonton may not, at first sight, seem to be much, but in the present condition of affairs it means a great deal to the city to get a thorough, practical and level-headed business man at the head of affairs during the coming year. Edmonton may properly be called the home of municipal ownership in Canada, for this system is being carried out here more fully, perhaps, than in any other part of Canada. Edmonton owns her own sewerage system, waterworks, electric light and power plant, telephone system, street railway line, incineration and other public utilities. Large sums of money have been spent in improving the city this year, necessitating the issue of approximately $640,000 worth of debentures in the summer, and about $850,000, which are now on the market. In view of these facts it will be seen that in the present financial condition in the country it will require a skilled man at the head of city affairs. And to whom are the people turning in their hour of need but to grocers, who have by long and diligent efforts made a success of their own business.

It has been suggested that Edmonton grocers and others should encourage the farmer in this district to go into dairying more extensively. If a few more good milch cows were kept and butter made and marketed in Edmonton, the farmer would make a good profit, and the grocer would always be able to get a good supply of fresh butter for his customers. One farmer stated recently that he made from $40 to $50 per season from one good cow in the sale of butter alone. This is the price of a good cow, so that after the first year it would be clear profit. The farmer will always find a good market for his butter in Edmonton and should embrace this opportunity at once. In addition to the profit on his butter, he would also have the skimmed milk for his calves and pigs, and thus find a good revenue at very little expense and labor. At the present time the supply of butter from the district is not sufficient to meet the demand, and as a consequence butter has to be shipped in from outside points, thus making the price high.

There is also a scarcity of milk in the city, and hotels are, on occasions, hard put for a supply of the lacteal fluid. Ten cents a quart or twelve quarts for a dollar is the top price now.

The Prince Arthur cafe, which has been closed for some time, has been opened again this week. Some Chinese have started the restaurant again under the name of the Queen's restaurant.

The Retail Clerks' Protective Association held a meeting in the Mechanics' hall last week, at which the newly-elected officers were installed and the charter formally presented. The question of the advisability of having an early closing by-law in the city was introduced and discussed. A committee was appointed to confer with the Trades and Labor Council to decide on some united course of action in connection with the introduction of another early closing by-law. The association have decided to hold meetings regularly every two weeks.

New Western Freight Rates

Winnipeg Jobbers Objecting Strenuously to New Freight Tariff—Claim it will Force Them to Give up the Kootenay Trade—Will be Hard on Fruit Dealers.

One of the features of the week has been the publishing of the first draft of the proposed new freight tariff for the west.

New freight tariffs are apt to be disturbing elements at any time, but a freight tariff that increases rates at a time when there is a general tendency to reduction, both of freight and passenger rates on American roads, has practically raised an insurrection.

The railways claim that what they have done has been done at the request of the Tariff Commission, but any stick will do to beat a dog with. The fact of the matter is that when the Railway Commission sat in the west, the Vancouver merchants made a most vigorous kick because the Winnipeg wholesalers had an advantage over them in the famous commodity tariff into the Kootenay. There appeared to be discrimination, and the Railway Commission ordered that discrimination be done away. The railway company has accomplished this by doing away with the commodity rate altogether and putting the tariff on a mileage basis, which not only throws the advantage to Vancouver, but also places the eastern wholesaler in a better position than the Winnipeg jobbers, who, by the way, were the men who had enterprise enough to go in and build up the Kootenay trade, when neither Vancouver or the east were ready or willing to touch it.

In addition to this the rates in Manitoba have been very sharply advanced, and while it is not known just what the through rates will be, the little information that has come to hand indicates that here again the Winnipeg jobbers are at a disadvantage.

The proposed tariff is to come into force on Nov. 25, and in the meantime the council of the Board of Trade have taken the matter up and wired the Railway Commission as follows :

"Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 14, 1907

"Hon. A. C. Killam,
"Chairman, Board of "Railway Commissioners,
"Ottawa, Ont.

"Joint meeting of Jobbers' and Shippers' Association and council Board of Trade protests emphatically against the proposed tariff of freight rates out of Winnipeg, C. P., C.R.C., W. 746, C. N. C.R.C. 199, and contend that any readjustment of the freight rates out of Winnipeg should be done on the basis of the rates out of St. Paul and Minneapolis to Minnesota and Dakota points and should be no higher than these rates.

"Secondly : They also protest against the proposed tariff of freight rates out of Winnipeg, C. P. C.R.C. W. 746, C. N. C.R.C. 199, so far as Kootenay points are concerned as being absolutely destructive to the trade covered by the present commodity rates which Winnipeg has built up with those points and ask that no such rates shall be put in force, but that they be materially modified or the old tariff C. P. C.R.C. W. 644 C. N. C.R.C., 154, be allowed to remain in force.

"Both trade bodies request that the proposed tariffs C. P. C.R.C. W. 746, C. N. C.R.C. 199, shall be held and not enforced until they have opportunity of considering them and being heard further, but in any event not before February 15, "Proposed new tariff, though promised by railway officials, only now submitted, and neither body had time to consider more than outline. This absolutely contrary to agreement made before you. Letter following.

" C. N. BELL,
"Secretary Board of Trade."

There is no question that the blow will fall heaviest on the hardware trade. In fact, one hardware merchant, with a branch at Nelson, stated freely that the enforcement of this tariff would mean the closing out of his business altogether at that point. For example, the rates on heavy iron have been jumped from 62 cents to $1.09 per cwt. Another grievance is that the minimum of cars has been increased from 30,000 to 40,000, and mixed cars have been done away with.

The Free Press, which was the first western paper to print the tariff, has made up some very interesting tables, of which the following are copies. These show a comparison of old and new rates and also give the rates that previously have obtained on what are technically known as "commodities" and fruits. In addition to the places named, increases are made amongst others, to Hartney, Boisevain, Deloraine, Holland, Carroll, Morris, Morden, Minnedosa and Crystal City, with reductions to Birtle, Arcola and Broadview.

Next to hardwaremen the fruitmen will be the hardest hit by the new tariff arrangements and also the Western fruit consumer will be made to suffer. The bulk of the fruit used in this country must be brought from long distances, and it is felt to be a very serious grievance that the necessarily high price should be increased in this way. For years the West has been pleading to have the customs duties on fruits either lowered or abolished, and now instead of any relief in that direction there comes an advance in freight which will materially enhance the price to the consumer.

While many of the wholesale men are willing to suspend judgment until the through rates from the East are posted, they all concur in one thing, that there is absolutely no reason for the very heavy advance in local rates. It is all right to have a freight tariff that does not discriminate in favor of one section of the country against another, but that could have quite as readily been overcome by a lowering of the rates instead of advancing. It is stated on very good authority that in many instances the rates on freight proposed by this tariff are actually higher than they were when the C.P.R. opened freight trade in 1886. There is a feeling that the present rates, which have been, with only the slightest modifications in force for many years, must have been profitable or the company would not have maintained them.

The question of a freight tariff on a mileage basis was put into effect in regard to wheat and coarse grain on the 15th of October, and this has made it impossible to ship to any point between Winnipeg and the lakes on the proportion of the through rate, which was the custom for many years. In this section the people most hardly hit are the railway contractors and lumber and tie camps, and these are protesting vigorously against the taking away of this privilege, and already formal protest has been filed with the Government at Ottawa.

With the country suffering from a general shortage of cars for getting the wheat out anything that is calculated to lower the prices and increase the cost of handling is looked upon with very marked disfavor.

VANCOUVER.

Conditions in the wholesale grocery trade are fairly satisfactory considering the condition of unrest which has been prevalent throughout the continent this fall. In immediate local trade, upon which the jobbers of the coast cities mainly depend, there is nothing to give cause for complaint. But in the sections of the Northwest to which B. C. wholesalers reach, business is mildly described as "dull." So dull is it, in fact, that some travelers have been pulled off indefinitely, or at least until next season opens. In the lumber trade there has been an extreme dearth of Northwest business for some weeks, and as a consequence many mills are closing down for a time, while those which are running have cut the time down to eight hours from ten.

Elements which tend to hold business good in B. C. are easily noted by the observer. There is a steady influx of outside capital for investment in lands and timber. There is also a steady increase in population, notably in the horticultural districts of the coast, Vancouver Island and the interior. The majority of the newcomers are locating on land and thus joining the army of producers, so that the province is receiving double benefit from their accession. The amount of land being brought under cultivation, especially in the way of being set out in orchards, etc., is increasing very rapidly and as this process has been going on for some years the increase in fruit production is now becoming rapid.

The East Kootenay district, watered and served by the two great interior rivers of B.C., and containing valuable farming and timber lands, as well as mineral deposits of high grade, has long lain dormant for the want of transportation facilities. Its wealth is soon to be laid under tribute for the general good of the province, as the road is to be constructed by the C.P.R. next season, all surveys and plans being now practically complete.

A question of vast importance to the coast and to the province in general is the control of the coast fisheries. This matter is likely to be very prominent in the coming season, through the action of the Provincial Government appointing one of the ministers, Hon. W. J. Bowser, as Commissioner of Fisheries. The declared intention is to assume control of the coast fisheries, which have heretofore been administered by the Dominion Government, along with the deep sea fisheries. With these latter the province has no intention to interfere. One lessee of coast fishing privileges has been notified not to exercise the rights granted by the Dominion, under penalty of seizure of gear. A deputation of cannerymen recently waited on the Provincial Government to discuss the situation. It is felt that with local administration something may be done to check the ravages in the salmon industry, which have been so marked of late years.

The new C.P.R. freight tariffs will be issued on Nov. 25th and Dec. 1st. These govern the rates of freight under wholesale and jobbing shipments in the west. They have especial reference to alleged discrimination in favor of Winnipeg as against Vancouver, and have long been under discussion. The order of the Railway Commission has been carried out, eliminating all discrimination. Coast jobbers consider that they have secured distinct advantages in the new rates.

New stock nuts, dried fruits, candied peels, etc., for the coming Christmas trade are making their appearance much more promptly than they did last year, when some goods never reached this market at all for the Christmas business.

STRATFORD.

The city bakers have had quite a time lately boosting prices, reducing weight, etc. A week or so ago five of the city bakers held a caucas and owing to the increased cost of material and delivery they decided to either boost the price of the loaf or reduce the weight. They came to the conclusion that the citizens would not take well to the idea of having to pay an extra cent or two for their bread, so agreed to reduce the weight. For a whole week the delivery men had a strenuous time of it and were given mighty cool receptions by a large number of the citizens (the housewives). Gradually their trade slackened, for although five bakers had agreed to reduce the weight, another well-known firm still made and sold their bread at the usual figure. Naturally the busy housewives flocked to the stores where they could secure the "staff of life" at the cheapest price and as a result the other quintet of bakers began to lose their custom. The result was that bread came down again or the weight was increased to the former figure and the housewives are happy.

W. J. McCully, one of the hustling young grocery men of this city, is one of the incorporators in the A. F. MacLaren Cheese Cutting Machine Company, which has just obtained Dominion letters patent, with a capital stock of $60,000, with head offices at Ottawa. The two other incorporators are A. F. MacLaren, M.P., of Stratford, and G. W. Hunt, of Ottawa.

There is talk of the electric trolley line from St. Thomas to London being extended through to Stratford. If such a project materializes as it is expected it will, Stratford merchants, grocers included, will receive untold benefit. The line would not only bring trade in from the towns directly on the line, but would draw a large crowd of farmers to the city. Here's hoping that the scheme will materialize.

"It pays to advertise." The slogan is a chestnut. But does it pay? It is quite evident that the majority of Stratford grocers think different, or at least they do not patronize the local newspapers. They may hang up a number of attractive cards (and this is a good way) but very few of the retailers try to draw trade by means of an ad. in the press. Quite likely they will "take a chance" during the Christmas season, but the man who knows will tell you that it's not the spasmodic advertising that pays. Other merchants in different lines of trade advertise and do so almost continuously year in and year out. Are they losing by their contract? Not much! Just look at their stores. They are the very best in the city. To the non-advertiser we would say, just try a small ad. and see if it does not bring sure results. Ask any merchant who advertises what he thinks of newspaper advertising and he will tell you—well, just interview him and find out.. "A word to the wise (or unwise) is sufficient." Some people have an idea that they have no need to advertise as their good and bright store speaks for itself. Not always friend. That's where you are wrong. The better the store is the more this fact should be advertised.

CORRESPONDENCE

CHATHAM.

With the approach of Christmas, the grocery windows are showing unwonted evidence of decoration and display. During the past week there have been quite a few well decorated windows, not only on King street, but beyond the confines of the big thoroughfare. As a rule, though windows are generally neat, clean and presentable, most grocers do not attempt to specialize in the line of scientific window display. Hence, the good displays in evidence during holiday seasons are more striking than they might otherwise be.

Ald. Wm. Potter is now definitely in the field for mayor. His card appeared in the city papers last week, in pursuance of his already expressed intention to enter the field against all comers. Ald. Potter has five years' service in the council to his credit, two of which were spent in the difficult post of chairman of the property committee. The new city market and the still newer electric light plant have come within the scope of his committee, and in connection with the latter he during the past year fought a hard and successful battle for the maintenance of public ownership. At the Council board and in committee there has been no harder worker. Ald. Austin is also in the field for mayoralty honors, while there is strong probability that Mayor Stone will be a candidate for re-election.

Mahler Bros.' evaporator, at Ridgetown, took fire on the evening of Nov. 20 and was completely destroyed. The building was a two-storey frame and the driers were heated by large coal furnaces, which made it burn like tinder, despite the good work of the fire department. The loss will total about $6,000, partly covered by insurance. Only one shipment had been made this season, and the building was filled with goods ready for the market, as well as about 20,000 bushels of apples ready for peeling. Only a small portion of the machinery was saved.

Walter Hales, the general storekeeper at Northwood, was last week united in marriage to Caroline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ousterhout, of the same place. The ceremony took place on November 19 at 6 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Pentland officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Hales will visit London, Peterboro and other eastern points on their wedding trip.

Mrs. C. P. Powell, of Tilbury, has rented the store in the May block, Essex, recently vacated by R. Williams, and will move her grocery and crockery stock there.

Frank Herdman has purchased the grocery business till recently conducted by John Setterington, on Talbot street east, Leamington. Mr. Jeffery, an oil man, was the first purchaser, but received a better offer to remain in the field, and accordingly sold to Mr. Herdman. The latter will continue in the livery business also, as heretofore.

Among the artistic windows in Chatham this week, that of H. Malcolmson was one of the most noteworthy. It was chiefly a meat window, the good things being tastefully arranged in rows. The expert window dressers of the establishment, who were responsible, deserve lots of credit for an attractive display.

Lorne Cummings, the West street grocer, was last week the recipient of something not for retail during the coming Christmas season. It's a girl.

Eggs at 30c a dozen and butter at 30c a pound are becoming the usual things on the local market, and there seems every prospect that the prices will not only stay that high, but even go higher. On the contrary, there is a plentitude of fowl. Prices are now much lower than they have been, and the prophecy is ventured that as the season advances the prices will continue to slacken. In connection with the egg and butter prices, there is plenty of talk of a market vendors' union for the purpose of keeping up prices. However, there is really little doubt that the high prices are merely due to the unfailing law of supply and demand.

Wm. Clifford, the Wallaceburg butcher, has on exhibition a fine bear—not of the Teddy variety, but a genuine specimen, shot by Geo. Crawford up north.

R. I. Weaver, the St. Clair street grocer and butcher, has a delivery boy who possesses a distinctly inventive turn of mind. The lad in question is accustomed to deliver goods by means of an express wagon, for which he himself supplies the motive power. Apparently, however, he wearied of the role of horse and aspired to the higher glory incident on being driver. Necessity being the mother of invention, he proceeded to devise ways and means. The ways and means included an easy-going friend, a long strand of rope, and a bicycle. As a result of the combination, residents of St. Clair street were yesterday treated to the spectacle of a lad on a bicycle slowly towing a big green express wagon due north, the wagon containing a load of groceries and an elated driver. The driver also furnished passenger accommodation for a friend, and seemed immensely tickled at the success of his invention.

E. R. Putnam, Queen street, has improved his butcher shop by installing a new oak front. A large plate glass window in front affords him an excellent opportunity to display his various kinds of meat. The change adds very much to the appearance of Mr. Putnam's place of business. The interior of the shop is also much improved and handsomely grained.

E. R. Wigle, of Ruthven, who has been in the general store business at that place for the past eighteen years, has disposed of his building to his next-door neighbor, T. H. Wigle. T. H. takes possession Dec. 1st, and intends to put in a stock of dry goods and boots and shoes, in addition to the present stock of groceries.

The appeal of the Traders' Bank against the decision of Judge McHugh, of Windsor, in the case of Traders Bank v. White, came up in the Divisional Court at Toronto, on Nov. 11th, and was dismissed. The suit was to recover on notes given in payment for stock subscriptions in the old Consumers' Tobacco Co., which afterwards became merged into the McAlpin Co. About 100 Essex farmers and growers were interested, the amounts totalling $10,000. They opposed payment on the ground that the original company had not carried out their agreements, and that there was fraudulent representations made in obtaining subscriptions. There is no further appeal. It is understood the Traders' Bank will not lose by the decision, being secured by endorsers.

Thos. Dillon, formerly a prominent general merchant, of Bothwell, and well known in municipal life as ex-mayor, ex-county councillor and ex-clerk of Bothwell Division Court, passed away at that town last week. He was born in Carlow, Ireland, August 1, 1827, and was in business in Bothwell for upwards of thirty years, retiring in 1890. The funeral last Saturday was one of the largest in the history of the town.

The Bradley Store, which is giving a lot of attention to window dressing, had an exceptionally attractive display last week. It comprised hams, bacon, sausage, cheese, lard, and kindred products, arranged on a series of shelves, or steps, the meat items being interspersed with bottled pickles, catsups, olives, and like comestibles. A noteworthy feature was the liberal use of excelsior as a sort of background, to fill in the interspaces. It is rather a difficult thing to make a meat window attractive, and the fact that all day long passers-by were pausing for a look was ample evidence of the success of the efforts put forth by Mr. McQueen, the local manager, who designed the display.

Ald. Jas. N. Massey has announced that with the close of the present year he will retire from municipal life. "I haven't time to give the office the attention that it should have," he stated on Saturday last to an interviewer. "I like the office very much, but it requires a great deal of time to look after it as it should be looked after. I cannot afford the time, and for this reason I have made up my mind not to be in the field this year."

In the retirement of Ald. Massey, the city loses the services of a good out-and-out business man, who, with a creditable two years' record behind him, would be assured of re-election should he care to run.

Ex-Ald. John Edmondson, the St. Clair street butcher, has stepped into the gap, however, and announced his candidature for the council board. His defeat last year was one of the surprises of the municipal campaign, and his chances this year are considered excellent.

BARRIE.

The fine weather which has been prevailing here for the last week had a tendency to keep the farmer busy at home, so there was no great market on Saturday, Butter was a little easier; eggs dropped two cents a dozen; chickens remained firm for clean, dry picked birds: geese sold about the same price as last week; ducks the same, while turkeys dropped from one to one and a half cents per pound. Potatoes, apples and other vegetables sold about the same as last week. Butter sold at 26c and 27c; eggs, 24c to 27c; chickens, 8c to 10c; old fowl, 5c; geese, 8c; ducks, 8c; turkeys, 10c to 12c; potatoes, 75c to 80c a bag; apples, a few No. 1 Spys sold at $2.50, while other varieties sold at from $1.25 to $2. Hay sold at from $19 to $21, according to the quality.

With just a few weeks till Christmas to get the store and windows fixed up, the merchants are very busy. With all the talk of hard times, etc., it does not seem to have affected the grocery business, at least, as the volume of business in fruits and Christmas preparations so far has been larger and better than last year. We also notice quite a lot of price-cutting on Christmas fruits, etc., particularly among the smaller firms.

MONTREAL.

Isaie Lalonde, Eastern Townships traveler for Hudon, Hebert & Co., reports business very satisfactory for this time of the year. He said that everywhere he has been the usual holiday preparations are being made, perhaps on a larger scale than ever before.

"These are hard days for the traveler," said Mr. Lalonde, "the roads are almost impassable, indeed. I have been obliged to omit several places on my list, and the country hotels are never prepared for this kind of weather."

One of the most important towns in the vicinity of Montreal is Valleyfield. It is beautifully situated on Lake St. Francis, and has a population of about 15,000. The chief industry is the cotton mills. Valleyfield has always been a paying town for grocery travelers. This year, however, it is much quieter than usual, so Mr. Boileau, a traveler for the same house reports: "There is much less money in the town this year," said he, "than for a long time past. The results of the recent strike in the cotton mills are now being felt by the grocers." Mr. Boileau covers all the towns between Montreal and Ottawa and reports more than average business.

The Grocer called on A. O. Galarneau, grocer, of Point St. Charles. His clean, well-lighted and up-to-date store is more attractive than ever. During the past summer Mr. Galarneau visited the Jamestown exposition, and on his way home visited many of the leading retail groceries in Philadelphia and New York, with a view to getting new ideas. One idea which he has put into practice, and which is giving the most gratifying results, is the arrangement of a centre table. In the middle of the store he has placed a table for the display of grocery novelties, sich as fancy bottles of olives, pickles, small canned goods, and all similar lines. On each article is a small clear price card. "The advantage of that table," said Mr. Galarneau, "is that it waits on itself, and often when we are rushed, it keeps customers from getting tired and going away without being served. Since becoming used to it, I could not possibly get along without something of the sort."

The keeping of accounts is one of the problems which grocers are called upon to solve. Everyone is familiar with the difficulties and endless work attending the usual method of entering up sales. One of the most alert grocers in Montreal showed The Grocer a system which he thought out for himself, and which has been giving highly satisfactory results. Further, it is so simple that the wonder is it has not been universally adopted long ago. For every regular customer running a weekly or monthly account, he has a small sales book, on the back of which is the customer's name. All these books are filed alphabetically, with the backs up in a drawer. That is all there is to it. It works in this way: When Mrs. M. comes in, her purchases are entered in the book with her name on it, she gets her bill, and the carbon duplicate is left in the book. At the end of the week or month, as the case may be, the book is added up. It cannot possibly be wrong, because it is a carbon copy of the bill she got with the goods. Further, no matter when she comes in to pay her bill, any clerk can turn up her account in a moment's time, just as well as the manager himself could. When asked of what value he found the system, this grocer replied: "It is equal to a good man's time to me. I get better results than when I devoted most of my days and all my evenings to keeping the old system books. It has solved one of the hardest problems I have ever been called upon to face."

"Where do you keep your crackers?" was the question put to a number of Montreal grocers. Many and various were the replies. Some kept them in boxes, some in barrels, and some in places where you would never dream of finding anything to tickle the palate. By far the best arrangement was found adopted in a few very enterprising stores. The goods are displayed in a silent salesman and are held in place by a thin wooden back. Consequently, the drawers always appear full, even when almost empty. And, further, the goods are kept entirely free from dust, and no broken pieces can be seen. Some of those who have adopted this method are so pleased with the results obtained that they are putting in a similar appliance to display dried fruits.

A gentleman prominent in the tea trade in Montreal remarked the other day that there had been quite a noticeable improvement in the service of the Customs Department in passing teas imported, since The Canadian Grocer gave prominence to the Government's lax action in omitting to appoint an inspector in Montreal.

VICTORIA.

In your issue of Nov. 1 your London correspondent makes a few remarks on cranberries. As the item is but a short one I will quote it: "The first cranberries of the season have been received by local wholesalers. The price ranges from $12 to $15 pr barrel and they sell retail at 15 cents per quart." These quotations happened to catch my eye. The retail price rather astonished me, and set me wondering how London grocers could afford to do business at those prices and expect their balance sheet to come out on the right side. Just let us go briefly into this matter and see what figures will show us: The standard weight of a barrel of cranberries here in the West is 100 pounds, and I judge that it is the same in Eastern Canada. I refer to Cape Cod berries. A quart of cranberries weighs 18 ounces and, therefore, there are almost 89 quarts in a barrel. 89 quarts at 15 cents is $13.35. This is allowing for a full 100 pounds in a barrel. The berries cost $12 to $15 per barrel. Let us strike a happy medium and assume the average cost to be $13.50. Now where does Mr. Grocer come in? His cost of doing business is, let us say, 15 per cent., so that the barrel of cranberries actually cost him, delivered to his customers, $15.52½. He has received for them $13.35, and is thereby a looser of $2.17½. I have no doubt that London is not the only place where cranberries are being sold at such prices, and many a grocer might do well to either add an extra 5 cents per quart to the retail price, or stop handling cranberries.

Times are still lively in Victoria and all grocers seem to be very busy. The majorty are displaying and advertising "Xmas" fruits, although they are somewhat handicapped on account of the non-arrival of some lines.

The old grocery business of Fell & Co., which some few weeks ago was assigned to Wilson Bros., has now been reorganized and is running smoothly under the management of Mr. Acton.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Export business through the port of Montreal is now practically over, though odd shipments of small lots are being made by the late boats. From a statistical standpoint the season has been a poor one, compared with last year, especially in butter, but financially it has been satisfactory.

In 1906 the returns from the export butter and cheese amounted to something like $25,700,000, while this year the approximate estimate of the returns is around $21,000,000. Considering the difference in the export figures of the two years, this is certainly a good showing.

Take the exports of butter for this season. They amounted to but 66,773 packages, against 361,400 packages last year, and 573,449 the previous year. Therefore, the decrease in exports, as compared to last year, amounts to 294,627 packages, and compared with 1905 there is noticeable the enormous difference of 506,676 packages.

It is little wonder, therefore, that the returns financially should be smaller in the case of butter, anyway.

During the season 1,973,262 boxes of cheese were exported, against 2,227,838 boxes last year, showing a falling off to the extent of 254,576 boxes. The decrease, compared with 1905, amounts to 147,839 boxes. In that year, total exports were 2,121,101 boxes.

From these figures it will be seen that the season cannot be regarded as a poor one financially, rather the reverse.

Only two packages of butter were exported last week. Same week one year ago 235 packages were shipped.

During the week 61,015 boxes of cheese were exported, compared with 37,870 boxes same week, 1906.

There is not a great deal of business being done in cheese at the present time, for that matter there never is at this season. There has been considerable hustling and bustling on the part of shippers to catch the last boats, in order to get their goods over before winter rates and conditions come into effect, but this rush has about subsided and things are assuming their normal winter aspect.

A nominal market rules, from 12½c to 13c, for September-October cheese, some asking less, around 12¾c. November rules around 11½c to 12c. The range of prices is large, as is usually the case at this time of year.

Stocks of cheese in the Old Country are light as compared with holdings of last year. English buyers are keeping in touch with the market here.

The market is likely to rule firm, as holders of certain makes are hanging onto their stock for 13c, and they are pretty sure they will get it if they wait sufficiently long.

Receipts of cheese last week were 21,803 boxes, as compared with 38,054 boxes same week last year. Total receipts for the season amount to 2,039,065 boxes, against 2,315,116 boxes for same period 1906.

Butter is easier this week, as will be seen from prices. About the highest obtainable for choicest is 28½c, but the range runs down to 27c, and good butter is obtainable for anything between these figures. Imported butter is quoted : Siberian, 26c to 28c, and Irish, 25c to 26c. Some New Zealand butter is reported sold to dealers here, which will have to bring 29½c to 30c to let the buyers out. It is likely, however, that these figures will be reached, as the make in Canada is falling off every week and stocks are not reckoned to be heavy.

One dealer who is in a position to know pretty well how stocks stand, estimated the holdings in Montreal at 15,000 to 20,000 packages. When one considers that it takes something like 1,000 packages a day to supply the trade controlled by Montreal dealers, it will readily be seen that more butter has to come from somewhere, and unless it arrives in extremely large quantities, which, on the face of it, is impossible at present, there is likely to be an advance. During December the amount required would hardly be so large, but even so, 700 to 800 packages a day necessitates the daily arrival of considerable quantities.

Reports from Ontario points state that 28c is being paid for creamery in Ontario. If butter costing this were shipped to Montreal it would mean 29c here. Under these circumstances no explanation is needed as to why there is not much Ontario butter offering locally. It is further said that 25c is easily obtained for roll butter. In Montreal, dairy, which is as scarce as ever, is selling from 24c to 26c.

Receipts last week were 7,538 packages, as compared with 5,975 packages same week, 1906. Total receipts for the season amount to 386,436 packages, against 579,822 packages for the same period last year.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The Canadian market is in a very unsatisfactory condition all round this week. This is a reflection from the English market, which is in an even more unsettled state thah last reports, but the immediate influence has come from the other side of the border, where matters in hogs have been running riot. How far this has gone may be judged when it is known that the price dropped as low as $3,80.

The Journal of Commerce summarizes the American situation as fol'ows :

The past week has been quite active in the speculative line for hog products, big packers having been sellers all the week, both of futures and spot stuff, at declining prices for both, to avoid accumulations and the carrying of stocks. Hogs have declined now to nearly 4c, the packers' price, proclaimed before the decline ; but they have not let up on their bear operations, and are still selling cash and future stuff at concessions in prices at the close. There has been very little activity, however, in spot stuff, as Europe had been filled up with forced sales of lard for cash previously at Chicago and did not come in for meats until the latter part of the week, when it took about 5,000 boxes from the west, the first time that she has come in for these goods since the panic and the second time on this crop. There was considerable covering on the decline by the Cudahy Packing Company and other short packers outside of Chicago, and these were the chief buyers. Shipments from New York for the week were over 9,000 boxes meat and over 1,000 barrels pork.

Receipts of hogs have increased materially during the week at all points, as it is claimed that the farmers are now selling them to avoid feeding high-priced corn. But the weights do not indicate that the hogs have been overkept, heavy hogs still being scarce. But the country is said to be full of hogs, old and young, although th's may be a part of the packers' bear campaign, for weights ought to increase if the charge of overkeeping is true.

This situation has influenced the Canadian market so strongly that packers here are not at all anxious to do business, and the condition is so unsettled that they are not even quoting prices. The week will probably see some interesting developments either one way or the other.

MONTREAL.

With the decline in the hog market has come a drop in the price of pork and a decline in lard values, both pure and compound. Plate beef is also easier. Lard dropped ½c. Packers report a fair trade in lard and heavy meats, while smoked meats are dull.

POULTRY—It is yet a little early for active demand on the part of groders for turkeys, chickens and other fowl. Some business is being done in certain sections. The birds arriving now are not as plump, and show the care of fowl arriving in December. Some say this is due to the high prices asked for grain, and also to the fact that farmers are not paying much attention to poultry at this early date.

PROVISIONS—There has been no material change in the provision markets. Deliveries are quite satisfactory for the time of the year. Lumber and construction camps are buying up large lots of pork products. Fresh beef remains steady, Lard is slightly stronger, though prices are unchanged. The venison supply has diminished. Dealers are not anxious to stock heavily, owing to the fact that it can no longer be held in storage for consumption after the New Year. No venison can be handled after Dec. 31st.

WINNIPEG.

BUTTER—There is little change in the situation. Offerings of dairy butter are fairly liberal for this season, owing to the open fall. For choice No. 1 the Winnipeg price to country dealers is 24c per lb.; No. 2, 20c to 22c; No. 3, 17c to 18c. As noted last week, one large house has stopped buying country produce.

The creamery market is still unsettled, but the average price to the trade is about 32c per lb. for fancy bricks.

EGGS—Owing to heavy importations from the south, due to heavy liquidations, caused by the money stringency, the egg market is weaker than it was. Very few country eggs are offering. The average price to the retail trade is 25c to 26c per dozen. Produce dealers are paying about 3c less than these prices for country eggs.

An Easier Feeling in Canadian Markets—Oats Decline in Ontario and the West —Crop Moving More Satisfactorily.

A generally easier feeling seems to prevail in Ontario and the West though the markets in the Eastern Provinces remain in about the same condition as last week.

The easiness has been reflected in a decline in rolled oats of from 15 to 20 cents. Flour is also easier but the feeling has not been sharp enough to affct prics. The change is felt particularly in Ontario's.

The proportion of Western wheat which, on inspection, is classed as inferior or good for feed only, continues large. Inspections at Winnipeg Saturday amounted to 386 cars, compared with 273 cars, on the corresponding day last year. The returns were: No. 1 northern, 44 cars; No. 2 northern, 76 cars; No, 3 northern, 57 cars; No. 4, 38 cars; No. 5, 14 cars; No. 6, 19 cars; winter wheat, 3 cars, and 105 cars of inferior kinds.

World's shipments of wheat during the past week were 8,544,000 bushels, compared with 9,760,000 in the previous week, and 11,240,000 in 1906. Corn shipments were 3,210,000 bushels last week, 2,104,000 the previous week and 3,750,000 a year ago. Bradstreet's estimate of the world's visible supply of wheat shows a decrease of 3,400,000 bushels during the past week, compared with an increase of 3,100,000 a year ago.

ROLLED OATS—There is still some under-selling going on, but a better market rules to-day, and it is not so difficult to quote a range of prices which are nearly correct from the viewpoint of all sellers. If anything, the feeling today is a little easier, but steadiness is likely to characterize the market.

FLOUR—Millers report a considerably easier feeling this week, with prices slightly below the level of a week ago. This probably results from the easier feeling in the west and a loosening up of local stocks. The decline is most marked in Ontarios.

POTATOES BY STREET CAR.

Some Montreal dealers are receiving potatoes from the outlying districts on the Island by street car. Several large lots have been bought in Longue Pointe, Bout de L'Isle, Riviere des Prairies, and other sections and transported through the eastern section of the city to Moreau St. where they have been loaded into C.P.R. cars. Th street railway people are willing to bring the potatoes into the heart of the city if necessary This is the first step in the transportation of freight by the street railway in Montreal. The question has been under consideration by the City Council for some time.

GOOD PROSPECTS IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Opinions of Wholesale and Retail Grocers—Opening of Winter Port Business —Fish Scarce—New Cold Storage Warehouse.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.)

St. John, Nov. 25.

The manufacturers, jobbers and retailers in St. John unite in saying that 1907 has been a good year with a very large volume of business. They report that collections have been good, which shows that the purchasing power of the people has not been impaired. Practically all agree, however, in expressing the view that there is now some falling off in the demand for goods, due to the financial stringency, and the natural feeling of caution which it has developed. They do not anticipate any marked falling off in business, or more than a temporary check to the great activity of the past few years. In a word, there is no doubt about the general soundness of business conditions apart from the present scarcity of money.

A number of manufacturers, jobbers and retailers were interviewed by The Grocer correspondent and from all encouraging reports were received.

DeB. Carritte, speaking of the volume of trade of the Welcome Soap Co., said that on the whole they had had a very good year, and as far as they can see, business would continue good. The money stringency, up to the present time, has had no effect to speak of, unless it is that the dealers through the country are a little more conservative in placing their orders. Mr. Carritte said one of their travelers, who had just returned from a trip to P. E. Island, reported that both crop and trade conditions there were exceptionally good.

T. S. Simms & Co., manufacturers of brooms and brushes, report that the volume of their business exceeds last year to a considerable extent. There has been no heavy stocking up and the people must have the goods, so he could not see that there would be any serious drop in the trade.

T. Rankine & Sons, biscuit manufacturers, in answer to a query, had nothing to complain of. Their business has been good all along, and the indications are bright as far as they can see.

Thomas F. White, of the White Candy Co., said they haven't had as much business as usual, mainly owing to the scarcity of help. They had had to scratch off about 25 per cent. of their orders on account of lack of help. They can't get girls, like they could a few years ago Mr. White says, and this handicaps them to a large extent.

The condition of the wholesale trade is fairly summed up by the following reports: W. C. Cross, of Hall & Fairweather, reported that his firm had had the biggest year's business in their history, and things were in a fairly healthy condition, but at the same time it was quite necessary to be a little cautious just now. Local wholesalers, he thought, were beginning to feel the effect of the tightness in the money market in their collections, and more people than usual were asking for renewals. The fall business, he added, had been quite up to the average, but the prospects for winter were not as bright as usual. The markets have gone back somewhat lately. Dried fruits are easier, compound lard has slumped half a cent, peanuts are a little lower and pork has eased off somewhat. Flours dropped last week but have come up again to the previous high mark. The natural effect of this has been to frighten the average country storekeeper. The large fall orders are pretty nearly all filled, and from this on it will be sorting-up orders principally that the travelers will get.

C. H. Peters, of Baird & Peters, reported that business has been very good, fully up to last year, and in fact a little better. Collections have been good to date. With a little colder weather lumbermen's supplies will be shipped away. There was a drag on business just now and it was likely to be a little harder from this on, but he did not think there would be any serious slump.

G. E. Barbour, of the Geo. E. Barbour Co., said there was a falling now in business, but it had been good up to the present.

Among the retailers, W. Alex. Porter said business had been very good and he was looking for a continuance of it through the winter. Collections had been about as usual.

C. S. Philps found but slight difference in volume of business from the average. Collections were fair, what might be expected at the approach of the holiday season. Prospects were, on the whole, good, however.

P. Nase & Sons found the amount of business about the average, with the prospects not any too promising. When asked in what way they accounted for the unfavorable outlook, they explained that lumbering operations have every appearance of being on a much smaller scale than usual, much less work being planned for the woods than last year. This was because foodstuffs and feed were very expensive this season, the outlay for fitting out for men and horses in consequence was heavy.

N. C. Scott found the customary quantity of business with a rather bad outlook. He accounted for this by the indications of a poor lumber market.

F. E. Williams & Co., wholesale and retail grocers and pork packers, had a large volume of business, a fair increase over last year.

Slipp & Flewelling, pork packers, found things on the ordinary, the largest amount of their business was between the months of December and May 1st. The bulk of buying, selling and curing were done between these periods.

These expressions of opinion may be taken as a fair criterion of the general situation with all the dealers.

Things were quiet in the local market the last week and no great changes in prevailing prices are reported. Dealers in the produce market say that butter is offering more freely and the outlook is for lower prices. Eggs are also more plentiful, but the market is quite firm. Pork is down from a cent to a cent and a half a pound. Turkeys are quite plentiful and are now quoted at 17 to 18 cents a pound.

The winter port business of 1907-08 was opened Friday with the arrival of the royal mail steamer Empress of Ireland, with a large passenger list and a good general cargo. The season has started out badly, however, as the local ship laborers refused to work for less than 40c an hour, the rate they have been receiving during the summer months, whereas the rate last winter was 30c, and this amount is all the steamship people say they will pay. As a result there is a deadlock, the men refuse to work for less than 40c, and the steamship people will not grant the demand. The work is being done at present by the crew of the steamer, and other steamers are due at once. The steamship people say they will do one of three things; work their own crews, bring men from Montreal, or take the ships elsewhere. It is a serious state of affairs, greatly deplored by the citizens generally. It is hoped that a speedy settlement will be reached, as the business of the port is greatly threatened.

Though several large cargoes of fish arrived here during the past two weeks, local dealers report that the supply is not up to this time last year. On Nov. 17 the schooner Defender arrived with 20,000 pounds of fresh haddock for H. P. Robertson, and during the week the schooner Cora May landed 22,800 pounds of haddock and 1,200 pounds of cod and hake for the same dealer. Mr. Robertson reports that the fish curing business is good, but the trouble is to secure a sufficient quantity of fresh stock to work with. During the past fortnight Mr. Robertson shipped 900 thirty-pound boxes of finan haddies to Winnipeg, and has orders for several carloads of fish for Winnipeg, Calgary and the Pacific coast.

Leonard Bros. received 30,000 pounds of fresh haddock from Westport, N.S., and 20,000 from various places along the Bay of Fundy coast. A thousand pounds of fresh cod arrived from Grand Manon for James Patterson.

The big plant of the New Brunswick Cold Storage Company will be ready for business by December 1, but everything will not be completed before the first of the year. This plant is the second largest in Canada, and there is but one company in the U. S. that has more storage space under one roof. The structure is 150x250, and is six storeys high at the rear and four at the front, which is of grey stone. There are about twenty rooms in the building. The first, second and third floors are divided into four rooms, about 60 to 63 feet, and on the fourth and fifth floors one large room runs the entire length of the building. The company will handle all kinds of perishable goods, and at present they have about six hundred barrels of apples on hand. Their capacity for apples is 110,000 barrels. In all there is about 810,000 cubic feet of storage space. H. R. Ross is manager, and A. G. Crawford, assistant manager.

It is possible that St. John may lose one of its industries: the White Candy Co. Readers of The Grocer will remember the curious and remarkable advertisement of this concern, which was reproduced in a recent issue. The company stated that owing to scant consideration given to their welfare by the common council in allowing the street railway to lay double tracks on Union street in front of their premises, and for various other grievances, they were willing to sell their factory at cost and remove elsewhere. That they are in earnest in the matter is indicated by the fact that F. A. McAndrews, with full authority from the company, has been looking at possible sites and studying conditions in Moncton and Fredericton, with the view of their removal to either of these places. Mr. McAndrews was very favorably impressed with Moncton as a centre for labor and in other respects, and Manager T. F. White states that it is possible that they may remove there. A number of prominent business men of the railway town are interesting themselves in the project. Mr. White and his legal adviser were heard before the general committee of the common Council here last Tuesday night, but nothing was done, and it is unlikely that any further action will be taken.

The drug and confectionery store of William Hawker & Sons, on Prince William street, was flooded last Wednesday night by an overflow of water from a tap left running in a toilet room, two floors above. Damage to the stock and fixtures amounting to about $500 was done.

In conversation with a prominent wholesale grocer mention was made of the fact that a number of small retail grocers are complaining of the effect on their business of the moving picture shows. One of the travelers of this house, in going his rounds, had heard frequent complaints of the "Nickel habit." The small dealers point out that many people in moderate circumstances who are in the habit of taking in the picture shows are short of cash when it comes to settling up the week's grocery bill on Saturday night. For instance, a mother or father will take three or four children to the nickel shows, as the price looks small, but in going four or five times a week it amounts to quite an item, and the grocer is many cases has to bear the shortage. There are at the present time eleven of these five-cent shows in the city and two others are about to be launched.

Owing to the fact that the game laws will be rigorously enforced this year, no game will be shown in the local market during the approaching Christmas season, and this class of goods is being displayed at the present time.

The death occurred on Thursday of Mrs. John McMulkin, wife of John McMulkin, factory inspector and ex-alderman. Mr. McMulkin also conducts a grocery on Main street, north end. Mrs. McMulkin is survived by her husband, five sons and one daughter.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Demand for Green Fruit Continues Active—Potato Market Brisk—Fish Selling Steadily Under Good Demand.

The fruit markets are steady. Prices have not changed materially. Jamaica oranges are not meeting with a very active demand and consequently the prices are getting easier. Navels are coming in regular shipments. Christmas buying, no doubt, accounts for some of the briskness. Lemons are rather slow. It is reported that the banana crop of Jamaica has been greatly injured by drought, and this fact will, doubtless, have a stiffening effect on the banana market. Cranberries are moving steadily.

Vegetables are rather dull. This, of course, is due in a sense to the nature of the season. Considerable interest is being taken in the potato situation. Prices are firm and the demand is keen for good stock. Imported lettuce and cucumbers are selling well. Business in beets, carrots, cabbage and parsnips is slow.

The approach of Advent is stimulating the demand for fish. Fish dealers report sales as being entirely satisfactory. The demand for oysters is brisk and will continue with the coming of winter. Prices have not changed to any great extent. Smelts are arriving and are of good quality.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Late apples are selling freely at prices which have not materially changed. Demand for oranges is fairly good, grocers and fruit dealers being in the market for holiday supplies. Jamaica oranges are very low. Demand for them is light. Cranberries are moving steadily at old prices. Almeria grapes are in good demand at quotations given below. Lemons are slow. The supply of bananas is not large. It is reported that Jamica this year lost eighteen million stems through drought. High prices are being asked for choice jumbos, some demanding as much as $3.50. This price is rather extreme.

VEGETABLES—Business in vegetables is limited owing to the season. There have been few market changes since last week. Potatoes, good stock, are scarce, and demand for the best is brisk at prices ranging from 90 cents to $1. There are several lots of poor potatoes offering around 80 and 85 cents. Beets, carrots and parsnips are in good supply, but demand is not overly good. Spinach in the barrel is quoted this week. Boston lettuce is easier, as is also horse radish. FISH—With Advent beginning December 1, fish dealers are looking forward to brisk business. Already the nearness of the season is being felt, good sales being reported by various handlers of fish. Grocers are offered a good range in fresh and frozen fish to-day, and are availing themselves of the opportunity given them to stock up early. Smelts and sea herring are two lines selling freely to-day. Yarmouth and St. John bloaters, and new kippered herring are selling well, speaking of smoked fish, while green cod, late arrivals, salt herring, eels, mackerel and sardines are in request in pickled and salted fish. The oyster fishing season being practically over, dealers are urging their customers to buy for Advent immediately. Nice lots of choice oysters are received daily by the larger houses, and are rapidly being distributed over Canada. The price of shell oysters is easier.

GREEN FRUITS—The fruit market remains active. Prices are easier in some fruits. Jamaicas are lower, the demand being rather light. Navals are arriving in fair quantities, notwithstanding the earliness of the season, some very choice grape fruit is on the market at higher prices. Almeria grapes are selling well. Cranberries are in good demand with prices unchanged. Winter apples are rather slow. Some fall apples are still on the market owing to the late season.

VEGETABES — Potatoes remain firm. Very few Delawares are on the market owing to their scarcity and poor sample. Trade in other vegetables is inclined to be slow, due dealers say, to the feeling of hard times. California celery is meeting with a good demand. Some good sound cabbage is on the market. Cauliflowers vary a great deal in quality. Imported cucumbers are a little stiffer. Carrots are lower.

FISH—No important changes are recorded. The demand is active. Prices remain about the same. Oysters are stiffening in price owing to the brisk demand caused by the cold weather. THREE NEW SENATORS.

Two of the Recent Appointees Interested in Provision Business.

The elevation to a seat in the Senate of Archibald Campbell, M.P., for Centre York and President of the Campbell Milling Co., Toronto Junction, has just been officially announced. No appointment in recent times meets with more hearty approbation than this. As a citizen, politician, business man, and gentleman, "Archie" Campbell, as he is familiarly called, has won the esteem and good-will of everyone with whom he has come into contact.

"Archie" Campbell was born in the Township of Howard, County of Kent, on April 27th, 1845. His parents were Scots, being natives of Argyleshire, a circumstance which perhaps helps to explain his success. His education was received at the public and high schools of Kent.

His first taste of public life was obtained in Chatham. Here he served his political apprenticeship in municipal affairs. For several years he was a member of the town council and also represented Chatham in the County Council. He proved to be a valuable member and no doubt this training stood him in good stead on his election to the House of Commons in 1891 and 1896. In the meantime he had removed to Toronto Junction and in 1900 he contested West York ,but unsuccessfully. Upon the death of the Hon. W. Clarke Wallace in 1901 he was elected Liberal member for West York. In 1904 he was elected member for Centre York, the redistribution of the county having wiped out West York for Dominion elections. At Ottawa he has always taken a keen and lively interest in national affairs. He has filled numerous positions in a creditable manner, such as Chairman of the Commission on Banking and Commerce when his intimate knowledge of finance and business proved most helpful.

From the age of fifteen to the present time, Arch. Campbell has been identified with the milling industry. In 1892 he left Chatham and started the Queen City Mills at Toronto Junction. Under careful and skillful management his business made rapid increases until a few years ago it was turned into a joint stock company, the Campbell Milling Co., whose products have mad a name for themselves all over the Dominion.

His life has been singularly successful. And now after many years spent in the turbulent arena of politics, he has obtained a fitting reward for his services. No doubt, in the comparatively peaceful atmosphere of the Senate, "Archie" Campbell will still be found a "warrior worthy of his mettle" and will continue to stamp his individuality on Canadian public life.

In addition to Mr. Campbell, two other Senators have been appointed, the Hon. W. A. Belcourt, and D. Derbyshire. President of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association and ex-M.P. for Brockville.

Daniel Derbyshire is a native of Leeds County and was born in 1846. He early came into close touch with the dairy industry and has made his name famous as an authority on butter and cheese. He has served faithfully in the muncipal life of Brockville and in 1904 was elected to the House of Commons.

Hon. W. A. Belcourt is a native of Toronto, being born in 1860. He received a university education and later took up the study of law in which he was eminently successful. He afterwards removed to Ottawa where, after holding several municipal offices, he was elected to represent one of its divisions in the Liberal interests.

NEW FIRM IN VANCOUVER.

Hudson Bay Co.'s Officer Will Open Wholesale Brokerage Business.

Early in the new year Messrs. F. G. Evans & Co. will open in the wholesale brokerage and commission business in Vancouver, with especial attention to the needs of the wholesale grocery trade. At the present moment Fred. G. Evans, head of the new firm, is in the east making an extended visit to the many wholesale centres of eastern Canada and the United States. He will visit all the principal cities of Canada and many of the U.S. cities, going as far south as New Orleans.

For nearly fifteen years Mr. Evans has been a valued officer of the Hudson's Bay Co. at Vancouver, being connected with the wholesale grocery branch of their business, most of the time being head salesman and buyer. On the occasion of his retirement recently, the fellow-members of the Hudson's Bay Co.'s staff honored Mr. Evans by presenting him with a very handsome onyx and bronze clock, with elaborate candelabra to match. The sterling business worth and valuable services of Mr. Evans to the company were expressed by Mr. Lockyer, the manager, while he spoke of his personal regret at the severance of a connection which had been pleasant throughout.

TRADE PRESS AND THE POST OFFICE

Some Tributes by American P.O. Officials—The Situation in Canada—What The MacLean Newspapers Have Done.

We have several times referred in these columns to the tendency of leading officials in the Canadian Post-office Department to cater to the interests of the big departmental stores and mail order houses. We have pointed out that the present Postmaster-general was not personally to blame for this tendency, but it is a fact that one of his predecessors, Sir William Mulock, was associated with the owners of two of the largest mail order houses in the country in the control of a well-known daily newspaper. A year ago these officials prevailed upon the present Postmaster-general to adopt a C.O.D. system, which, if carried out, would have meant that every postmaster in Canada would have become an agent for a departmental store. The MacLean newspapers drew the attention of the trade to the matter and such a storm of protest arose from manufacturers, wholesale and retail merchants from one end of Canada to the other that he was forced to withdraw it. In doing so he explained and frankly admitted in the House that he was not familiar with the situation, having never been in touch with the trade outside of Montreal.

Quite recently when the new postal rates went into effect betwen Canada and European countries whereby twice the weight could be sent in a letter for the same rate, a leading post-office official in an interview published in one of the dailies, speaking of the great advantages this regulaton would be, referred partcularly to the fact "that it would be a great saving to the departmental stores who sent large orders for goods to Europe."

These officials and the mail order houses do not by any means entertain a friendly feeling towards the MacLean newspapers for having defeated the scheme to make postmasters agents for departmental stores. Recently one of the officials at Ottawa announced his intention of trying to induce the Postmaster-general to make it uncomfortable for the Maclean papers by charging a higher postage on trade newspapers than on any other publications. The departmental stores complain that trade newspapers give so much news and information to the business men in the smaller cities and towns that they are in consequence as much up-to-date as the departmental stores themselves; that the trade newspapers are educating them in the value of advertising and to do as good advertising in the local newspapers as the departmental stores are doing in the big cities, that in consequence consumers are getting more confidence in the local merchants and buying more freely from them instead of developing their trade with the big stores in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

While some of the higher officials in the Canadian Post-office Department have been showing their antipathy to trade newspapers the very opposite views have recently been expressed by the Postmaster-general of the United States and by his Deputy. when addressing a gathering of trade newpaper publishers in Washington recently. Hon. Von L. Meyer, the Postmaster-general, said:

"First of all, I am delighted to have the honor of extending a cordial greeting and welcome to all you gentlemen who are here this evening, and I am pleased to be here to meet you, because I am aware of the great work which you men are doing, not only in extending trade but also in education, and I desire to take this opportunity to say to you that the policy of the department toward your association and its members is absolutely friendly.

"The problems which come up before the department will be taken up and handled carefully by the Third Assistant Postmaster-general, Mr. Lawshe, who is here this evening, and with whom I am heartily in accord. I want to also assure you that similar treatment, under similar conditions, will be accorded to all publishers. As questions arise, they will not be taken up in a bureaucratic manner. Our desire is to carry out the intent of the law and at the same time do justice to the publisher. In turn we ask that you act in good faith, which I am happy to say is the case with rare exceptions.

"The work that the department is doing in the way of transporting and distributing second-class mail matter is stupendous, but it is not a money-making concern, and I want to assure you, from the study which I have made of this subject and the object lessons which I have derived, that it will not be my policy to advocate any increase in rates.

"I said to you that the Post-office Department is not a money-making concern, as that is clearly evident from the deficits, which you are all aware of, which have been shown for the last ten years. At the same time we desire to make in return a dividend to our patrons by giving excellent service and by giving such satisfaction as is possible."

Mr. Meyer further said that he had been urged to extend the parcel posts system and he would recommend some changes but he recognized the rights and importance of the country merchants as compared with the mail order houses and any changes made would be in the interests of the smaller dealers.

Mr. Lawshe, the Assistant Postmaster-general, said:

"I am always glad to meet publishers face to face. I was guilty myself once. I began my career as "devil" in a printing office and worked my way up, or down, as you please, to the proud position of editor and publisher of a country newspaper. It was my custom to receive payment from those who desired to enroll their names on the "legitimate list of subscribers" in anything and everything—pumpkins, apple butter, water elm wood, and, on rare and festive occasions, real money. You will, therefore, understand that I have no prejudice against publishers or publishers' interests.

"The attitude of the Post-office Department toward the trade press is in no way different from its attitude toward other publications, and that general attitude may be said to be one of friendly interest. Trade publications, like other periodicals, have certain rights under the law, and it is the declared purpose of the Postmaster-general and myself to accord to every publisher of this class, as well as every publisher of any class, every right to which he may be lawfully entitled. To deprive any man of a legal right, however insignificant, is to deprive him of his liberty to that extent. The press in general is the one supreme educational factor of our country in disseminating information to the masses, and for that reason Congress in its wisdom saw fit to establish for the press a rate of postage lower than that accorded to any other class of mail matter.

"I recognize that the trade press is peculiarly educational, and that it is a powerful factor in trade and commerce. There is no higher plane of usefulness in journalism than that occupied by some of the great engineering, manufacturing and other technical periodicals of our day, which search the world for things new and useful to place before their readers. The trade press has been fitly designated "the great clearing house and equalizer of technical information." In their true sphere such papers are the legitimate product of business needs and conditions, and if they fail to meet those needs and conditions it is their fate to die the death of the unworthy' In the true sense they are "specialized publicity," invaluable to their respective constituencies. Congress must have taken this view of the matter, and rewarded the trade press with favor, when it gave to it special mention and distinct recognition in the law covering the admission of newspapers and periodicals to the second-class of mail matter.

"After specifying certain conditions upon which a publication shall be admitted to the second-class, such as regularity of issue as often as four times a year from a known office of publication, and that they must be formed of printed paper sheets not having substantial bindings such as distinguished periodicals from printed books for preservation, the law further provides that a publication to be admissible must be originated and published for the dissemination of information of a public character, or be devoted to literature, the sciences or some special industry. I conceive that this language as used by the law makers had no other purpose than to place the trade press—that portion of the press devoted to special industries—on the same footing as the press devoted to public information, or the arts and sciences. Gentlemen, I believe that in these statements I have established the eminent respectability of the trade press and defended its right to move in good society."

NEW CUSTOM HOUSE.

Montreal to Get $3,000,000 for New Site and Building.

Owing to the inadequacy of the present custom house, there is to be a new building erected on Lower McGill St. Deeds have been signed transferring from the Grey Nuns to the Dominion Government, an area of 67,800 square feet of land, for the sum of $402,000. It is reported that the entire cost of the land and building to be erected thereon will amount of $3,000,000, thus making the new custom house one of the most handsome government buildings in Canada.

At present the custom house fronts on Place Royale, Youville, Common and Callieres Sts., and the examining warehouse is at the corner of Common and McGill Sts. Recently the top storey of the custom house was severely injured by fire. However, this was not the cause of the purchase on McGill St., as the project of a new custom house for Montreal has been under way for some time.

SHOULD CONSIDER THE RETAILER

Manufacturers and Wholesalers Cannot Ignore the Man Behind the Counter—Instances of Disaster Through Negligence of This Principle.

The following article from a recent issue of the New York Journal of Commerce should be read with interest not only by wholesalers and manufacturers to whom it seemed to be originally directed, but also by the man behind the counter, to whom it will give some very valuable information:

Advertisers—that is, advertisers who do any serious thinking along the lines of the psychological effects of advertising—will do well to consider some of the utterances of the Los Angeles Commercial Bulletin regarding the recent collapse of the "Force" and "H. O." concern. It may not all be accepted without debate, but it is worth considering for the thought it contains. Among the statements are these:

"The retail grocers of the United States, nearly 200,000 strong, contributed more than any other one element to the $2,760,000 failure. The Force and H.O. companies reckoned without the retailer. They regarded him as a necessary though objectionable element in distribution; an element to be used but not respected. And they have failed.

The consumer demanded Force, and the retailer was forced to stock it. He bought at $4.25 to $4.50 a three-dozen case, and sold it at two-for-a-quarter, making a margin of profit which would bankrupt him if it represented the margin on all of his grocery sales. For a time he was defenseless. The sales managers for Force depended on just one thing for this success—advertising ..to the consumer. They concluded that an advertising-made demand for Force represented all that was necessary.

A Pertinent Lesson.

The lesson to be drawn from this by other manufacturers is that the retailer must be reckoned with. He is the biggest single element in the trade.

He can dictate the manufacture and sale of things about as powerfully as any other class. He can buy what and where he pleases, and if he does not like one line he can turn it aside and take up some other more to his liking."

Whether it be just to attribute all the troubles of the "H.O." people to the antagonism of the trade or not in this particular instance is immaterial for the purpose of this argument. But there is back of it a thought which every advertiser ought to consider—must consider eventually—if he is to get results from his advertising. That thought is, that "the man behind the counter is the man who sells the goods," and it is as true of the jobber, perhaps, more so, than of the retailer. In modern advertising the manufacturers appear to have completely forgotten this fact, and have gone mad on this one fad of "advertising to the consumer."

That there is merit in advertising to the consumer there can be no reasonable doubt. It is equally true that on a new commodity there is an educational effect from advertising to the consumer which is valuable in introducing the new goods. But, alas, the resulting demand is generally one of mere curiosity, which fades away about the time the grocer has stocked up. If there is any effect at all from advertising of that sort, it is as effective for the next new-comer as for the first. And in breakfast foods, which nowadays come trooping down the defile in daily phalanx, the invasion becomes to the average grocer an intolerable nuisance and graveyard for his capital. He is heartily disgusted with advertising-fed artificial demand.

Then there is the manufacturer who feels so confident of his ability to force the grocer to take his goods that he boasts of the fact, takes all the profit and doesn't care a rap for the grocer. He is using the fickle public as a bludgeon with which to bulldoze the trade into submission. He relies on the claim that his goods are "the only genuine," when as a matter of fact, it is quite likely the self-same goods are being sold by some grocer under another label. His tyrannical attitude merely places a premium on substitution by the grocer at the first opportunity. And he has only himself to blame. He has really been a foe to the grocer and a deceiver of the public. And you can't fool all the public all the time.

As against this, contrast for a minute a logical advertising campaign which will become effective because it is natural and sound. If a manufacturer expects his products to take a permanent stand on the market, he must reckon with two elements of trade—the wholesaler and the retailer—as well as the consuming public. The manufacturer who is wise will make his peace and friendship with both alike, and will share with each a reasonable profit in payment for his share in marketing the manufacturer's wares. The wisest students of the art of merchandising to-day have agreed that the true tide of success lies along the logical channel of the jobber and the retailer. Here and there an eddy which cuts out one or both may reach its goal, but the great deep irresistible tide runs smoothly in the recognized channels, and a cargo on such a stream will reach its goal more safely than it will when threatened by rocks of antagonism.

Co-operation Necessary.

The manufacturer who can win the co-operation of the jobber need have no concern about the fate of his goods. The jobber, with his corps of salesmen his economical and co-operative facilities for handling many lines, his knowledge of local conditions, his recognized influence with the retailers, the obligation, perhaps, which the retailer owes him for past favors, his knowledge of financial circumstances—all these are the possession of the manufacturer who will win to his cause the jobber. It is of far more value than any conceivable demand from the consumer that may last a few hours or days, and then fade away with the advent of a cleverer scheme.

Advertising to the consumer, or even to the retailer, is well enough in its way and may possibly be worth what it costs if applied with intelligence. But the average manufacturer rushes pellmell into a wild furore of billboard and barn door advertising which amuses rather than convinces the public. He stands in front of the grocer's shop and yells in a tone of mingled egotism and defiance without once thinking of going in and talking it over with the grocer seriously. How much more effectively might he spend some of his appropriation if he would appeal directly to the trade, the jobber and retailer alike, select reputable, trustworthy newspapers which actually reach the trade, print in them plain trade arguments, which will appeal to the grocer as a business man, show him where his interests and the manufacturer's may alike be subserved, talk dollars and cents to him. If there is real merit in the goods and the proposition, the intelligent grocer will listen. And once won an outlet of that kind will last a lifetime, many lifetimes. It was advertising of this stamp, backed by real merit in the goods, which placed some of the staples of the grocery trade in positions many years ago from which no end of clap-trap clamor of recent times has been able to shake them. Any grocer can recall a score of them in a minute.

The great mistake made by the average large advertiser is that he spends his resources clamoring at the front door of consumption, totally forgetting that there is a back door which is quite likely to lead directly into the confidential office of the trade. Carrying one's eggs all in one basket is a bad practice. There is more than one way to create a demand, and the perpetual campaign of advertising to the consumer has been very much overdone. Remember that "the man behind the counter is the man who sells the goods," and always will!

ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION.

The Commercial Travelers' Benefit Society of Western Ontario met in the Temple Building, London, on Saturday, November 16th, for the nomination of officers. The peculiar result was reached that all officers were elected by acclamation, as follows: President, Robert Tait; first vice-president, J. M. Ferguson; second vice-president, F. E. Harley; treasurer, A. Anderson, London; secretary, Alfred Robinson, London.

The retirinf president, A. Anderson, who presided, delivered a short address, in which he complimented the association on its prosperous condition. A large number of new members, he stated, had been secured, and after paying all death claims, the reserve fund would be increased by almost $2,500.

The Totals Only of the Accounts Are Posted in the Ledger

The old, slow and laborious method of posting every item of an account from the day book to the ledger is agreeably missing in the Crain Monthly Account System.

By the Crain method the accounts are written up in duplicate daily from the counter check books or blotter—always up to date.

At the end the month, or other regular periods of rendering, the originals are torn out and sent to the customers, the duplicates removed and filed on a separate binder, and the total monthly balance only posted in the ledger.

Just think of that for economy of time and labor. Glad to mail our folder, "The Retail Dealer's Friend," with complete information.

The Need Supplied

Many grocers have felt the need for a check book that had a white paper and a colored paper—one for originals, the other for duplicates. The is just that kind of book. It is made in various sizes too. You will find the book of much service to you.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

BATGER'S

Machine-cut Mixed Peel

In ½-lb. and 1-lb. Drums.

Prepared and packed by machinery, thus ensuring cleanliness and uniformity.

Saves time, trouble and loss of weight.

The three kinds of Peel, Lemon, Orange and Citron, properly blended, are all cut ready for immediate use. If you once sell this line to your customers they will always ask for it, because every housewife likes BATGER'S Machine-Cut Peel, once she uses it. Your profit is sure and substantial. Ask your jobber for it. In ½ and 1-lb drums.

BRADSTREET'S

Capital and Surplus, $1,500,000. Offices Throughout the Civilized World
Executive Offices: Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New York City, U.S.A.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY gathers information that reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances of every seeker of mercantile credit. Its business may be defined as of the merchants, by the merchants, for the merchants. In procuring, verifying and promulgating information no effort is spared, and no reasonable expense considered too great, that the results may justify its claims as an authority on all matters affecting commercial affairs and mercantile credit. Its offices and connections have been steadily extended, and it furnishes information concerning mercantile persons throughout the civilized world.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished, and are available only by reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns, and by responsible and worthy financial, fiduciary and business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices. Correspondence invited.

The Bloomfield Packing Co.

at Bloomfield, Ont.

You can form NO JUDGMENT OF THE FUTURE

Except FROM YOUR EXPERIENCE IN THE PAST

YET in spite of UNPROFITABLE EXPERIENCE many grocers keep on LOADING UP with EVERY NEW PACKET TEA that is offered and pushed upon them. Some of these teas they have stocked every two or three years, ONLY to have FORMER UNPROFITABLE EXPERIENCES REPEATED. If you buy them at all, why not on the same terms as "SALADA," viz., "Money back if it doesn't sell."

INSIST UPON THIS ON YOUR INVOICE

Thousands of wide-awake, up-to-date grocers are cheerfully sharing in the profitable and ever increasing sale of

to the exclusion of all other brands. ARE YOU ?

We will be pleased to hear from you.

Has A Customer Ever Asked You

if you will guarantee the goodness of a can of preserved vegetable you were selling her? In many cases it would be a risky thing for you to guarantee canned goods. But there is one brand which you may safely guarantee every time. A brand which never disappoints either you or your customer. That brand is

Old Homestead Brand

"The Brand of Unparalleled Excellence"

Old Homestead has not attained its pre-eminence by chance. Neither has it attained it by mere publicity. There is a foundation of honest goods—vegetables and fruits of the very soundest variety—honest methods, and a factory sanitary and up-to-date in its appointments, that the visit of the government inspector occasions no extra cleanings-up and glossings over. We are ready for inspection at any time and at all times.

It will pay you well to insist that your jobber ship you the Old Homestead Brand!

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

Allison Coupon Books

Eliminate the Non-essentials

Many a business man is so loaded down with details that his really important problems can receive only secondary consideration.

This condition is overcome in any mercantile house by the adoption of the Allison Coupon system. With it, accounts are kept better and more accurately, at about one-tenth the usual cost.

THE PLAN

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

THE CANADIAN GROCER'S Christmas Competitions

Window Dressing Contest

Almost every grocer devotes a little extra attention to Window Dressing at the Christmas holiday season. And this is a form of advertising which is certain to bring good results. With a view to improving the windows of our subscribers and to show what may be done along this line, THE CANADIAN GROCER has arranged this contest.

This year, however, as a new departure, contestants will be divided into two classes :

I. Grocers and Grocery Clerks in city stores ;

II. Grocers and Grocery Clerks in stores in the country districts.

Prizes of $7 and $3

For each class first and second prizes of $7 and $3 are offered, $20 in all.

To enter the contest, send a fair sized photograph of one or more of your Christmas windows, with a description of it and the name of the person who dressed it, to us. The contest will close on December 31st.

A competent judge will make the awards, and the results will be announced, together with reproductions of the best windows, early in the new year.

Address photograph to Editor CANADIAN GROCER ; mark, " Window Dressing Contest."

Best Advertisement Contest

For some years this paper has been publishing articles telling its readers how best to advertise, and emphasizing the fact that their own home newspapers are the most effective medium. We want to find out how much good you have received from these hints and criticisms and to that end have arranged this contest.

Most up-to-date grocers, even those who use newspaper space at no other time in the year, advertise to a greater or less extent at the Christmas season. Every one of our subscribers who does should enter this contest. A prize of $5 is offered for the best advertisement from a Canadian newspaper.

Prize of $5

The advertisement should be about groceries, confectionery, etc., for the holiday season. All that is necessary is to forward clipping from local paper to us, with the name of the advertisement-writer. The award will be made by our advertising specialists and will be announced, with a reproduction of the prize advertisement, early in January. Contest closes December 31st.

If you have not yet arranged for your Christmas advertising, do so at once, and send in one of the best advertisements to us for entry in this contest.

Address advertisement to Editor CANADIAN GROCER ; mark, "Advertisement Contest."

The New Franco-Canadian Treaty

Details of New Tariff as Affecting Grocery Trade—Gives France Benefit of Canadian Intermediate Tariff and Admits Our Manufacturers to France on Equally Favorable Terms.

The terms of the new Franco-Canadian treaty, which was brought down in the Dominion House last Thursday, are of particular interest to the grocery trade in general.

The old treaty gave to Canada in the French market minimum tariff rates on a few articles, chiefly products of the fisheries and forest. It gave to France in the Canadian market special rates of duty on a few French specialties of which the most important were champagnes and wines.

What France Gets.

The new treaty gives to France in Canadian markets the benefit of the Canadian intermediate tariff on ninety-eight tariff items. In addition to those, concessions below the intermediate tariff are granted to France on a few French specialties. Canned vegetables, except tomatoes, are to bear duty at one cent per pound; anchovies, sardines, etc., two cents per box. Olive oil, fifteen per cent. ad valorem.

In several of these cases the duties are the same as in the British preferential tariff, and in one or two cases they are lower than the rates of the British preferential tariff. But these are cases in which Britain does not produce the goods. In any case where the British preferential rate is higher, it follows that it will be reduced to the rates of the French treaty.

How Canada Benefits.

Canada is to enjoy the benefit of the French market at rates of duty in the French minimum tariff upon 132 tariff items. These include nearly all the products of the farm, meats, fish, wood goods, pulp, paper, and a considerable line of manufactured goods, some of which are already exported from Canada and others are of a class which might in the future be exported.

In the case of a number of these items, which are printed in italics in the treaty as brought down, the rates of the French minimum tariff are the same as the rates of the French general tariff, but, by putting them in the list, Canada is assured the benefit of any reduction which may hereafter be made on such items. In the old treaty Canada received guarantees of favored nation treatment in France as respects the particular articles mentioned in the treaty, while France, on the other hand, received guarantees of favored nation treatment in all tariff and commercial matters. In the new treaty the conditions are more reciprocal. France received favored nation treatment in Canada, not on everything as before, but on the list of articles mentioned in the schedule. Canada receives favored nation treatment in France on all the articles mentioned in the schedules. In the old treaty the benefit of the reduced rates on Canadian products was limited to such articles when sent to France by direct ship, while France received the concessions on the articles named coming into Canada irrespective of route.

In the new treaty the conditions are reciprocal. Canada receives the benefit of the concessions on all goods mentioned in the schedules sent to France by direct ship. If the goods mentioned in the schedules be sent indirectly by way of a country enjoying the benefit of the French minimum tariff, the minimum tariff will still apply, subject, however, to a special tax as hereinafter mentioned, France receives the benefit of the concessions on all goods mentioned in the schedules when conveyed direct to Canada without transhipment, or by way of a country enjoying either the preferential or intermediate tariff In the case of all shipments from non-European countries which go to France indirectly, France has for some years imposed a special tax known as the "surtaxe d'entrepot." Canada in the treaty receives the right to impose a similar tax on French goods coming directy.

Details of New Tariff.

Schedules A and B of the treaty are the two most important departments of the convention which will affect Canadian and French trade mutually. The items in these departments which will affect the grocery trade are given herewith.

Schedule A includes Canadian products which will enjoy the benefit of the minimum tariff, as follows:

Horses, steers, bullocks and heifers, fresh meats, mutton, pork, beef.

Meat, salted-pork (ham, bacon, etc.), beef.

Pork, butchers' produce.

Poultry, dead.

Meat, preserved in tins, extracts of meat in cakes or otherwise.

Animal fat, other than fish oils; tallow, lard.

Eggs, of poultry or game.

Milk condensed, pure. Milk, condensed, with addition of sugar. Milky farina, with an addition of sugar.

Cheese, butter, salted.

Honey, boneblack (animal black).

Fish, fresh, fresh water, of the salmon family; other fresh sea fish.

Fish, dried, salted or smoked; cod (including klippfish), stock fish, herrings.

Fish, preserved 'au naturel,'' pickled or otherwise prepared.

Lobsters, fresh, preserved "au naturel," or prepared.

Fish oils, spermacetti, roe or cod and mackerel.

Wheat, spelt and meslin.

Grain, flour. Oats, grain, meal. Barley, grain, meal. Rye, grain, meal. Maize, grain, meal. Buckwheat, grain, meal.

Malt, groats grits (coarse flour), pearled or cleaned grain. Millet, hulled or cleaned. Pulse, beans decorticated or broken whole, in clusters or pods. Bean meal. Chick peas (pois pointus), other in the grain, decorticated; in flour.

Potatoes.

Table fruits, fresh; apples and pears; for table use, for cider and perry; peaches.

Table fruits, dried or drained; apples and pears for table use, for cider and perry; peaches.

Table fruits, candied or preserved.

Luzern and clover seed.

Syrups, bon bons, and candied fruits.

Preserves, manufactured with sugar or honey, without sugar or honey.

Vegetables, fresh, salted or pickled, preserved or dried.

Spirits, mineral waters (receptacles included).

Schedule B is the list of goods of French origin which are granted the benefit of the Intermediate Tariff of Canada. This tariff is in no cases lower than, and in most cases slightly higher than, the British Preferential Tariff of Canada. In several cases it is identical with the General Tariff, and a number of articles on which the Intermediate and General Tariffs are thus identical are included in the schedule.

The Special Tariff.

Schedule C includes French products enjoying the benefit of a special tariff. Vegetables, tomatoes excepted, including baked beans, in cans, or other air-tight packages, n.o.p., the weight of cans or other packages to be included in the weight for duty per pound. Duties 1 cent.

Anchovies, sardines, sprats, and other fish packed in oil, or otherwise, in tin boxes, the weight of the tin box to be included in the weight for duty; (C), when weighing over eight ounces, and not over twelve ounces each, per box, duties 2 cents.

Wines, of the fresh grape, of all kinds, not sparkling, imported in barrels or in bottles; (A), containing 20 per cent. or less proof spirit (1) per gallon, duties 15 cents, (B), containing more than 20 per cent, (1) and not more than 23 per cent. proof spirit (2) per idem, duties 20 cents; (C), containing more than 26 per cent. of proof spirit per idem, duties 25 cents. For each degree in excess of 26 per cent. of proof spirit, until the strength reaches 40 per cent. of proof spirit, duties three cents. Provided that six quarts (three) bottles, or twelve pints (four) bottles shall be held to contain a gallon for duty purposes under this item.

Champagne and all other sparkling wines in bottles, containing (A) not more than a quart, but more than a pint, old wine measure (per dozen bottles, duties $3.30 (B) not more than a pint, but more than one-half pint (old wine measure) per idem, duties $1.65; (C) one half-pint or less per idem, duties two cents; (D) over one quart (old wine measure) per gallon, duties $1.50.

Old and New Tariffs Compared.

The table below shows how the rates on goods included under schedule B will compare with both the Preference and the General Tariffs:

Silverware, nickel-plated ware, etc.	22½ p.c.	30 p.c.	35 p.c.

Some Local Opinions.

Business men generally seem to be pretty well pleased with the terms of the new convention. The opinions of several Toronto wholesalers and manufacturers are given herewith:

Hugh Blain, of the Eby, Blain Co., wholesale grocers, speaks favorably of the new treaty. In his estimation there is a decided improvement in the tariff as it affects such imports from France as canned vegetables, canned fruits, nuts of all kinds, olives, sardines, French prunes and dried fruits. Wholesale grocers would be in a position to discover its advantages quicker than other classes. By the new treaty a substantial reduction will result in the prices of some goods. Sardines are down half a cent per pound, olives, which were twenty per cent. are now fifteen per cent. He expresses himself as quite satisfied with the outcome of the arrangement and looks to an increased business in French goods in view of the probable reduction in prices.

C. B. Watts, secretary of the Dominion Millers' Association, does not believe that the new treaty will affect the milling industry to any appreciable extent, owing to the fact that flour and such grain products are not in the list. Canadian trade with France has never been of any importance in regard to the importing or exporting of cereals, for France has always been in a peculiar situation under her tariff. She placed a high tariff on our grain, but returned the duty to the dealer if he exported an equivalent to us. The result of this unusual relation was that the importer of our hard wheat in France always saw to it that he exported to us an equivalent value of his soft wheat. Our position has never been very satisfactory and the situation will not be materially changed under the new treaty.

Jas. T. Maddon, president and general manager of the T. Ryan Co., produce merchants, is of the opinion that owing to the high prices ruling in the home market, the French market is impossible for the Canadian farmer. There is a good market for our poultry in England but the scarcity of fowl prevents it being adequately developed. Instead of exporting butter shipments have been brought in from Ireland and Denmark. At the prices prevailing at present there is no desire on the farmer's part to seek a market in France. However, there is a good chance for developing the meat trade with that country.

J. W. Flavelle, general manager of the Wm. Davies Co., wholesale meat packers, is emphatic in his belief that the packing trade with France will be greatly strengthened under the new treaty. He says that his firm some years ago built up a considerable business in hams in France, but under a rearrangement of the French tariff 3 or 4 years ago his firm had been obliged to vacate the French market. While the French trade was by no means extensive, yet it fitted in nicely with their general export trade. They had learned that a particular cut of ham was a favorite in France, and sent them to Ireland to be cured and smoked and shipped from thence to France as Canadian hams. The result was that a satisfactory business was built up. Just when they were finding a good market in France, the tariff on Canadian hams was made 25 per cent., while English and Danish hams continued to go in at 12 per cent. This practically destroyed the firm's French market. Under the new treaty it is highly probable that they shall get this lost trade back again and it may lead to a widening of the market.

ONTARIO CROP REPORT.

Department's Returns Show Decreases in Everything Except Potatoes.

Ontario's oat crop this year was nearly 25,000,000 bushels less than it was in 1906, according to figures compiled by the Provincial Agricultural Department, as embodied in the fall crop report.

The following is a statement of areas and yields of crops for 1907 and 1906 respectively:

Fall Wheat — 15,545,491 bushels, against 18,841,771.

Spring Wheat — 2,473,651 bushels, against 3,267,000.

Oats—83,524,301 bushels, against 108,341,455.

Barley—21,718,332 bushels, against 25,253,011.

Rye—1,081,706 bushels, against 1,397,582.

Buckwheat—2,546,468 bushels, against 1,792,903.

Beans—790,269 bushels, against 950,312.

Peas—7,365,036, against 7,388,987.

Potatoes—20,907,803 bushels, against 15,020,290.

Turnips—48,205,605 bushels, against 57,060,151.

Corn for husking (bushels in the ear) —22,287,931 bushels, against 23,088,682.

Corn for forage (green)—2,029,547 tons, against 2,149,413.

Hay and Clover—3,891,863 tons, against 4,684,625.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL

The ninetieth annual general meeting of the Shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held in the Board Room of the institution yesterday, at noon.

There were present :—Sir George Drummond, K.C.M.G., president ; Mr. E. S. Clouston, vice-president and general manager ; Sir William C. Macdonald, Sir Robert G. Reid, Hon. Robert Mackay, Messrs. James Ross, R. B. Angus, A. T. Patterson, James Croil, W. H. Evans, R. C. Fisher, A. C. Lyman, H. W. Aird, W. B. Blackader, C. J. Fleet, K.C.; James Kirby, K.C.; E. Goff Penny, James Tasker, G. F. C. Smith, Henry Dobell, Richard White, Huntley Drummond, F. S. Lyman, K.C.; M. S. Foley, B. A. Boas, R. W. Shepherd, Henry Mason, William Stanway, B. Dawson, A. G. Watson.

On motion of Mr. R. B. Angus, Sir George Drummond, President, was unanimously voted to the chair, and after this, it was resolved : "That the following be appointed to act as scrutineers ; Messrs. F. S. Lyman, K. C.; and G. F. C. Smith ; and that Mr. James Aird be secretary of the meeting."

Mr. E. S. Clouston then submitted the report of the Directors as follows :

THE DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors have pleasure in presenting the Report showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 31st October, 1907.

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 31st October, 1906		$ 159,831 84

Dividend, 2½ per cent., paid 1st September, 1907	360,000 00
Dividend, 2½ per cent., payable 1st December, 1907	360,000 00
		1,440,000 00
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$699,969 88

Since the last Annual Meeting Branches have been opened at Medicine Hat, Alta., and Charlottetown, P.E.I., and sub-Agencies at Chilliwack, B.C., Summerland, B.C., Rosenfeld, Man., Westminster Avenue (Vancouver), Hull, P.Q., St. Roch's (Quebec), Maryville, N.B., and Dundas Street, (Toronto). Arrangements have also been made for opening a Branch at Prince Rupert, B.C.

On 20th April last the Bank acquired the business of the People's Bank, of New Brunswick, at Fredericton, N.B.

All the Offices of the Bank, including the Head Office, have been inspected during the past year.

G. A. DRUMMOND,
President. Bank of Montreal,
Montreal, 2nd December, 1907.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The Vice-President then spoke as follows:

There is not much in the General Statement, laid before you, calling for special comment. Deposits not bearing interest have temporarily increased since last year $5,200,000. Deposits bearing interest have decreased $9,000,000; partly through the withdrawal of funds for railway construction and partly owing to our depositors making more permanent investments in securities at the present tempting low prices. There has been, however, a satisfactory and general increase in our regular deposit business through the entire Dominion. To meet the special withdrawals and to provide for the increase in our current loans in Canada, we have reduced our call loans in other countries $6,400,000. Our profits have been satisfactory, showing $1,180,000, as against $1,797,000 last year. The Bank Premises Account remains at the nominal amount of $600,000. Every year a certain expenditure will be made on this account, and I do not see that any good object will be served by increasing the figure at which it stands.

Early in the year, in view of the approaching stringency in the money markets of the world, we slightly advanced our rates of discount, not so much with a desire to increase our profits, but more to give a practical indication to our customers of our expectations of the trend of financial affairs, and to impress upon them that in the conduct of their business they must bear it in mind, and govern themselves accordingly.

The stringency is largely the result of universal prosperity, and as a natural consequence the world has been spending more and saving less. This state of affairs will cure itself by retrenchment. When it comes suddenly, as it usually does, it brings many hardships, but we well eventually reach a much better and sounder basis, though the process may be, in the meantime, somewhat unpleasant. Still, in Canada, where we have been exceptionally prosperous for several years we can stand a temporary reverse without serious consequences, and I do not look for a reaction on anything like the scale which we experienced in previous similar epochs.

Owing to the lateness of the crop in the Northwest, the approaching closing of lake navigation, and the fact that a considerable portion of the wheat was low grade, a fear was expressed in some quarters that sufficient funds would not be forthcoming to satisfy the abnormal pressure to move the crop promptly. To meet this, the Government asked the banks to co-operate with them in assisting the export of wheat as rapidly as possible. The joint action has had the desired effect, the crop is now being forwarded in a normal way, and there are buyers for all grades of wheat in the market. There is one factor in the condition of affairs in the Northwest which must not be lost sight of, and that is the large amount of low grade wheat in this year's crop, making it a much more risky one for exporters to handle, and rendering it necessary for banks to be more careful in granting credits.

I wish to allude briefly to some criticism which has recently been made in the press respecting the practice of Canadian banks in keeping a portion of their reserves in other countries. The aggregate of call and current loans by the banks elsewhere than in Canada, approximating at times $100,000,000, has been cited as evidence that these institutions are not serving the needs of Canadian borrowers as freely as they might, were all the money loaned in this country. In the first place, let me point out that a year ago, when these loans abroad, in England, the United States and other countries amounted to $96,000,000, the banks had deposits made with their foreign branches of $55,000,000; so that the actual net amount of foreign loans was only some $41,000,000. Every dollar of this money is loaned on call at short date, upon the most ample security. It constitutes a part of the reserves of Canadian banks. If to-morrow we were to call in the whole of our loans of this class, which are at all times immediately available. the mercantile public of Canada would derive absolutely no benefit from the action. Being a portion of our reserves, the choice given the bank is between retaining the money unproductive in its vaults, or lending it at call upon interest in foreign financial centres. We adopt the latter alternative, as being in the interest not alone of the shareholders, but of the commercial community of Canada.

Let me illustrate this by a concrete case. A year ago the banks had $96,000,000 loaned abroad; to-day these loans amount to $73,200,000, a reduction of $23,000,000. In the same period current loans in Canada have been enlarged by $48 000,000, and the cash reserves have been increased upwards of $5,000,000; that is to say, as occasion warranted the banks have drawn upon their reserves abroad to meet requirements at home, and have carried on the process with as much facility as if the reserves had been stored in their own vaults. Assume that these call loans on readily realizable securities protected by ample margins, had been in the same markets in Canada, and that the money was required for commercial purposes, does anyone suppose that the sudden calling in of the loans would not have been attended by most baneful effects? In making such loans here we would probably have enhanced local stock market values unduly, to be followed by a sharp collapse and serious losses upon their sudden withdrawal. The employment by Canadian banks of a portion of their reserves in call loans abroad is not a new policy. It has prevailed from the beginning of our banking, and is in the interests alike of bank shareholders and bank depositors.

I wish also to correct another erroneous impression which appears to have crept into the public mind, and that is, that in consequence of the financial condition in the United States our loans are tied up and the money cannot be brought into Canada. I have no hesitation in saying that there has been no time during the present crisis when we could not realize all our call loans in the United States, and transfer the proceeds to England, whence we could easily import gold here if it should be considered advisable. But as we know how liquid and available they are, we continue to retain all that is not needed here, both as part of our reserves and as a valuable aid to our international exchanges.

E. S. CLOUSTON,
General Manager.

Bank of Montreal,
Montreal, 31st October, 1907.

THE PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

The President, in moving the adoption of the directors report, said:

Our review would be imperfect without reference to the startling financial collapse which has taken place in the neighboring Republic. It first evidenced itself in the decline in values of stocks and securities of all kinds and this shrinkage, before long, assumed unexampled proportions as the supply of credit for speculation failed. The distrust spread to banks and trust companies, and was duly followed by the hoarding of currency, and, of course, a serious interference with ordinary commercial transactions and undertakings. As a result of this declination of credit, the suspension or failure of several important financial institutions ensued.

Following, as this reverse did, on a period of unexampled prosperity and inflation, during which credit was abundant, capital poured forth freely, with in consequence a more or less general rise in the price of commodities and labor, when sound principles of finance were forgotten, and fictitious capital created to an enormous extent, it was only consistent with all previous experience, and apparently inevitable, that a reaction should come. To this result, various causes contributed. Among the most prominent was a wave of distrust and hostility to corporations and capital, which seems to have passed over the United States, and for which some justification was given by the management of some great companies within its borders. This hostility to corporations, to my view, merely hastened the coming and added to the violence of a collapse, bound to come anyway.

Strangely enough, the hostility to which I refer has manifested itself strongly against railways, in spite of the fact that railways on this continent have been constructed and are operated at least as cheaply and efficiently as anywhere in the world, with a consequent preponderating influence on the development of the country and a substantial assistance in raising the price receivable by the agriculturalists for their produce.

No doubt all these disturbing conditions may be expected to pass away and normal and saner views once more rule, and it must not be overlooked that all the present trouble leaves the resources of that country practically undiminished and its powers of recuperation unimpaired.

Here in Canada we have escaped most, if not all, of the troubles of our neighbors. The collapse in stocks has, no doubt, affected many investors, but beyond a certain tightening of the money market and advancing interest, I see no evidence of serious ill effects. The banks have been acting with caution and reserve, which is eminently proper with a conflagration raging next door; but, as the detailed review which follows will show, consumptive demand has been good, and the excellent business of the early part of the year has shown little abatement up to the present time.

Woollens—A good volume of trade in imported goods; our home mills not flourishing under increasing importations.

Boots and Shoes—The advance in leather has left insufficient margin, and spring trade is expected to be short.

Lumber—Exports to Great Britain have fallen off, though the total exports may exceed $30,000,000. The limitation of credit will affect the winter's output, which is expected to be considerably curtailed, and wages are declining accordingly. The demand for pulpwood for the United States continues, and offsets the diminished trade in other directions.

Iron and Hardware—The total business large, symptoms of retrenchment now apparent.

Chemicals—Report an increase of 10 to 20 per cent. over last year.

Grocery trade—Large trade with fair profits, with, however, the usual lull at this season.

Dry goods trade has been good, though, in common with other business, a lessening is now visible.

Cotton manufacturers have had a busy season, and largely exceed 1906.

The failures of the year do not show a material difference from 1906, being for the whole country 1,187 in number, with liabilities, $10,259,512, as against 1,257, wth liabilities, $9,954,821 for the year 1906.

Notwithstanding reduced crops, the farmer is being recouped by higher prices: 25 to 28 cents per bushel for wheat; 16 to 17 cents per bushel for corn; 14 cents per bushel for peas; 15 to 16 cents per bushel for oats; $4 to $5 per ton for hay. Against this must be set the fact that poor crops ruled in this province and feed of all kinds is scarce and dear.

The shipping interests have participated in the general prosperity of the country. The passenger traffic has been large, both eastbound and westbound, and of all classes—cabin, intermediate and steerage. A noteworthy feature is that numbers of the latter, who, being immigrants in the spring, become emigrants in the autumn, with the intention merely of spending the winter with their kindred and of returning to their work with the advent of spring. The volume of import traffic has been large, and freight rates remunerative. The volume of export traffic has also been large, but freight rates have ruled low. Altogether it may be said that the oversea trade with British and continental ports has been profitable to the shipowner.

Canada has experienced a decade of remarkable commercial expansion. Ten years ago our total foreign trade on the basis of imports for home consumption and domestic exports, amounted to $234,926,000; in 1907, on the same basis, it reached $571,783,000, showing an increase of no less than 143 per cent. According to the census of 1901, our population was 5,370,000, and in the six years which have since elapsed the returns show some 930,000 immigrants to have entered the country for settlement, and adding to these the natural increment, our population to-day is approximately 6,600,000, representing a gain of 23 per cent., as compared with a gain of 143 per cent. in foreign trade. These figures indicate an extraordinary period of commercial development, perhaps unparalleled in any other country.

Domestic trade, measured by the amount of currency in circulation, is seen to have experienced a similar expansion. In ten years the circulation of Dominion notes of small denominations has risen from $7,560,000 to 16,430,000, or upwards of 100 per cent., while the bank note circulation has expanded from $36,000,000 to $84 290,000, or 135 per cent. These returns are certainly most gratifying, indicating the great natural wealth of the Dominion, the capacity and enterprise of our people.

That the trade has proved profitable and contributed to the enrichment of all classes, the public deposits in the banks, chartered, Government and savings, attest. Since 1897 the aggregate of these deposits has mounted up from $270,000,000 to $677,400,000, and in the last six years the deposits of the public in the banks have increased from $74 per head of population to $103 per head.

This is the bright side of the shield; what of the reverse? We have had, the country over, a somewhat unfavorable year for agriculture. Inclement weather has reduced the product of cereals, hay and feed, below the normal, and the important dairy output has also been diminished. Higher prices of farm products of all kinds prevail, and it is believed that the higher prices will compensate the farmer for the lessened supply.

The foreign trade balance is running somewhat heavily against Canada. In the five years, 1898-1902 inclusive, the excess of our imports over exports of domestic products was only $25,250,000, the smallest adverse balance of trade in the history of Canada in a like period. In the five years elapsed since 1902 the value of imports for home consumption has exceeded the value of domestic exports by no less than $291,850,000, and in the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1907, the excess of imports was $118,760,000, the greatest in our history. This balance has to be liquidated sooner or later. Foreign loans assist materially in the process, and in the nature of things Canada will borrow largely in the future to carry on the development of her resources. The condition of the foreign money markets may, however, temporarily check the flow of capital into this country, and reduce somewhat the activity of enterprises which contribute to the commercial industrial prosperity of Canada.

A good deal depends on the duration of dear money in the financial centres of the world and, not having the gift of prophecy, I refrain from expressing any opinion on that point. What the situation does appear to counsel, is the wisdom of refraining from speculative ventures, from embarking much in enterprises in new fields, until capital flows more freely The general state of trade I believe to be sound, and if we have reached a period of pause, if the pendulum is to swing back somewhat, there is no reason to believe that the recoil will be severe or protracted. The large emigration we are now receiving, the opening of new territory by railway construction, give reasonable assurance of continued commercial progress, while our financial and banking methods are so sound and conservative as to mitigate, when they cannot altogether prevent, the severities of the natural law of reaction.

I beg to move: "That the report of the directors now read, be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders." If any shareholder has any questions to ask, we shall be pleased to answer them.

The motion was seconded by the Vice-President, and was unanimously adopted, without discussion.

Amendments to By-laws.

The President then said: On behalf of the Directors, I beg to state that, after consideration, they recommend the directorate be increased from ten to twelve members. To effect this will require a change in the by-laws, and I therefore now move: "That Shareholders' By-law No. III. be amended by replacing the word 'ten,' in the third line, by the word 'twelve,' the by-law, with this exception, remaining the same."

This was seconded by Mr. A. T. Paterson, and was unanimously concurred in.

The President—This will necessitate a change in By-law No. IX., which states: "In each year any sum of money not exceeding twenty-five thousand dollars currency may be taken by the Board of Directors from the funds of the Bank as remuneration for their services as Directors." In consequence of the increase in the number of members of the Board, from ten to twelve, it is necessary to change this by-law. It is therefore proposed that the sum do not exceed thirty-five thousand dollars; and I move that this change be made. In 1900, when the present number of directors and the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars was made the rule, the position of the Bank was just a little less than half of what it now is. The increase has been more than the doubling of all the main items in the Bank's financial statement. In 1900 the assets were $79,000,000, and now they are $165,000,000; the loans were then $53,000,000, and now they are $105,000,000.

Mr. A. T. Paterson seconded the motion for the changing of the by-law, and it was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Croil's Address.

Mr. James Croil then spoke as follows:

The honor of moving a vote of thanks to the Directors at this time has devolved on me, in consequence of the discovery made in the Transfer Department the other day, that your humble servant is supposed to be the oldest Shareholder in the Bank of Montreal alive at the present time. his connection with the Bank dating from 1847.

In looking back through that long vista of sixty years it is difficult to realize the wonderful changes that have taken place in the trade and commerce of the country and in the development of its varied resources, not to speak of the marvelously increased facilities of intercommunication by land and water.

And I confess that, in attempting to say a few words on this occasion, I feel myself to be in a tight place. Were this a missionary meeting, and these gentlemen all "true blue Presbyterians," I might be able to say something suitable to the occasion; but I fear they have not all been drilled in the Shorter Catechism as thoroughly as I was, which, of course, is their misfortune rather than their fault.

I have attended many bank meetings in my time, but this is the first occasion on which I have ever opened my mouth to address such a meeting as this; and as it is likely to be the last, I must crave your indulgence, and ask you to overlook anything I may say out of the way, and attribute it to my youthful inexperience.

My first voyage to New York, in 1841, was made in forty days, then accounted a fast voyage for an emigrant ship. The Lucania trotted leisurely across the ocean's race course last month in four days and nineteen hours! Such is the advance of ocean navigation in these sixty-six years. The journey from New York to Montreal then took four days, for we did not travel by night. The last stage was by the rickety railway from St. Johns to Laprairie—seventeen miles—then the only passenger railway in Canada. It was opened in 1836. In 1905, Government reported 21,394 miles completed, with some 4,000 miles under construction, actually more than all the British mileage in that year (21,174). In the sixties, Lord Milton and Dr. Cheadle took twelve months to cross the continent from Toronto to the Pacific; and had to eat one of their horses, as lean as themselves, before they completed their journey. To-day you may travel from Montreal to Vancouver in your luxurious Pullman car in less than ninety hours! Thanks to two of your past presidents—Lord Mount Stephen and Lord Strathcona, and the far-seeing Government of the day.

When I began farming in Ontario, we had neither mowing, nor reaping, nor threshing machines, and the women had no sewing machines. I threshed my first crop of grain in the same way that Ornan, the Jebusite, did 3,000 years before, and learned the meaning of the Mosaic injunction: "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn."

There was no money in circulation in those days. Everything was done by barter. The surplus products of the farm were exchanged by the storekeeper for his dry goods and groceries. Most obliging of men was the storekeeper. He gave unlimited credit. If the account was overdrawn, he took a little promissory note; when that matured, it might be renewed, with compound interest added; when that fell due, if not paid, he took a little mortgage; and, as a last resort, in many instances, he took the little farm.

Canada was then in many respects a terra incognita, consisting of half a dozen of provinces, knowing about as much of each other as they did of the South Sea Islands, with differing laws, tariffs and currency. The postage on a letter from Ontario to Halifax was 2s. 3d. Now a letter of an ounce weight can be sent to the ends of the earth for two cents. Among the monetary institutions of the country at that time, in good standing, was the Bank of Russico, in Prince Edward Island. Its capital was £1,000, Halifax currency. It had no rest at all. A thrifty farmer was the sole stockholder, the president, general manager, and teller of the Bank. It frequently happened that a customer had to go out to the field and bring the cashier away from the tail of the plough!

When I entered into partnership with the Bank of Montreal in 1847, its capital was $3,000,000 and Rest not quite $100,000. To-day, its combined Capital and Rest is $25,400,000; it has 134 branches and agencies, and a staff of more than 1,000 persons in its employ. It ranks among the great banks of the world.

Mr. Alexander Simpson was the cashier till 1855, and was followed by Mr. David Davidson, who became the first general manager in 1862 till March, 1863. Mr. Davidson was an uncle of the present Archbishop of Canterbury. He became manager of the Bank of Scotland, the oldest in Scotland (founded in 1695), and during his term of office the splendid banking house on the Castle Hill took its present stately form—one of the finest edifices in "Auld Reekie" to-day.

Singularly enough, the Bank of England was founded by a Scotchman in 1694, and the Bank of Scotland by an Englishman in the following year, and by its act of incorporation it was accorded the sole privilege of banking in Scotland for twenty-one years.

Mr. Davidson was followed here by Mr. E. H. King, as general manager—1863-1869. During that short time the business of the Bank of Montreal increased by leaps and bounds. On his retiring, the old saying became rife: "What can the man do that cometh after the King?" But the men who came after Mr. King worthily upheld the traditions of the past. Mr. R. B. Angus, 1869-1879; Mr. C. F. Smithers, 1879-1881; Mr. W. J. Buchanan, 1881-1890, and Mr. E. S. Clouston, our able and accomplished general manager to-day, since 1890.

The President of the Bank in 1847 was the Hon. Peter McGill, who was twice Mayor of Montreal. I have good cause to remember Mr. McGill, for it was from him I purchased the old Crysler Farm, where I earned my bread for twenty-five years, by the sweat of my brow. The presidents of the Bank following Mr. McGill were :—Mr. T. B. Anderson, 1860-1869 ; Mr. E. H. King, 1869-1873 ; Mr. David Torrance, 1873-1876 ; Mr. George Stephen, (now Lord Mount Stephen), 1876-1881 ; Mr. C. F. Smithers, 1881-1887 ; Lord Strathcona, 1887-1905 ; Sir George Drummond, since 1905.

Among other officers of the Bank I retain a pleasant recollection of old Mr. Franklin, who dealt out his dividend cheques with a smiling face during twenty-eight years, up to 1879, as has since been done by Mr. Smith, of the Transfer Department, until now.

For several years we received dividends and bonus at the rate of 16 per cent.; from 1871 to 1874, we got 12 per cent. annually ; since then the rate has been uniformly 10 per cent.

The highest price for Bank of Montreal stock in the market was $310 (per $100) in June, 1870, the par value of the shares being then $200 per share. The lowest price on record since 1847 was, in like manner, $108, in June, 1857.

In 1847, there were six chartered banks in British North America, all of which are still in existence, as per the following classification :—

Name.	Founded.	Paid up capital.	Rest.	Total capital.	Paid dividend p.c.
Bank of Montreal	1817	$14,400,000	$11,000,000	$25,400,000	10
Bank of N. Brunswick	1820	709,380	1,195,428	1,904,808	12
The Quebec Bank	1822	2,500,000	1,250,000	3,750,000	7
Bank of Nova Scotia...	1832	3,000,000	5,250,000	8,250,000	12
Bank of British North — America	1836	4,866,666	2,238,666	7,105,332	7
St. Stephen's Bank, N. B.	1836	200,000	50,000	250,000	5

During this interval of sixty years many other banks were founded, some of them destined to be short-lived, some amalgamated with kindred institutions, while others had resort to the dire expedient of writing off large portions of capital. But the Bank of Montreal has encountered no such disasters ; its progress and prosperity have been uninterrupted, the most convincing proof of which is the magnificent financial statement in our hands to-day, showing profits for the year ended October 31st last, amounting to $1,980,138.04.

There are at the present time thirty-five chartered banks in the Dominion, six of which have a paid up capital and rest combined exceeding eight millions of dollars, as follows :

Name	Founded	Paid up capital	Rest	Total capital	Paid dividend
Bank of Toronto	1855	$3,999,910	$4,499,910	$8,499,820	10 p.c.
Merchants Bank of Canada	1863	6,000,000	4,000,000	10,000,000	8 p.c.
Bank of Commerce.....	1867	10,000,000	5,000,000	15,000,000	8 p.c.
The Royal Bank.....	1869	3,900,000	4,390,000	8,290,000	10 p.c.
The Dominion Bank....	1871	3,802,636	4,782,900	8,585,536	12 p.c.
The Imperial Bank.....	1875	4,860,306	4,860,306	9,720,612	11 p.c.

These thirty-five banks have in all no less than 1,820 branches. In what I am now about to say, I know that I am treading on dangerous ground, so you will please take it cum grano, for what it is worth. Needy and greedy shareholders are asking with such an exhibit as has now been made, has the time not come when the bank should increase its dividends? The emphatic answer to that question is "Decidedly, No." When the Rest is made equal to the paid up capital then, and not till then, should the proposal be entertained. In this opinion I am supported by Mr. Knight, the secretary of the Banking Association, and Mr. Fyshe, whose experience as a successful bank manager invests his opinion with importance.

Shareholders, as a rule, are not the best judges of what is good for themselves in this behalf. The responsibility and it is a very serious one, rests with the directorate, with whom the element of safety must always be paramount.

"The strongest bank in Canada today," I quote from Mr. Fyshe, "is not one having the largest amount of capital; it is one of the smaller banks, having a capital of $3,000,000. But it has a Rest of $5,250,000. It is a little bank that could easily declare a dividend of 15 per cent. or 16 per cent., but which has the courage of its convictions, and has nailed its colors to the mast with this motto: "Judicious dividends and absolute safety to the shareholders."

I may add that the dates and other figures I have mentioned have been carefully scrutinized and verified by Mr. Knight. And now thanking you for your patient hearing, I add no more. I have much pleasure in moving the adoption of the resolution: "That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank."

This was seconded by Mr. Henry Dobell, and was unanimously concurred in.

It was moved by Sir Robert Reid: "That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, the Assistant General Manager, the Inspector, the managers and other officers of the Bank for their services during the past year."

Hon. Robert Mackay seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The General Manager returned thanks on behalf of the staff, after which Mr. B. A. Boas moved: "That the ballot now open for the election of directors be kept open until 2 o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued."

This was unanimously agreed to.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following directors:

R. B. ANGUS.
E. S. CLOUSTON.
HON. SIR GEORGE A. DRUMMOND, K.C.M.G.
E. B. GREENSHIELDS.
HON. ROBERT MACKAY.
SIR WM. C. MACDONALD.
DAVID MORRICE.
A. T. PATERSON.
SIR ROBERT G. REID.
JAMES ROSS.
SIR THOMAS G. SHAUGHNESSY.
THE RIGHT HON. LORD STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL, G.C.M.G.

AN OLD GROCER'S COMMENTS.

Last week I parted with an old friend in the shape of a horse and I hated to see her go for she has been a good one and will do her share of delivering yet. But when a horse has been a good one it is hard to part with it. I remember a few years ago a firm I was with had an old horse named "Bob" that for 20 years delivered for the one firm. He certainly knew his business well and if the driver stayed in a house too long Bob would trot back to the store and back the rig up to the door waiting for the load. He knew the road to all the customers and would turn in every time he passed. But he got too old for the job and the firm decided to either give him away or sell to some one where he would have a good home while still giving him his turn of a half day with the other horses. So one day old Bob was sold for $10 to a man who wanted him for his wife to drive. They would start out to drive him but just as soon as he got on the road he would make for the store and back the old buggy up to the sidewalk in front of the store with the woman and her son in the rig and as soon as he thought the load was on would go off again. It was a sight to see. But inside a month the man came in to get his money back as old Bob was dead when he went to the stable in the morning. I sometimes think he died from a broken heart at parting from the business and feel that way yet when I see an old reliable horse going off the road.

A few years ago no first-class grocery store would have lady clerks, but it is entirely different now. They have come to stay and while one used to feel jealous of the ladies they have made a distinct place for themselves in first-class stores and don't interfere with the male clerks. A good, cheerful, hustling young lady in a store can sell as much as a man and can explain the different processes of cooking different articles better than some men. She can dress a silent salesman or show case neater and keep the store more clean and tidy and also puts new ideas into the boys' heads on window-dressing. She also adds a cheerfulness to a store that no one man can. But one of them is plenty, generally, as where two or three are gathered together there is too much talking and laughing among themselves which is not good for any business. Then again, the young lady does up spices, pepper, starch and other light goods, keeps the store dusted and sees it is done and a hundred and one things too numerous to mention and after five years' experience I am glad to say she is a great help in a grocery store and if you have not tried it it is not too late to try and be convinced that she has a place there.

GROCER MAKES A VISIT.

The manager of The Grocer was up in Aurora last Saturday and Sunday, the guest of J. Percy Thompson, manager of grocery department of J. Whimster, Aurora's leading store. Mr. Thompson is an old grocer, though young in years, having for many years been connected with Mr. Whimster's grocery department before taking a position in a Toronto wholesale glassware and crockery house. Previous to assuming charge of his present position he had a good training on the road with such prominent concerns as E. W. Gillett Co., Davidson & Hay, and Eby Blain, Co., and this training is now bringing its results. Mr. Thompson is a close observer of trade matters and a regular reader of The Canadian Grocer. He has also good ideas on retail store advertising, some of which The Grocer had to acknowledge as being unique and effective.

Whimster's is a household word in Aurora, and this is due to the energy and push and generalship displayed by the head of the firm. Mr. Whimster's activity was proverbial in the past, and while still at the rudder, he has associated with him Mr. Wilcox, as chief buyer. Mr. Wilcox grew up in the business "from knickerbockers up," as Mr. Whimster expressed it, and is thoroughly familiar with every branch of the business. With such lieutenants, business is being looked after to the satisfaction of the customers. An up-to-date store, well conducted, was The Grocer's verdict.

ENLARGING SOAP FACTORY.

Lever Bros., soap manufacturers, of Toronto, have just begun operations on a new addition to their present factory, which is situated on the Don Esplanade. Their business has made such rapid strides in the past few years that present facilities have proved inadequate to their growing needs. The new structure under course of erection, will cost in the neighborhood of $45,000 when completed, and will be fitted up with every modern convenience. Undoubtedly the fame of "Sunlight" soap is not on the wane.

To save his sample trunks from rough usage, Albert Newberry, a resourceful New York traveler, labeled them "Dynamite—Handle with Care." He gathered up the labels at a western mine he visited, and they are of the kind that will never fail to catch the baggageman's eye.

"Train holdups," said the traveler, "are nothing new to me. I've been in lots of them."

"How does it feel to be covered with a revolver?" asked the listener.

"Can't say," replied the old traveler. "I've always been held up with a whisk broom."

BUTTER AND BEEF IN THE WEST

The Grocer's Authority in the West Poi nts to the Advisability of Developing a Dairy Industry—Large P roduce Imports From the East.

The planting of the dairy industry in the Canadian West has always been uphill work. Any country that can grow wheat as easily as the Canadian West, and can show an average yield of 18.75 bushels to the acre for a period extending over twenty years, looks upon cattle raising and butter making as drudgery.

It was hoped by those who can see far enough ahead to anticipate the time when wheat cannot be profitably grown without artificial fertilization, that the partial failure of the present crop would be an incentive to the Western farmers to turn their attention more to the raising of cattle and hogs, and the making of butter and cheese. But unfortunately feed was scarce in Ontario and in the Old Country, and there was a prospect of extremely high prices for low grade wheat, and this proved too much for the farmers with cattle and instead of adding to their herd they have been selling everything in sight, even though the prices have in consequence been very low. They have sold indiscriminately both beef and dairy cattle so that the outlook from a beef and dairy standpoint is not good. The question of feeding and finishing beef cattle was taken up a couple of weeks ago, but there is, or there should be, a very close relation between the dairy and the beef herd. Whatever may come in the more distant future, it is quite evident to those on the spot that for a time at least the farmer of the Canadian West will not go in for exclusively dairy herds. The great drawback to the dairy herd is that there is no market for the calves, as calves, and if they are raised for beef they make such a poor showing that they have a tendency to lower the standard and the price. A great deal has been said which is wise and otherwise, about the dual purpose cow. But there is such an animal, and it is the cow that will give a reasonable flow of milk for a long period, and will also give a calf that will develop into a marketable beef steer that is wanted in the Canadian West. The trouble is that very few people know anything about them, or where they can be had or what they can do. It would seem that this is an opportunity for the Dominion Live Stock branch of the Department of Agriculture to take up a new line of very much needed work, that is, a careful study of the beef and butter cows of Great Britain as found in the ranks of the Shorthorns, both registered and unregistered. There are a number of beed herds in Yorkshire and Lancashire, as well as some of the border counties. This information could only be obtained by a personal inspection of registered and unregistered herds, special attention be given to the system of breeding, the methods of raising the calves, both male and female, and the records of the milk; also the results of competition. And, further, the record of this type of animal as a beef producer and what prices are obtained for such beef. This would take time and cost something, but it would be almost invaluable to the West, which can only be led by slow, easy and profitable paths to see the absolute necessity of increasing their herd if they would maintain the fertility of the soil, which, at the present time, has no rival in the world.

Matters with regard to dairying are at a very acute stage in the West at the present time, and the best proof of this is a few figures that come to hand from the houses that make a specialty of handling dairy products. It will be a surprise, probably, not only to people in Eastern Canada, but to a great many people in Western Canada also, to learn that the West has during the last six months brought in from the East, mainly from Montreal, 40 cars, or 10,000,000 pounds of butter, on which has been paid for freight alone, the sum of $12,000. Much of this butter cost the purchasers 25 cents a pound in Montreal, so that it is not surprising that butter in Winnipeg to-day is selling at 38 to 40 cents a pound retail. This butter was all creamery and some of it went as far West as the Kootenay country. But the Kootenay country should be a market for the produce of the Middle West. In the matter of dairy butter, things are very little better. In the year 1906 there were shipped from the Province of Manitoba to Montreal, 17 carloads of dairy butter; in 1907, the make of dairy butter had fallen so low that it has been necessary to bring in several carloads from Montreal and Ontario to supply the Western trade. It really does not seem as if the question of price cut much figure, as the price of dairy butter has been extremely high all season. Pasturage, though late in coming, was very abundant and lingered long, yet the make of dairy butter dwindled steadily with the advance of the season. Price also seems to make no difference with the makers of creamery butter, as a concrete instance will illustrate: A creamery in the northern part of the Province was offered 21½c a pound for their season's make, all boxes and parchment paper to be supplied by the purchaser. This was equal to 22¼c a pound at their own station, and yet the make of that creamery was just half of what it was last year.

The retail dealers in the country would be doing a good work, and at the same time furthering their own interests, if they would talk with farmers and encourage them in the matter of keeping cows and sending the milk to the creamery. No local merchant wants to handle dairy butter, but it certainly should be to his advantage to have the farmers send their milk or cream to the creamery and have cash to spend with him every month in the year.

The building up of a dairy industry in the Canadian West will be a slow process and will have many setbacks, as it has had in the past. But it is a matter of such vital importance to the country at large that every man engaged in trade of any kind should give it some attention. It is all very well to be able to raise wheat, sell it at a good price, and do nothing for the rest of the year, but it is not farming, it is simply robbing the soil. While at the same time the country is spending many thousands in procuring what ought to be raised at home.

There is another feature of this question which is rarely touched upon at either breeders' or dairymen's meetings and that is the effect on the boys on the farm having little or nothing to do all winter. This tends to their driving into town and spending time and money playing billiards and doing other things which are not for their good or for the good of the country.

This is a great big subject. It has many sides, many arguments, both for and against, and in the meantime the million pounds of butter and the $12,000 of freight stand as a lasting disgrace to the progress and enterprise of the west.

AWARDED A BARONETCY.

Among the recent birthday honors bestowed by King Edward, a baronetcy has been most deservedly conferred on Jeremiah Colman, D.L., J.P. The recipient of this title is familiar to the Canadian grocery trade as the chairman of the J. & J. Colman Co., Norwich and London, manufacturers of bluing, starch and mustard.

The new baronet is a comparatively young man, being yet in the forties. He has been closely associated with business, where his sterling qualities have helped very materially in the successes of his firm. Incidentally it may be mentioned that J. & J. Colman's have always taken a keen interest in the conditions of their employes, and have done much to improve their social, physical and intellectual welfare by the erection of model reading and recreation rooms and by pension and savings funds.

Jeremiah Colman has always displayed a laudable public spirit. Not only has he been thoughtful of his employes' interests, but he has always been wide in his outlook and has striven to benefit the masses. He has been a staunch supporter of Liberal principles in Surrey, and has been well rewarded for his services. His country estate ranks among the finest in Great Britain. "Jeremiah" is a family name, and there is always a "Jeremiah" in the Colman family.

Sir Jeremiah Colman is particularly well known in Toronto, as the husband of a Toronto young lady. Mrs. Colman is the daughter of J. Shortt McMaster, treasurer of McMaster University.

The sign over the shine stand in the waiting room read: "Shine, 5c.; Polish, 10c." The Irishman looked at it long and intently. He took his pipe from his mouth and spat reflectively. "Begorry, they'd do well to be chargin' dagos double too," he remarked with conviction.

The market here was well patronized on Saturday, but there was no great amount of produce offering. Butter sold at 26 to 28 cents; eggs, 25 to 27 cents; turkeys, 12 cents; geese, 8 to 9 cents; ducks, 8 cents; chickens, 8 to 10 cents; potatoes, 75 cents; wheat, 92 cents; oats, 43 cents; barley, 68 cents. Hay was in abundance and sold as low as $17 per ton.

Some noticeable declines in foodstuffs took place early this week. Sugar declined 10 cents; flour, 10 cents per barrel. Rolled oats are now quoted at $1.75 per 90-lb. sack, delivered here. Bacon and hams and all pork products have been slightly reduced in price.

* * *

The light snow falls which have been continuing this week have made very fair sleighing and business has been picking up remarkably. Christmas shopping has begun and the amount of fruits, etc., which are being sold, does not by any means show signs of hard times. The shop windows, too, are looking extra fine.

NEWCASTLE, N.B.

T. W. Crocker will this winter build a new vessel to help his present boat "The Bessie" handle his rapidly increasing fish business. The new boat will be built here. She will be 50 feet long, 11 feet beam and will draw 4 feet of water.

Bad bills have been placed in circulation in Chatham, N.B., lately. They are bills from the non-existent State bank of New Jersey. Counterfeit quarters are also passing.

In the parish of Durham, Restigouche Co., farmers complain of their potatoes, especially the Late Puritan variety, rotting in the cellars.

Smelts are selling for three cents a pound. The weather is good for catching them. The river is beginning to freeze up.

CHATHAM.

With Christmas just three weeks away, the Christmas trade here is just about beginning to stir. That it is so late in moving is largely due to the fact that there has been no snow, and practically no very cold weather. The call of the housewife for raisins, currants, peels, etc., for her Christmas pudding is commencing to be heard. Candy windows are coming more and more into evidence.

Hogs, live weight, sold at $4.50 per cwt. on the local market on Saturday. Whatever the cause of the pronounced slump in price, there is no doubt that a large share of the hog raisers in Kent and Essex blame the new regulations with respect to dressed pork. The prospect of a future increase in price in consequence of maintaining and strengthening the hold of Canadian products on the foreign markets is not accepted by the farming interests as a sufficient return for the present drop in price. The concession with respect to local inspection has done much to allay popular resentment; but it would be hard to persuade the average farmer that any other cause than the regulations had led to the slump.

In one respect the drop in meat prices tends to hit the packers. On Saturday meat was offered for sale by farmers on the market at prices phenomenally low. This cannot but have a tendency to hurt the local trade in canned and smoked meats. The latter during recent years have been growing decidedly in popular favor. With an increasing variety of canned meats to choose from, the customer bought more and more in that line to the detriment of the fresh meat trade. Now, under circumstances which may prove temporary, and are, perhaps, merely local, the fresh meats are coming back to their own.

The example recently set by the Chatham branch of the Retail Merchants' Association in refusing to purchase tickets for concerts and bazaars has been quickly followed by Wallaceburg. There the merchants and business men have unanimously pledged themselves to refuse to purchase tickets, coupons or anything of a like nature from any ticket solicitors. This action was taken on account of the steady drain involved upon the resources of the business men of the Sugar City. There seemed to be no limit to the schemes evolved by churches and charities for thrusting tickets upon the unwilling merchants; and the latter, compelled by a system akin to blackmail to patronize all ticket solicitors alike, felt that in justice to themselves the time had come to call a halt.

Chatham was early last week visited by a deputation from the Heinz pickling interests of Pittsburg, Pa. For some time past the civic industrial committee have been in negotiation with this concern, which purposes establishing a Canadian branch factory. As a result, the deputation, which is touring the Province in search of a suitable site, visited the Maple City. They were met by members of the Board of Trade and the industrial committee, who presented Chatham's claims and discussed the proposition in considerable detail.

On Nov. 25, Leamington was visited by a disastrous fire, which broke out at 11 p.m. in the new Wigle Block. Although a large part of the building was saved, much damage was done by smoke and water. Among the heaviest sufferers was G. M. Sawyer, the enterprising proprietor of the Star Grocery, whose loss was estimated at $1.800, with about $800 insurance. Mr. Sawyer made a speedy settlement of his losses with the insurance company, and was able to reopen for business last Saturday.

There has been another change in the ownership of the Setterington grocery in Leamington. Only a couple of weeks ago John Setterington disposed of his business to Mr. Jeffery, an oil man, the latter turning it over to Frank Herdman. The latest purchaser is Anson Smith. Mr. Smith is remodeling the premises and adding extensively to his stock, indications that he evidently intends to stay.

Thos. Frye, the Wallaceburg restauranter, has purchased the Armstrong bakery near the North Branch bridge. He intends improving and renovating the property, and will take in a partner who will have charge of the bake shop, Mr. Frye continuing his present business.

A very pleasant event took place on the evening of Nov. 25, when the employes of the Chatham Fruit Growers' Association waited on the manager, Mr. W. D. A. Ross, and presented him with an address, accompanied by a handsome umbrella and a gold-mounted fountain pen. The address was read by Byard McMullin, and the presentation make by Mrs. Haynes, Jas. McHardy, of Merlin, has disposed of his butcher business to Wm. Hope, of the same place, the latter taking charge on Monday.

The firm of Grant, Whillans & Co., of Amherstburg, has been dissolved, Mr. Whillans retiring. John Grant has taken over the dry goods department, and George Jamieson has taken the grocery business, both of which wil be run as independent concerns in the future.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Palmer, late of Tilbury, have taken up their residence on Raleigh street. Mr. Palmer's new bakery will be completed this week.

VICTORIA.

The condensed milk problem is rather a serious one here just now. Dealers find it impossible to procure a supply, an order for a carload occasionally brings forth about 25 cases, which is just like a drop in the ocean. A number of local firms have ordered English milk, but it will be some time before it arrives to relieve the situation. The present wholesale price of "Reindeer" and "Gold Seal" brands is $6 per case. There is plenty of cream on the market.

Sugar has advanced 15c. and is expected to go higher in the near future. The present price is $5 per cwt. for granulated.

New Smyrna figs and Malaga raisins arrived a week ago and are opening up in splendid condition. The Smyrna "natural" figs are being imported in large quantities and are gradually taking the place of California "white" figs for cooking purposes.

California grapes are practically over for this season, but the kegs of Malagas have arrived to take their place. These Malaga grapes arrive in splendid condition. They are packed in cork dust in 40-lb. kegs, and keep this way for several months. They retail at 30c. per lb.

Spanish onions are on the market, but in very limited quantities. 8c. per lb. is the retail price.

"Holbrooks" goods are very much in evidence these days, for there are three demonstrators in the city, expounding the merits of these famous English goods, one at Dixi H. Ross & Co.'s, one at Fred Carne's, and one at the West End Grocery Co. Holbrooks goods have not been handled very extensively here before, but there is no doubt that in future they will hold their own.

Sultanas in 1-lb. packages are the latest arrivals from California. They are very clean and the package is very attractive. The grocers seem to think that it is a very convenient and satisfactory way to handle them, and there is not the least doubt but that henceforth this will be the method for handling California sultanas. The "Pure Food Law" of the United States has put a stop to the bleaching of raisins with sulphur, and it is a good thing. The sultanas, though darker in their natural color, are most undoubtedly a very superior article to the artificially colored ones. The change in color is a matter easy of explanation to the general public. The modern grocer will do well to give some attention when buying goods to the deplorable custom some manufacturers have of coloring goods. No doubt some goods look brighter for having coloring in them, but no one will venture to say that the flavor is improved and in many cases injurious ingredients are used.

The oyster industry is very likely from now on to form an important item in the commercial history of Victoria. A large company was organized a year or two ago, and they planted extensive beds in Esquimalt Harbor, and are gathering the first oysters this season and have every reason to be satisfied with the results. Capt. Williams, formerly of Nova Scotia, is manager of the company, and he says that although he has visited almost every oyster bed from the "Horn" to Hudson's Bay, and from the "Horn" to Alaska, and also the Japanese oyster beds, yet nowhere can they produce oysters with such a fine flavor as the ones grown in the waters around Vancouver Island. In a few years the company expects to be able to supply the wants of every hotel from Victoria to Winnipeg. They also expect to enter American territory as the tariff is favorable to Canada.

HAMILTON.

Grocers generally are complaining of collections being slow. This week, they say, has been the slowest since the new year. While money is a little tight there is no lack of employment, and most grocers are attributing the cause to the fact that just now their customers are laying in their fuel supply and the coal dealers are demanding cash with the order.

Messrs. Peters & Boursell are installing a steam heating plant in their already up-to-date little grocery.

It is surprising the small amount of advertising carried by Hamilton grocers, while other grocers are over-running themselves with ads. One day this week, out of seventy-six columns of display ads. in one of the leading papers, only six inches was taken by grocers, and two others are carrying readers of about ten lines each. This is not as it should be. Grocers reap as much benefit from advertising as any other class of traders, but it must be gone into with the idea of getting results therefrom. Some place a two or three-inch ad. in the papers at Christmas time with about the same spirit they give their customers calendars. Wm. Carroll is one Hamilton grocer who places strong faith in newspaper advertising. Mr. Carroll has seven stores and for years distributed dodgers every Thursday or Friday announcing his Saturday bargains, but discontinued this some time ago, and now carries about fourteen inches in each paper once a week.

Bain & Adams' ever attractive window was specially interesting last week. One would think they had a millinery display, to see the way the ladies stop and gaze.

Wm. Knox is making things hum in his little stand at the corner of Barton and Wellington streets. This corner has been a dead one for years, but by hard work and genial manner, Mr. Knox is bringing about him a class of trade that a progressive merchant desires.

As to Christmas shopping, now is the time for every grocer to press his customers to buy freely. The new fruits, etc., are now nearly all in stock, and there is no reason why the early days of December should not be busy ones. I have before me a clipping from an American paper, that is said will be presented in every city and hamlet in the United States. Here it is:

"To Christmas Shoppers.—Buy your presents early—early in the day and early in December—that will be your biggest gift of the holidays to the workers behind the counters and on the delivery wagons."

This letter, asking co-operation, has been sent to women's clubs, newspapers and department stores all over the States, and some of its signers are leading clergymen, authors and leaders of public opinion. I can see no reason why every grocer should not take the matter up and induce his customers to buy now, and thus save the weary nights of labor that makes December a bugbear to every salesman and deliveryman in the country.

The financial stringency that seems to be oppressing our friends to the south has not struck this city as yet, and here's hoping it won't. Everything looks all right in Hamilton, thank you.

STRATFORD.

"A prize with every package." Recently there has been a crusade of cereal foods on the market, and the latest manufactured foodstuffs are offered for sale along with a grand prize, or a prize with every package. The majority of these are said to be lotteries, or in other words, "schemes based on chance." But that is not the question which is bothering the writer. Are the retailers and the public being swindled or deceived? The agents come around and advertise their goods. "Oh, yes, they are good goods, and a prize is given away in every package."

"What kind of premiums?"

"Why, gold watches, bracelets, signet rings, etc."

And on the advertisement cards are displayed in large black type the names of the prizes contained in the packages: "Ladies' gold watches, boys' watches, fountain pens, silverware, linen handkerchiefs, cut glass, necklets, bracelets, etc.," but when opened up, (as ten of them were before the writer the other day) the packages are generally found to contain toys, whistles, tape lines or some other trivial thing.

One of the delivery horses owned by A. Beattie & Co., one of the city's leading grocers, narrowly escaped electrocution the other day. Some workmen were repairing electric lines and one of the line wires was dropped across the road. The horse touched the wire and stumbled, but managed to regain its feet. On returning over the same route

ANOTHER TRIBUTE TO CANADA.

In ordinary times our United States friends have refused to take Canadian paper money excepting at a large discount, but in the last few weeks concerns across the line have been pleading with Canadian customers to send them Canadian bank bills instead of cheques in payment of accounts. The result is that there is an immense amount of Canadian money now in circulation in United States. In the border towns for a couple of weeks there was very little currency, other than Canadian, obtainable. The Americans, too, seem to have much greater faith in our banks than in their own, for immense sums of money have been pouring in during the last few weeks for deposit in the banks in the border towns. In all it is estimated that ten million dollars have been withdrawn from U.S. banks in the border towns and deposited in Canadian towns. One man arrived two weeks ago from Philadelphia, with $212,000 in cash, in a hand bag, which he deposited in a Toronto bank. There is good ground for the faith they have in Canadian institutions. In the severe depression of 1893, when hundreds of United States banks went under, there was not one banking failure in Canada. The few banks that have failed in the last 20 years have been small, with one exception, and even then depositors have in nearly all instances been paid in full.

OUR CORRESPONDENCE PAGES.

Readers of The Canadian Grocer have probably noticed the improvement which has been made during the past few months in our correspondence pages. Our staff of correspondents is being constantly added to with a view to getting trade news from every part of Canada.

The correspondents not only give the news of the trade in their districts but they discuss the condition of trade, business topics, such as novel window dressing, advertising on programs, early closing, trade organization, the cash and credit systems, etc., gathering the opinions of the dealers on these subjects and keeping up a running discussion which must be helpful to every reader, and well repay a study of these pages each week. The value of the correspondence pages is therefore, constantly growing, readers in Halifax being brought into close touch with their fellow hardwaremen in Saskatoon and Edmonton. From a trade standpoint this has many advantages, as any question of general interest to the trade can be threshed out, and the evils confronting dealers in one part of the country made known to retailers in other provinces.

The MacLean Trade Newspapers are the only publications in Canada aiming to cover the whole country and binding together in national brotherhood the men engaged in different sections of trade. As Canada develops as a nation questions of a national character will arise, which will require united action upon the part of the retailers in every province. The parcels post agitation last winter is an instance where Nova Scotia and British Columbia merchants joined hands successfully for a common purpose.

Anything which tends to encourage merchants to take a greater interest in the doings of other retailers are steps in advance, and the establishment of our correspondence pages and the formation of retail associations are decided helps in this direction.

A BUSINESS MAN AS COMMISSIONER.

For one of the proposed two new members of the Government's Railway Commission, The Grocer begs leave to nominate Mr. Hugh Blain, of the Eby, Blain Co.

When the Commission was organized some years ago, it was Hon. A. G. Blair's idea, as definitely stated, to have the Board composed of a lawyer, a business man and a railway man, a presumably ideal membership. While the Board has done valuable work, its composition has never been according to Mr. Blair's suggestion. Its present membership is made up of a lawyer, an educationist and an agriculturist.

The present is the time to remedy this matter. As a successful business man, Mr. Blain is widely known in Canada. Added to this he is well versed in railway and tariff matters generally, and is regarded as the authority on these matters in the Toronto Board of Trade. He would be a very valuable member of the Railway Commission and would add to it the practical business factor which it now lacks.

A CASE OF HOLD-UP.

If the citizens of some town in Ontario or Quebec want to build a hospital, is there any good reason why manufacturers and wholesalers in Toronto and Montreal should be expected to contribute? A plain request from the people handling the project might bring a great many good wishes, but it is certain that there would be little else. They know this and suit their plan of action accordingly. A circular letter is drawn up, and to their own solicitation is added that of local merchants who buy goods from the firms addressed. The retailer is afraid to withhold his support of the scheme, for he is probably called on by several of his best customers. The manufacturer feels that if he refuses to donate he will offend the retailer.

How long is this sort of thing to be tolerated? If manufacturers and wholesalers would take a firm stand the great majority of retailers would be well pleased. The latter surely do not believe that the practice is a fair one.

The following letter was received not long ago by a number of firms: "The ladies of the town of Welland are now engaged in forming plans for holding a large Fair of Nations (including Italian, Japanese, United States, Canadian, English, Irish and Scotch booths, and Wonderland), in October, 1907. The object they have in view is to raise money in aid of the hospital, which is to be built at once in this rapidly growing manufacturing centre. Welland has increased in population, etc., about 100 per cent, in the past year, and with so many manufactories now running, and in process of building, a hospital has become an absolute necessity. The ladies also feel that manufacturers and wholesale people can advertise their wares, and, at the same time, render assistance to a worthy cause, by sending a donation of their goods to this fair. Will you kindly help ?"

To each letter a Welland merchant was asked to append this line : "Compliance with the above request of the ladies will favor us."

Another case in point was the "Made in Canada" exhibition recently held at Kingston. Manufacturers in all parts of Canada were held up for contributions of stoves, lawn mowers, washing machines, and smaller articles, the local retailers also contributing liberally and establishing booths, at which these articles were sold, they also giving their time for several days and evenings, besides losing considerable business on articles sold at the exhibition. Altogether about $10,000 was raised by the merchants, etc., which should have come out of the taxpayers generally.

There's another side to the story, however. Jobbers rightly object to being "held up" by retailers, but can they complain, if they in turn "hold up" manufacturers for contributions in order to have their goods represented in the jobbers' catalogues. The "hold up" game should be discontinued all along the line.

EDUCATE YOUR CLERKS.

We ran across a clerk the other day, a bright one, too, who complained that the boss carried The Grocer off to his wife every week and that he never got a chance to look inside the cover. How is it in your store?

Your clerk, yes and even your delivery boy, ought to be given a good chance to read The Grocer. It will make a better clerk out of him, if he has any of the right kind of stuff in him at all, and will load him up with new ideas that you'll find popping out every once in a while in a particularly attractive window or in better service to your customers. Correspondence courses have been pushed pretty hard in recent years. Your clerk couldn't get anything better from any course, if he paid twenty times the price, than a systematic reading of The Grocer's pages will give him. It's pretty sure that after he reads it a year or so you'll have to pay him a bigger salary, but it's a thousand to one that he'll be mighty well worth it and that it will mean dollars to you in the long run.

Hundreds of our subscribers keep The Grocer on file in a convenient place in their stores where they can turn to it when they have a moment's leisure and where it is accessible to all employes. We find these are the people who like the paper most. Are you getting out of it all you might?

THE SITUATION IN THE WEST.

The Canadian West is within five days of the official close of navigation with nearly 6,000,000 bushels of wheat in the terminal elevators at the Head of the Lake, of which more than a third is No. 4 and worse. On the 28th snow began to fall and the weather after turning extremely fine for six weeks, has turned sharply cold, the thermometer dropping 15 below zero on the night of the 29th. This closing in of winter is more than three weeks later than last year, when we had an exceptionally early winter. The amount of snow that has already fallen is not sufficient to make good sleighing on the open prairie, and wheat is still being hauled in wagons. The market for May wheat has continued to develop strength, and during the past three days export demand has been very active and showing a fair margin of profit. Correspondence from the Old Country of the 8th and 10th of November from leading importing houses there, lays special stress on the strength of the situation, calling attention to the fact that the early closing of navigation in Russia has not only made it impossible to ship out wheat, but has been very bad for the winter wheat crop, indicating a greatly reduced crop for next year. Russia is a buyer of La Plat wheat, and Australia and India will both have to import. Even should the Argentine crop be harvested without damage, it is not likely they will have much over 1,000,000,000 for export; and the world's requirements are estimated at 300,000,000 from Dec. 1st to August 1st. This would indicate a good market for the balance of the Canadian crop. Old Country millers who have visited Winnipeg this week state that Great Britain has received very little wheat from Russia this season, the bulk of it going to the continent where prices have been much higher. The last day of November was a short market, but a very active one, and though general exporting demand was somewhat in abeyance waiting to see how the December deliveries would pan out, there were bids for No. 3 Northern at $1 17 afloat Fort William. No. 3 Northern closed at 94⅞, so that this would leave a fair margin of profit. The bids were for December-January delivery.

Even the most careful enquiry has not elicited any definite statement of advances to banks for carrying Western crops, but it has leaked out that here and there lines of credit have been extended. There seems on the whole, to be an easier feeling in regard to money than there was two weeks ago.

Receipts of wheat passing inspection at Winnipeg have been very heavy, but receipts at country elevators have been falling off and there is no doubt that there is a tendency on the part of farmers to hold their low grade wheat because the prices offered are so much lower than they expected to get.

So far as the financial situation as a whole is concerned, there does not seem to be much change. The retail trade apparently is not suffering up to the present. The wholesale trade still complains of the slowness of collections, and there are other signs that the stringency is beginning to be felt in Winnipeg. Evils are never unmixed, and the lowering of house rent is one of the things of which no one will complain, excepting the landlord. The drop is not marked at present, but it has begun and no doubt will continue until the matter of rent is on a more equitable basis than it has been for the past four years.

Rumors reach Winnipeg that the East is taking an exceedingly gloomy view of the Western situation. This is folly. The West is all right, but in company with the rest of the world, has had to shorten sail a bit for the time being. Among those well posted there seems to be an assured feeling that there will be money for all the lumbering and wood camps this winter, and if this is correct, there need be no able-bodied men unemployed in Winnipeg. As for the men who have flocked to this country as farm laborers, they cannot hope to command the high wages that have obtained in previous winters, but there are thousands of farmers in the West who will be very glad to employ from one to two men, give them their board and a small wage for the winter, on the understanding that these men remain with them at an increased wage during the spring and summer.

The West will have to pinch a bit, but there is no really tight squeeze, nor is there likely to be one.

Fourteen grocers in Point St Charles are in hot water over their liquor licenses. They are accused of selling the beverage by the glass in their stores, which is contrary to the law.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Fish—Revised.
Teas—Firm.

Montreal, December, 5,

Jobbers are making last deliveries for the Christmas and holiday trade and the railway companies are being kept quite busy taking care of the merchandise consigned to them. Many complain of the delays experienced not alone in shipping goods, but in securing delivery once the cars arrive at their destination. This applies particularly to terminal points and large centres. such as Montreal. The dried fruit men are particularly strong in their statement in this regard. They say they have to wait a week after the arrival of a car before they can secure the goods in some instances.

During the week there have not been many changes in the markets. Not a great deal is being done in sugar, which is steady at prices which have not changed since the decline mentioned in a recent issue. Canned goods are still being delivered to the retail trade, though slowly. There are hundreds of grocers who have not yet received their full order owing to delay on the part of canners in shipping to the jobbers. The canners say the lack of refrigerator cars is responsible for the trouble. Teas continue very firm. Syrups are beginning to sell briskly. Molasses is quiet. Beans are practically unchanged since last report. Evaporated apples are easier in feeling though prices have not changed. Valencia raisins are easier in New York, but buyers are not numerous. Shelled walnuts and walnuts in the shell are being delivered to the trade. Other nuts are unchanged.

Collections are reported about the same as last week.

SUGAR—Jobbers are not pushing sugar particularly, and report demand but fair. There is the usual holiday trade being done in this as in all other lines. The market is steady with no prospect of any change of prices.

Green teas of every description are exceedingly scarce. Blacks and greens ar reported slightly advanced, though all the tea men dealing in these have not been advised of a raise in values. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Late deliveries are being made to the retailer. This applies particularly to nuts, many lines of which were late in arriving. New shelled walnuts continue to arrive and are rapidly being placed in the hands of the retailers. Only one small lot of walnuts in the shell had been received up to the beginning of this week, but more are now on the way to Montreal. Other nuts are unchanged. Currants are reported easier on the other side, but New York is about cleaned up, while no more are due there before next Thursday. Locally, bulk currants are plentiful, but packages are very scarce. Valencia raisins are quite low in New York, offerings being made at prices ½-cent below the import cost, but buyers do not appear to be coming forward very quickly. Malagas and Californias are practically unchanged since last report. Figs are arriving freely, and are being shipped to different parts of the country filling orders sometime booked. Dates continue to arrive also, and are being placed, Hallowees, around 5 cents. Lots of prunes are reported arriving which will create an easier market. It is said that these were bought before the advance, and consequently the buyers will be able to undersell holders of later purchases. Fruit men complain about the grievous delays experienced at the railway terminals here. One man waited a week after the passing of his entry for the delivery of one car. These delays are bad enough at any time, but are exceedingly vexatious and harmful at this season.

SPICES—There is reported this week a more active demand for spices generally. White peppers are in good demand at steady prices especially the best grades. Crop prospects are still doubtful. Cloves are steady and firmer, demand being satisfactory. Nutmegs show more activity, while there is more frequent inquiry for gingers.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—There has been a steady movement in canned goods of late, but wholesalers complain of the delay on the part of the canners, which retards deliveries to the retail customers of the former. The canners say they are handicapped by the lack of cars. Refrigerator cars seem to be exceedingly scarce. Canned salmon is in good demand at unchanged prices. There is an unusually strong demand for canned meats at the moment.

TORONTO—Business is very quiet and no extensive deliveries are being made. A frequent cry from the retailers is that their orders have not been filled but the wholesalers do not confirm this rumor. Packers generally seem to be pretty well sold out.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Mediterranean Fruits—Firmer.
Sugar—Steady at lower prices.
Nuts—Demand brisk.
Collections—Fair.

Toronto, December 6.

The quietness which rules in the wholesale markets through the last week of the old and the first month or so of the new year is being felt this week. Business generally is somewhat duller. This is a result of course, of the fact that the greater part of the staple goods for Christmas has already been distributed to the retailers.

Wholesalers generally are enthusiastic over the business of the past few months. Almost every house reports a bigger volume of business during November than in any previous year.

Interest is centred this week on the higher grades of Mediterranean fruit, such as fine table raisins, figs and dates which are being strongly demanded by retailers for their special Christmas business. "During the last period of financial depression some years ago," said a prominent wholesale manager yesterday, "the demand for fancy lines of groceries fell off altogether and even business in staple goods was seriously affected. It does not look as though the present stringency would materially affect business.

TEAS—The local market is dull with little business passing. A recent mail advice from London advising easy buying says: "The smaller quantity of Indian, Ceylon and Java tea brought forward, viz., 36,122 against 59,401 last week, has certainly had the effect of arresting the general fall in prices caused by the abnormally high bank rate. But it has hardly done more than this, and it seems probable that a continuance of small offerings will be necessary before quotations can be raised to the level of a fortnight ago. With a seven per cent. bank rate and Christmas near at hand, there is no inducement for buyers to do more than purchase for actual requirements, while if producers will but curtail their offerings, there is reason to believe they will reap the benefit after the turn of the year. An early closing of the season in India seems assured, together with a possible shortage in the output, and a reduction of perhaps ten million pounds in the quantity available for London, while consumption at home is well ahead of last year, and the use of Indian and Ceylon tea throughout the world generally continues to increase."

COFFEES—One of the principal features of the coffee situation last week was the falling off in the receipts at the Brazilian ports. This has been especially marked in the case of the arrivals at Rio, which are in the neighborhood of a quarter-million bags behind the receipts of two years ago, last year's receipts, owing to the abnormal crop, not being a fair comparison. It is explained by one authority that the reason for the falling off in Rio may be found in the fact that a large quantity of coffee which, in former years, was shipped to Rio from Minas is now going to Santos, on account of the better prices obtainable in that market for Minas coffees, when shipped as Santos. This procedure will undoubtedly balance in the end, the receipts at Santos being just so much larger. Basing their estimates on the receipts to date, it is now figured by some in the trade, that the crop will run under 10,000,000 bags, including about 6,500,000 bags Santos. It is still too early, however, for a definite estimate. Is is a matter of some comment that outside interests have not as yet been more generally attracted to the coffee market as with light receipts, the practical certainty of a moderate, if not a small crop, bare consuming markets the world over, as far as distributors are concerned, and the surplus stocks strongly controlled for Government account, the bulls feel that the position is strong and gaining in strength daily.

SUGAR — The local market is steady at the lower levels noted last week, but not much interest is manifest as retailers generally are pretty well stocked.

DRIED FRUITS—The market is firm though prices have not advanced noticeably. Coast advices indicate a very firm feeling on the part of holders of prunes there, the bulk of the small stock remaining in California being in strong hands. On the spot business is confined within jobbing limits, but sellers do not appear to be anxious and prices are held up to the previous quotations. Oregon Italian prunes on the spot are still easy under the conditions previously noted, but there has been no further quotable change in prices. Supplies of peaches on the spot are small, and while the demand is of a retail character holders are not trying to quicken the movement by offering to shade prices. There is a very good demand for dates and the better grades of layer figs, though there are no important transactions in either to record.

CORRESPONDENCE

the horse again touched the wire and fell to the road. The wire was cut and the current thus deadened.

A meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association was held last week. It was decided to hold the annual election of officers on January 9th, when it is expected that E. M. Trowern, general secretary of the Dominion association, will address not only the merchants of the local association, but also all the retail merchants. The resignation of J. S. Smith, collector for the association, was received and accepted. Mr. Smith has been collector for some months, and has collected in a number of "dead ones." He resigned in order to devote his entire time to insurance matters, he having been appointed manager of the Sun Life Assurance Co., in this district.

It is to be hoped that all retail merchants in the city will turn out to hear Mr. Trowern, and that he will inaugurate increased enthusiasm among the local retailers. At present the association is not doing the work it should, simply because of lack of interest. Much good could be accomplished if the merchants would pull together.

The market Saturday was largely attended and good prices were obtainable.

MONTREAL.

It is likely that a delegation of Montreal grocers, representing the Retail Grocers' Association, will go up to Ottawa shortly to see what they can do to prevent the co-operative bill from becoming law. A prominent member of the association speaking to The Grocer, did not think that the chances of success on the part of the representatives would be very great. "This idea seems to have been taken up in earnest by the Government," said he, "for they appointed a commission to look into the matter, I understand, and they reported favorably on it. Consequently, any delegation, though representative of such a large section of voters as the retail grocery trade, will not likely make much progress. Mr. Monk, the member for Jacques Cartier, is one of the strongest advocates of the idea. It is to be hoped that the Government will not go ahead blindly in this matter. In justice to the grocery trade, they should hear both sides of the story and act accordingly."

This co-operative store idea is along the same lines as the co-operative societies in Europe. By paying so much, in buying shares, or in membership fees, a man can become a member, which entitles him to buy from the society store, where he gets goods at cost price. The idea is to do away with the jobber and the retailer.

Grocers doing a legitimate business are up in arms against the peddlers who are doing business in the city. They are endeavoring to have the license fee increased from $50 to a larger sum. The grocers have a very good argument. They say that there have been several annexations to the city recently. St. Henry, St. Cunegonde, Villeray, and other outlying municipalities have been taken under the wing of greater Montreal. In the old days, before annexation, peddlers were forced to pay licenses amounting to $250 if they desired to do business in Montreal proper, St. Cunegonde and St. Henry. To-day they can, by paying $50 for the Montreal license, do business in all three municipalities.

A reasonable increase in the license fee is all that the grocers expect. And surely their claim is just. The city authorities ought to do something to remedy the evil.

There is some talk of a delegation being sent to Quebec to interview the Provincial Government regarding the brewers' licenses. Grocery stores handling liquors complain that the brewers are in the habit of delivering considerable lots of beer to consumers. For instance, the Italians and Jews are great drinkers of cheap beer, and frequently one man will order say thirty dozen bottles. The grocer knows that these bottles will be distributed among the receiver's friends, either for the actual cost price, or for an advance on the receiver's buying price. In the former case the consumer is perfectly within his rights, but should he be selling the beer at a profit he is violating the law not having a liquor license. There is the difficulty. The grocers cannot prove that the law is being broken, though down in his heart he is absolutely sure of it. If a delegation goes to Quebec it will suggest some remedy for the situation.

Walter Paul's branch store, on University street, is now in full running order. Mr. Paul's son, W. H. Paul, is in charge, and he has four clerks assisting him. The store is neatly fitted up, in fact, it is quite a model grocery.

A. J. Hart, the fruit and vegetable man, on Bonsecours Market, was married to Miss Roberts the other day. They are touring the West Indies on their honeymoon.

M. Lavut & Son is the name of a new wholesale grocer concern started at 562 St. Lawrence street. The opening of this store illustrates the growth of the Jewish grocery trade in Montreal. There are now two large Jewish wholesale grocery firms, P. Adelstein conducting the other. Retail grocery stores owned and managed by Jews are by no means few in Montreal. There are new ones opening every month.

WOODSTOCK.

The Christmas trade has hardly commenced yet, though stores are beginning to take on a holiday appearance and the grocery advertisements in the newspapers are beginning to contain notes of supplies for the holiday season. The injunction to "shop early" is being heeded about as much as usual, and people will do as they always do—that is, put off everything possible as long as possible, and then shop in the grand crush of the Saturday before Christmas. Such is human nature.

The James Stewart Manufacturing Company have closed down their works, and over fifty men are out of employment as the result. The reason given is, the general scarcity of money and particularly the almost complete falling off of the Western Canada market. The Canada Furniture Manufacturing Company have also laid off sixty men, and other manufacturing establishments smaller numbers. All this has a direct effect on trade conditions, for when a man is out of work, it is only reasonable to suppose that he cannot spend as much as when his weekly pay envelope is secure.

It was a fight to the finish between the farmers and the City Council, and the farmers (and their wives and daughters) won out. It all arose over some new regulations for the government of the market which the Council had passed. The farmers were up in arms in a minute, and for two weeks practically boycotted the city. Then the Council responded cheerfully to the call of public opinion and rescinded the obnoxious clauses.

The Council passed regulations to the effect that all poultry brought on the market should be dry picked, sold by weight and have the heads and crops removed. It was the first clause that was particularly objected to. The farmers held an indignation meeting and decided to bring no more fowl to the market until the regulations were rescinded. And they didn't. A few of them came with butter and eggs, but compared to normal conditions, the market on the two Saturdays the regulations were in force, was practically dead. And trade conditions over the whole city were similar. The business men rose in their might and entered a strong protest. The same night the Council met and repealed the clauses and now everything is lovely again.

WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg stores have a holiday appearance and Christmas goods are being well displayed. The T. Eaton Co. had one or two splendid grocery window displays during the last ten days, but there are straight grocery stores in town that do not require to learn anything from the department stores in the dressing of grocery windows. Hardy & Buchanan, in Fort Rouge; the W, H. Stone Co., on Main street; E. B. Nixon and A. Hendry, on Portage avenue, have had splendid displays during the last week, showing that these firms are fully alive to the importance of good window dressing. Winnipeg grocers are up-to-date and the enterprising, energetic way in which they go after business is their best protection against the competition of the department store.

Their experience this fall has taught the city grocers the advantage of membership in a live Grocers' Association. The credit bureau alone has been worth to the members many times the membership fee. Owing to the touch of "hard times," or to the "financial stringency," or whatever name be given to the commercial and financial ills of the time, there have been many more requests for credit than in any previous autumn. The association stands for the curtailment of credit, and Winnipeg grocers have been united in such action as they have taken in this matter. Moreover, they maintain a credit information bureau. Every member furnishes the secretary with a list of slow pay customers and customers whose habit it is never to pay when they can avoid doing so. Printed lists of these names and addresses are supplied the members regularly and these lists are kept up to date. The grocer who gives credit to people whose names appear on these lists knows that he is running a risk. If he rushes into it blindly, he has only himself to blame. Moreover, he can obtain, through the secretary of the Association, information about people whose names do not appear on the lists. The service is accurate and prompt and there can be no doubt that it has been of great value to the Winnipeg grocers this fall.

The association might well take up the injustice of a law which punishes the grocer who keeps his store open after six o'clock, but which allows—or winks at—the selling of groceries by fruit stands and confectionery stores and restaurants, which remain open from early morning until after midnight. Winnipeg grocers want early closing, but they also want protection from unfair competition of this kind.

GUELPH.

All roads in Canada just now lead to the Guelph Fat Stock Show, which starts next Monday, and the merchants are getting ready for their share of the annual harvest. A section of the fair is devoted to the different kinds of seeds and that should interest nearly every grocer as well as farmer, as a lot of valuable information is to be obtained there. Four cups, valued from $100 to $150, and other valuable prizes are offered for the best samples of seed corn and clover seeds. There are experts there to show you the difference in each variety and also point out such seeds as the wild mustard seed, ragweed, wild buckwheat, buckhorn, wild flax, wild oats and other seeds that help to make life miserable for the poor judger of seed. There are lots of grocers selling seed every spring that don't take time to get posted on these points and when a farmer comes in and says he got the bad seed from him he is not in a position to dispute him, where if he would just spend an hour or so among these experts he would be able to buy and sell the very cleanest and best seed on the market, instead of taking any old thing in the shape of clover or timothy seed sent along by some careless seed firm. The writer has seen a great many disputes among farmers and grocers and some have cost a lot of money to both in lawsuits which could at the present time be easily avoided by getting the valuable information these experts are willing to give at these annual seed fairs.

The Ontario Agricultural College team which again this year have won the cup for all round judging at the Chicago Fair, against all comers, is an evidence of the kind of training even a grocer can get by just keeping his eyes and ears open and attending the lectures and even if you don't sell seeds the dressed poultry department will not only interest but educate you in the buying and selling of first-class poultry, and this year, when the quality has been so poor, on account, as some state, of the scarcity of feed, it needs a good buyer to pick out the sellers and leave the balance to shippers.

The sudden drop in the price of hogs has had a depressing effect on some of the farmers and buyers, but between you and me, the pork stores have not shown any inclination to give us that roast of pork any cheaper. We are still paying the old price.

The latest thing in Guelph is a chop suey restaurant run by Chinese and called the New York Restaurant. They might have called it "The Guelph," as for all some of us know about New York, and there are not many Yankees here.

Saturday's market was quite flat, compared with what it should be. Fresh eggs are still scarce at 32c. The police raided the potato department and weighed the potatoes. Over half were over weight but a few were short weight. The weights ran from 83 to 110 lbs. Those who had the short weight were warned. There is a big glut at the present time in fall apples, but spies and good winter apples are bringing a good price.

C. T. Hicks, the Paisley St. grocer, has returned, after a pleasant trip to Buffalo and other American cities.

John Martin, clerk in the grocery store of Johnston & Co., on the Elmer Road met with a rather peculiar accident last week, his hand being cut so severely that five stitches were necessary to close the wound. The victim of the accident was endeavoring to open the door which was stuck, when his hand went through the glass.

A. M. McLean has sold out his grocery business on the Elora Road to Mrs. John Little, widow of our late Deputy Postmaster. Mrs. Little has taken into partnership her brother, J. Costigan, who has been head clerk for W. H. Fielding for some time and who will manage the business for her. Mr. McLean will continue his very extensive tea business. It is a good stand and the new firm of Little & Costigan ought to do well as both are well known and popular.

The grocery business on the market square formerly owned by Wm. Gibson, has been bought by A. C. Chiswell, who will continue it as a cigar store, newsstand and stationery store.

The Retail Merchants' Association has decided to take a prominent part in the coming municipal elections this year, not so much in the way of placing candidates in the field as of endorsing such of the candidates as the merchants feel would make good capable aldermen. The executive committee were entertained to lunch at the Royal on Friday night last week by Alderman R. E. Nelson.

J. Wilson, who formerly ran a grocery business on Waterloo Ave., but who has been in business in Mitchell for the last three years, has returned to the city and purchased the business on the corner of Elizabeth and Queen Sts. from A. D. Stephenson and will continue it. Mr. Wilson thinks Guelph is O.K. as a grocery town.

If the City Council in passing market by-laws to benefit the public would, instead of trying to keep the grocers off the market till after 10 o'clock, keep the public off and allow the grocers to do their buying first, as they do on the fruit market, the public would not have to pay such long prices as they are doing for some of their household necessities. The grocer has got to and does pay at a price that he can sell as cheaply as they do on the market and he has to have the goods at any price as well. As it is now, the public go in and bid up the prices and the farmers are not slow to see their advantage and we all have to pay more than the goods are worth. Then again, the public do not have the same chance to get back at the farmer if the goods are not up to the mark, which is often the case. They cannot take it back and demand their money like they do in grocery stores and there are lots of other reasons also why these by-laws should work the other way and save the public from themselves. As it is now, it is they who have to pay the Piper, not the grocer.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Dec. 5, 1907.)

Christmas trade is reported quite active in city and country, and the jobbers houses are feeling the effects of the stimulus given business by the holiday demand. The arrival of snow and cold weather last week has given an impetus to all classes of business.

It is believed that the general advance in prices which has been the feature of the past year in the grocery market, is about at an end, and in some lines there is an evident tendency towards a reaction. For this reason the shrewdest grocers are not stocking too heavily.

CANNED GOODS—There are no new features in the canned goods market. The demand continues light, owing to the high range of prices. We quote:

WHAT TO DO IN DECEMBER

Pertinent Hints for the Year's Busiest Month.

Ideas for Increasing the Holiday Trade.

"Haven't time to do anything but look after customers this month," you will probably say, and considering that for the grocer as well as for merchants in various other lines, December is the busiest month of the year, this is to a large extent true. There are a good many things, however, which may help you to look after the customers, or which may bring more customers into your store, which you probably have not thought of.

In the first place, have you made all the plans to handle the big handful of business which is sure to come to you with a rush in a couple of weeks? Have you arranged for special delivery service? Have you secured the extra help you need? If not, these matters should be attended to at once. If neglected, they'll crop up later at some moment when you have a good deal less time to think about them and will mean a good deal of unnecessary worry.

Then what about store decoration for Christmas? If you have never done it before, try it this Christmas. Something out of the ordinary always attracts, perhaps out of mere curiosity, but when you get people into your store you are always bound to make sales. If you don't believe this, cover your electric light globes or your gas jets with red, or green tissue for some night next week, and see if it won't make a difference.

Green stuff—that is, clean and well selected stuff—always helps a store's interior, and its exterior, too. And if you handle holly, as many grocers do, and find it pays well, don't be afraid to use this profusely in decorating. It will give a holiday air to the store that will simply make people want to come in. A show card with the price would help to sell this cheery stuff. You might have one made like this:

HOLLY FOR CHRISTMAS.
Give Your Home a Holiday Air —Our Holly is Fresh and Bright. It is Priced at .....

Some grocers we know in the smaller towns make an arrangement with the city florists at Christmas time and supply their customers with Christmas bloom at a mighty good profit.

One thing you won't forget surely, is to fill your window with Christmas goods. String a line of bulging stockings of various sizes and colors above your display of nuts and raisins and oranges, and get the youngsters looking in. If you can get the little folk interested in your store you've found a pretty straight path to the hearts and pockets of their fathers and mothers. And don't let this window remain the same for more than a couple of days. Get people into the habit of looking in to see what's new as they pass. They'll do it if you keep things bright and change them often.

Have you ever tried pushing a line of high grade confectionery as an addition to your staple lines, for the holiday season. In many small towns really good chocolates cannot be ordinarily secured. In others only the drug stores handle them. Here's a good paying line for the grocer. Let the young men in town know that you are handling really good goods and that a pound box would make a particularly acceptable present for a lady friend.

There are other ways of stimulating your Christmas confectionery trade. Your customers should never come down on Christmas Eve, as many of them do, to buy candy with which to stuff their children's stockings. One enterprising grocer sent the following suggestion, printed on a post card, to the better class of his customers a week before Christmas, and got excellent results:

"Dear Madam: We are now taking orders for Christmas candies in order that we may be able to give our customers the very best service and best of goods when the rush commences. All orders placed with us now will be delivered the day before Christmas or Christmas Day, as you desire.

"We handle a complete line of Lowney's, Webb's, and other well known makes.

"The goods that we sell for Christmas delivery will be brought fresh from the factory the day they are delivered and we will guarantee them to be fresh and delicious.

"The enclosed postal card, filled out with the amount and kind desired will receive our most careful attention and the order will be delivered when and where you request."

Here's another suggestion which you might use to help the perplexed gift buyer, and one which should appeal particularly this year, with its scarcity of money. You might use it in an advertisement or in conversation with your customers. Suggest to a young man whom you know isn't too well blessed with cash, that a bag of nice Spies or a barrel of sugar would be a more sensible present for his mother than jewelry or fancy china. This idea might be extended in ways which will occur to you. A show card somewhere in the store would often furnish the suggestion. Wouldn't a careful man be likely to think twice if he saw something like this:

BUY USEFUL GIFTS.
Just Now When Money is Scarce, it Pays to be Careful.
Why Not Give Groceries?
We'll Make Suggestions for You.

Don't heave a big sigh of relief at midnight on Christmas Eve and take it for granted that the big rush is over. There's more than another week of holidays after that and during that time your customers will be having visitors galore and there will be huge batches of new pies and cakes and puddings made. All this means more groceries and by keeping your store service and delivery just as satisfactory the week after Christmas as it was the week before, you will be able to continue the harvest. Keep going, if necessary, till pretty near the last hours of the old year and then after a day's rest you will be able to take business a little easier and to devote some time to your new resolutions.

SELLING SHORT POTATOES.

Retail Merchants' Association Takes Action Against Local Peddlers.

Toronto grocers have long been seriously troubled and inconvenienced by the peddling nuisance. Peddlers are rightly considered a "nuisance" as far as the grocery business is concerned. Not only do they directly injure a certain proportion of a grocer's proper trade, but by means of inferior goods and wrong measurements they often place the grocer in a bad light. For instance, a customer, having purchased something from a peddler, subsequently visits her grocer, finds that he sells apparently the same article at an enhanced price and then concludes that the grocer has been holding her up for the difference in the two prices. The customer never realizes that it is really the peddler who has got the better of her through inferior weights or such causes.

The Toronto Retail Merchants' Association at a recent meeting took action to remedy just such a flagrant abuse. It has been discovered that city peddlers have been selling bags of potatoes, well filled and apparently good measure, for 15 and 20 cents less than the grocer. The result has been most injurious to the grocers. In reality, the bags of potatoes sold by peddlers generally average a little over 60 lbs., while the grocer always sells 90 lbs. to the bag. To obviate this abuse, the grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association are trying to have a measure introduced at the next session of the Legislature to make 90 pounds the fixed legal weight for a bag of potatoes. Meanwhile, for the protection of the public, they are drawing attention to the facts of the case by placards in grocers' windows all over the city.

many a man is liable to be irritable. If his ham or bacon hasn't got just the tenderness and flavor it ought to have, he tells his wife not to get any more of "this stuff" but to try "another grocer." A case of the sins of the packer being visited on the grocer. However, it shows you can't be too particular about the brand you handle. It's a wise grocer who handles

Few holders of September cheese can be tempted by any price under 13c, and even at this figure offerings are not numerous. Those who have a stock feel that there is going to be a price for it, and they believe that if they wait they will be rewarded with better figures than are obtainable at the moment. At 13c, however, some sales are reported, though not large lots.

A firmer undertone characterizes the market this week, and it is likely that this feeling will be maintained. A decline is not considered within the range of possibilities. The make is not much, and receipts are consequently light, especially when they are compared with the figures representing the arrivals for the same period last year.

Stocks held in Montreal are variously estimated from 100,000 boxes to 160,000 boxes, but a conservative estimate would place the holdings at about 135,000 to 140,000 boxes, while it is generally conceded that the holdings all over Canada do not amount to more than 225,000 to 230,000 boxes. It is readily admitted that stocks held here at present are very much lower than they were one year ago.

More or less inquiry is reported from the other side. Orders are not coming in very quickly, though they are not expected to be good at such a dull time of the year for the cheese and butter men. Parties asking for prices are quoted from 12¼c to 12½c for October cheese, while 13c is the lowest quoted for September, with offerings light, as stated in the foregoing.

Receipts of cheese last week amounted to 6,487 boxes, against 19,853 boxes same week last year. Total receipts for the season amount to 2,045,552 boxes, compared with 2,334,969 boxes same period 1906.

Last week 518 boxes were exported, 55 of which went to South Africa, the remainder being forwarded to England. This brings the total exports for the season up to 1,973,417 boxes, against 2,227,838 boxes in 1906.

Prices quoted for butter have eased slightly since last report, but there has been a firming up in the market and it is possible that higher figures will rule within a few days. As much as 29c is quoted for held stock, good grass butter, but current receipts are selling at figures around 26½c to 27c, and sometimes 27½c.

Dealers do not anticipate any lower prices. The make is falling off with the advance of the season, and as stocks are none too large it is but natural that good prices should become better. After the middle of this month the amount of butter turned out by the creameries will not amount to much.

Held butter is not offered freely, dealers preferring to sell fresh arrivals. The grass butter, all late fall makes, keeps much better than the current receipts, and there is naturally a greater demand for it. In anticipation of higher prices it is a natural inclination on the part of dealers to desire to hold good keeping butter on the chance of obtaining a better margin of profit. This is particularly so when they are assured of a ready market for the butter at any time, at prices which will certainly cover them.

Irish factories are still on the market, being quoted at present around 25c to 26c. Some Siberian arrived the middle of the week which is selling at an advanced price. As much as 26½c to 27c was asked. Very few rolls have found their way onto the local market of late. This grade is consumed as rapidly as it is made in the smaller centres of population, particularly in Ontario. What was offered brought 25c to 26c. Dairy continues as scarce as ever with prices around 26c.

During the week 4,663 packages of butter were received, against 5,222 packages same week in 1906. Total receipts since the opening of navigation amount to 391,099 packages, against 585,044 packages same period last year.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The past two weeks have been rather bewildering ones for Canadian packers. With the disastrous and continued slump of the American markets, the local situation has been exceedingly precarious and although the conditions here have not been so serious as across the line, the market has been away off, and there has been doubt as to what would happen next.

The English market still holds waveringly at the stage reached in the recent drop. Danish "killings" were not more than moderate last week, aggregating 36,000, but the serious drop in American markets has been reflected pretty directly in Great Britain, something rather unusual.

The Canadian market, while still considerably off, is much better than at last week's report. Prices are slightly firmer at the lower level, and there seems to be some feeling of confidence present. Packers are saying nothing, but are making the best of a troublesome situation. Prices quoted are : F.o.b. at factory, $4.75 ; fed and watered, 30c higher, and on hogs off cars at factory, $5.25.

The peculiar condition existing in the American market is summarized in the following report from the New York Journal of Commerce :

"The early part of the past week was very active in the market for future hog products under the culminating raid of the packers in their bear campaign, which broke hogs over 2c per lb. in the past month. But at the decline farmers refused to sell freely, receipts declined sharply and the market recovered ½c the last of the week. This was due to the belief that the bear raid was overdone. Stocks are light, and though consumption has fallen off with the advent of hard times, it is believed that the situation has not yet adjusted itself to so radical a decline in hogs. At all events, products have only sympathized partially, though packers are making concessions to the public of 20 per cent. on hog products in some sections, while they have broken hogs 33 1-3 per cent. on the farmer, and they are making a bigger profit on packing than normal. Spot trade has not been improved, however, by the decline, as nobody has wished to stock up while financial conditions were unsettled and the packers still bearing the market for their own products. Exporters came in for meats more freely at the close of last week than for some time past, but since then they have been out of the market again, and they had previously supplied their nearby wants in lard and have been out of the market the past week for both."

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—There has been no material change in the situation since last week, prices remaining unchanged. Demand for lard is brisk, but supplies are not in every case sufficient to fill the wants of the trade. Heavy meats continue in demand.

BUTTER—The market this week is as steady as ever. First-class creamery is none too plentiful and it brings a good price. Dealers are holding on to such grass butter as they have in hopes of better prices. Current receipts are changing hands at prices quoted, and brisk trade is reported. Dairy is coming in a little more freely, according to some firms, who have lowered their prices slightly. The supply is by no means large, however.

REGULATIONS SOMEWHAT MODIFIED.

Department Changes—Meat and Canned Goods Act in Kent and Essex.

As was forecasted in this paper last week, the Department of Agriculture has, in consequence of the peculiar climatic conditions of the western counties, Kent and Essex, somewhat modified the regulations there with respect to the inspection of dressed hogs. Arrangements are being made for the inspection at various shipping points in these counties of the dressed carcasses of hogs with the head, heart, lungs and liver attached, destined for packing establishments in which inspection is maintained under the Meat and Canned Goods Act. In fixing the points of inspection, the department states that regard will be had for the convenience of the shippers and the extent of territory that may be served by each point of inspection.

As the change in the mode of inspection will necessitate the appointment of additional inspectors, an examination of qualified veterinarians who were applicants for the positions, was held in Chatham on Nov. 30, Dr. S. H. Ward, of the department staff, presiding.

This procedure will, no doubt, lessen some of the strenuous objection which has been noticeable since the Act has gone into effect.

Whether or not St. Charles cream is all the makers claim it to be is left for the consumer to judge after having sampled it at Carsley's or Scroggie's, Montreal. St. Charles cream, family and hotel size, is being demonstrated daily in both of these departmental store, in the grocery department. W. H. Halford, Montreal agent for the company, is looking after the interests of his firm in earnest. He has two demonstrators at work, Miss McLaurin, at Carsley's, and Mrs. Cregeen at Scroggie's. Attractive souvenir buttons are being distributed.

CEREALS AND CONFECTIONERY

Grain Markets Are Dull With Flour Somewhat Easier—Western Wheat Arriving Very Freely, Though in Poor Grades.

The easier feeling in the grain markets noted last week continues and this condition has spread to the Eastern Provinces. Business generally is, however, somewhat dull with no sign of an immediate recovery.

Manitoba wheat is coming forward somewhat more freely, though arrivals grade very poorly and are not at all satisfactory to Ontario and Eastern millers.

Oats, also, are arriving more freely, and they, too, are of questionable grade. Local stocks, however, which have been held, are being opened, and manufacturers are using largely from these.

Wheat inspections at Winnipeg continue to make a very unsatisfactory showing, Saturday's total of 294 cars of spring wheat containing but 13 cars of No. 1 Northern and only 40 of No. 2. The absence of No. 1 hard is becoming rather alarming. Saturday's complete returns were: No. 1 Northern, 13 cars; No. 2 Northern, 40 cars; No. 3 Northern, 86 cars; No. 4, 38 cars; No. 5, 35 cars; No. 6, 15 cars; inferior wheat, 67 cars. There were also 11 cars of winter wheat. A year ago 285 cars were graded.

World's shipments of wheat during the past week were estimated at 9,345,000 bushels, compared with 8,540,000 the previous week, and 10,410,000 in 1906. America continues to contribute the major proportion of the total.

The visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States increased 1,523,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 88,000 in 1906. Corn decreased 310,000 and oats 52,000.

Stocks of wheat in store at Fort William and Port Arthur decreased 1,168,000 bushels during the past week.

THE YEAR'S GRAIN CROP.

Estimate of Total Northwest Yield by Western Authority.

A circular has juts been issued by F. O. Fowler, secretary of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, in regard to the total yield of all grain in the Canadian Northwest. Coming from one in close touch with actual conditions, it may be considered more or less accurate.

According to his estimate, the total yield for the year is approximately 163,936,500 bushels. The average yield of wheat per acre is calculated to be 12.9 bushels. The estimated acreage of wheat is 5,013,544, which makes the total wheat yield 64,675,000 bushels. This is not quite up to the best expectations, but must be considered as highly satisfactory under the circumstances.

Mr. Fowler estimates the oat yield per acre at 34.3 bushels. With an estimated acreage of 2,373,030 bushels, the production of this grain aggregates 81,395,000 bushels.

D. M. Ridley, Manitou, Man., has sold his confectionery to W. G. Richard.

ST. JOHN TEA IMPORTS.

Customs Reports Show Larger Quantity Than Other Canadian Cities.

Some weeks ago an article in these columns took up the question of the appointment of a tea inspector for Montreal. Voicing the opinions of the brokers and merchants of that city, an inaccuracy was inadvertently published which was rather unjust to St. John, and to which our attention has been drawn in the following letter. It is self-explanatory:

Editor Canadian Grocer:

In your issue of the 8th inst, under the heading "Montreal Wants Tea Inspector," a paragraph states: "One tea man voices the opinion of the majority when he says there is more tea brought into Montreal—either for use here or for shipment to other parts of Canada—than is received in all other cities of the Dominion put together." If this was the opinion of one man alone the assertion might be allowed to pass without comment, but as apparently it "voices the opinion of the majority." The assumption is so obviously wrong that it calls for correction. For this purpose I submit a comparative statement of the quantity of tea passed by the customs in the cities of St. John, Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver Winnipeg and Halifax—the chief tea importing centres in Canada—for the twelve months ended June 30th, 1907:

	Lbs.
St. John	7,235 947
Montreal	5,414,640
Toronto	5,383,207
Vancouver	1,852,718
Winnipeg	1,793,300
Halifax	1,123,738

I believe the above statement, taken from the official figures, will clearly show the incorrectness of the assertion that Montreal is the largest tea importing centre in the Dominion. It is easily one of the leaders, and for that reason is certainly entitled to prompt recognition of its claim for a tea inspector. Indeed, it seems rather surprising that the pressure of such a claim is at all necessary.

Yours truly,

E. A. SMITH.

The Imperial Syrup Company, Montreal, has purchased the large factory building situated at 29-31 Vitre St. W., and will equip the place with the most modern machinery for their business. The price paid was $30,000. It is likely that the company will manufacture some new lines when they get settled in their new premises. Accommodation at the present offices and warehouse, Grey Nun Street, have been outgrown.

The Laing Packing & Provision Co., of Montreal, has just issued a splendid wall calendar for 1908, the first by the way, which has come to us. The calendar is beautifully lithographed, showing reproductions of the works and also of the firm's products, in natural colors. From the standpoint of utility this calendar will be very useful, for its figures are large enough to be easily read at a distance. Our subscribers may secure a copy of this calendar by writing to this firm in Montreal and mentioning The Canadian Grocer. Drop them a post card.

If it wasn't for one man trying to outdo another, where would we get the stimulating influence of what we call ambition?

DEATHS OF MONTREAL BUSINESS MEN.

Two Prominent Gentlemen of Eastern City Pass Away During the Week.

It was with deep regret that the grocery trade in Montreal learned on Monday of the death of W. S. Laflamme, of Rose & Laflamme, commission merchants, and the deceased gentleman's numerous friends in all parts of Canada will be no less grieved to hear that one who had always enjoyed their friendship and admiration has been called to the great beyond.

W. S. LAFLAMME

Just five months before his death he complained of feeling unwell and gave up business almost entirely in the hope of regaining his strength. He did not succeed in his efforts, however, but passed away in the Royal Victoria Hospital on Monday morning.

Few men in the grocery trade for the same period as the late William Stirling Laflamme made so many friends as he did. His was a character of the type admired by business men. He was a worker, one who knew how to accomplish much quickly and diplomatically, and being a keen judge of men and of a genial disposition, he was not slow in his progress.

During the last twenty-five years of his life he was connected with Mr. Rose, senior partner in the firm of Rose & Laflamme. He became connected with that gentleman in 1882, having had some little previous experience in Toronto. He acted as a salesman and later, in 1891, was taken into partnership in the old firm of Turner, Rose & Co. In 1893 the firm of Rose & Laflamme was established, so that during the past fourteen years Mr. Laflamme was the partner of his former employer in a firm which has built up for itself a large business and a splendid reputation.

Mr. Laflamme, who was forty-seven at the time of his death, is survived by his wife and widowed mother. They and Mr. Rose will have the sympathy of many. The funeral took place from Morrisburg on Thursday afternoon.

F. W. Mathewson.

F. H. Mathewson, manager of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, died last Friday afternoon from heart failure. His death was the indirect result of his horse having run away some weeks ago. At the time Mr. Mathewson suffered a shock, which he did not get over.

His sudden death is mourned in all circles in Montreal. As a business man he was respected and admired by everyone. He was always ready to do his share to further the interests of the trade. He was president of the Board of Trade at one time and during his regime the board enjoyed wonderful prosperity.

Big Game from a Hunting Trip in B.C.

BIG GAME IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The photograph reproduced on this page is a proof of the fact that they have lots of big game in British Columbia. It was taken in front of the store of C. A. Phair, one of The Grocer's subscribers, at Lillooet, a small town which is in the centre of what is recognized as a sportsman's paradise.

The heap of game shown is the result of one hunting trip in this district and includes six Rocky Mountain rams, ten Rocky Mountain goats, two cariboo, one grizzly bear, one black bear and one stag.

The records for the district include sheep of 17 inches, grizzles of 10 feet, cariboo 53 points, goats 10½ inches.

THE TIME TO COLLECT.

A careful retail merchant who has given much thought to the credit and collection side of his business, says that the best part of collecting is done when the goods are being sold. Right then there should be a personal understanding as to when the account is to be paid.

He makes it a practice to secure a note in every case where the account is large enough to justify it.

Many merchants dislike to do this. They are afraid it will offend the customer, but every business must have certain rules to follow in this respect if it is to succeed. Because some customer gets mad about your business regulations is no reason why you should abolish them.—Maritime Merchant.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Fruit Market Less Active—Potato Supplies Arriving Freely—Brisk Business in Fish.

There has been a break in fruit prices. The demand for fruits has weakened considerably. Dealers report business as being rather dull. Oranges have taken a drop. The break is due to the tightness of money. In the United States the situation is none too cheerful. California navels are a fine sample, well matured and a good flavor. Tangerines are on the market. Business in lemons is reported to have improved.

The vegetabe market has a better tone. Supplies of potatoes are arriving in big lots with a slightly improved quality. The demand is good. Such lines of vegetables as turnips, beets, carrots and cabbage, are in good demand.

The fish market has a very active tone. All lines are selling well. Prices are slightly lower in some lines. Advent and cold weather have greatly strengthened the demand. The oyster season is opening strong.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—The supply of oranges in Montreal is large and prices have broken. Lemons are selling fairly well. California Winter Nellis pears are now being offered by fruit men. They are asking for this line $3 a box. Tangerines are on the market and are selling in good lots at $4 a box. Evergreen wreathing is being displayed in fruit houses. It is quoted at $2 a bale of about 160 yards. New Halloween dates are on the market, 5c. lb. being asked for them.

VEGETABLES—A great deal of activity does not characterize the market at present. It is an off season with the vegetable men and they are not making any particular efforts to work up trade. Several price changes will be noticed. Beans are quoted this week $4.50 a basket, being asked. Potatoes are unchanged as to price. The stock arriving is a little better in quality but demand is so brisk that receipts are quickly consumed.

FISH—With Advent in progress, fish is selling in a very satisfactory manner. All lines are in good demand. There is to be seen this week reductions in most all of the popular lines. Some new varieties are on the list, including pollock, haddock and red sea trout. St. John bloaters are once more being quoted. Oysters are in strong demand, with prices not so firm as they have been all along.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—The fruit market is very quiet. Supplies are good, but dealers are cautious in regard to buying. The financial stringency has had a marked effect on the orange situation. Prices have weakened slightly. Jamaicas and Mexicans are quoted lower. Navels are arriving freely and are a good sample, being well matured and colored. Lemons are slow in spite of the drop. Almeria grapes are not selling too briskly on account of the high prices. Bananas are not being handled in great quantities yet. Apples are in fair demand at former prices.

VEGETABLES—Potatoes are easier, though prices have not been lowered appreciably. Supplies have improved greatly, many shipments having arrived lately. The cold weather has made dealers anxious to sell as they fear damager from frost. The difference in the quality of potatoes is responsible for different prices being demanded. Turnips are selling well and are a good quality. Cabbage, carrots, beets and parsnips are also being sold freely. Prices in these lines are firm. Onions are a shade higher.

FISH—All lines of fish are selling briskly. The cold weather has sharpened the demand and dealers are well satisfied with the outlook. The market remains active and if anything prices are easier. NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS EASIER

Provision Prices Dropping—Large Winter Port Shipments—California Dried Fruit Delayed—Business in Lumberm en's Supplies Light.

(Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer)

St. John, N.B., Dec. 1.

There was very little change in the local markets last week, prices in all lines remaining about the same. Oats are cheaper by about three cents, as is also cornmeal in bags.

Business just at present is a little slack, although dried fruits and other materials for the Christmas cooking are commencing to move. The jobbers report that there was the usual delay in the arrival of goods from California, and dried fruits and nuts from foreign ports were behind time.

During the past week the winterport steamers brought large shipments for the local dealers. There were 2,795 packages of raisins, 300 half-cases currants, 200 bags nuts, 1,020 bags sugar, 125 bags rice, 11 cases nutmegs, 1,961 chests tea, 423 barrels grapes, 30 cases lemons and 90 cases onions, in addition to a lot of miscellaneous packages.

The steamer Amanda, of the Scotia line, made her first trip here from Jamaica, via Halifax, and brought 473 barrels of oranges, 50 barrels grapes, 65 bags cocoas and 19 cases of preserves.

There is a very much lower market on pork and lard, and evaporated apples are reported easier. Collections are as good as can be expected from present conditions. The poor lumber market has affected the sales of lumbermen's supplies, as there will probably not be more than half the usual number of men sent into the woods.

The tendency seems to be for lower prices.

A wedding of particular interest to St. John grocers was solemnized at St. Stephen on Thursday, Nov. 28, when John C. Elmore, of the wholesale grocery firm of Elmore & Mullin, South Wharf, St. John, was united in marriage to Miss Annie Shaughnessy, eldest daughter of John Shaughnessy, of His Majesty's customs service, in the border town. Rev. Father Lavery officiated, and nuptial mass was celebrated. After a wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Elmore left for a tour of the principal U. S. cities. Very many valuable gifts attest the popularity of the newly wedded couple.

The dispute between the ship laborers and the steamship companies as to the wages to be paid for discharging and loading steamers is still unsettled. The laborers refuse to work for less than 40 cents, and the steamship companies won't pay more than 30 cents, which was last winter's rate. Already fifty-one men have been brought from Montreal and others are likely to be brought down this week. The steamship people have been working the crews of the vessels to load and unload.

G. E. Barbour, of the firm of Geo. E. Barbour & Co., was in Boston last week on a business trip.

ADVICE ON BUYING TEAS.

Grocers are sometimes doubtful as to the best way to buy teas, whether in quantities or in smaller lots at frequent intervals. The following extract from a letter written by the Salada Tea Co. to an enquiring customer may be useful:

"Replying to your question as to how long tea should be kept, we might say that all kinds and varieties of tea lose quality with age. If it is a very high grown, flavory tea, it will lose as much as 2 cents per pound in quality in six months, and in a year probably from 5c. to 6c. Low-grown, poor tea, not having so much flavor, have less to lose.

"Take the tea you mention in your letter. You have had it in stock for two years. During that time the money would be worth at least 6 per cent. per annum in interest, and say 2 per cent. for insurance. Carrying it for two years would amount to a loss of 16 per cent., at least, or say 4 cents per pound, besides the loss in quality.

"We know that if we were in the retail business we would do exactly as we do now, i.e., save as much as we possibly could in interest, buy our stock from hand to mouth and never buy any teas unless we could return them and get our money back at any time. Let the wholesale man (who is supposed to understand the tea trade) take all chances. We advise all our friends to not have more than two months' stock of tea ahead. By this means (aside from the saving in interest) they are getting their tea as fresh as possible from the gardens."

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

ALD. RICHARD TURNER.

Montreal.

Richard Turner, who for more than a dozen years has served the City of Montreal in the capacity of alderman for St. Gabreil ward, Point St. Charles, is a native of Canada. He is now seventy-one years of age, although he could pass for much less, so lightly do his years sit upon him. His whole business life has been passed in Montreal, and his memory carries him back to a time when it was not the rushing metropolis of to-day.

Since an early age he has carried on a grocery business, and his attractive store at the corner of Magdalen and Wellington Sts. is a monument to his energy and ability.

Ever since he came to the years of manhood Mr. Turner has taken a keen interest in public affairs. In politics he is an unswerving Conservative, and long has been one of the party's chief standard bearers in Point St. Charles.

In person he is of the short, muscular type, which perhaps accounts for his many years of youth. He has a quiet and dignified bearing and wastes very few words in concealing his thoughts, as he usually comes directly to the point in question, leaving no doubt whatever on what side of the issue he is to be found.

J. P. Guay, general storekeeper, of St. Elzear, Que., has assigned.

Arthur Marsolais, Montreal, who has been engaged in the grocery trade, has assigned.

Geo. Audet, general storekeeper of Les Eboulements, Que., has made an assignment.

HAMILTON, CANADA

NOVA SCOTIA AND P. E. I.

Business Continues Brisk—New Fresh Fish Tariff Announced by Railways—Large Produce Shipments From Prince Edwards Island.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 2.

The wholesale merchants are busy filling orders, and the general merchants in the country are having good times. Business all around appears to be booming, and no complaint is heard on any side. Trade conditions generally are satisfactory and fully up to expectations for the season of the year. Collections continue very good.

The city of Halifax has imposed a tax of $20 on peddlars who go from door to door selling produce. The enforcement of this law will benefit the retail dealers, as only a small portion of those who follow this vacation will take out licenses. In addition to this the produce raisers who come to the city weekly with vegetables, butter, etc., are barred from selling in the same way, and the natural consequence is that this trade diverts to the retail shopkeeper. The new law will prove very inconvenient for the housekeepers, as they must go to the stores, but the object of it is to protect the shopkeeper, who has to pay high taxation.

All records for produce arrivals this season were smashed on Wednesday of last week, when eleven sailing vessels from Prince Edward Island came into port with their holds filled to the hatches. Their aggregate cargoes were as follows: Potatoes, 34,504 bushels; oats, 11,288 bus.; turnips, 4,099 bus.; beets, 69 bus.; carrots, 95 bus.; parsnips, 46 bus.

The demand for potatoes is not as heavy as is usual at this season of the year. New Brunswick potatoes are quoted at 60c per bushel; Nova Scotia 55c, and Prince Edward Island at 45c, the latter ex-vessel. There is said to be considerable dry rot in the island potatoes this year. At public auction last week a cargo of one thousand bushels was sold at 38c per bushel.

Some of the commission men are looking for a drop in the price of all produce. They say that the present condition of the money market will bring this about very shortly. Pork has already dropped. Ten days ago it was quoted at 9 to 9½ cents. Last week it sold for 8 and 8½ cents, and even at these reduced prices the demand was not great.

The butter situation shows little improvement and the receipts for the season of the year are very light. Some of the farmers, it is said, have considerable butter on hand, but they are holding their stock back. Very little dairy butter in small tubs was marketed during the past week. It was thought that with the closing of the cheese factories the butter situation would improve, but the indications for any large increase are not very bright. Good dairy in small tubs is worth about 28 cents, while creamery prints are quoted from 28 to 30 cents. Large tubs are selling from 26 to 27 cents.

There is much complaint among the trade regarding the class of apples marketed here. The local dealers have the greatest difficulty in securing high grade fruit, even when they offer the highest market prices. The farmer prefers to ship his fruit across to the Old Country, and in many cases his returns are less than half of what he could have received at home. It is quite true, as the farmer says, that a few carloads of No. 1 fruit would be sufficient to supply the demand in the Halifax market, but there are people here who would and could afford to pay high prices, if they had a guarantee from a reliable farmer that the fruit was first-class. The first and second rows of apples are always very tempting, but in most cases the quality varies deeper down. The apple markets continue very active and the weather most favorable for shipments. So far the frost has not been heavy enough to damage any of the fruit in transit.

The butter markets are considerably easier, having been relieved somewhat by the arrival of large tubs of dairy butter, but the price is still very firm. The demand has fallen off to some extent, due to the high price, as people cannot afford to buy it. As a result, the sales of molasses have increased. Fresh eggs continue very scarce and record prices are asked for the choicest stock. In the green market they sell for 45 to 50 cents. Very good case eggs can be had for 27c.

Prince Edward Island produce is now coming along quite freely, though much later in the season than usual. The receipts last week totalled about fifteen thousand bushels of potatoes, and three thousand bushels of turnips. Potatoes are quoted at 40 to 45 cents on vessel, and turnips at 30 cents per bushel. These prices will probably hold, as the demand is good locally, and also at other provincial points. The shipments from the island to American ports continue heavy, and a lot of Nova Scotia potatoes are being sent to the Havana market.

The Halifax and Southwestern Railway have issued their tariff rates for the transportation of fresh fish in iced cars from points on their line to Montreal. This car leaves Yarmouth every Friday morning attached to the express train, arriving in Halifax on Friday night, and from here is forwarded to Montreal on the fast freight, arriving in Montreal early on Tuesday. In a circular, P. Maoney, general freight and passenger agent, says: "The Department of Marine and Fisheries is particularly anxious to encourage the shipment of fresh fish to Canadian markets and everything else being equal, I think it is to the advantage of the fishermen of Canada to encourage home markets. Naturally it is not expected that if the prices ruling the Montreal market are lower than prices in the American market that the fishermen will ship to Montreal. On the other hand, I have been assured that, generally speaking, fresh fish will net better prices in the Montreal market than elsewhere, with the exception, of course, of halibut, which is shipped in large quantities from the Pacific coast." The special tariff on fresh fish, finnan haddies, etc, is as follows:

From	Rate 100 lbs. L.C.L.	C.L.
Yarmouth to Lunenburg, inclusive	55c.	38c.
Martin's River, Chester Basin, western shore	54c.	37c.
Chester, East Chester, East River	53c.	36c.
Hubbard's, Ingram Port, Boutilier's	51c.	35c.
St. Margaret's Bay	49c.	34c.
French Village	47c.	33c.

Division: I.C.R. proportion L.C.L. 35c; C.L. 26c; H. & S.W. Ry. proportion, balance.

The price of oysters on the island has dropped to $4 and $4.50 per barrel. Considerable excitement has been caused among oyster dealers over a large shipment that was forwarded to Montreal, and not allowed to be handled on account of their quality. It was reported that the oysters were under size and the inspector complained of them.

The fresh smelt industry is now booming on the island. Last week six tons were shipped to the American market.

PACKAGE TEA HOUSES AMALGAMATE.

Under New Arrangement Toronto Firm Moves to Montreal.

The Blue Ribbon Tea Co., Toronto, and the Ram Lal Pure Tea Co., London, Eng., have amalgamated. The change is in effect now with the pending removal of the former company's stock and equipment to the new Canadian headquarters at 266 St. Paul St., Montreal. It is expected that everything will be in shape in the new premises by January 1st next.

Mr. C. H. Roosmale-Cocq, who has been manager of the Blue Ribbon Tea Co., in Toronto, will have the general management of the newly-amalgamated companies. With his thorough training in teas in London and in the Canadian tea trade in Halifax, St. John and Toronto, the new company's package teas should swing forward with still greater impetus.

A PARTICULAR CUSTOMER.

"Ma wants a pound of cheese exactly like what you sent us last. If it isn't exactly like what she got before she won't take it," said the small boy.

The grocer turned to his numerous customers and remarked blandly.

"Some people in my business don't like particular customers, but I do. It's my delight to serve them and get them what they want. I will attend to you in a moment, little boy."

"Be sure and get the same kind. A lot of pa's relations are visiting our house and ma doesn't want 'em to come again," the small boy explained.

H. H. Barnard, of Montreal, representing Hunt & Co., Yokohama, was in Toronto last week completing a trip through Western Ontario.

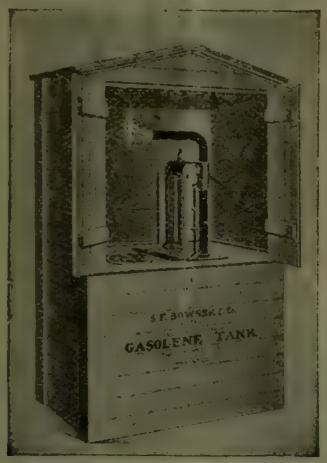
RETAILING GASOLENE WITH PROFIT is only possible when a Bowser Gasolene Tank is used—any other method means a loss.



Cut 10.—OUT-DOOR CABINET

And that's just the reason nine out of ten grocers will tell you they would rather not sell gasolene and only do so because customers demand it.

The reason the tenth man isn't kicking is because he has a Bowser and so makes a profit on every gallon sold.

A Bowser Gasolene Tank is leak, evaporation and waste proof—draws and measures ten gallons of gasolene in less time than one gallon takes with the old style tank. With it, you can sell all the gasolene you buy with the least possible amount of labor. That's why the Bowser insures profit from the sale of gasolene.

How this is accomplished is shown in Gasolene Catalog B.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

BATGER'S

Machine-cut Mixed Peel

In ½-lb. and 1-lb. Drums.

Prepared and packed by machinery, thus ensuring cleanliness and uniformity.

Saves time, trouble and loss of weight.

The three kinds of Peel, Lemon, Orange and Citron, properly blended, are all cut ready for immediate use. If you once sell this line to your customers they will always ask for it, because every housewife likes BATGER'S Machine-Cut Peel, once she uses it. Your profit is sure and substantial. Ask your jobber for it. In ½ and 1-lb drums.

Why?

Why is the BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE the best publication in the magazine field?

Simply because each issue contains, in addition to its original articles, the Cream and the Choicest and Best articles appearing in all other magazines and periodicals. Take your favorite magazine, pick out the articles that interest you, then turn to the Busy Man's and you will find that these same articles appear in it. Not only do the best articles in your favorite magazine appear in Busy Man's, but the live, up-to-date ones appearing in SCORES of publications which do not come your way.

Think of how interesting, entertaining, and instructive this many-in-one magazine must be. Not a dull page in it; every page SELECT. It is so interesting that not one per cent. of our thousands of readers discontinue their subscriptions.

A post card giving us your address will bring you a free sample copy along with the unsolicited testimony of dozens of our readers.

We will send the Magazine till January 1st, 1909 (14 issues) for $2, the price of one year's subscription. This offer only holds good while the Christmas Number lasts. SEND US YOUR ORDER TO-DAY.

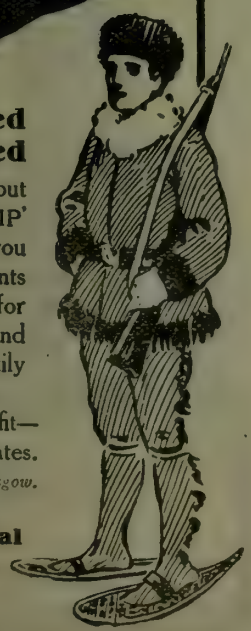
'CAMP' COFFEE



Fore-warmed is Fore-armed

Not the usual way of putting it, but equally true in this case. ¶ Try 'CAMP' Coffee yourself—try it to day—then you will be armed with the best arguments in its favour. You will know it for yourself as a delicious, economical, and easily made coffee — and will heartily recommend it to your customers.

¶ 'Camp' yields you a handsome profit—sells easily, sells quickly, never deteriorates.

Old Homestead Brand
Canned Fruits and Vegetables

is the brand of absolute purity. We might tell you this till we are blue in the face, but you would be justified in disbelieving us if you had ever heard a customer complain about the brand. Customers never complain about Old Homestead Brand because there's nothing to complain about. Herein lies the secret of Old Homestead's success—and the success of the grocers who handle it. It satisfies the customers. So much so that they come back and want more of the brand.

Are you handling this popular brand? It's the most profitable as well as the most popular brand on the market.

No wonder! Nothing is used in Old Homestead Brand but the soundest of perfectly grown, ripe, delicious fruits and vegetables, which are canned under conditions of unexcelled cleanliness.

BUSY MAN'S IS A NECESSITY, NOT A LUXURY.

If you were to offer your customers, free of charge, an everyday household commodity, and they did not take advantage of your offer, what would you think of them?

This is exactly what you do when you refuse to send for a free sample copy of the Busy Man's Magazine. The magazine is a necessity, not a luxury. It shows how men in your line have succeeded. It will keep you posted on all topics of the times, furnish you with new ideas and inspirations.

The man in business, or the young man with a business life stretched out before him, reaches the goal of success by checking up his methods with methods of men who have succeeded. He cannot help but profit by their experience. Two heads are always better than one.

The December number of the Busy Man's contains a thrilling and inspiring story of a young man who started life at $12 a week, and was drawing a salary of $40,000 a year at the age of 30. A true story, though it may appear impossible. His grit, tact, and perseverance overcame the insurmountable difficulties which most of us fall down on. Wouldn't you like to read it?

The January number tells the story of a young farm boy who entered business life under many handicaps. He was wide-awake and earnest. To-day his name ranks first in the commercial world; his annual income is well up in the million mark. He tells in the Busy Man's Magazine how he overcame such difficulties as we are stumbling against every day. Can you afford to miss this story?

The life stories of successful men is just one of the many features of Busy Man's, which gives the Cream, the choicest, and the Best articles in the world's current magazines and periodicals. Nothing gets into the Busy Man's except the instructive, timely and entertaining. No turning over of a dozen pages to get one interesting one.

Our special offer gives you the December and January numbers free, 14 issues for $2, the price of 12. But the offer only holds good as long as the Christmas number lasts. Send your order in to-day.

Windsor Salt

There wasn't a cent's worth of Windsor Salt found in the stock of John Smith, the grocer, who failed last week. Way up on the shelves, though, were no less than six different kinds of salt under various names—every package, box and bag of it was dirty and fly-specked.

Seems as if every successful retail grocer in Canada sold Windsor Salt—grocers who are not tempted to buy "just as good" kinds for the saving in price. Poor John Smith was tempted too far! No Windsor Salt for him—rather have dirty salt, salt that cakes, salt that's not all salt, salt sold for its attractive name—than the pure white, dry salt crystals of Windsor Salt.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

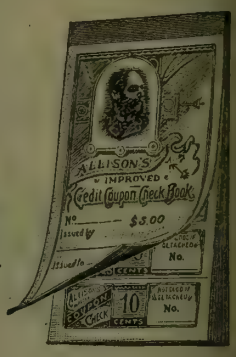
Allison Coupon Books

Eliminate the Non-essentials



Many a business man is so loaded down with details that his really important problems can receive only secondary consideration.

This condition is overcome in any mercantile house by the adoption of the Allison Coupon system. With it, accounts are kept better and more accurately, at about one-tenth the usual cost.

THE PLAN

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

THE CANADIAN GROCER'S Christmas Competitions

Window Dressing Contest

Almost every grocer devotes a little extra attention to Window Dressing at the Christmas holiday season. And this is a form of advertising which is certain to bring good results. With a view to improving the windows of our subscribers and to show what may be done along this line, THE CANADIAN GROCER has arranged this contest.

This year, however, as a new departure, contestants will be divided into two classes :

I. Grocers and Grocery Clerks in city stores ;

II. Grocers and Grocery Clerks in stores in the country districts.

Prizes of $7 and $3

For each class first and second prizes of $7 and $3 are offered, $20 in all.

To enter the contest, send a fair sized photograph of one or more of your Christmas windows, with a description of it and the name of the person who dressed it, to us. The contest will close on December 31st.

A competent judge will make the awards, and the results will be announced, together with reproductions of the best windows, early in the new year.

Address photograph to Editor CANADIAN GROCER ; mark, "Window Dressing Contest."

Best Advertisement Contest

For some years this paper has been publishing articles telling its readers how best to advertise, and emphasizing the fact that their own home newspapers are the most effective medium. We want to find out how much good you have received from these hints and criticisms and to that end have arranged this contest.

Most up-to-date grocers, even those who use newspaper space at no other time in the year, advertise to a greater or less extent at the Christmas season. Every one of our subscribers who does should enter this contest. A prize of $5 is offered for the best advertisement from a Canadian newspaper.

Prize of $5

The advertisement should be about groceries, confectionery, etc., for the holiday season. All that is necessary is to forward clipping from local paper to us, with the name of the advertisement-writer. The award will be made by our advertising specialists and will be announced, with a reproduction of the prize advertisement, early in January. Contest closes December 31st.

If you have not yet arranged for your Christmas advertising, do so at once, and send in one of the best advertisements to us for entry in this contest.

Comment on Freight Rates

Varied Opinions Regarding New Western Schedule—Moose Jaw and Portage la Prairie Pleased, Regina Strenuously Objects.

A fortnight ago this paper published a schedule of the new freight tariff for the West. The article included comment on the matter from the Winnipeg standpoint and also a petition forwarded to the Board of Railway Commissioners from the Winnipeg Board of Trade. The paragraphs following show how the new tariff is regarded in the larger towns further west.

Regina Opposes New Rates.

In response to a letter inquiring the effect of the new freight rates on the shippers in Regina, H. C. Lawson, commissioner and secretary of the Board of Trade, writes as follows.

"In further reply to your letter of November 20th, I now beg to say that we have gained a little more information as to freight rates. For some reason the C.P.R. have held back the rates from the East to Winnipeg, and though we telegraphed for the rates on the 19th we were unable to secure them, and even now all information we have on hand is what was obtained verbally from Mr. Lanigan. This seems an extraordinary state of affairs in view of the fact that the new tariff comes into force to-day.

"However, Mr. Lanigan was in Regina on Friday night last and in a conversation with some of our principal shippers gave them an outline of these rates from the East to Winnipeg. From these it would appear that Regina is at a hopeless disadvantage as compared with Winnipeg in shipping car load freight, and the present tariff would practically mean that the implement men here, who are our largest shippers, would have to go out of business. When this was pointed out to Mr. Lanigan he expressed much surprise and said that there must be some mistake somewhere and promised to look into the matter on his return to Winnipeg and if necessary have it adjusted at once. The Council of the Board of Trade, however, though it advisable to take some steps in the matter and called an emergency meeting on Saturday morning to deal with the matter, as a result of this meeting the following telegram was dispatched: 'Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa,—Regina Board of Trade protest against ratification of proposed freight tariff on grounds of gross discrimination against Regina inward and outward car load rates, proposed tariff threatens Regina's commercial interests. Inwards tariff just received last night, therefore, could not express opinion before.'"

Moose Jaw is Well Pleased.

The Moose Jaw Board of Trade favors the new freight rates, as may be seen from a perusal of the statement below which was sent this paper by Hugh McKellar, the secretary of the board. The new schedule, Mr. McKellar explains, is the result of action taken by the Portage la Prairie Board of Trade some months ago, and the statement made by the chairman of the Railway Commission that the special commodity tariff schedules were, in his opinion, illegal because of their discrimination in favor of Winnipeg and against the small wholesale centres of the West. Mr. McKellar claims that the new tariff places all on an equitable footing and gives all an equal chance so far as freight rates are concerned. He sums up the situation as follows:

When the Moose Jaw Board of Trade protested against existing freight rates, the following were a few of the conditions prevailing:

1. Flour ground in Moose Jaw from wheat raised in the district, shipped East or down the Soo line, was called a "backward" shipment and was rated higher than flour ground in Winnipeg from wheat raised in Saskatchewan, and shipped West (forward shipment).

2. Dried fruits shipped from B.C. or California even in carload lots to Moose Jaw was charged Winnipeg rate plus local rate from Winnipeg to Moose Jaw, Winnipeg being the centre from which all rates were based.

3. When carloads of stoves, furnaces, nails, agricultural implements, groceries, etc., came through from Eastern factories or firms, it was almost prohibitive to ship any part of same back to any points east of Moose Jaw, for Winnipeg middlemen had a special rate —balance of through rate—which gave them a monopoly.

Moose Jaw claimed the privilege of through rates and a fair rate for distributing in territory adjacent to Moose Jaw.

When Portage la Prairie Board of Trade submitted its case to the Railway Commission, Moose Jaw recognized the struggle was identical with Moose Jaw's claim, and was delighted with the opinion expressed by the chairman of the Railway Commission, who "doubted the legality of existing rates." C.P.R. officials realized that their position was untenable and at once offered to prepare a new tariff upon an equitable basis—per mileage rate—with no favors to any city, corporation, firm, or individual. The rates now submitted are in fulfilment of such promise and will be endorsed and approved by all western trade centres. The consternation prevailing in Winnipeg over the new rates indicates most clearly the favors which Winnipeg middlemen have been enjoying at the expense of western trade centres and consumers generally as well as the strongest argument possible for a revision of the rates upon a legal and equitable basis.

If the new rates are equitable, and no doubt they are, the only point for argument is: "Are they too high?" If they are too high any reduction made will have to apply to the whole territory covered, and western trade centres will profit in the same ratio as Winnipeg. The day is past when all goods coming from eastern provinces must stop at Winnipeg, merely to give Winnipeg middlemen a chance to profit at the expense of the west.

The members of the Moose Jaw Board of Trade have noticed the frantic efforts being made by various organizations in Winnipeg to prevent the new rates going into effect, thereby continuing the present illegal rates, and at a special meeting this afternoon passed a resolution to wire the following message:

Moose Jaw, Nov. 22, 1907. Hon. A. C. Killam, Chairman Board of Railway Commissioners, Ottawa, Ont. "Moose Jaw Board of Trade strongly protests against cancellation of new tariff taking effect 25th inst. If these rates are found inequitable, Winnipeg Board of Trade with others will have opportunity at future date of asking for adjustment of same."

Will Benefit Portage la Prairie

In response to a letter of inquiry regarding the effect on Portage la Prairie shippers, of the new freight rates announced by the C.P.R., H. W. Baker, secretary of the Board of Trade in that city, wrote the Winnipeg office of this paper as follows:

"Referring to recent interchange of communications in regard to readjustment of freight rates, the writer regrets his inability to visit you while in your city last week, but found it practically impossible to do so, and in view of the strenuous objections to the new tariffs manifested and filed by Calgary and Winnipeg interests, we were not altogether certain that the Railway Commission would sanction their effectiveness. However, it seems the new tariffs have been put in force, or will be, according to schedule, and it will mean so very much to Portage la Prairie and every town and city in Western Canada that the writer is somewhat abashed at the task of interpretation.

"Heretofore we were unable to compete with Winnipeg on any commodity because of their discriminatory freight rates and in order that you may fully comprehend the extent of the discrimination we will state that it cost our agricultural implement dealers 73c. per 100 lbs. to ship an engine and separator outfit to Calgary, while Winnipeg could make the identical same shipment on a rate of 61c. per 100 lbs., although 56 miles farther away, and the shipment to go over the same ground, except the 56 miles. Numerous other incidents concerning various shipments to various destinations could be cited that would show even greater disadvantage to shippers from this point but the one incident mentioned will no doubt suffice to make clear to you our erstwhile unenviable position with regard to trade.

Briefly, the revision of the freight tariffs becoming effective November 25 and December 1, as applying to Winnipeg, Portage la Prairie and all other points throughout Western Canada, displaces all discrimination in favor of Winnipeg or other points, places our present industries in a favorable position to compete successfully with Winnipeg, eastern and western houses, on whatever we have to ship and paves the way for the profitable operation of industries that are seeking location in our city, of which there are several that could not possibly be secured hitherto, on account of unfavorable rates.

In addition to this, by bringing about the readjustment of freight rates, it not only gives us a prominent position in the competitive west, but places every town and city west of Winnipeg on an equal footing so far as rates go and leaves the development of these towns and cities but to their natural advantages only.

"While there is one feature about the new tariffs which does not appeal to us very strongly, i.e., the high base of rates substituted, still we have accomplished a long stride in the right direction and undoubtedly sufficient pressure will eventually be brought to bear upon the railroads that will ultimately result in a more reasonable basis of rates.

"We were not, nor are we now in a position to dictate just what the basis of rates should have been, or what should be substituted and were compelled to trust to the railroads to place reasonable rates in effect. In any event we have been successful in bringing about the elimination of discriminatory freight rates and no doubt will finally with persistent efforts hereafter as heretofore, obtain rates on a lower level of base.

"For your information we beg to advise you just how we have been benefited by the change in rates, without going into too many figures, but we feel at the present that we will now have more time to supply you with any specific information desired. Very truly yours, Herbert W. Baker, Secretary."

Edmonton Will Be Benefited.

The new freight tariff which came into effect recently has been of interest to Edmonton wholesalers and retailers alike and the general feeling is that the tariff is a beneficial one to Edmonton. Full details have not yet been received regarding the new tariff from eastern Canada to Winnipeg, but the tariff between Winnipeg and Edmonton has been considerably reduced. On the Canadian Northern, for example, this reduction on west-bound freight ranges between 13c per hundred pounds on freight in class 1, to 4c per hundred pounds on freight in class 10. There is a corresponding reduction in the other classes of freight and for all the towns between Edmonton and Winnipeg. On east-bound freight from Edmonton on the C.N.R. there is a similar reduction. The larger portion of goods shipped east from Edmonton goes to the small points between this city and Winnipeg, while most of the goods coming into Edmonton on this line come through from Winnipeg.

Taking freight in class 5, which is the class of groceries and other similar articles, the old rate was 79c per hundred pounds from Winnipeg to Edmonton, while by the new tariff now in force the price is now 73c per hundred pounds. On large shipments this reduction is considerable. On east-bound freight from Edmonton in class 5, the old rate to Fort Saskatchewan was 9 cents, and the new rate 8 cents. To Vegreville the old rate was 18 cents, and the new rate 17 cents. To Vermilion the old rate was 24 cents, and the new rate 23 cents. To Lloydminster the old rate was 28 cents and the new rate 26 cents. To North and South Battleford the old rate was 39 cents, and the new rate 33 cents. To Warman the old rate was 46 cents, and the new rate 38 cents. To Saskatoon the old rate was 47 cents, and the new rate 39 cents. There is a corresponding reduction for intervening points.

The chief effect of this reduction in the tariff should be to make goods cheaper in Edmonton.

TRADE BRISK IN NOVA SCOTIA

Business Generally Active—Potato Prices Lower—Fish Catch Above the Average—Large Apple Shipments to British Markets.

Halifax, December 9.

All branches of the grocery trade are very active, and business is good generally, with prices firm. Large shipments of goods are being made to coastal points before the close of navigation. Business is also reported good in the country districts. The roads are now in better condition, for traveling and this adds quite a stimulus to trade. The butter and egg markets show very little change, and the receipts of both are very small. The price of these articles is steady and both are in very good demand as the holiday season approaches. The market is well supplied with poultry, and the price is a little lower than at the same season last year. Hogs are coming in quite plentifully now, and the price has eased off some, large hogs selling for eight cents, and the smaller ones for 8½ cents.

The commission men are handling large quantities of produce, both for home and foreign consumption. As forecasted in this correspondence last week, the prices of potatoes have dropped, and they are now selling from the vessels at the wharves for 38c per bushel. The demand for Prince Edward Island potatoes is not as brisk as usual at this season of the year.

The catch of the Lunenburg fishing fleet this season has been the best for years. The number of vessels engaged was much smaller than usual, but the high prices ruling made up for any deficiency in that respect. The catch of the Lunenberg fleet of forty-six vessels totalled 12,820,000 pounds, about 875,000 pounds more than last season. The LaHave fleet of thirty-nine vessels landed 8,285,000 pounds, nearly a million pounds short of last season. The catch of the Mahone Bay fleet of ten vessels was 2,530,000 pounds, being 160,000 pounds more than last season. The combined catch of the three fleets for the season of 1907. was 23,635,000 pounds, an increase of 53,000 pounds over the season of 1906. There was a scarcity of men to man the vessels, but the fishing on all the banks was good, and the catch for those engaged was the best for a number of years. Haddock fishing was good throughout the season, and the total catch is above the average. The herring catch was also good, but lobsters and macherel show a falling off. Most of the live lobsters taken were shipped alive to the American markets, while the smaller ones were sold to the canners.

Charles Marsden, who was for many years a clerk in the retail grocery establishment of Dillion Bros., has resigned his position with the firm, and opened up a first-class grocery on his own account on Spring Garden road. He is a smart, enterprising young man, thoroughly familiar with every branch of the grocery business, and he should make a success of his undertaking.

Freight trains over the Dominion Atlantic Railway are rushing to the city day and night with apples for the British markets. The Furness liner Shenadoah sailed the other week with 32,000 barrels, then followed the Evangeline with another big cargo, and then the St. John City took a large shipment. Notwithstanding the fact that there were forwarded 17,000 more barrels to Liverpool and 38,000 more barrels to London from all parts during the last week of November, than in the corresponding week a year ago, the price netted the fruit grower in many instances as high as four dollars per barrel. This is very encouraging to the fruit industry, coming so close on the trail of the tightness of the money market, which shows that the demand in the European markets is keeping pace with the enormous increase in the production on this side of the water. Of all the fruit which has been exhibited on either side of the Atlantic, none has equalled or excelled that which the far-famed Annapolis Valley has produced. Nova Scotia is fast becoming the banner apple producing country of the world. Not so much in acreage only, but in the quality and quantity stands better than the best. Ten times the quantity of apples are being sent weekly to Europe now than the whole season's crop of fourteen years ago, which in 1893-4 amounted to only 3,758 barrels. It is stated by reliable authority that this season's crop will exceed three-quarters of a million barrels, for which the fruit growers will probably receive $2,350,000.

The big fire last week which destroyed the warehouse of the Rat Portage Lumber Co., in Winnipeg, also gave the Dyson Co. a severe scorching, but there will be no interruption of shipments of Red Cross pickles and other lines.

BARRIE.

Local option is one of the much-talked topics of the street just now. Both the hotel men and brewers here are working very hard for their cause, while the local option committees are doing all in their power to carry their by-law, which will be voted on at the general elections on Jan. 6th.

Some other instances of this local option war are making startling surprises on some of the merchants in the town. One man, a leading grocer who signed and is working in favor of local option, has been boycotted by all the hotels. One where he previously got a large trade. Two butchers, large dealers, have also suffered the same.

W. J. Carr has entered partnership with H. Brolley, butcher, of Thornton.

Saturday's market was a very large one, considering that all the snow had disappeared the day before and left the roads in a very bad condition. Fowl in particular, was very plentiful. Turkeys sold from 12 to 13 cents; ducks, 8 to 10 cents; geese sold at 8 to 9 cents; chickens were a little firmer in price and were in demand at 8 to 11 cents. Old fowl was plentiful and brought from 5 to 6 cents. Eggs have been coming in slowly, that is, for new laid stock, while limed and held eggs have been offering only fair. A shipment or two of imported eggs to town this week has caused a break in price and limed eggs are now retailing at 23 to 24 cents, while fresh held eggs are selling at 26 cents and strictly new laid selling at 28 cents. Butter also took a downward flight and sold as low as 25 cents up to 27 cents. The highest price paid for wheat here Saturday was 90 cents.

J. J. Jamieson finished placing his car of "Quaker" canned goods last week. This makes the third car of these goods that John has sold in this town for H. P. Eckhardt & Co.

Price-cutting still continues here. Just imagine a man paying rent and hiring his clerks and putting up raisins at 7 cents a pound, tobacco 8 cents a plug and currants at 8 cents a pound and other articles of the grocery trade, at about the same rate. Yet such things are going on and by the little fellow around the corner, well he might just as well get his share of the profits that are going. He will sell as much goods and his business will last much longer. Cutting in Xmas fruits, such as nuts raisins, oranges, etc., we also see has been commenced by a few of the large dealers. How foolish. Most of these dealers are old established firms. Perhaps they will see their mistake before the Christmas rush comes on and regulate their prices so as to make a fair profit.

GALT.

The Christmas trade is beginning to make itself prominent, and the stores are already presenting a holiday appearance. The trade, while brisk, will probably not equal that of former years.

ISN'T IT PRETTY TRUE.

Our Guelph correspondent seems to have summed up in a nutshell the secret of the alleged trade depression, as follows :

Money is tight ; yes, and it will continue to be tighter if a lot of us fellows don't stop hollering about it. Why, the very people that are not touched are doing the most kicking about it, and a lot of them are behind the grocery counters at the present time !

The less a salesman in a grocery store has to say about hard times the better, and, in fact, we have so many varieties of goods to talk about there is no need nor time to be anticipating trouble ahead for your customers. We are living in the beautiful present and right in the most glorious month of the year for the grocery business, and we ought to feel and show it by saying and doing bright things for our customers, and make them feel cheerful and bright also, and you will find it much easier to get good fat Christmas orders.

The annual meeting of the Galt Retail Merchants' Association was held on Tuesday evening in the Council Chamber, and many questions of much importance to the trade were discussed and dealt with. There was a large attendance and all present entered into the beneficial discussions. President G. A. Rutherford was in the chair, and in opening the meeting he referred to the excellent work accomplished by the local association during the past year. The transient traders by-law which had been introduced by the association had resulted in much benefit to the local trade, the membership had largely increased, and everything pointed to a very successful future.

The first question to be discussed was the Co-operative Store Bill. The president pointed out that co-operative societies had killed competition in many cities in England, and that the same effect would assuredly follow here. As competition is the real safeguard of the buying public, one could easily imagine the effect if it were abolished. The societies were of no real advantage to the public as they must take what they were offered, and at the price demanded. Owing to the prompt action of the Provincial Association the Bill had been deferred indefinitely, and all the association expressed its appreciation of the work of Mr. Geo. A. Clare, M.P., in this connection.

The Association's system of collection of bad debts and delinquent list was discussed and will be very generally used by the local merchants. It is expected that the proposed system will greatly aid in the collection of bad debts and the prevention of their repetition.

A bill at present before the local legislature to amend the Division Court Act, was heartily approved by the local association. The measure provides that the cost of collection of a debt in Division Court shall be considerably reduced. At present it frequently costs a merchant $6 to collect a $5 debt. The bill also gives local magistrates the authority to dispose of such cases. The creditor outlays an information and the case is dealt with as soon as possible by the magistrate, the costs thus being greatly reduced.

The associations throughout Canada disapprove of the present system of inspection of weights and measures. The inspector collects a fee at each inspection, even if the scales and other appliances are in perfect condition. The local association will join with other associations in bringing pressure to bear on the Government for the enactment of a measure whereby the inspectors will be paid by the Government.

The efforts of the president, secretary and treasurer on behalf of the association are greatly appreciated and the gentlemen occupying these offices were unanimously elected for another year.

W. Linder, representing the McLaren Co., was in Galt last week, introducing several lines of new goods. A large number of orders were received and the demand promises a large sale.

It is quite probable that one or more of the Galt Grocers will enter The Grocer's contest.

A well attended meeting of the Preston Retail Merchants' Association was held on Monday night.

*Contributions are invited from grocers or clerks in small places or where there is not a regular correspondent of this paper.

Among the questions discussed was that of early closing. It was pointed out by those present that the trade in the evening did not begin to pay expenses, to say nothing of any profit. Many nights there was not enough taken in to pay for the light and heat when the merchant s and clerks were being deprived of all recreation and the required amount of rest. All present were enthusiastic over the scheme, and the discussion resulted in a committee being appointed to interview all the merchants in town and endeavor to get them to agree to close their stores at seven o'clock every evening except Saturday, and nights before a holiday.

In connection with the above an extract from a sermon preached by Rev. J. B. Stafford, of the Preston Methodist Church is interesting: "The merchants of this town, and every other town," said the reverend gentleman, "are making a great mistake by keeping their stores open from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 or 10 o'clock in the evening." He would rejoice when the Ontario Government put a law on the Statute ,compelling all merchants to close their places of business at seven o'clock in the evening. He pointed out that the night trade did not amount to anything and the merchants could get along just as well without it. They would do all the business early instead of late.

KINGSTON.

Did you take stock? Have you it written up? Do you know where you stand? Should a fire occur, is it easier to take an inventory before or after? Don't look for any mercy from insurance inspectors. Your local agent is a nice man, but he has to stand to one side when a fire occurs. The inspector demands your stock books. If you have it taken and your merchandise account written up you are O.K. If not you are out a few dollars and in a lot of trouble. Well, scratch your head and think it over. Big job, taking stock! No, just look on it as two days' work that will make you happy and contented for a year. Some run chances and put aside say $100 a year, and if no fire occurs, you soon have a nice bank account in savings. If you sell for cash and work on a small stock you can do this, but if you give credit you have to keep two or three stocks and run more risk. Yes, cash is better in most cases, even in Pembroke.

Christmas presents have had their day in Kingston. Calendars are used and save a lot of expense and trouble, for if you give Mrs. Jones, who leaves you $5 a week, a nice present, and her sister the same, who only leaves $2, you offend the former, and so it goes. Some merchants think the way one has to stoop and bow and serve people that the present should come from the people.

Horses are cheap around here on account of the high price of feed. Hay is 1c a pound, straw ½c. You can buy horses at a discount of $50, $10 and $5 off original price. A country dealer from Verone told me to-day he had ten horse hides in to sell, and got $2.50 for each of them. Big room for a canning factory. At auction sales cows only bring $5 to $10 each.

The Willow cheese factory, near Brockville, made $1,500 out of whey butter. It took first prize at the creameries exhibit fair, beating all the creamery butter on show. Professor Publow was judge, and was ignorant of the fact of its being made from whey. Mr. Russell, owner of the factory, claims that the farmers are pleased, as the whey is improved by the separator process, and the cans are easier to clean, as the butter fat which floats on the whey vats becomes decomposed. The percentage of butter obtained equalled 5 lbs. per ton of milk.

One of Kingston's young grocers is sick of the credit system and is going to sell for cash only. He is a thorough grocer, competent, and understands his business and feels that the worry and hard work in connection with a credit business is too severe on mind and body for results obtained. Cash means less stock, no bad debts, no division court cases, no worry, less business and more money. I hope he will succeed and may others follow. People should pay promptly for what they eat and not expect the grocer to wait 30, 60 and 90 days. Profits on groceries will not allow any such time and again sometimes a bad debt eats up the profit on ten good paying customers. Of course, there is argument for the credit system. You have telephone orders from good people who pay promptly each month but shaking all in a bag, I think cash is king. The departmental stores, 5c and 10c stores, shoe dealers and others who adopt it, are all flourishing and piling up their bank accounts.

MONTREAL.

Anybody who has dealings with the retail grocer can, if he is observant, more easily pick out the hustlers, the men who are succeeding, during the Christmas season than at almost any other time of the year. Those who are wide-awake are so busy these days that they sometimes forget to eat when dinner time comes around, and when the inner man is forgotten the physical and mental strain under which a man is working must be great indeed.

From what I saw in retail circles during the week, there must be a good many grocers forgetting their dinner. They all seemed busy, and judging from the appearance of the stores there was more than seeming.

Most all the stores look good so that it is difficult to pick out one as being better arranged and the proprietor more progressive than the rest.

J. A. Labonte has a nice store on Dorchester St. just east of St. Denis. He has a good business, but like many another grocer, he is not blessed with any surplus floor space, nor has he any warehouse room that he cannot use. Mr. Labonte is full of good ideas, though, and can accomplish wonders in the arrangement of his stock. When The Grocer dropped in he was superintending the transformation of a summer vegetable display stand into a candy bin.

During the spring and summer months he sells considerable quantities of vegetables and green fruits, and for display purposes he had constructed a few years ago two or three box-like affairs with glass tops. They are about five feet long, two feet wide and three feet deep at the back by two feet to two feet and a half in front. This difference in the back and front heights permits of a slanting cover, which is of glass. Displays are made inside these boxes, and as there are ventilation holes in the sides the vegetables are not likely to wilt when they are properly iced, while the glass tops make the contents visible, yet free from danger of contamination by dust or other causes. Mr. Labonte has had compartments made inside these bins and will have several kinds of candy placed therein.

J. B. Berthiaume, the Park Avenue grocer, has, among other things, a first-class meat-cutter. Other grocers possessing such a machine might profitably emulate his plan. Each morning one of the clerks cuts by the machine a quantity of bacon deemed sufficient for the day. This is wrapped in parchment paper in pound and half-pound parcels. As a consequence, when a customer asks for bacon all that it is necessary for the clerk to do is to wrap up the bacon already cut. The purchaser is not kept waiting, and the time of the employes, very valuable at this time of the year, is not lost.

Several Grocer correspondents have been talking lately of the accommodation it is advisable to have for waiting customers. Some have suggested chairs being placed in convenient places for the women to rest while waiting their turn. Others recommend placing chairs and tables, with magazines lying around. Why not carry the idea further and do a little advertising? Why not place one or two samples of fancy groceries on each table. If a woman takes up a sample of some fancy line which she does not buy steadily chances are her curiosity will be aroused and there is no doubt but what some sales would result. Even staples might be placed on the table and increased sales would result. But do not crowd the table. Better have one sample or two at most. Then the lines are noticed. If the table is crowded it loses its real value. In the case of city grocers it would be a good idea to have the directory on the table for the convenience of patrons.

A progressive retailer is well advised to buy the best show cases and counters —if he can spare the money. I was in a store the other day, a very attractive place, and comparing it with others could not help but remark upon the real economy of buying a good counter in preference to something cheap, and perhaps showy. One of the best counters I have seen has a plate glass front permitting of a good display underneath the counter. Of course, if the grocer desires to use this space for sugar, bean, flour or other bins that is his lookout. But if he has sufficient room for these lines elsewhere or if he uses the space under the counter for a garbage receptacle, he had better make good use of it for advertising purposes.

Somebody has been selling retailers around the city some plain cards with red borders bearing catchy phrases. Several grocers have hung these cards up in their store. Some of the inscriptions are: "No Trouble to Show Goods," "We Keep Pure Spices," "Our Ambition is to Give the Best Values," while near the door are placed signs which say: "We Keep the Best of Everything," and "Call Again." The cards are very neat and one cannot help but read them. Any grocer can, with little trouble, prepare a set for himself. They are worth the slight trouble.

Two very attractive north end stores I was in lately are those owned by L. O. D'Argencourt and Mr. Foster. The former is located at the corner of St. Denis and Ontario Sts., and the latter corner of Pine and Laval Avenues. Mr. D'Argencourt does a French business chiefly, having some of the best French trade in the city. Mr. Foster has a large, bright store, and there is an air of bustle about the clerks that betokens many good customers.

A. Begin who for the past thirty-four years has been purser on one of the Quebec and Levis ferry boats, has bought the grocery business of Ls. Raymond on Dorchester St. Mr. Raymond has not decided what he will do now.

Samuel Smith, the Westmount grocer, has a not bad idea in the way of a private office. He has built up for himself by arranging at the end of one of his counters a couple of walls of cereal breakfast foods. The unique partitions serve the purpose of display, as well as they secure privacy for Mr. Smith.

VANCOUVER.

When the announcement was made a couple of weeks ago that the new freight tariffs of the C.P.R. covering western lines, and with special reference to wholesale shipments from Vancouver and Winnipeg, were to be published, there was yet the executive power of the Railway Commission to be reckoned with. To the surprise of all, the chairman of the Commission, Judge Killam, has instructed that these tariffs shall not go into effect at present. The Boards of Trade of Vancouver and Victoria have already taken action to make strong representations to the Commission against any further delay in puting the rates as agreed, in force.

Another large shipping concern, the Chargeur Reunis, a French company, is to enter the freight service to B.C. ports coming at once into direct competition with the Blue Funnel line operated by Alfred Holt & Co., which has been the main service in carrying freight direct from European ports to this coast. The Charguer Reunis has for twelve months past been sending its steamers to Puget Sound and San Francisco, and the agents of the company have been in Vancouver this week to make final arrangements to include B.C. ports in the service.

The vessels of this line are very large steel freighters and their sailings from Europe to the Pacific are via. Suez. One important difference from the Blue Funnel service is that the steamers of the French company make round-the-world trips, leaving north Pacific ports for Mexican and South American ports and thence by Cape Horn and the Atlantic to Europe. This is an important feature, providing as it does, a direct service for freight from our ports to South America, and a second line direct from here to Mexican ports.

An additional announcement regarding shipping facilities is made this week by the operators of the Canadian-Mexican line, now operating steamers under a joint subsidy from the Canadian and Mexican Governments. They state that a line of steamers from the east coast of Mexico is to be put on running in conjunction with the Canadian-Mexican line, the new railway from Salina Cruz on the west coast to Coatzacoatcas on the east coast of Mexico. This new line of steamers will run direct to Europe.

The possibilities of trade with Mexico are prominently in the minds of shippers here this week, in more ways than one. Mr. A. W. Donly, Canadian trade commissioner to Mexico, has been visiting the coast cities this week. Many wholesale and other tradesmen called on him during his visit in Victoria and Vancouver, to discuss openings in the republic for trade. Mr. Donly has been resident in Mexico for many years though a native Canadian. He has filled his present official position for three years, and largely through his efforts trade with Canada has increased in that time from $174,000 to $1,050,000, and this year's returns will show a still greater percentage of increase.

Mr. Donly is arranging for trial shipments of B.C. apples to be sent to Mexico, and he is also of the opinion that a profitable trade in salmon and other products of B.C. could be worked up. In return the tropical fruit products, such as bananas, oranges and cocoanuts may be shipped here direct from Mexico. His opinion is that the Mexican oranges are much better quality than those of California and besides they ripen in September, which is three months ahead of the California fruit. He thinks also that potatoes could be shipped profitably.

General trade conditions continue very satisfactory in British Columbia. True the smelters have closed down in the Boundary district, entailing also the shutting down of the copper camps, but the prospects are that with a little better market for copper and a small readjustment of the wage scale, the mine and smelter owners may be able to see a profit in opening up the smelters again. Locally, business is very bright in anticipation of the Christmas trade which is now beginning to shape up.

Stocks are fairly adequate in all lines for present needs. In produce butter shows no signs of relenting, in fact, is the other way and the prospects are of a short supply later on. Present local quotations for local fresh dairy are 30c, local fresh creamery, 40c; eastern creamery, 32c. Fresh local eggs are scarce at 55c; the eastern case stock of best quality, 30c. Cheese is quoted at 16 and 16½c. Hams are in smaller supply at the present moment than bacon, and are quoted at 16 and 18c; bacon, 18½c.

Grocery stocks are well up to trade demands few changes showing. Flour remains firm at last quotations, $7 and $7.20 per barrel for standard brands, highest grades. Rolled oats are now quoted in 90 pounds, $4; in 2 45's, $4.10; in 10 7's, $3.50. Oatmeal, $4.10 in gunnies. Sugar quotations are: Granulated, $4.85; extra C, $4.65; fancy yellow, $4.50; yellow, $4.40; dark yellow, $4.30.

The first Jap oranges of the season arrived this week and are quoted at 60c to the trade. They are much riper than usual for the first shipment, but yet have not the full flavor that more matured shipments attain. They are, however, superior to the extra early California oranges, which have been received. The process with the latter is said to be the advancing of the fruit in hot-houses, first plucking it perfectly green. As a result, naturally, the flavor and quality does not compare with the fruit matured naturally. Lemons continue to come down and now are $6 to $7. The new California oranges are $4.50 per case. It is likely this quotation will drop soon. California grapes are being received much later in the season than usual. Some of the shipments are of splendid quality. They are quoted at $2 and $2.50 per crate. The Spanish grapes are in and are quoted at $7.50 per barrel. Eastern cranberries, $12.50 per barrel.

Vegetables show no changes. Potatoes remain high, Ashcrofts being quoted at $26 per ton, locals at $18 and $20. Sweet potatoes are 3½c; Spanish onions, which are new, are 4c; ordinary onions, $2.75, hot-house lettuce, $1.25 per crate.

Holiday trade is very good indeed say the wholesale men, and the retailers as well, now that the season is well in its swing. Even the out-of-town business is expected to pick up now, because the principal cause of dullness, the closing down of smelters and mines in the Boundary district, is much ameliorated by the re-opening of the Granby mines and smelter. This puts a thousand men to work and will be followed by resumption of activities at the other Boundary smelters very soon. There is even talk of the Granby enlarging again, though its plant is now much the largest in the district. A compromise on the wage scale was made, reducing it slightly, and making it the same as a year ago.

This week the annual convention of the International Fruit Growers' Association is being held in Vancouver. The four northwestern States, Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Utah, and Province of British Columbia, are included in the membership of the association. A very comprehensive program is being discussed including papers on fruit, culture, packing, shipping, marketing, etc. The commercial side of the industry is receiving the chief attention because of the realization that in this feature lies the economic success of fruit-growing.

A very excellent display of packed fruits, chiefly apples, in commercial packages, forms a prominent feature of the convention. Several gold medals, valued at $100; silver, valued at $50, were competed for. The chief prize, for five boxes of commercial apples, a $100 gold medal, went to a British Columbian. J C. Honsberger. The first prize for a single box of apples, another $100 medal, went to A. I. Mason, of Hood River, Oregon, the variety being Yellow Newton. The Kelowna Fruit Growers' Exchange, of Kelowna, B.C., a prominent Okanagan district, secured the $100 gold medal for the best general display of fruit.

A GLUT OF ORANGES.

Toronto Fruit Market Filled With Shipments From American Markets.

Judging from present appearances in the Toronto fruit market, it seems highly probable that cheap oranges will be the rule for the Christmas season. As yet the market has not taken a slump, but it has been weak and uneasy for some time and circumstances which have happened within the past week will, no doubt, have a very direct bearing on the situation.

American growers and shippers, having little confidence in their own financial institutions and general monetary conditions have been turning their attention to the Canadian markets. This has resulted in large shipments arriving regularly on the market in Toronto until at present there are between forty and fifty carloads of oranges lying in the railway yards. To make the situation critical, there is no active buying. Dealers are exceedingly cautious and don't care to touch oranges at present. Large arrivals have crowded all the available space in the fruit warehouses. Cases of oranges are in evidence in every direction. One heavy buyer says that he never remembers such a situation in the orange market. The retail business is not brisk but should improve as Christmas draws near. Even should the demand stiffen it will hardly be sufficient to clear out the enormous quantity of oranges at present awaiting buyers. Accordingly, an easier orange market seems assured.

WHOLESALERS IN FOR HOCKEY

Officers of League in Toronto Elected for Coming Season.

You never find these wholesale grocers far behind in anything, and now it's hockey. At an enthusiastic meeting of the wholesalers' hockey league, the third annual gathering of the kind, by the way, held in W, H. Millman's office on Monday evening, the organization was given new life for the present season.

When the honors of office were distributed, the following gentlemen were favored :

Hon. President—Col. Jno. I. Davidson.

Hon. Vice-President—R. S. McIndoe. 120 Church street.

President—W. H. Millman.

Patrons—H. P. Eckhardt, F. W. Humphrey, T. Kinnear, Sr., W. J. Lumbers, C. L. Marshall, W. A. Warren, J. F. Eby, J. Scott.

Vice-President—C. S. Morrow.

Secretary-Treasurer—Albert S. May, 120 Church street.

Official Referee—C. S. Morrow, (late of senior Argonauts).

The league this year will consist of three teams : Brokers, last year's champions ; T. Kinnear & Co., and the Eby, Blain Co. The latter two expect to have very strong teams, having the option of choosing from the other wholesale houses. On paper it looks as though the Brokers will have to do some hard work to win again this year. The league have secured Varsity rink for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week from nine to ten o'clock. The first game will be played on January 10th, when the Brokers meet T. Kinnear & Co. The schedule will likely be published in the next issue of The Grocer.

SOME QUESTIONABLE CHANGES.

Travelers' Association Up Against Peculiar Motions at Their Meeting This Week.

The annual meeting of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association will be held on Saturday evening, 14th December, in Montreal, and promises to be an interesting one owing to various notices of motions that are coming up at that time regarding changes in the constitution and by-laws.

The association is most flourishing in point of members, there being upwards of 6,000 active members on the roll.

The proposed change in the constitution is one requiring the most serious attention of every member, and we print in full the notices that are mentioned.

Notices of Motion.

By Samuel Woods.—To add new clause to Art. xii of our By-Laws to read as follows :

(a) "After a member has reached the age of sixty-five years and his mortuary benefit certificate has reached the maximem amount of $1,200, the association if requested in writing by such member, shall keep him in good standing by charging his annual fee for membership against his mortuary benefit, and upon the mortuary benefit maturing, all such charges with interest at 5 per cent. shall be deducted from the amount of his mortuary benefit and such member shall thereby become an associate member.

(b) "That the association may on approval of the directors advance to any member thereof who has attained the age of sixty-five years and whose mortuary benefit certificate has reached the sum of $1,200, a sum or sums of money in such manner or time as they may decide, the total of which sum or sums shall not exceed six hundred dollars, and upon the maturity of the mortuary benefit of such member all such advances together with the annual fee of membership and interest at 5 per cent. per annum on all charges shall be deducted from the amount thereof, and such member shall thereby become an associate member."

By W. E. Dickson.—To amend Art. xii. of By-Laws by adding following clause :

"Any member whose mortuary certificate has reached the maximum sum of $1,200, who does not pay his subscription as provided by Art. vi., shall have his certificate continued in force thereafter by this association, the amount of the mortuary certificate being reduced by the sum of $25 for each year so unpaid, until the certificate is reduced to $1,000, after which the mortuary benefit shall remain at that sum without further reduction, and the member be an associate member of the association."

Considering there are upwards of 200 members of 65 years of age and upwards, any reader will at once see the absolutely disastrous effect that would result if either of the motions were carried and became law.

The total capital of the association to-day is about $300,000, and if the propositions contained in either of the motions were carried, and acted upon, there would be no capital left within the next ten years. Of all the 200 members of 65 years of age and upwards to-day, the probability is that most of them will be dead within that time, that is, based on the ordinary expectation of life at the age of 65, which is only 11 years.

Added to this it must immediately occur to any intelligent reader that the association is not an insurance company in any way whatever and, therefore, that members have no vested cash value in their mortuary benefits, so-called, hence the association would stultify themselves in advancing loans against an imaginary security that does not exist. If the mortuary benefits were covered by re-insurance with any life company it would alter the case but the annual income of the association, or rather the surplus, would not begin to cover the cost of this insurance.

It would be a matter of extreme regret if from want of observation of what is coming up, any such vote should be passed as the proposed one; however, it is just as well, perhaps, that the matter is being brought up as it will draw attention of members to the great danger that may result through neglect of proper understanding of this question. It seems to us a reconsideration of the whole mortuary question is in order.

A BRIGHTER OUTLOOK.

The general feeling regarding business throughout Canada this week seems to be much more optimistic than for a month or so previous. People are ceasing to think and to talk about financial stringency and are beginning to plan for increased business in the new year. And for this the outlook almost everywhere seems much brighter. At least five of our correspondents in towns in Canada widely separated; namely, Vancouver, Winnipeg, London, Pembroke, Montreal refer pointedly this week to the more cheerful outlook taken by the heads of large local industries and business houses.

The serious trade depression which prevails in the United States and to a lesser extent in Europe has been reflected here. There is no doubt but that it has been generally felt. But it appears as if the trouble in Canada was only to be temporary.

What Canada has been chiefly suffering from is growing pains, due to the fact that its industrial development has been greater than its expansion of capital.

It is true that factories have closed down here and that wages have been reduced, but has this not been the result of a reflection of the situation across the border and to guard against any contingency rather than from serious local trade depression?

Canada, with her magnificent resources, is enjoying a period of growth and prosperity which no economic factor can seriously disturb for any length of time.

OUR CHRISTMAS COMPETITIONS.

Indications point to the fact that grocers in all parts of Canada intend to take part in the Christmas contests which have been arranged by this paper. We have had several inquiries regarding the Window-Dressing Contest and the fact that this year competitors are divided into two classes seems to be arousing a new interest among our subscribers in the smaller towns. The contest for the best Christmas advertisement should be entered by every grocer who advertises. It costs nothing and should prove of a good ideal of benefit. Further particulars regarding these contests will be found on page 26 of this issue.

PREFERRED CANADIAN CHEQUE.

Six months ago one risked a scowl if a Canadian half dollar were tendered a street car conductor in payment of carfare on a New York City tram car, if, indeed, the money were accepted at all. As an illustration of the revulsion in feeling, it is interesting to read the following lines, which appeared on the invoice of a large New York house doing business with Canadian merchants: "Canadian cheque preferred to New York funds in payment of this bill."

Surely this is overpowering evidence of the faith of American business men in the Canadian banking system. And talk of pocketing national pride! The bill was made out to a Montreal wholesale grocer and was dated November 30th.

MAYOR ASHDOWN'S RE-ELECTION

The service business men can render in public life has been emphasized this week by the re-election of Mayor J. H. Ashdown by acclamation by the citizens of Winnipeg.

One year ago municipal politics in the western metropolis were controlled by a small minded and incapable set of men and their reckless administration was bringing the credit of the city into disrepute. The business men of the city awoke to their responsibility and organized to secure the election of responsible and capable men with business experience.

A canvass of the city resulted in the unanimous decision to offer the nomination to J. H. Ashdown, who has a successful business career of nearly forty years in Winnipeg.

After some hesitation, Mr. Ashdown accepted the responsibility of undertaking the work of establishing the city's credit in the financial world. The old ring nominated one of their number in opposition, but the voters buried him 5,000 votes deep.

Mayor Ashdown applied himself to the labor of his position and the results secured go much to show that one strong man can do something against the strongest opposition. All through the year he took an active part in the government of the municipality, the crisis coming this fall, when he had the courage to veto the power by-law after its passage by the city council. He severely criticized the power engineer and refused to commit the city to large expenditures on the latter's recommendation. For this he was threatened with defeat for re-election.

The result was shown by last week's elections. Mayor Ashdown has triumphed and has been honored with re-election without opposition, a signal tribute to his administrative capabilities and an endorsation of the strong stand he has taken on various matters.

The success of Winnipeg business men in carrying their point and in rescuing the municipal government from incapables should encourage business men in other cities to take similar action. Too often the pessimistic view is taken that "one man cannot do anything," and it is contended that the business men should look after their own affairs. Mayor Ashdown's re-election should discourage these views and encourage business men generally to accept the responsibilities of public life for which their business training has prepared them.

ANOTHER HAPPY TRAVELER.

B. E. Miller, of Red Rose Tea has been and gone and done it. On Tuesday, Nov. 26th, he made a longer call than usual at Cannington and came away a benedict. Mrs. Miller was formerly Miss Minnie Mae Smith, a prominent young lady of this town. The happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to several of the United States cities, but returned last week and are now at home on Dufferin St., Toronto. The Grocer offers heartiest congratulations.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild will be held in Montreal, Thursday, Dec. 19.

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Beans—Easier.
Butter—Easier.
Eggs—Declined 1c.

Montreal, December 12, 1907.

During the week The Grocer has been interviewing the wholesale, retail and brokerage trade with a view to finding out just how business was with those selling groceries. It was found that things are decidedly good in respect to the volume of orders coming in for the holidays. November and what has passed of December have been for most firms excellent months, and they are quite satisfied with their turnover. There is a divergence of opinion on money matters. Numbers are complaining of slow collections while the rest say that money is coming in very satisfactorily. Some cheques were shown the writer by one firm which certainly confirmed their statement that payments were never better in their case. Some say that collections are not as good as they might be at the moment, but they cannot expect better, considering what a busy season this is for the retailers, but they are quite sure that the money will be received after the holidays and they are not worrying much in the meantime. The banks are said to be loosening up to a greater or lesser extent.

Sugars are steady, with prices unlikely to change in the near future. Canned goods are moving fairly well. There is a fair movement in molasses, while demand for syrups is not quite so brisk as usually it is in December, due no doubt to weather conditions. Teas continue firm and scarce as ever. Dried fruits are in good demand. Currants are scarce and prices rule firm. Deliveries have been slow but are improving. Beans are easier this week. Some Austrian and Hungarian beans have been shown to the trade, but they have not been sold in quantity yet. Butter and cheese are easier.

Wholesalers are doing the very best they can to make deliveries as promptly as possible to their retail friends, but so late have been crops in some instances and shipments from the primary markets, that they have really been unable to do better than they are doing.

SUGAR—The sugar market is reported steady, with a very good demand for all grades, considering the season. There is no immediate prospect of a change in prices.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS AND NUTS—Dried fruit men are endeavoring to make deliveries of the various lines which they sold to their jobbing customers, but their progress is rendered slow because of the congested condition of the railways. The retailer in turn is feeling the delay, as his wholesaler, not having the goods, cannot ship him his order. However, matters are straightening out, and better deliveries are even now being made. Currants are pretty scarce here, while the New York market is almost bare, with no steamer due before December 15. The Grecian market is reported a little firmer, but this is due more to the difference in the exchange than any actual increased value in the currants. Valencia raisins are being offered by New York houses still at about ½c below the import cost. In consequence of their offers the market is rather demoralized. Summarizing, it may be said that there is a good Christmas demand for all dried fruits and nuts, with deliveries slow but improving.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Jobbers report a very good demand for canned fruits and a fair call for canned vegetables. Canned fish are moving out in fair-sized quantities. Sardines, which are very scarce, are selling freely.

TORONTO—Business is very dull here and no sales of any importance are noted. In reference to the report last week that retailers were not able to get their full orders, a local broker to-day said that most of the retailers who were in this position were rather glad their early orders had not been entirely filled, for with the advance in price this year indications pointed to considerably less of this class of goods being sold.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—
Sugar—Steady.
Teas—Advancing.
Oranges—Will decline.
Collections—Stiffer.

Toronto, Dec. 12, 1907.

The quietness reported in wholesale grocery markets last week seems to have become confirmed since that report. Wholesalers generally say that business is dull. The distinctly Christmas business, that is in luxuries, such as fine fruits and nuts, has not fallen off this year and is even better than formerly, but staple business has undoubtedly gone off materially the last two weeks. This is to some extent the result of the fact that retailers are just now kept busy with Christmas business and are not bothering their heads about buying, but, nevertheless, there is an under-tone of pessimism among the brokers and wholesalers more pronounced than at any time recently. They report collections as somewhat stiffer and renewals a little more frequent.

TEAS—Local business is dull, with prices on lower grades still advancing. There seems no prospect of relief in the situation before June. Gow, Wilson & Stanton's weekly circular, dated Nov. 29th, in reviewing the general situation, says :

"Foreign and colonial markets took nearly twelve million pounds more Indian and Ceylon tea during the first nine months of this year than during the corresponding period of 1906. This progress is remarkable, and is even more striking when compared with the quantity taken in 1905, the excess over the same period in that year being twenty-eight million pounds. In view of the potentialities of these external markets and the increase in home consumption, there appears no reason for pressing sales between now and the end of the year, a period in which buyers are unlikely to wish to increase their stocks, especially with the present high bank rate ; indeed, it would materially strengthen the position if sellers would refrain from cataloguing tea between Christmas and the first Monday in the New Year."

COFFEE—Prices quoted by local wholesalers are steady, though an advance of about 2c has been made during the last three months. In the primary markets interest centres about the light crop movement in Brazil, it being estimated that the total will be less than 10,000,000 bags. The visible supply during November shows an increase of only 20,000 bags, as compared with over 600,000 bags gain for the same month of 1906. A bullish sentiment exists here on the situation, though Europe shows a disposition to depress prices by selling the far options. In Havre a bear clique is said to be active, the report being employed as an argument for low prices that Brazil is selling because it lacks confidence in the situation. Santos has been selling, it is admitted, but at prices so far above New York and Europe as to probably make hedge sales on the exchanges against purchases of such coffee an unprofitable operation.

SUGAR—The local market has not as yet shown any sympathy with European markets, which have been wavering fitfully during the week. Latest reports show an advance on beet sugar in the London market during December from 1¼d to 3s 6d.

Reports on the world's visible supply show the total stock of Europe and America, 1,633,238 tons, against 1,606,971 tons last year at the same uneven dates. The increase of stock is 26,267 tons, against an increase of 11,859 tons last week. Total stocks and afloats together show a visible supply of 1,708,238 tons, against 1,716.971 tons last year, or a decrease of 8,713 tons.

DRIED FRUITS—Distinctly Christmas business is generally satisfactory, but retailers seem to be well filled up with staple lines. It is noted that even among the larger buyers the practice is to cut orders down to the smallest quantities consistent with actual needs. This results in much re-ordering, as the buyer who takes a small quantity today is compelled to come back to-morrow. It gives the seller a good deal of extra work and produces an appearance of activity which the actual results in volume of business accomplished hardly warrant.

Currants are selling to a moderate extent in small lots. Dates are fairly active on small orders and there is a good jobbing demand for citron and peel.

In their ad. elsewhere in this issue Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, are offering good values in dried fruits of all kinds. They are also giving the retail grocers an opportunity of buying some fine liquors, including Sherry wines of Diez Hermanos de Jerez de la Frontera, Spain, which are sold for that firm by these Montreal wholesalers. Doubtless many grocers will take advantage of their offers for holiday trade.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Dec. 12, 1907.)

Holiday business is reported very active, the forebodings of the pessimists who prophesied dull Christmas trade not having been realized. Retail business in city and country is better than was expected.

Foreign dried fruits are the centre of interest at present, owing to the weakening of the market and general decline in prices. Wholesalers who sold some months ago for delivery now guaranteeing to meet market prices and retailers who bought direct at the high prices obtaining some time ago are lamenting their ill-fortune. This is one time they have lost although they have often won.

CANNED GOODS—In fruits and vegetables there are no new features this week. Sales are still reported light. Libby's goods are advancing from 15 to 30 per cent. We quote:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—New seeded raisins are declining in price and shipments for delivery in January are quoted at ½-cent to 1 cent per pound cheaper than current prices. Prunes are also declining. Currants showed some tendency to advance but the market weakened and the former quotations still stand. Throughout the entire list there is a tendency towards decline and buying is restricted now for the most part to immediate requirements. We quote.

NUTS—There is a great scarcity of new nuts for the Christmas trade. The new shelled walnuts will not be here until after the new year and it is doubtful whether the unshelled new walnuts will arrive in time. The stocks of old nuts are light. THE SITUATION IN THE WEST

The Grocer's Correspondent in Winnipeg Writes Entertainingly of Local Conditions—Payments Better and Market Generally Steadier.

With the close of November and the first week of December comes the pleasant news that payments of all kinds have been much more promptly and fully met than had been anticipated. Loan companies, in particular, report the payment of both interest and principal, and even in cases where notice of foreclosure had been given, it is rarely that it has been necessary to carry it into effect. Real estate firms with long lists of second and third payments falling due in November and first week of December make the same satisfactory announcement.

Wholesale houses report collections improving. It may be that this improvement in collections will not be carried past the new year, as many pessimists are fond of predicting, but in as much as the same pessimists predicted that less than half of the November paper would be met, they may be no more correct as to conditions later in the year.

The wheat market has been fairly steady all week and increasingly strong in tone, although during the latter part of the week British demand has not been so active, the British miller evidently hanging back for the results of the Argentine crop, where harvest is just about to commence. Demand from Buffalo, however, has been very active and a number of cargoes have been shipped during the week to that port.

The extremely fine weather has been a material help to the rapid movement from the head of the lakes, and it was hoped that it would be possible to extend the shipping season up to the 10th or 12th of the month, but the underwriters have absolutely refused to extend hull insurance beyond the 8th, so that all boats must have cleared from Fort William and Port Arthur before noon on Sunday. The loadings for the week must have run pretty well up to three quarters of a million daily.

One of the matters that has occasioned much discussion in the West this week was the report of F. A. Dillinger to the Railway Commission on the condition of the Canadian Pacific. While the arraignment of the railway was rather severe a careful reading of the report shows that whatever may be the sins of the road, they are not wholly to blame for car shortage. Western merchants are notorious for their slowness in unloading freight and more than once it has happened that when deputations of wholesale men have waited on the railway complaining of car shortage and their loss because the farmer could not move his wheat the very members of the deputation had had cars in the Winnipeg yards for six weeks unloaded. The clause of the report, however, which will be most frequently discussed in the West in the next three months is Mr. Dillinger's suggestion that the grain act be amended in the matter of the car distribution clause. This clause has been a special stock in trade of the agitators at meetings of the Grain Growers' Association. It has been lauded to the skies as protecting the farmers' interests when as a matter of fact it has lost the farmers millions of money, for it has been the sole cause of the enormous spread between street and track prices that has existed in the past three years and which has reached its most acute stage this year, when the keeping qualities of the low grade wheats has been so uncertain as to make the elevator men very chary of paying a high price for what may spoil in their bins before spring.

Any system which allows cars in equal proportions to the farmer who requires 24 hours to load as it does to the elevator which requires 30 minutes to load is, on the face of it, unjust and absurd. Mr. Dillinger's suggestion that cars be delivered to the loading platforms as many as they can load in 24 hours and then the remainder of cars received be distributed among the elevators in proportion to the number of bushels of grain they have in for immediate shipment is a very sane solution of the difficulty. It is right the farmers should have a check on the elevators and at the same time it is only just that the elevators which, after all, form the small farmer's market, should not be so seriously handicapped in the matter of cars.

There is no doubt that money has eased up, so far as export wheat is concerned, during the past few days. Lines of credit to many houses have been extended and the situation shows more elasticity than it has done at any time since the New York panic.

It is many years since the civic elections in Winnipeg have occasioned so much interest as they have during this year. The re-election of Mayor Ashdown by acclamation is the tangible proof that the city wants men who, while maintaining her credit abroad, will exercise due and reasonable economy at home and will not rush into new liabilities during the present financial strain. Mayor Ashdown's election has brought out an excellent quintette of business men to run for aldermen and the outlook is for a council and board of control for 1908 that will work in harmony and look well to the outgoings of the city.

This is not only a matter of vital importance to Winnipeg but it is of importance by way of example to every small town in the West where the ease with which money has been obtainable in recent years has had a tendency to tempt them to rush into unnecessary municipal liabilities that in future years may prove a serious handicap.—H.

WESTERN TRAVELERS MEET.

Election of Officers and Annual Meeting of Association at London.

The annual meeting of the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association was held in London on Saturday last. President C. W. Nicholls, of A. M. Smith & Co., in his annual address, said the past year had been the most successful in the association's history. He did not believe the present financial stringency was anything more than temporary. The following officers were elected: President, John T. Green; 1st vice-president, R. E. Davis; 2nd vice-president, Donald Ferguson; 3rd vice-president, John Lennox, Hamilton, (re-elected); treasurer, C. Underwood, of London, (D. S. Perrin & Co.), (re-elected); secretary, Alf. Robinson, London, (re-elected).

The annual report of the association showed record results in nearly all respects, viz.: The largest total membership of nearly 2,500, an increase over last year of about 200; a new membership of about 500, and an addition to the reserve fund of $17,757.78. This is the largest amount added to the reserve in any year. The death claims accruing had been more numerous than usual, but had still been within the expectancy of the association, and after the payment of all these in full, amounting to $9,455, the reserve fund had been augmented to $158,306.22.

The financial statement was most satisfactory.

R. M. A. CONVENTION.

The third annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada was held in Montreal the latter part of last week and was a most successful one. Various questions of interest to the retail trade of the country generally were brought up and discussed by the delegates present from various centres. Some resolutions were adopted which are likely to do some good if the Government takes heed of them. A couple passed were:

"That we again place ourselves on record as being strenuously opposed to the introduction of a measure to give co-operative societies special privileges, and that we use every effort to defeat any such legislation from being placed on the statute books of the Dominion."

"That the time has arrived for the Dominion Government to enact and enforce a rigorous law to protect the public from impure and harmful foods and drugs and to deal with misleading or untruthful designating names or statement of composition; to prohibit the manufacture or sale of any such articles, and to prohibit the manufacture or sale of any compounds purporting to lead the consumer to the belief that they are pure and wholesome articles of food or medicine; that the Government be petitioned to establish standards of quality for all spices, condiments, vinegars, baking powders, canned or preserved meats, vegetables or other foods, and medicines sold under proprietary or trade names, and to otherwise enforce the intention of the Food and Drug Act; and that this resolution be placed before the Dominion Government."

Dairy Produce and Provisions

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

An even better feeling is noticeable in the cheese market this week. The firmer tone has resulted in a bettering of conditions all round. The better state of affairs is due largely to increased demand from the other side, and to the lightness of stocks held locally.

It is generally admitted that holdings are considerably below what they were a year ago, some placing the difference at 100,000 boxes. It is beyond doubt that holdings are anything but large, and the best part of the stock appears to be in the hands of strong men. During the middle of this week there was a particularly good movement for export, and but little of this is supposed to be held on English account. Consequently the shipments which have been made through St. John and Portland must be the result of sales at present figures.

Dealers are turning over current receipts at figures running between 12c and 12½c. There is hardly any cheese coming in, however, so transactions at these prices are not numerous.

Better prices are obtainable this week for September and October cheese. The former is quoted from 13c to 13¼c, while the latter brings from 12½c to 12¾c.

It is expected that the market will hold firm during the holidays, and lower figures are not anticipated by many.

Receipts of cheese last week amounted to but 3,320 boxes, against 7,253 boxes same week a year ago. This brings total receipts for the year up to 2,048,872 boxes, as compared with 2,342,222 boxes same period, 1906.

During the week past there has not been a great deal of activity in butter. Demand has been steady at prices which have not been altered by the majority of dealers since last writing. Some betterment is anticipated before the holidays, although there is by no means a lack of orders.

Finest October-September creamery is now selling around 28½c, though some are willing to part with their holdings for 28c. The ordinary run of fresh receipts commands 26½ to 27c, sometimes ½c more. Receipts are gradually falling off, though last week they were considerably larger than they were the same week last year. Holdings locally are not heavy, being estimated 30 to 40 per cent. less than they were this time in 1906. This sort of weather is just the kind to encourage farmers and factorymen in their efforts to keep up the make to the last moment. Let there be a cold spell, however, such as we are sure to experience any day, and the receipts will show a marked falling off| The mild weather has the effect of keeping up the tail end of the receipts.

Dairy continues exceedingly scarce and what there is of it is snapped up quickly at prices asked. Most dealers are selling from 24½ to 25c.

Irish factories are still quoted from 25½ to 26c, being the ruling figures. Offerings are not large, however. Siberian butter is selling from 24½ to 27c, but like the Irish, it is not held in quantity.

Receipts of butter last week amounted to 5,251 packages, against 4,945 packages for the same week last year. Total receipts for the season have been 396,350 packages, as compared with 589,989 packages for the same period of 1906.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

Conditions in the Canadian hog market look somewhat brighter this week, though a reflection from the recent critical condition in Great Britain is still felt. Farmers seem determined not to sell their stocks until the market recovers and this, of course, spells short supply. At the latter part of the week, however, the British bacon market showed considerable improvement in tone and this has made prospects brighter for better values here.

Danish "killings" last week were 36,000, which is about the average. The Danes do not seem to have shared in the recent unsettled conditions of the British and American markets. American exports were 13,100, an aggregate considerably above the shipments of any week for a month previous.

Canadian packers have been working quietly with what stock was offered, but this week slightly more inducement is offered in the hope of bringing out further supplies. For hogs F.O.B. country points, they are offering $5.15, fed and watered stock brings $5.45 and hogs at factory $5.60.

The situation ruling in American markets is summarized in the following report from the New York Journal of Commerce:

"The market for hog products has been active the past week on small receipts of hogs early at all points until nearly half of the late decline was recovered before they increased materially, as they did at the close and turned products and hogs both down again, after a marked advance in both the greater part of the week on light offerings of products and anxious buying of shorts to cover in face of only moderate sales by packers until prices had advanced sharply, when they became free sellers again, to depress prices both of hogs and products. Spot stuff, however, has not joined in the activity, as prices followed futures in absence of stocks, which were light and had decreased more in November than had been expected. But the trade did not buy on the advance, as consumption has fallen off since the panic, and the trade will buy nothing beyond immediate wants. The money situation had ceased to be an important factor in these markets early in the week, but the big bank failure at Kansas City, the heart of the Southwestern packing industry, did have some effect as it may have involved some of the packers. Yet no selling pressure was reported on that account."

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—The movement in provisions during the past few days has not been as good as it generally is during the late fall. The slowness is attributed to the approach of Christmas, and the fact that smoked meats, pork and such lines, do not play a very important part in the holiday trade. The sales of lard have been first-class, however, but even this business is falling off as retailers are rapidly being stocked up. Prices rule unchanged, and packers expect a decline.

POULTRY—Unseasonable weather has caused a temporary slack in the poultry business. The quality of fowl being shipped into large centres from the country seems to be improving, and grocers willing to pay the price are likely to obtain choice stock. Dealers are buying heavily, preparing for a record Christmas trade. Prices rule unchanged.

PROVISIONS—The recent big drop in the hog market has not as yet produced any material effect on the local provision situation. Prices remain firm for nearly all lines. The demand for smoked meats is practically over. Lard has a firmer tone, but remains unchanged in price. The cold weather should stiffen the demand. Very little venison is on the market. Beef products are not selling briskly. Prices remain steady.

Markets Generally Dull—Manitoba Flour Takes Another Drop—Inspections Continue to Show Low Grade.

Dullness characterizes the grain markets this week, a condition which is customary at this time of the year and which will probably continue into the New Year. Manitoba flour is easier on account of the large arrivals of Western grain. Oats, however, are not so plentiful, and with the quality continuing doubtful, a firmer feeling is felt in some quarters with a tendency to a slight advance in prices.

The extra efforts made to move the crop down from the head of the lakes seems to have been effectual. Stocks at Port Arthur and Fort William elevators have been reduced by 2,145,000 bushels. Stocks held in these cities at present aggregate 3,335,000 bushels.

Notwithstanding the large quantities of wheat moved, gradings at Winnipeg still continue very unsatisfactory. Returns show a predominance of No. 3 and No. 4 with No. 1 running only from 6 to 12 cars daily. This is being reflected in the fact of dealers hesitating to give quotations on this grade. No. 2 is quoted generally about 5 cents lower and the difference will probably be increased shortly unless gradings show better quality.

World's shipments of wheat during the past week were 9,616,000 bushels, compared with 9,345,000 last week and 12,976,000 a year ago. The visible supply of wheat in Canada and the States decreased 54,000 bushels during the week; corn increased 281,000 and oats 271,000. The visible at present is estimated at 43,483,000 bushels.

THE CREAMERIES IN ALBERTA.

People Claim Those Controlled by Government Should Change Selling Methods.

The following article sent in by our correspondent in Edmonton throws some light on the manner in which the Government creameries in that province are operated. The claims of the local citizens regarding the matter seem to be just and should command consideration:

The people of the Province of Alberta are now looking into the question of the price of butter, the cause, and the probability of this price being lowered. Their attention has been called to this by the discussion of the question of creameries controlled by the Provincial Government. Some time ago, before the new Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed, the Territorial Government endeavored to interest the farmers in the establishment of creameries, particularly in Alberta. Wherever sufficient interest could be aroused the farmers were persuaded to form a joint stock company and erect a creamery and install the necessary machinery. The Government then took charge of the creamery and operated it for the stockholders. Expert butter makers were placed in charge of these creameries and a competent superintendent, and a marker placed over the whole of them. Cream was received from farmers and dairymen and tested and credit given in proportion to the amount of butter fat which the cream tested. Butter of the highest quality was made and sold and after a percentage had been deducted for making the balance was paid to the farmers. When the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed the Alberta Government assumed the control of these creameries and conducted them on the same line.

At the present time there are twenty-two such creameries in Alberta under Government control and about twenty operated by private companies. Every effort is made to prevent the two kinds from competiting. The butter made by the creameries under Government control is sold to wholesalers or to retailers who order regularly from these creameries. No butter will be sold to consumers or to dealers who refuse to purchase their butter supply regularly from these Government-controlled creameries. A considerable portion of the butter made in these creameries is shipped outside of the province. Some is sent to British Columbia, some to the Yukon and some even as far as Japan. The butter is sold at the prevailing market price, so that they will not undermine the private creameries by cutting prices.

Attention has been drawn to the fact that in this way these creameries controlled by the Government are helping to keep the price of butter high. Moreover, they are selling a considerable portion of their butter outside of the province, while at the same time, the supply of butter within the province is not sufficient for the demand. As a consequence, butter has to be shipped into the province and the cost of shipment keeps the price at a high level. It is urged that in order to give the people an adequate supply of butter at the lowest possible cost, these creameries should sell to anyone who wishes to purchase it. They should sell at the lowest possible cost and should not ship butter to outside points until the demand within the province is supplied.

Hamelin Brothers & Co. have opened a fine new departmental store in Prince Albert. The building is a two-storey structure, with full-sized basement, where reserve stock is kept. The walls are built of cement blocks and the interior is finished in metal. The main entrance is on Central avenue, and the different departments are attractively laid out. The grocery department occupies the back part of the building, where a large assortment of goods is displayed. W. J. Rogers is in charge. The building is steam heated and lighted with electricity. The office is on the stair landing and cash carriers are being installed. Music will be provided every Saturday evening for the benefit of the many who patronize the store. Hamelin Brothers & Co. have also stores at Moose Jaw, Stoughton, Napinka, Manor and Melita.

The Canadian Northern Railway have announced a reduction in freight rates between Winnipeg and Saskatoon. The reduced rates range from eleven to one cent per hundred on the different classes of merchandise. The new tariff took effect on November 25, and the change is a very welcome one to Saskatoon merchants. The same company has also reduced the passenger rates on this line to three cents per mile, which places the passenger rates on the same level as those in the east.

Happy is the man who conducts his business on a cash basis! A western merchant, who employs a Swedish clerk, sent him out recently to do some collecting. When the clerk returned from an unsuccessful trip he reported, "Yim Yonson say he vill pay ven he sells his hogs. Yim Oleson, he vill pay ven he sell him wheat, and Bill Pack say he vill pay in Yanuary." "Well," said the boss, "that's the first time Bill ever set a date to pay. Did he really say he would pay in January?" "Vell," said the clerk, "I tank so. He say it ban a d—n cold day ven you get that money. I tank that ban in Yanuary."

Many grocers throughout the land will doubtless compete for the Christmas window prizes. The fact that two prizes are offered this year should be an extra inducement, and clerks should not be backward in coming forward. Should you not actually win the prizes, the effort to do so will be beneficial, while any trouble you may go to will help on some future occasion.

MONTREAL SHIPPING BUSINESS.

Freight Handled Above Previous Year —Customs Revenue Increased.

Viewed from the standpoint of the steamship men the shipping season which has just closed at the port of Montreal has not been entirely as satisfactory as that of 1906, but the amount of freight handled was considerably above that put through the previous year, while the customs revenue on imported goods shows a magnificent increase. The total revenue from imports up to December 1, seven months, the opening of navigation to December, the revenue derived by the harbor totalled $330,256, against $330,290 the previous year, a decrease of $34. This revenue accrued from imports, exports and local traffic. Aside from the amount obtained on exports, already mentioned, there was, from imports, $216,000, against $207,500, showing a handsome increase of $8,500, while from local traffic there was $39,756, against $45,290. The freight traffic through the Lachine canal was the heaviest in the history of the port. The amount of wheat coming through showed an increase of 8 033,773 bushels, being 16,444,938 bushels, against 8,411,165 bushels in 1906.

A Shipment of Poultry to an Ontario Wholesaler.

amounted to $10,515,867, against $8,815,840 last year, meaning an increase of $1,700,027. In 1905 the amount received was $7,759|556. Exports of bacon during the year were fairly large, while apples showed a material increase. The cheese and butter business was not by any means as large as might have been desired, but the markets have been such as to render such a state of affairs impossible of prevention. Largely owing to the falling off in dairy exports the harbor revenue from exports showed a falling off for the season, being but $74,500 against $77,500 in 1906. From

LARGE POULTRY SHIPMENTS.

Some idea of the business in poultry done in Toronto at this season of the year may be gathered from the accompanying photograph, which illustrates a shipment of poultry in front of the premises of M. P. Mallon, Mr. Mallon himself is standing in the right of the photo.

M. P. Mallon is a young man who has made a remarkable success of this business. Six years ago he started in with small capital and without much knowledge of the poultry business. Since then he has built his business up to its present basis and is now recognized as one of the largest dealers in poultry in Ontario.

During the season Mr. Mallon keeps between fifty and seventy-five tons of poultry on hand, most of this, of course, in cold storage, in his own and neighboring warehouses. Besides shipping largely to Great Britain and the larger Canadian centres, Mr. Mallon does a large retail business with local hotels and restaurants. This year, owing to the very unsatisfactory condition of the poultry markets abroad, the Canadian market is attracting the greatest attention.

SOAP COMPANY LIQUIDATES.

The Atlantic Soap Co., Toronto, have gone into liquidation. The company was organized two years ago to take over the business of the Atlantic Soap and Oil Co., and it is claimed lack of capital is responsible for their present difficulties. The liabilities are in the neighborhood of $20,000.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Orange Situation Very Uncertain—Vegetables in Good Demand—All Lines of Fish Active.

No marked improvement has occurred in the fruit situation. The demand has fallen away off. Dealers claim that the financial stringency and the presence of many unemployed have much to do with the dull condition of the market. In oranges, especially, the situation is almost critical. Large shipments have arrived which have failed to find sale. Buyers are cautious and it looks as if the market was on the verge of a drop. Lemons are meeting with a fair demand and are comparatively steady. Prices of other lines remain practically the same, though an easier tone pervades the market. Buying for Christmas is commencing, but no great rush is reported yet. Supplies are plentiful.

The vegetable market has not changed materially. Potatoes are steady and selling briskly. Some imported vegetables are arriving and are meeting with a good demand. California celery is strong. New Orleans shallots are on the market.

Fish is active in all lines. There remains yet a scarcity of haddock and cod, due to the extremely rough weather which has visited the fishing grounds. Prices are about the same. Herring are selling well. Oysters are also strong.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Business is not particularly brisk in fruits. Oranges and a few other lines are easier in feeling, but no material change in prices can be announced. There is more or less Christmas buying being done, but the rush has not yet started. No new lines are quoted this week.

VEGETABLES—Several new lines are quoted this week, including New Orleans shallots, which are selling at 80c a dozen, radishes and California celery. This imported stuff is now running the market. Some Bermuda parsley, in very attractive condition, is being offered by some dealers. Boston lettuce is easier, 75c being the ruling price for a dozen bunches. Horse radish is easier, too. Beans are up, $5 being asked for a choice of green or wax. A big advance in parsley has taken place.

FISH—The feature of the market is the great scarcity of haddock, cod and practically all other lines of fish. Bad weather on the fishing grounds is responsible for the lack of supplies on the local market. Under the circumstances prices are steadily maintained. Fish men report a very satisfactory demand for various lines of fresh, frozen, smoked and salted fish for the Advent trade. Pickled lines are also in demand. Oysters are selling freely at the old prices. Supplies are sufficient to take care of all business coming forward.

TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—There has been no marked improvement in the fruit market. Prices are inclined to be easier. Supplies are very plentiful with the quality satisfactory. The orange market is in a precarious condition. Large arrivals are not meeting with the expected demand. Buyers are cautious to an unusual degree. Prices are easier, although no great drop is reported. Navals are arriving in good shape. Lemons are in fair demand. Apples are inclined to be over-plentiful. Tangerines are on the market. Several shipments of well-berried holly and wreathing have arrived. Some choice Jamaica bananas are being quoted at slightly higher prices. Almerias are selling steadily. Cranberries are slow.

NEWER POTATOES IN ENGLAND.

Estimate Places Crop One-third Less Than Previous Year.

Speaking as to the prospects of the potato crop in England, Consul John L. Griffiths. of Liverpool, states that the result of carefully conducted inquiries shows the consensus of opinion to be that the yield will fall far short of last year. It is difficult before the late winter crop is harvested to estimate the extent of the shortage, but it would be approximately correct to say that the yield will be at least one-third less than in 1906 and that the quality will be inferior. The prices, as a result of the shortage, are fully one-third higher than a year ago.

ATTRACTIVE CHRISTMAS PRICE LISTS.

NEW PROCESS OF FRUIT DRYING.

A Recent Invention Promises to Improve on Nature's System.

One of the very latest inventions is a process to produce "naturally dried fruit" in an "artificial manner" by the use of hot air. This process has just been tested before experts in California and proved highly successful. The fruit is laid in trays constructed of wire-netting, and a continuous draught of air heated to 150 degrees is forced through the fruit. The moisture extracted is carried away through an air stack and by control of heat and air, nature is closely imitated. It is claimed that by the new process the work can be done in two weeks' time less than the field drying method and with the same results. The first tray of prunes taken from the dryer were exceptional, and when weighed to ascertain the shrinkage by the new method compared with the old an increase of 10 points was noted in favor of the hot air.

A FREE TRADER—PROTECTIONIST

A good story is told at the expense of an M.P. who was engaged in a certain line of business which had for some time been trying to secure a higher rate of duty on his products. This manufacturer in the early days when there was a well-defined line of demarcation between the two political parties on the tariff, was known for his strong antipathy toward the national policy campaign as carried on by Sir John Macdonald. A short time ago, however, he formed one of a deputation to wait upon the Minister of Finance urging a higher duty on the line of goods which he manufactured. To the astonishment of every one present, he gave utterance to these remarks: "I have always been opposed to protection. I told Sir John Macdonald that protection would ruin the country, and I have told the members of the present Government the same. At one time I used to get from the Government 85 cents for a certain line of goods which I manufactured, but all my company can get now is 50 cents. I think, under the circumstances, it is only proper that the Government should put on a higher duty."

The other members of the deputation looked at each other in open mouthed astonishment, and the Minister of Finance could not help smiling. One member of the deputation when he recovered his breath remarked quietly: "I think our friend's remarks about prices being lower under protection than they were in the old days before the protection tariff was in force, is an argument in favor of protection."

SEALSHIPT OYSTERS

Sealshipt and Other Oysters

Oysters with a Difference

Sealshipt Oysters are packed in a sanitary, germ-proof steel case, which is sealed. Tub oysters are packed in a stale, slimy, soggy, wooden tub with a loose cover.

Sealshipt Oysters do not come in contact with ice—it is packed around the case. Tub oysters have ice put directly among them, often bruising and contaminating them.

Sealshipt Oysters have a delicious piquancy, the true "half-shell" flavor. Tub oysters are flat, insipid, with no marked flavor, save that given by chemicals.

PORT ELGIN'S BOARD OF TRADE.

New and Live Organization to Boom Western Town.

Port Elgin's industries and commercial firms have for a long time felt the necessity of united action in business matters, and to this end last week a Board of Trade was formed. A very representative meeting was held and the following were elected as the first officers of the new body : President, H, H, Stevens, of Stevens, Hepner & Co.; vice-president, Wm. McVicar,; corresponding secretary, R. Munro ; financial secretary, J. D. Falconer. An executive of nine members was also chosen. The matter of better railway and shipping facilities, improved docks, and new stations are some of the first important matters to be taken up by the new body.

AN EXCITED APPLICANT.

Here is a story sent in by a Western correspondent which grocers generally will enjoy:

A certain lady wished to apprentice her boy to the grocery trade. So she went to her grocer and asked him if he would take the boy. The grocer spoke very kindly to her and told her to send her boy around the next morning so he could see him before deciding. The next morning came around and so did the boy. He peeped in the store and seeing who he supposed to be the boss, stepped in the store and approached his man this way: "Be you the mister master man, because if you be I'm the boy's mother that was looking for work yesterday."

ADMITS TOBACCO MONOPOLY.

Trust Expert Acknowledges Control of Crop—Americans Demanding Foreign Goods.

Interesting details regarding the operations of the American Tobacco Trust and incidentally some useful information in regard to the tobacco business generally were brought out the other day in the testimony of T. B. Yuille, head of the buying department for the corporation, in the suit of the Government against the American Tobacco Company before United States Commissioner Shields as special examiner.

Mr. Yuille admitted that the American Company practically monopolized the tobacco crop of the United States, but insisted that the trust in nowise caused restraint of trade. He said the effect of the company's activity was to increase rather than diminish the price paid to the producer.

He told of the methods employed by the company's buyers and admitted that the company always was kept informed of the amounts of tobacco purchased by the independents. His testimony related chiefly to the markets in the Carolinas and Virginia. Under continued questioning by Mr. McReynolds, representing the Attorney General, Mr. Yuille also admitted that some of the subsidiary companies had continued to advertise as independent concerns after being taken into the trust.

In general the demand for tobacco in recent years has exceeded the production, he said, but that was due to extension of the trade in foreign countries. Because of this foreign demand prices had been put up. He said there had been a notable decrease in the price of leaf tobacco used for cigarettes, because Americans had recently developed a great liking for Turkish cigarettes. These, he declared, had almost entirely replaced the old style Virginia leaf cigarettes.

He said also that the lemon colored cigar wrapper, very much in demand a few years ago, had almost entirely disappeared now, because American smokers had experienced a change of taste and wanted the dark or mahogany colored wrapper. But while there had been a falling off in the demand for a few brands the general consumption of tobacco had increased steadily, and that explained the prevailing high prices. He said there was still genuine competition between the trust and the independent companies.

A CHEERFUL PROSPECT.

Here's enterprise for you. One of our esteemed American contemporaries carries an advertisement, which appears cheerfully week after week, of a Luthran cemetery. The advertisement, which by the way, is in German, gives definite instructions as to how to reach this peaceful resting place and also includes the prices of graves, children's size at reduced rates. We wonder if the advertising solicitor promised "direct results" when he negotiated this business.

We knew things were pretty "dead" across the line but didn't suppose it had come to the point where they had to advertise cemeteries in grocery journals. Canadian grocers couldn't be persuaded to even think of dying. They're kept so busy that they simply keep running till they drop.

We might say more about this but refrain on the assumption that further grave remarks would not be appreciated.

NUT TRADE DEVELOPING.

That the Canadian people are developing more fastidious tastes is evidenced by the marked increase in the consumption of shelled nuts. In the past, wholesalers have treated nuts as but a subsidiary branch of their business. They are now coming to recognize it as one of their most important articles of trade. Indeed, already several firms are devoting their attention almost wholly to the sale of shelled nuts.

And with this growth in demand, the market has become speculative. Wholesalers who formerly bought a few cases from the importers now have an outlet where they can speculate on the market. A broker to-day must be in constant cable communication with the exporting country and must watch the market as closely as any Wall Street speculator.

This year there is considerable doubt as to the quality of walnuts. Some good authorities claim that the walnuts now being harvested are of a very inferior quality and it is significant that the best houses will not guarantee shipments.

How Much Do You Spend?
A merchant will spend, each month, a considerable sum for Leaf, Plug and Package Tobacco, Cigars and Cigarettes, Pipes, Tobacco Pouches, and all Smokers' Sundries, Biscuits and Confectionery. Does he always get the value of his money? It is contestable. To make sure, he should buy from

Foldover Shipping Bills

Shipping Order for Railway--Duplicate for Customer --Original for Filing

Show your shipping clerk our Crain Patented Foldover Shipping Bill System and he will wax enthusiastic over it. He will like its neat get up, admire the secure manner in which the wire-stitched pads are held in place and the convenient way the carbon paper is carried by the combination holder.

Customers will not be writing in and asking "on which railway did you ship my goods?" Customer receives duplicate with his invoice, and gets all required information. Shipping order goes to railway. Original, signed by R. R. Agent, is filed on a reference binder.

Complete information in our Foldover Shipping Bill Folder. Write for it.

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

& SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

Why?

Why is the BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE the best publication in the magazine field?

Simply because each issue contains, in addition to its original articles, the Cream and the Choicest and Best articles appearing in all other magazines and periodicals. Take your favorite magazine, pick out the articles that interest you, then turn to the Busy Man's and you will find that these same articles appear in it. Not only do the best articles in your favorite magazine appear in Busy Man's, but the live, up-to-date ones appearing in SCORES of publications which do not come your way.

Think of how interesting, entertaining, and instructive this many-in-one magazine must be. Not a dull page in it; every page SELECT. It is so interesting that not one per cent. of our thousands of readers discontinue their subscriptions.

A post card giving us your address will bring you a free sample copy along with the unsolicited testimony of dozens of our readers.

We will send the Magazine till January 1st, 1909 (14 issues) for $2, the price of one year's subscription. This offer only holds good while the Christmas Number lasts. SEND US YOUR ORDER TO-DAY.

WARNING!

Crescent BM&Co. TRADE MARK Brand

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

The Passing Year has been one of success—we hope, with possibly some little failures, but we trust the balance—good and substantial—has been on right side of the ledger of this year's business.

Our volume of trade this year has been larger than ever, and for your share and help towards this we extend our hearty thanks.

We trust that for the coming year you, we and all may enjoy continued prosperity, and shall, as in the past, do our utmost to help you along the golden pathway.

We conclude with extending our heartiest wishes for a

We Didn't Build This Business From "First" Orders

The only reason we are to-day still in business, the only reason we have, time after time, outgrown the quarters provided by us in the last sixteen years, is the fact that we have a clientage of satisfied customers, who send ever increasing repeat orders, month after month, year in and year out.

The Successful Business is the one that Pleases Its Customers.

"FIRST" Orders gave us our Start, but HIGH GRADE GOODS gave us our SUCCESS.

The FACT that QUALITY has ALWAYS been PARAMOUNT with us, over ALL other CONSIDERATIONS TELLS THE STORY.

Naptha SOAP

MADE IN CANADA

In every walk of life there are men who stand out prominent among their fellows. They possess something which distinguishes them from all the rest.

It is so in things that men produce, as for instance, Laundry Soap; the public are quick to recognize the best from the second best or lower grades.

NAPTHO IS A SOAP that was bound from the first to be successful because it possessed just those qualities which make it stand out above others.

In cocoanut you want something true in flavor, fine in texture, bright in color, good in appearance, and pleasing in taste. Something that will not grow rancid quickly, thus causing you loss and annoyance.

That's the kind we make—beautiful long threads that will satisfy the most exacting.

An important point, too, is that it does not cost you any more—perhaps not as much—than inferior and poorly-made cocoanut.

Profitable Goods

Are the goods that are a little better than the others: goods that will make sales where the others won't. Ozo Brand Pickles are good pickles, and show their quality. We have special facilities for turning out the best pickles, and we have made the most of them. For instance, we provide the seed from which the vegetables are grown and so get the best from the start; the cucumbers go straight from the vine to the factory, so that none of the fresh crispness is lost. We make our own vinegar and it cannot be beaten for pickling purposes. It will certainly pay you to specify that you want our goods when ordering pickles.

Protecting the Grocer

¶ The grocers best protection is quality. There is no doubt of the truth of that statement. The mind of the public is constantly dwelling upon the necessity of hygiene. And the main part of the science of hygiene is —PURE FOOD.

¶ That accounts for the fact that the public to-day is more influenced (as far as food is concerned, anyway) by talk of quality, than by low price.

¶ Consequently the grocers who are leading the trade are those who specialize on quality. And in the stores of the successful, the canned goods most sold are the famous

Old Homestead Brand

¶ The success of this brand is founded on absolute purity. In canned goods purity and profit go hand in hand.

¶ Old Homestead Brand is the brand which is composed only of pure, well grown, luscious fruits and vegetables. No dirt, no poisonous preservatives. Old Homestead factory is a model of cleanliness, and Old Homestead employees are people of tried skill in canning fruits and vegetables.

The Best Tea on Earth is Grown in the Island of Ceylon

There is absolutely no doubt of the truth of this assertion. Popular taste is overwhelmingly in support of it. And behind the expression of popular taste are the very soundest of natural reasons. The climate of the sunny isle - aided perhaps by some property of the soil—brings the tea plant to greater perfection in Ceylon than it attains in any other part of the world. No, there is no doubt of the superiority of Ceylon teas over all others.

Neither is there any doubt that every grocer should be always well supplied with CEYLON TEAS, if he is to really please his customers

OUR CHRISTMAS STORY

ON A CASH BASIS

How a Young Grocer by Pluck and Good Management Realized His Dearest Wish—A Romance of Modern Business Methods by the Editor.

"It's preposterous," grunted the old gentleman. "I won't think of it for a minute."

"Banker Brown," as the community called him, was in a rather crusty humor. To tell the truth, he was suffering a good deal from an acute attack of rheumatism and it was unfortunate that Jim Allan, the young down-town grocer, had chosen this particular evening to ask him for his daughter Jennie.

The banker sprang up and began to pace nervously up and down the room. The very thought of losing Jennie, his one daughter, the best educated girl in town, and his particular comfort made him uneasy.

"No," he went on, "I won't hear of it." Then turning suddenly to the young man sitting in the chair opposite his own, "What have you got to keep her on, anyway? Your business don't amount to over eight thousand a year and three-quarters of that is on tick. Do you remember how I helped you out with those wholesale houses once or twice a year or so ago?"

Jim winced involuntarily, for what the old man said was true. The latter, seeing this and remembering a time when he had been in the same position, softened a little and sat down again.

"See here, my boy," he said, "Let's look this thing in the face. I know what you are and would trust you with a hand in my safe, and I know, too, what you're up against in carrying on your father's business with his old debts strappin' you down, but how can you expect me to let Jennie go from a fine home here to live in four rooms above your store and likely coming down to dig out butter and tea to help you on Saturday nights? How much of a husband would you be to her anyway? You're in the store from seven in the morning till ten every night."

"You don't need to think for a minute I'd let her do that," the young man broke in, with a touch of resentment. I'd work like a nigger for her, and besides, I could be with her at easy times during the day. She's willing and—"

"That's all right at first," interrupted the father, "but such things don't usually last. I tell you what I'll do, Jim," with a sort of sour twinkle in his eye and a groan as a twinge of rheumatism caught him, "Let this thing lie on the table for a year or so. I know Jennie likes you but you're both young enough. If you can show me a cash balance of five thousand clear on my books, then I'll say you can have Jennie." With an air of dismissal the old gentleman opened the door and Jim, seeing nothing better, made his way out.

Jim Allan took a long walk that night across the frozen flats and up along the icy river path and back by the school lane, where he and Jennie, years before, had gathered maple leaves together. And he thought a good deal as he walked. Deep down in his heart he hadn't expected the banker would be willing to give him his daughter, and he was honest enough to admit that the old gentleman was right in his argument. For awhile, in his downheartedness, the thought of trying to match the voluntary agreement never occurred to him. It seemed absolutely an impossibility. Then it struck him all in a heap and he walked faster for five minutes, spurred on by even the imaginings of it. He had read a good deal lately of the successes made by cash businesses in other parts of the country but had never though much about it. He knew he had between three and four thousand in debts on his books. Would it be possible to collect this? Could he boom his business enough to clear that five thousand?

Jim didn't sleep for a few hours that night but tossed around, going over the pros and cons of the matter. Finally he summed the thing up and made a decision to have a mighty try at it anyway, and went off to sleep as a healthy-minded young Canadian should.

At first he told no one about his plans but spent all his spare time in working out primary details. He nearly spoiled the secret though, a few afternoon's latter, when Jennie, as pink as a rosebud, came in for a moment to bid him good-bye. The doctor had ordered her father south for his health and, like the dutiful daughter, she was, she was going along to look after him. They were leaving immediately. After a moment's thought Jim took the matter philosophically, so much so, in fact, that Jennie went away a little bit piqued, but the young grocer had seen a great light and was just then laying a deep foundation. In due time the Browns' departed, the father securing a manager to look after his banking interests, and, in the worry over his physical condition, promptly forgot all about the agreement concerning Jennie.

Not so our young friend the grocer. Before his eyes in all his working hours floated a picture. It showed an open bank book. On one side was an account with a balance of $5,000 and on the other was, well, just Jennie.

Jim was even better satisfied to have the old gentleman out of town. The more he thought the clearer he saw the path before him and he began to believe he would be able to surprise the banker.

His first step, after a week's planning, was to walk into the office of the local paper and to surprise the proprietor into jumping out of his chair by asking for two columns of space in the next week's issue. The town had never heard of a local grocer advertising, much less asking for this much space.

"Going to run a lot of Christmas bargains, Mr. Allan," inquired the newspaper man.

"No,' 'said Jim, with a smile. "here's my copy," and he handed out one sheet which beyond a paragraph or two of particulars, merely mentioned that "On and after January 1st the business of J. J. Allan would be conducted on a strictly cash basis." Another line at the bottom emphasized the payment of old accounts.

Jim got the first discouragement then and there. "Don't you think you could use the space to better purpose," said the newspaper man, who took a good many of his subscriptions in apples and cord wood, "I'd like to see it, but I'm afraid you won't be able to hang out."

"That's my copy," Jim said. "I'll hang out or bust, and you can make an item to that effect if you like. I want them to know about it all over the county."

They soon knew. People talked about it everywhere for a couple of weeks and Jim's holiday business grew appreciably by reason of those who came in out of curiosity to talk the matter over with him. And the knocks he got were enough to push a post over. His spirits did go down pretty low once or twice too, particularly when old John Smythe, the big dry goods man, who had been a friend of his father's, came in in a kindly way and called him a foolish boy. "You can't do it, Jim" he said. "The people here won't stand for it. You'll lose all your business."

They weren't quite all knockers, though, and one of the optimists was Wallace, the young man who had taken charge of Mr. Brown's private bank. He came in one day to get acquainted and bolstered Jim up a good deal by telling him he was on the right track. "I'll help you," he said, "all I can."

In due time the day after New Year's came, and bright and early, after rather a restless night, Jim opened the store. He had various qualms when he tore the top page off the new calendar and opened the new books in his little office but he had a big fund of resolution and had enough Scotch blood in him to be as stiff-necked as the next man. Things were rather dull for a day or two after the holiday week and the new departure had been so much talked about that at first there was not much difficulty in enforcing its arrangements. Then, however, troubles began to come in showers. Telephone orders came in and when the delivery boy came round no one but the maid was at home, with no instructions to pay for the goods. In a good many cases Jim went out himself, found the lady of the house, explained matters gently but firmly, and in most cases was able to leave the order and come away with the change.

But all did not go smoothly by any means. One day the boy came back from Mrs. John Smythe's with a box full of staples. "Gosh, but she's a stiff un," he threw out. "Gave me the dickens when I asked for the $3.30. Said if you couldn't trust her, an old friend of your mother's, who had nursed you when you were goin' through the measles, you needn't expect to sell her any more sugar."

Old Mr. Smythe himself came in that day on his way down town after dinner. "Look here, Jimmie," he said, "you're pushing this thing too far. We have been good customers of your father and you too long to be played with."

"I'm sorry, sir," said Jim, reluctantly, "but I've decided to do business that way and have to stick to it."

"And do you mean you're going to hold me up like that?" said the older man, with the red veins beginning to show in his face. "Look out boy," this threateningly, "remember the note your father gave me the year before he died."

Jim was scared, and he got angry, too, a little later in the afternoon, when on his way to his friend, the banker, for comfort, he saw Mrs. Smythe go into another grocery farther down the street.

The result of his call, though, was that an itemized account of $23.42, a bill of three months' standing, went in to Mr. John Smythe next morning.

And how Jim did work with those accounts. He billed and re-billed, and called and called again and he advertised and systematized and specialized on this side of the business. Gradually, too, he began to get returns. After some weeks of this campaign, his old customers saw the justice of it and in a good many cases tried to help him. The first month he collected $300 in accounts of over a year's standing, some of which had been run during his father's time.

And the harder Jim worked the better he liked it and the more satisfied he became. For the first month he lost perhaps forty good customers and business dropped off alarmingly. Time and again the farmers and their wives tried to lead him away, but he had a picture in his mind and he saw only one way to realize it.

The travelers who came around at the beginning of the year cheered him a good deal too. Most of them, when they found what he was doing, and that he was ready to pay spot cash for what he did buy, even if his orders were considerably smaller than they used to be, had some particular bargain on really good stuff which they offered him, as they said, to cheer him up. They helped him in another way, too, by pressing him to buy the best goods. "Why, Jim," said big Tom Walters, who had been selling sugar and raisins to the boy and his father for fifteen years, "in six months you'll have all the best people in town.. You can sell better stuff under this scheme and they'll all be better satisfied."

And so it proved, though it meant backbone and hours of planning and heaps of work. Jim worked as he never had done before. But he got his reward occasionally when a letter from Jennie came in and he knew that she was still thinking and hoping.

Other things, too, worked out in the young man's favor. Talk of a new electric line through the county brought the town into prominence. Wallace, the new bank manager, had had experience above his years and was full of enthusiasm. He got the business men of the town together and organized a Board of Trade, and the idea was so new that they took hold in a remarkable way. Then, through some judiciously-placed advertising and a sheaf of correspondence, they got in touch with a large tanning concern. An expert sent by this company found the river water particularly suited to their chemical needs and the firm came in, dammed the river at a point just below the town, developed a thousand or so of horse power, built a good-sized manufactory, filled the empty houses in town with their employes and built a score more for the overflow. The old farming town began to show an air of prosperity.

All this meant business to Jim. And he took full advantage of it. By the end of November he had most of his old customers back and was driving two new wagons, instead of the old cart. He had realized well, too, on the old debts, and had things in pretty fair shape all round. Sometimes his heart sank, though, when he thought of that five thousand. His bank book showed about three of it and that was five times as much as he had ever had before, but, trusting to luck and good management, and perhaps his letters from Jennie, he kept on working.

In December the news went round town that the Browns were coming home. The old banker was well again. Then this was changed to a report that they were going to Europe for a year. Jim made his plans accordingly.

Early in the year he had the front and back knocked out of his store, took in the shoe shop beside him and put up a new brick front covering both. He moved his own stuff, too, into a couple of rooms over the bank, behind Wallace's suite, and filled the upper story of his own building with groceries, putting in a light hoist, which also ran to the cellar. This cost money and lessened the bank balance, but Jim still had faith.

Something else happened just at this time which helped him. The Board of Trade, still awake, inaugurated an "early closing movement" which worked nicely and for the first time in years Jim felt free in the evenings to do some reading.

He got pretty friendly, too, with the son of the tannery manager, a young man who had traveled some, and he began to call occasionally at the big house up the river. People in town began to couple his name with that of the young lady from the same big house, who drove up quite often behind a small pony, to order some particularly taking groceries for evening dinner. Jim smiled deep down when he heard this and thought of his bank book.

His acquaintance with the same young man, however, almost proved his undoing. In an unguarded moment, on "a sure tip," when matters at the store had bothered him for a day or so, he took a flier of a thousand or so in "American copper," and two days later the stock slumped thirteen points. If it had not been for Wallace, who naturally found out what was going on, the bank account would have disappeared and the picture as well. For a few days Jim went round with a mighty sober face, mentally kicking himself, but the banker, like the good friend that he was, stepped into the breach with some of his personal collateral, and a few weeks later, through another friend in the city, they were able to get rid of the whole business, with Jim about $150 short.

That experience steadied him down, and perhaps he got another letter just then. At any rate he devoted himself to 'business and from then on made things go with a rush. Later in the year he bought a lot in another part of the town, spent some time with an architect during his visits to the city wholesale houses and in time a pretty fair-looking foundation began to grow up.

The day before Christmas gossips round town told that the Browns had come home the evening before. The news was true, for the next afternoon the old banker was sitting once more in his office talking pleasantly to his manager.

"Yes, things seem to have moved along pretty well," he said. "The town looks a lot better, streets are cleaner, stores improved, in fact the whole place is brisker." By the way, Wallace," he continued, "who's putting up the house on the lot opposite mine? Just saw it as I came down this morning."

"Young Allan, the grocer," said the manager, with a twinkle in his eye.

"Allan! You don't mean Jim," jerked out the surprised old gentleman. "Who's it for? What's he going to do with it?"

"He hasn't told me that," said the young man, quietly, "but I saw him come into the bank just now, I'll call him in."

"I'm glad to know you're doing so well, Jim," said the banker, a minute or two later. "Your new store is certainly a credit to the town. But," perplexedly, "what are you going to do with the house next mine? Wallace tells me it's yours?"

"It is," said Jim, with a queer, though happy look on his strong face, "mine and Jennie's!"

"Jennie's! What do you mean?" ejaculated the father.

"Do you remember the agreement you drew up a little over two years ago, sir?" said Jim, quickly, pulling a bank book from his inside pocket. "Here's my side of it," and he opened the book near the back, showed on one page a balance, newly written in red, of $5,-130, and on the other, where he had just placed it, a picture of Jennie.

"Well I'll be danged," said the old gentleman, angry for a moment, but cooling off as the matter flashed back into his memory and he was able to appreciate the situation. "But," springing up and whacking the young man on the back, "I'll keep my side of it, and I think you'd better come up to the house for Christmas dinner to-morrow. I thought Jennie must have something up her sleeve when she chirked up so a month or two ago in Florence, but," with a grin, "why in tarnation didn't you tell me something about it?"—E. J. M.

NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM.

The Sylvester Manufacturing Co., of Lindsay, are advertising in this issue a new system gas and lighting machine for which they claim many improved and novel features. The Safety Sunlight gas machine, by which name the machine is known, is adapted for commercial lighting, such as for stores, railway stations, factories, churches, hotels and houses, and also for supplying gas for heating and cooking and laboratory use.

The manufacturers claim thorough satisfaction in lighting with perfect safety, automatic regulation, no possibility of disorder, and at a price considerably below that of illuminating gas and electricity.

ONTARIO WINTER FAIR

Features of Big Exhibition in Guelph Last Week as Seen by a Grocer—Bright Account by a Local Correspondent.

As you hear the conductor call out, "Guelph! Change here for all points east and west," and he might have added, "For the Winter Fair," you realize by the crowding and jamming you get, at the small G.T.R. station, that there is something doing and you have to get busy to take care of yourself. From the station to the Fair is about three minutes' walk, and you manage to catch your breath, but only for a moment, and by the time you get your Farmers' Institute Ticket that costs you 25 cents exchanged for one that will admit you three times a day for a whole week, you feel kind of cheap.

The crowd is so large you take a jaunt around the machinery exhibit outside for a moment, and size up some of those fancy cream separators that your customers' wives are using to make that A1 butter you get with your own label on it, and that 25c ticket doesn't bother you any more, for right there you get your money's worth and can suggest a good many points to others who do not use cream separators. You also notice the latest saving devices for the farmer's benefit, so as to be able to talk about them when opportunity offers. By this time you see a chance to get in the main door and at last you are inside the greatest educational exhibition, if not of the world, at least, one of them. You are then face to face with a great showing of the finest exhibition of fat cattle yet seen at a winter fair, as you can hear expressed by experts who know their business. But as you are not much interested in fat cattle, you shake hands with a few customers and friends, and struggle through the crowd back to the other end of the building, and you are at once struck by the earnest, expectant faces of a large crowd sitting on the seats provided for that purpose, and on inquiring are told to shut up and listen. Prof. Day, of the G.A.C., one of the judges at Chicago, is giving one of his famous addresses on "Bacon Hogs," and you stop to listen, and he goes on to tell the best kinds of hogs to raise for bacon and illustrates as he goes along why one variety is better than another, and you hear Tamworths, Berkshires and the other different breeds shown up either for good or bad, and then the Professor gives time to ask questions and right there is where some good information is to be had, and you listen to the questions and the Professor answers and again shows his reasons.

But while a grocer sells bacon he doesn't raise the hogs, and you move on and enter the poultry department. Now you are interested. All the different varieties of chickens, turkeys, geese and pigeons. There is a big fellow right there also with the knowledge, and as no one else asks questions, you get busy. What is the best kind of chickens to raise for egg producer you ask. He immediately very kindly replies: Orpingtons, Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds, and goes on to explain. That is about your limit at asking questions, as not being a fancier those seem odd names for chickens, so you go on and examine the different breeds of chickens and you soon see that the man apparently knew his business as when you ask a man who owns any of the above varieties, he claims his is the greatest egg producer of them all, and wants to sell you a setting of eggs at fancy prices.

It takes a long time at this poultry department, and before you go on you get thoroughly posted and make up your mind to have a few hens of your own for next year. Just then a friend taps you on the shoulder and asks you if you have seen the seed department, run by members of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. You say no, and he shows you where to go and there you find your element. The first thing that attracts your attention as a grocer is the seed potatoes, and there are 35 different samples of the finest Murphys you ever saw, and again you start to get busy and go through that lot of samples and examine them just as carefully as you would so many samples of teas and coffee. They are the finest you have ever seen, and a large, round white kind, with big eyes, excites your curiosity, and you begin to get posted. The man in charge gives you all the latest information and the different soils that suit each variety, and you are pleased and move on to the seed corn and the many different varieties of it from the red flint corn in cobs down to the common everyday corn. The same way with the samples of barley, oats, peas and wheat, that are shown in the grain and also in the stocks, which are very interesting.

Then comes the Alsike clover seed, which grows best on low land, and you see the finest samples and compare them also with the red clover. There are several samples, and as they have not been judged yet, you take it upon yourself to be your own judge, and will come back later to see if the expert judges and yourself agree. The Timothy seed is also a very fine sample, and you get it under your glass to one side so as no one will see you, and you then form your own opinion of that also for future reference.

But by this time some friend tells you lunch, provided by the city officials to their guests, is being served in the City Hall, and you return there and have a hand shake with old friends and have a splendid meal, and are waited on by the loveliest lot of young ladies, called the King's Daughters, and they certainly spread a meal for a king. You are hardly done eating when the speeches start, and Alderman Struthers, the chairman of the Reception Committee, who occupies the chair, calls on Mayor Newstead, and you get the freedom of the city and a whole lot of taffy that makes you feel bigger than a grocer, and listen to the nice words of welcome spoken by J. P. Downey, in his own pleasant manner, followed by such great men as the Hon. Nelson Monteith, President Creelman, Professors Day, Dean, C. C. James, and so many other prominent men you watch your chance to get out again and see more of your grocer friends. You are not satisfied yet, and work back to the seed department, and the judges are busy and the crowd are held off by ropes so you accidentally wander into a room that is quite cool and find you are in the dressed poultry department and the judges are just starting their work. They don't object, as you seem quite harmless, and for once keep quiet and you watch them and right there is where the expert business of dressed poultry is being demonstrated to perfection. The turkeys come first. You have been handling turkeys all your life and yet you could not pick a winner. They all look alike to you, but just watch and see the way those judges handle those birds and examine them from head to tail and separate the gobblers and hens, and all in a very short time, and the turkey you though was a winner has been scarcely looked at. You draw their attention to it, and they thank you, but don't put any red ribbon nor anything else on it. You are disgusted and are going home, and out you go and as you go out you hear the key turned and that is another opportunity lost.

The incubators and how to feed the different kinds of birds and fowl, how to raise onions and keep them profitably also attract your attention. But you think, "Oh, I don't want to keep onions, I want to sell them," and into the sheep department you go and listen to a very instructive address, and also see the sheep that sweep the Chicago Fair and are surprised to find their home is near Guelph and owned by Whitaker Bros. Then someone suggests that you see Jas. Leak's great prize winner in fat cattle at Chicago, and down you go with the crowd and stand for half an hour admiring a beautiful fat heifer that never saw Chicago, and you then are told the great sweepstake winner is not here, but was sold in Chicago. Your temper is up by this time as you had already informed some friends all about this fine animal, and how well it had done in Chicago. You back away and get upstairs again, and meet Aldermen McCrae and Simpson and ask them about the grocery business, and they cheer you up again by saying there is not going to be any hard times around Guelph, for Superintendent Osborne, of the C.P.R., had told them at lunch that he could not find the slightest trace of any around Guelph, and Jas. Dummie, of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, said he had no idea of the magnitude of this country until he had seen it for himself, and President Johnston, of the Winter Fair Board, spoke of the wholesouled hospitality of the citizens of Guelph, and also said nothing good could be said about Guelph that was not deserved. You bid them good-bye and feel better. By this time the judging is done in the seed department, and you are quite satisfied that you have selected the winners, and, of course, think those judges knew their business, and you go back to the dressed poultry and turn your attention to the geese, ducks and chickens, and here again you are surprised. There are lots of good fat geese that look better to you than the winners, but when the judges explain about being rounded up better and better color, you can see the difference. The ducks, though, that got the prizes were more flat shaped, but of good white color. But when it came to chickens, J. E. Mounce, of Armstrong's Mills, had them all beaten. Really the dressed poultry was the finest collection ever displayed at any previous winter fair here.

Coming down stairs again my attention was drawn to the dairy tests, where the men were busy milking the cows, and I went in and there again is some great information for the grocer. Such as the kind of cows which give the most milk and make the best butter, and this information is all given by the best experts to be obtained in the world. Then come the block tests, where the cattle are examined alive and then killed, and the judges have to give reasons after the killing for their decisions, and the carcasses are hung up for those interested to examine. My, what a great business the grocery business would be if each year we had an annual meeting of this kind with such expert knowledge and such earnest, attractive listeners as we see at this fair. There are some farmers who come to this fair for fun, but by far the majority come on business, to get the very best that is to be obtained in the way of information in their own special line. The ladies also get a great education in the art of butter and cheese making by experts, and there are so many things to be learned that it is really a wonderful fair.

The past week has demonstrated that Guelph is the ideal place in Ontario for the annual meetings of all agricultural organizations. There has been the sessions of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union at the O.A.C. College, the Women's Institute meetings, the annual meetings of the various live stock and poultry organizations, and the Ontario Millers' Association; also the creamery men. The continuous round of addresses under the auspices of the Provincial Winter Fair Board, during all this rich programme of debate and practical demonstration we could only sit back and listen to the allied wisdom of our professional brethren of the Ontario farms. But though we cannot appropriate and apply the lessons in a practical way, we can appreciate the sound theory of it all. The dressed poultry was the finest exhibition of its kind ever seen at any winter fair here. The turkeys and geese were all bought by the Wm. Davies Co., of Toronto, for the King Edward hotel and the Grand Trunk Railway dining cars, and most of the chickens, also, went to Toronto firms.

The address of Prof. Harcourt, of the O.A.C., at one of the meetings of the Women's Institute, should be of interest to grocers also. He read a most interesting and instructive paper on breakfast foods, referring to the importance of cereal foods because of their cheapness, of the ease with which they can be digested and because they contain all the constituents necessary to the human body. All the breakfast foods that now flood the market under so many different titles all originated from the old-fashioned porridge. One conspicuous good these breakfast foods had accomplished and that was the bringing on the market of the old meal in a cleaner condition. Prof. Harcourt contrasted the four different classes of food—raw, partially cooked, cooked and cooked and digested foods as to solidity, digestibility and palatability. By experiments previously tried, it was shown that the old-fashioned oatmeal, properly cooked, compared in solubility with predigested foods.

In conclusion, Prof. Harcourt said that it had been clearly shown that many of the prepared foods were not so thoroughly prepared as they might be and that all the foods discussed were good foods and gave a large amount of nutrition, these appetizing advertisements should not lead us to withdraw our favor from the old forms of oatmeal.

The new flour testing plant at the O.A.C., under the charge of Prof. Harcourt, is beginning to show results and to be appreciated by Ontario millers. The nature of the work done was explained in an address the other afternoon. Samples of wheat from large lots obtained by the inspectors at Fort William and grading from No. 1 hard to No. 4 Northern, were received for test. The tests showed that the grading done by these men is accurate for the quality of the flour decreased uniformly as the grade of the wheat decreased. Other tests showed that the grading done at the elevators is correct, but that the same grades from different sections of the country vary greatly in character. For instance, No. 3 northern from one section may be far ahead of No. 1 northern from another section. Now, the man who buys the No. 3 northern gets it at a price lower than that ruling for No. 1, and yet is getting a better flour. That is where the testing plant here is doing efficient work for Ontario millers. It enables them to find the actual milling values of the wheat they are buying, regardless of grade. The millers were all greatly pleased with the plant, and much benefit is likely to accrue to them from it. These are some of the most interesting points in the week's work as regards the grocery trade, but all the other lectures and addresses were just as instructive.

W. H. Hamilton, one of Peterborough's progressive grocers, had a fire a short time ago, but is now having his store all re-decorated with new metallic embossed ceiling. The fire burnt out three upper flats and the lower floor was mostly damaged by water.

DOMINION TRAVELERS MEET

Thirty-third Annual Gathering of Commercial Men's Association in Montreal —Election of Officers and Resume of Business Transacted.

The 33rd annual meeting of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association was held in the Fraser Hall, Montreal, on Saturday, E. D. Marceau, the retiring president, occupying the chair. Great interest had been taken in the voting for the officers for the coming year, and the scrutineers' report was read amid considerable excitement. From this it was apparent that W. J. Egan, with Arthur & Co., dry goods, Montreal and Glasgow, had been elected president; Samuel J. Mathewson, of Mathewson's Sons, wholesale grocers, Montreal, vice-president; and the following elected directors: L. W. Anderson, with Greenshields, wholesale dry goods, Montreal; J. A. Dawson, with Lyman-Knox, wholesale druggists, Montreal; E. Duckett, with A. McDougall & Co., woolens, Montreal; H. Glassford, Standard Automatic Fire Sprinkler Co., Montreal; S. D. Stewart, on

Annual Report.

The annual report showed a very flourishing state of affairs in the organization. In spite of the heavy death rate the capital of the association had been increased, and the finances were in very satisfactory condition.

E. D. Marceau submitted the report of the board of management for the fiscal year ended December 6, in which it was stated:

"For the year now closed, we find as per treasurer's statement, the total amount of cash received on revenue account to be $72,093 to which has to be added accrued interest, $453; overdue interest on mortgages, $702, and certificates sold in advance at 6th December, 1906, for 1907, $4,050; making the total revenue for the year $77,299, which is $5,721 in excess of last year. Five thousand two hundred and forty-five dollars has been paid for working expenses and $10.283 added to capital account.

"The membership continues to show a steady increase. The number of new applications accepted during the year was 994, and deducting those who lapsed, we have a net gain of 409 for the year, making our present membership 6,093. The sum of $63,250 has been paid the beneficiaries of deceased members, who number 64 for the year, five of which were provided for in last year's statement. While this may not be considered abnormal, the amount paid in benefits exceeds that of any former year. We enter the new year with three death claims to carry over, provision for which is made in the treasurer's statement.

"Owing to the stringency of the money market, we have been enabled to renew at a higher rate of interest all overdue mortgages, which will enhance our revenue account by over $700. Three matured loans, amounting to $22,000, have been realized, and four new loans made, aggregating $35,000, all of which has been invested in first mortgages on real estate."

"We are pleased to state that the tax formerly imposed by British Columbia and Province of Quebec on commercial travelers from sister provinces has now been done away with, leaving Prince Edward Island the only province which still continues to exact this obnoxious license."

Amendments to Constitution.

After considerable discussion a motion by S. Woods to add an amendment to the constitution was submitted to the consideration of a committee, to the effect that a member who had reached the age of sixty-five years and whose mortuary benefit certificate had reached the maximum amount of $1,200, might be kept in good standing by the association, at his written request, charging his annual fee against his benefit. Two notices of motion on a similar subject were also submitted to the same committee.

A Pension Fund Scheme.

On the suggestion of the Commercial Travelers' Club, of the St. Hyacinthe district, it was decided, E. Duckett moving and Mr. Cavana seconding, "that the board of directors for the ensuing year be a committee to study the advisability of creating a pension fund, and that they be authorized, if necessary, to appropriate from the funds of the association a sum, to be used towards securing the services of actuaries or experts in insurance, who could sketch the different modes by which a pension or annuity fund could be created on a practical and solid basis, and that the committee report at the quarterly November meeting, after the actuaries work is completed."

A resolution was adopted to co-operate with sister organizations in again asking the Dominion Government to change Thanksgiving Day from Thursday to Monday.

It was also decided that whereas, at the time the provinces were asking an increased subsidy from the Dominion Government, it was practically agreed that if the subsidy was allowed the tax on commercial travelers would be repealed, and all had carried this out except Prince Edward Island, it be respectfully urged upon the Dominion Government not to pay the increase in subsidy to that province until such time as the commercial travelers' tax was repealed.

A copy of the resolution will be sent to the Dominion Government and to the Legislature of Prince Edward Island.

The detailed votes cast in the elections were as follows: For president, Egan 1,384, Wilkins 1,350, Mann 592; for vice-president, Mathewson 1,674, Giles 1,541; for five directors, Anderson 2,002, Dawson 1,744, Duckett 1,689, Glassford 1,514, Stewart 1,495. Remaining votes: Picard 1,449, LeMaistre 1,390, Thibault 840, Petrie 669.

The Mutual Benefit Society.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the Dominion Commercial Travelers'

S. J. MATHEWSON.
Vice-President.

Mutual Benefit Society took place in the parent association rooms, Board of Trade building.

The president, J. S. N. Dougall, was in the chair. The annual report was presented and received with unanimous approval. During the year $19,000 was paid out to the beneficiaries of deceased members, leaving a reserve of $11,770.50.

New members to the number of 187 were added to the roll during the year, making the present membership the largest in the history of the society.

P. J. Girard, a Richmond grocer, contemplates great improvements in his store. In the early spring he will enlarge the premises considerably and will put up a warehouse to accommodate his rapidly growing trade. Mr. Girard is a typical E.T. hustler. He started seven years ago with a stock valued at $400, and to-day has a nice business and $7,000 stock.

Some Items Worth Reading.

A NEW CITY TRAVELER.

Geo. Moffat, Davidson & Hay's new city traveler, isn't always so serious as he appears in the photograph shown here. Assuming the position recently vacated by Chas. Newman, he has been getting acquainted with Toronto grocers for the last three weeks, and has been getting such pleasant receptions that he most always wears a smile.

George was born in Durham 24 years ago, but his family came to Toronto when he was a mighty small boy, and he has lived in Toronto for twenty years. He is a son of Robt. S. Moffat, builder, and his home is at 244 Davenport road.

Eight years in the wholesale grocery business has given Mr. Moffat a good fund of experience. Three years of this time he spent in the employ of the Eby, Blain Co., and the last five years he has been with Davidson & Hay. He was for some time in the office but latterly has been sample clerk. Selling groceries direct to the retailer is, however, rather new to Mr. Moffat, and, as he says himself, he's "just as green as grass on the road," but he's rapidly rubbing off the verdency and by all accounts his order sheets are showing up in a pretty encouraging way.

George is an enthusiastic member of the Toronto Canoe Club and has made quite a name for himself as a paddler. He was a member of the club's war canoe crew which did things at the regattas at Montreal and St. Catharines last summer.

JOVIAL EVENING ASSURED.

Preparations are being made for big things at the Canadian Travelers' Association's annual dinner, to be held in Toronto, on the evening of December 26th. A meeting was held on Saturday to promote arrangements and a program which seems to size up well has been arranged. J. W. Wildfong, of Gordon, McKay & Co., is general factotum, being chairman of the general committee on arrangements and also chairman of the program committee.

The toast list will be about as follows: "King and Country," "Manufacturing Industries," proposed by J. F. Ellis, responded to by Edw. Gurney; "The Wholesalers," proposed by "Tom" McQuillan, past president, responded to by Jas. P. Murray; "The Press," proposed by H. J. P. Goode and spoken to by J. S. Willison of the News, W. H. Seyler, of The Canadian Grocer and L. A. Laurence; "Our Associations," by S. R. Wickett and E. Fielding; "The Ladies," by John Charles and Jas. Patterson.

The musical part of the dinner promises to be a mighty good concert in itself and will include numbers by no less than ten artists of well known ability and a variety of attainments, most of them old favorites with the travelers.

Indications point to the fact that McConkey's banquet hall will be mighty well filed up that evening as the dinner seems to be evolving more interest than ever among the members of the association.

Chairman Wildfong wants it understood that the dinner is supposed to commence at 7.45.

JOINED LIPTON'S TRAVELING STAFF.

Thomas A. Crown, for 19 years manager of Strand's Bank St. store, Ottawa, has joined Thomas J. Lipton's traveling staff. He will cover the district from Montreal to Pembroke, the Upper and Lower Ottawa Valley and main line of the Grand Trunk from Montreal to Brockville. Mr. Crown's headquarters will be in Ottawa. An experienced tea man and salesman, he should do justice to Lipton's in his territory.

TAKING NEW POSITION.

L. Caron, who has been in charge of the sample room of the United Factories, Toronto, for the past 10 years, left on Saturday, Nov. 30th, for a new position, and was presented with a handsome gold locket, set with diamonds with suitable inscription. The remembrance was given on behalf of travelers, office and warehouse staffs. Mr. Caron will be greatly missed by all who had the pleasure of meeting him.

Theo. Miles and J. C. Boeckh, representatives in the Northwest and British Columbia of the United Factories, returned to Toronto a week ago after a successful trip. They report business quite up to average and better than expected after all reports of trade conditions in the West. Better things still are looked for when the spring trade opens.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY REPLIES

The Provincial Secretary has replied to the resolution of the Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association respecting hotels in local option towns. Mr. Hanna points out that the matter of compelling such hotels to preserve a certain standard would be difficult for the Government to undertake, but promised that the resolution would in the near future be brought under careful consideration.

L. C. Armstrong, who has been for a long time connected with the Red Rose Tea, of which T. H. Estabrooks is head, has severed his connection to enter into the brokerage business on his own account. He has an excellent connection with the trade of the Maritime Provinces and is known and liked by most of the wholesale and retail trade in Eastern Canada.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU.

Once more the joyful season has rolled round when the merchant in almost every line is overwhelmingly busy and when all the world is, or ought to be, happy. This holiday season, with all its delightful customs, with its numerous visitings at the old homesteads, and, withal, with its contagious and pervading glorious spirit, brings us back to a thought of the reason of it all and to a realization of the privileges of residence in a favored land.

Have you got a grip yet of the real Christmas spirit—the sentimental as opposed to the practical considerations of every day business? Now is the time if ever, in the year, to try to appreciate this and to realize what the better things of life mean.

The Grocer passes on to all its readers, just as much good will and good wishes as may be expressed on a newspaper page.

OUR CHRISTMAS COMPETITIONS.

Have you thought yet about entering either of the Christmas competitions which we have been talking about for several weeks? It will be well worth your while, even aside from the matter of prizes, to take part in these contests. If you advertise, and you should, it won't be much trouble to clip a sample of your Christmas week advertisement and send it in to us. Several grocers have already done so. Then there is the Window Dressing Competition, which has been arranged this year so that all might have an equal opportunity. If you should win in this, your name and your success as a grocer would be scattered pretty widely among the trade all over Canada. That ought to help you, indirectly, if not otherwise. Your local paper would probably be willing to use the cut of a prize-winning local merchant, and we will be pleased to let you have it for that purpose when the window has been reproduced in The Grocer.

A MATTER TO CONSIDER.

One of our correspondents has brought under consideration recently the matter of the giving of gifts to customers by grocers at Christmas time. The matter is one that is worth considering very seriously before any action is taken. In these days of keen commercial competition the retailer makes little enough on his goods in the regular way and cannot afford to remember all his customers by a gift at the holiday season. We believe the same money spent in better quality of goods and more efficient service will yield the same and better results.

NEGLECTED FORM OF ADVERTISING.

One of the most simple and cheapest forms of advertising and yet one which is in a great many cases lamentably neglected, is that of the sign. In the cities this is usually well taken advantage of, and the astonishing growth in the number of illuminated signs advertising all lines of business during the last year or so attests the value of this medium. But in the smaller towns and country districts many a good opportunity is wasted and many a dollar lost through neglect of this form of commercial publicity.

How often you see a factory adjacent to a railway where a sign would be a very valuable adjunct but the firm appears nameless and travelers cannot even gather a hint as to the variety of goods manufactured. How different this is from other firms who rent sections of farmers' fields and side of their barns and miles of fences to display their product.

Again, in the smaller towns store after store is signless and to a stranger the only way to find out what class of goods is handled is to step inside and inquire.

With the throngs of motorists passing through the country to-day a well-painted and attractive sign, particularly on a grocery store, is of particular value and will attract frequent incidental custom, and custom well worth while, which would otherwise have passed by.

But, one point, the sign should be fresh-looking and attractive. It should give an adequate idea of the excellencies of the store interior. An old worn-out sign over a really attractive store is worse than none at all.

THE SITUATION IN THE WEST.

The Grocer's correspondent in Winnipeg writes of local conditions.

The West is taking things easy and waiting for Christmas. The extremely mild weather continues, indeed, at this writing, Dec. 14th, it is thawing and Winnipeg is one slush and all old timers are predicting an early winter.

Retail trade is excellent, never better, the merchants say, and wholesalers declare that collections are coming in a little more freely. Winnipeg has the civic election off its chest, and all the good business men on the slate were elected with large majorities so that Mayor Ashdown enters on his second year backed by a Council and Board of Control thoroughly in sympathy with his aims for the city and the knowledge that the city as a whole is behind him.

The wheat market remains dull but strong and the slump after the close of navigation was smaller than was expected. Returns from the head of the lakes show that over 20,000,000 bushels of the wheat crop of 1907 were shipped before navigation closed or only 5,000,000 bushels less than last year. The Canadian Pacific Railway has announced its intention of carrying 150 cars of grain daily out of Fort William to St. John, N.B., to other eastern points for the next two or three months and if the weather permits of this there is every reason to believe that the bulk of the wheat will be out and ready for seaboard shipment in good time. The all-rail haul will certainly reduce the profit to the farmer, but if prices advance again as there is good reason to believe they will, the farmers will do well even with the long haul.

The Grain Growers' Association claim to have sold 2,000,000 bushels of low-grade wheat for feed in Ontario and this will go out all-rail. At the present writing enough grain has been contracted for eastern shipment to take the C.P.R. to the limit for December. Of course the mild weather is ideal for the movement.—H.

Men Who Know How

Something About the Selling Staff of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company, Limited—One Reason for the Success of This Canadian Firm—Lists of Officers and Agencies.

Much of the success achieved by the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Company, Limited, has been attributed to the strength of its sales staff, and The Canadian Grocer believes, therefore, that the portraits of some of its members, which are reproduced on the following pages will be viewed with interest by a large majority of our readers. It is to be regretted that owing to the short time at our disposal, and the modesty evinced by some of the members of the staff, we are only able to give the portraits of thirty-three out of the seventy or more representatives in Canada and the United States. Many of the faces presented will be familiar to our readers on both sides of the boundary and of them individually nothing more need be said than that to be included in the sales staff of this most progressive company necessarily stamps a man as being a salesmen of the first degree of ability, and that many of them have an international, if not a world-wide reputation.

To a reporter, who asked Mr. Henry Wright, the general manager, how the men were chosen to act as representatives of the company, he said :

"In placing on the market goods of our own manufacture, such as MacLaren's Imperial Cheese, Imperial Peanut Butter and Imperial Dessert Jelly, we have always endeavored to select as salesmen or representatives "men who know how," that is, men who know what they are talking about. No one calls in a physician to settle a legal dispute, nor a lawyer to prescribe for a fever ; a carpenter, as a rule, is a poor blacksmith, and a blacksmith or a butcher are never called upon to perform a dental operation. A man, to be able to talk intelligently to grocers and to gain their confidence, must have a technical knowledge of the business and for this reason our men are all trained grocers, men who can meet their customers on their own ground, whose experience enables them to know whereof they speak when anything pertaining to groceries or the grocery business is discussed, or who can even go behind the counter and demonstrate the salableness of their wares.

From this you will see that we select none but practical men ; but besides being practical they must be trustworthy. We permit of no promises without performance, no exaggeration or misrepresentation ; the word of a MacLaren Cheese Company's man must be as good as his bond—as good as the bond of the company. Beyond this we have no invariable rule in selecting our men. No two generals adopt exactly the same tactics ; no two salesmen adopt the same means to make a sale. In fact, there are as many types of salesmen as there are stripes on the tiger, and it is difficult to say which type is most generally successful. Nevertheless I believe that our representatives have in common, to a very high degree, these three great attributes, optimism, faith and enthusiasm. Yes, to a man they are optimists—boosters, if you like—and thank heaven, there is nothing more infectious than acute optimism, and part of our mission in life is to spread it broadcast amongst the grocery trade.

"Faith ? Yes, our men have faith without bounds in the company, faith unshaken by years of experience in the goods they sell, and withal an inspired faith in themselves. The other attribute —enthusiasm ? Optimism and faith or confidence, combined, are bound to beget enthusiasm, and our men, one and all, have it in its highest degree. Enthusiasm, let me tell you, is the force, the motive power which sells goods."

Continuing, Mr. Wright said : "We have made, with the help of such men, the goods of our own manufacture known all over the world, in every civilized country. Wherever there is a grocery store, there can be found MacLaren's Imperial Cheese. What we have done with our own goods, we can, in the markets of Canada and the United States, do with any line that has real merit, but unless we can prove to our own satisfaction that a line has real merit, is good value, we will have nothing to do with it. I can name a dozen or more proprietary articles which can be found in seventy-five per cent. of our retail grocery stores, which were placed on the market through our medium, most of them in record time and at a minimum of expense.

"A week hardly ever goes by that we are not offered an agency of some kind, in fact we are constantly importuned by manufacturers who endeavor to enlist our services and the disposal of our selling organization to place their lines on our markets. In nine cases out of ten we are obliged to turn a deaf ear to their appeals. We will not undertake such a mission without satisfying ourselves first that the article to be sold will be appreciated by the buying public as one of sterling quality and honest value, and secondly that the integrity and reputation of the manufacturer are without blemish and beyond reproach.

"In satisfying ourselves on this point, and with a view to making the most searching enquiries, our managers make periodical visits to the markets of the world. For instance, our Canadian and United States managers, Mr. C. L. Marshall and Mr. A. MacWillie, are sailing on the steamer "Mauretania" on December 28 on a flying trip to London, Paris, Bordeaux and other European centres to make business arrangements of the greatest importance to the company."

The Best Grocers All Use

Star Egg Carriers and Trays

Hear what this man says:

December 5th, 1907

MacLaren Cheese Co., Toronto, Ontario.

Gentlemen,—In answer to your enquiry regarding Star Egg Carriers, I beg to state that I have used them for the past two years, and would not be without them if they cost three times the price. I have no hesitation whatever in recommending Star Egg Carriers to every Grocer in Canada, as they soon save their cost in the safe delivery of eggs. It being the only profitable way of handling eggs, I would, then, again impress upon all dealers to install Star Egg Carriers and Trays.

Yours truly

FRANK E. SMYTHE.

Grocery News from Coast to Coast

Trade Items of Interest From Every part of Canada—Better Feeling Pervades the Country Generally With Good Outlook for Business in the New Year.

SYDNEY, B.C.

Heretofore Cape Breton news has not appeared in your correspondence columns. The writer is probably your first correspondent in this locality.

The term Cape Breton has a double significance. It is the name of the island which forms the eastern part of the Province of Nova Scotia, separated from the mainland by the Strait of Canso; and it is also the name of one of the four counties into which that island is divided.

The island is not large; its extreme length being only 110 miles and its greatest width 87 miles. The total area is less than 4,000 square miles. In shape the island is very irregular and its coast is generally picturesque and is indented by many bays and harbors. The most important harbors are Sydney, Louisburg and Gabarus. Not only is Cape Breton surrounded by water, but it has a comparatively large inland sea —the beautiful Bras d'Or Lakes. There is, therefore, an external and internal coast line, a luxury indeed. The natural entrance to the Bras d'Or Lakes from the Atlantic is at the eastern end of the island by two arms which inclose the small island of Boularderie.

The City of Sydney is the island's chief centre. There are five other incorporated towns, North Sydney, Sydney Mines, Glace Bay, Louisburg, and Dominion. Inverness County has two incorporated towns, Port Hood and Inverness. In Victoria and Richmond Counties there are no incorporated towns, and the chief centres are Baddeck and Englishtown in the former, St. Peters and Arichat in the latter.

The total population of Cape Breton Island in 1901 was about 97,600. It is estimated now at 110,000. There are several large settlements of French Acadians population, some Loyalist Stock and a large Cosmopolitan crowd throughout the island. But by far the greater part of the people are of Highland Scottish origin extraction.

The resources of Cape Breton are sufficient to guarantee the material prosperity of its people even in times of most widespread depression. Its fisheries, particularly the lobster fishery, rank with the best on the Atlantic Coast. Agriculture is profitable in Inverness County. Victoria County has a large timber supply, as yet barely untouched. Richmond County depends chiefly on fishing. The greatest industries, however, are coal mining and steel making and manufactories in Cape Breton county. The coal supply of Cape Breton is practically unlimited, and the natural advantages for the manufacture of iron and steel products are such as to assure a large development in manufacturing in the near future.

One of your correspondents has said that "Cape Breton was the front door of Canada." Is that statement justifiable? Let the reader judge for himself. Although Cape Breton is an island it is only separated from the mainland by the narrow Strait of Canso, and the cars of the Intercolonial Railway are now carried across this Strait upon a ferry scow or steamer expressly constructed for the purpose. Thus to all practical purposes of communication there is no separation, such as there is between Newfoundland and Canada. A map or a globe and a pair of dividers will convince anyone that Cape Breton ports are nearer to Europe than any other ports on the Atlantic Coast of America, and in these days when hours count such an advantage is surely worth having. But the map or globe will also show that both North and South America swing, as it were, to the east from a fixed pivot at the Isthmus of Panama. From this follows the startling fact that Cape Breton ports are also nearer to the principal South American ports than are the ports on the United States Coast. Not only that, but Cape Breton is about 900 miles nearer Cape Town and other South African ports. Will not the reader agree that it is well within the truth to say that Cape Breton is the front door of North America?

Of the Cape Breton ports Sydney is the most important at present, and it promises to remain the most important for a considerable time, no matter how rapidly other ports may develop, for the development of other ports must necessarily contribute to Sydney's development as well. It is the industrial capital of the Province of Nova Scotia. It is in a position to produce the cheapest ton of steel of any city of the Maritime Provinces, or perhaps, of any city of Canada. And the city that can do that has insured supremacy. Sydney is connected with the neighboring towns and mining centres by a well-equipped and efficient electric tram and ferry service. It is a city of churches and good schools, social clubs, banks, large business houses and all else that marks a progressive 20th century city.

During the recent financial stringency, now happily passing away, the principal business houses have kept on the even tenor of their way. A few, very few, have gone to the wall, but those were the flighty and unsubstantial who may be termed "boosters." Every city has its share of them. The "old reliable" never showed any signs of shock, and several have informed your correspondent that their business steadily increased all during the fall months and the Xmas trade shows signs of being as vigorous and healthy as ever.

During the past and present weeks, Mr. J. S. Creed, Lipton's Maritime representative, has been demonstrating Lipton's goods in Sydney. Last week he was at the store of H. C. Harrington and this week at the store of F. and J. Morley.

It is perhaps unusual to divulge trade secrets even in The Grocer, but here is one. One of the most popular young men in the trade, D. M. McMillan, has recently joined the benedicts. Miss Armstrong, of Sydney, is the happy bride. Mr. and Mrs. McMillan are back from their honeymoon and residing on Tewsend St.

HOW WILL IT WORK?

The following note from the Hamilton correspondent introduces a subject which should be of interest to grocers generally.

A resolution was brought in at a recent meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, recommending the government to make 75 pounds the standard weight for a bag of potatoes.

After considerable discussion the motion was unanimously carried. The arguments in favor of this move were that it would be more convenient to handle, that the lower price would put the bag within the reach of more people, and that the vast number of sugar bags that people now have no use for could be used to advantage, and also it would be a great boon to the grocer's delivery man, who is not always built to carry weight. The writer has spoken to a large number of farmers on the subject and they all agree that it would be a move in the right direction. Legislation is desired on this question so as to have a legal weight established throughout the country. I would like to hear what your correspondents think of this question.

INGERSOLL.

While Ingersoll merchants have had no reason to complain about the volume of business done during the autumn season, it must be admitted that the outlook for the winter trade is not as bright as it might be. There is a general tightness of money, with a scarcity of work in some lines, circumstances which cannot fail to lessen the amount of business done. Ingersoll, however, has been fortunate in regard to the money stringency and scarcity of labor, but those who have the money and work will undoubtedly take a lesson from those places where the conditions are rather alarming and there will probably not be the usual extensive purchasing at the Christmas season. On Monday evening the Noxon works, furnishing employment for one hundred and eighty men, were closed down for an indefinite period. This action came as a complete surprise to the men and to citizens as a whole, and especially the business men. It is being hoped that the shut down will be only of a temporary nature.

"Food suggestions for Christmas," is the heading of an attractive folder issued by a local grocer in placing before the public a complete list of the many articles required for the Christmas season. The folder is artistically gotten up and is undoubtedly good advertising. In addition to pointing out the many requirements for the Christmas season, it furnishes prices, and in this way will doubtless be appreciated by all into whose hands it falls. There is much extra buying to be done at the Christmas season and the merchant who would reap a fair share of it must be enterprising enough to make a bid for

Thos. Seldon, the well-known apple exporter, accompanied by Mrs. Seldon and Miss Edna Seldon, left recently on an extended trip to England and Germany.

Although much is being heard about "dull times," local grocers do not appear to be suffering to any extent. They have all made elaborate preparations for the Christmas trade and are unanimous in reporting a brisk business. The housewife has commenced activities for the festive season and such articles as sugars, peels, spices, etc., are very much in demand.

LONDON.

These are busy days in the retail grocery trade and for over a week merchants and clerks will have little leisure. It has long been the custom for grocers to keep their stores open at night for a week or so before Christmas, and this year is no exception to the rule. Christmas goods, of course, are in great demand, and the sales are likely to be equal to any previous season. Market days—Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday—will see extra rushes, but the merchants of London are prepared for all.

Little attempt has of late years been made by local grocers to give their store windows an attractive appearance at Christmas time. Time was when merchants seemed to vie with one another in giving their windows a Christmas look, but nowadays it is rare to find anything out of the ordinary in London grocery stores. Asked as to the cause of this a prominent man in the trade admitted his inability to give an explanation. He supposed, however, it was because goods sold just the same that window dressing, as a trade drawer, did not justify the trouble involved. Still, Christmas shoppers like to see store windows dressed in a Christmas-like way, and there can be no doubt that were storekeepers to pay some attention to giving their windows an attractive look at this season of the year many people would be brought down town, particularly at night, who would otherwise stay at home, and any one will admit that the more the business streets are crowded the better it is for trade. Grocers and others would make no mistake did they give this matter a little consideration.

A number of grocery travelers have made application for membership in the Retail Grocers' Association. The original intention was to make the association solely a retail dealers' organization, but many travelers are convinced that were they admitted to the meetings and permitted to hear at first hand grievances of retailers, when such arise, it would be of advantage all round. The matter will come up at the next meeting of the association.

Price-cutting among grocers in the north end of the city continues and the officers of the Retail Grocers' Association are endeavoring to bring the offenders to their senses. Not only sugar, but Christmas goods, have been included in the cuts.

Business in wholesale lines continues remarkably good. Prices are unchanged from a week ago. Payments are good. Travelers will be in for the holidays next week.

The Travelers' Club held what was called a "hard times" smoker in their club house Friday night, and gave their 200 guests a splendid time. Why it was called a "hard times" affair no one seems to know, and in view of the speeches, the hilarity and the songs, it was certainly a problem to those present. As a matter of fact, "good times" seemed to be written on the faces of all and to be stamped on the utterances of every one. One thing is certain, the time they had Friday night was one of the best in their experience.

Since they removed to their new and extensive premises in the East End, the firm of Gorman, Eckert & Co. have doubled their ordinary business, while their canning factory is proving a big thing. This is one of London's most progressive concerns.

PETERBORO.

From present indications the local market is going to be well supplied with poultry during the holiday season. Dealers and grocers state that it is years since they were able to get fowl so easily, in fact, in some cases they have been able to pick up good birds at almost any price they would name. The high price of grain is assigned as the reason for the large offerings of poultry, farmers not caring to winter any more birds than they have to. Turkeys and chickens are coming in plentifully and prices are below those of last year. Everybody should be able to grace the Christmas board with a turkey this year.

It is understood that his friends are urging Mr. E. F. Mason to be a candidate for alderman at the coming municipal elections. Mr. Mason is the proprietor of three groceries in Peterborough, and is one of the city's leading business men. He was in the city council for several years, retiring at the close of 1906, but his friends are urging him to re-enter municipal life. If he consents to stand, there is little doubt as to his election.

"The stringency of the money market" is all one hears about nowadays, but despite it the grocers of Peterborough are preparing for the biggest holiday of the trade on record. The coming of the snow has served as a reminder of the near approach of the Christmas season and holiday goods in the shop windows assist in driving home the fact. Trade in all lines is lively in Peterborough and the merchants are looking forward to the busiest season of them all.

In connection with advertising, it may be stated that the holiday season furnishes a striking example of the power of printers' ink judiciously used, and at the same time demonstrates a somewhat strange policy on the part of some Peterborough merchants. Only a small percentage of the grocers of this city advertise regularly in the local newspapers. Many of them, however, commence advertising about two weeks before Christmas and keep it up until the holiday season is over. Then they withdraw their advertising and nothing is heard of them for another year. If there is a time in the year when goods ought to sell it is around Christmas. Everybody has the buying spirit and get what they want, advertising or no advertising. Why, then, does the grocer advertise during the festive season and not the rest of the year? The grocer who advertises at Christmas will, without doubt, get more trade than the man who waits in his shop and waits for business to come to him, but why should a grocer advertise at Christmas and not during the other portions of the year? Why put more steam on when going down and not when going on the level or up grade? Advertising is more essential during the dull seasons than around the holidays. Think it over, you who wish to make a success of your business.

J. Connell, of P. Connell & Sons, is confined to his home with a bad attack of mumps, and it will be some time before he is around again.

GUELPH.

Speaking of the present financial difficulties, the full dinner pail stories ought to be revived, is the opinion of one of our local writers, who, among other things, says: "Just imagine a baseball diamond, with a tailor shop on 1st base, a grocery store 2nd base, a shoe store 3rd base and a dry goods store at the home plate, and a man, the owner, on each base. Let all start pitching and catching with a silver dollar for a ball. The tailor throws a dollar to the grocer and he returns him a dollar's worth of groceries. The grocer lets his dollar go at the shoeman and he returns a dollar's worth of shoes, and so on around the bases and the faster the dollar is played the bigger the bunches of comfort to take home to the wives and children.

The merchants, themselves, are really sometimes to blame for circulating a lot of those hard time stories which are generally added to each time they are told. A man will come into your store and tell you he is laid off work and upon your inquiring the cause, he will tell you there were fifteen of them laid off as the stock room was full at their shop, and out he goes. The next customer comes in and you immediately (before he starts to buy) load him up with the fact that fifty men were laid off at so-and-so's, and so the story goes from one to another and each time the number of men laid off is larger. The proprietors of other shops get scared and start to cut down expenses also as they think so-and-so must have got inside information somewhere and we behind the counters have our customers scared to death to spend their money. It is hard enough any time to induce people to buy, but don't imagine you are making it easier for them by telling of hard time in the near future.

A meeting of all the members of the Retail Merchants' Association is called for Tuesday evening in the Canadian Room of the Kandy Kitchen, to discuss the $125,000 waterworks by-law, which is to be voted on at the beginning of the new year. The members of the Water Commission will be there and give full explanation of the proposed changes. There is no more important question from the standpoint of fire protection and pure drinking water and there ought to be a large attendance.

There was a big attendance at the market on Saturday and the want of the Winter Fair Building for an inside market was quite noticeable. The demand was not at all brisk and although eggs and butter still maintain top notch prices, there was quite a fall off in poultry, potatoes and apples. The police were again active and refused to allow handbills to be distributed or allow groups of idlers to stand around talking and blocking the passage, so as those who wished to do business could do so readily.

After all is said and done the month of November was not half so bad as was expected. Several reliable grocers report the month as a whole very nearly up to the standard and others report it just as good as it generally is. The one extra Saturday in November bringing the sales for the month up a lot.

The weather is not very promising to-day for the first day of the Winter Fair, but the crowds have started to arrive and they have to eat, and that is where the grocer gets the benefit of our Winter Fair.

One of the most popular visitors to the Winter Fair was Fred. T. Smye, of Balfour, Smye & Co., Hamilton, who makes an annual pilgrimage here each year at fair time, combining business with pleasure. He ought to, anyhow, as he is in the heavyweight class now. Fred knows and remembers everyone connected with groceries in Guelph from the drivers to the lady bookkeepers and hunts them all up at fair time. He had in tow at the fair his brother Charlie, Geo. Williams, West Fielding, Archie McLaren and several others, and he seemed to have forgotten all about Tartan Brand goods, as he explained to them the different improvements in stock since he left the farm. The grocers are all glad to see him, even if some do not buy from his firm.

Geo. Williams had a well dressed window for fair time. It was filled with boxes of English make of bon bons in many varieties. He also had two very large stockings hung at the top, filled with toys, the retail price of them being $7.50, so they ought to be beauties.

* * *

J. A. McCrea & Son also had a good window in the form of an artificial tree with a man half way up and another pulling him down, and remarking, "Hold on, brother, I want some of McCrea's bargains also."

* * *

About a foot of snow fell Saturday and Sunday and we have now got good sleighing, which ought to make business boom for the Christmas trade. Nine days of good stout hustling and every day our busy day, so cut out all other engagements and make one grand combined rush and stick at it till Christmas eve or the goblins will get you if you don't watch out.

HAMILTON.

The Retail Grocers' Association Picnic Committee made its final report at the last regular meeting, and it was very gratifying indeed. After all expenses were paid a handsome balance was turned over to the association, this picnic proving the longest and best ever held by the trade, and this was largely due to the untiring efforts of James Main, the chairman. The members marked their appreciation for him with a presentation, an address and a handsome easy chair, which "Jim" accepted in his usual graceful style.

A resolution was passed donating $10 each to the following institutions: Boys' Home, Girls' Home, House of Refuge, St. Peter's Home, Home of the Friendless, Aged Women's Home, and Day Nursery.

This goes to show that the members of this association have their hearts in the right place, and do not get up a picnic for personal gain, and shows their friends that the help so kindly given them to get up the picnic is twice blessed, by helping the grocer, and now, in turn, the grocer puts it where he thinks it will help the "poor who are always with us."

Hamilton stores are looking bright and inviting, and it seems to me that trade this Christmas will be larger and more profitable than for a great many years. I was pleased to see the article from your Victoria correspondent in regard to cranberries, and the price they were being retailed at in London. We have people here selling them at two quarts for 25c., which is away less than cost. Twenty cents a quart gives only a fair profit. Questions like this, of practical import, I think, are eagerly taken up and acted on by your readers, where some of them follow up the other fellow's price without figuring out the cost of the goods.

The grocers are taking an active interest in municipal politics, a great deal of important business looming up for the Council of 1908. The Hydro-Electric Power question, local option and other measures of vital interest, and it is likely the new Council will see a number of Hamilton's retail merchants on the roll.

LINDSAY.

In the art of decorating Lindsay stores are hard to beat, especially in the grocery business. The business men and their employes seem to have the knack down fine. The grocers all have put in their Christmas stock and are ready to fill the wants of everybody. True, the stores are very bright and attractive in the daytime, but they show up their many beautiful points in the evening, when all is ablaze with light.

The windows of Lindsay groceries are always bright and attractive, which is quite a drawing card for the store. One grocery clerk was heard to remark, "I wish I had the time to compete in the window-dressing competitions of The Grocer, and I would make them all hustle." This statement is very true, as at no time is his window not "one of the best."

Some grocers spoil the outside appearance of their store by placing large quantities of goods outside in front of their windows, thus keeping the window from view. A merchant, who was always in the habit of doing this, was advised one day to not put a display of goods outside and see what the consequence would be, remarked afterwards that the amount of goods he sold out of his window was surprising.

One of the greatest helps in the grocery business is the use of tasty price tickets. This plan is always carried on by W. E. Baker, and he says there is nothing to equal it. These cards are changed every few days so as to be always bright and attractive.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

St. John, Dec. 17.

There was an easier tone in the produce market last week. This, the dealers say, was largely due to the open weather. There is not much change, however, in the quotations, although if present conditions continue much longer there is little doubt that prices will drop. Butter is already off two cents a pound and there are predictions that it will go lower. All kinds of poultry has dropped in price and meats are somewhat easier.

Scarcity of fresh goods is the cry among the local fish dealers, and as a result prices are very firm. Fishermen are receiving ten per cent. more for fresh haddock, which has caused an advance of a cent a pound in finnan haddies. Kippers and bloaters have advanced about 50 per cent.

Wholesale dealers report very light receipts for the past week. H. P. Robertson received 46,000 pounds of fresh haddock; 20,000 pounds of cod and 5,000 pounds of haddock were landed for Leonard Bros., and James Patterson received 2,000 pounds of cod. Goods are still being shipped to western Canada, the Leonards having sent a carload of mixed cured fish to Winnipeg last week.

Advices from Richibucto are to the effect that the smelt fishing season, the success or failure of which means a very great deal to the people of that community, opened on Monday, and it is to be regretted that up to the present the outlook is by no means bright for a successful season.

Bohan claims that Dibblee owes him $306.86 for hay, straw and potatoes supplied early in June, less $150. paid by draft. Dibblee claims that the quantity was short and of an inferior kind and to bear out the latter statement he had in court a bundle weighing 150 pounds which he received by express from St. John bound as it arrived from Bohan to the defendant, a sample of hay which Mr. Pickett claimed that had given dyspepsia to many of his horses in St. John. The case is still before the court.

St. John was last week in the grip of the worst water famine in the city's history. Two very bad breaks in the water mains through which the supply is obtained from Loch Lomond, have caused the shortage. Practically all the manufacturing establishments in the city had to shut down, including bakeries, biscuit manufacturers, Simm's brush factory, etc. Many of the stores had to close much earlier in the afternoon than usual, owing to the fact that the electric lighting plant was put out of business on account of the lack of water.

The cause of the breaks is attributed to the greatly increased pressure on the old pipes consequent on the extension of the system to Loch Lomond, which work has been going on for the past few years at a cost to the city of over half a million dollars.

STRATFORD.

It is said that the Christmas turkey will be plentiful this year. In the first place, the farmers do not want to keep anything this winter that will eat feed, and in the second place there is a surplus of big fowl in the country, As a consequence, turkeys are much lower in price now than they were last year at this time. This morning the market was flooded with turkeys of all kinds and sizes, and the farmers were very anxious to dispose of them. Of course, they may become a trifle scarcer along about the holiday time, but this is doubtful. It is a relief to have the birds so cheap, and the grocers are in many instances doing a good trade in the poultry lines. Last year there were many people who could not afford to eat such a luscious dish as the turkey, but this year it is expected that it will be different. This morning the price of a turkey was from 12c to 14c a pound. Last year at the same time they were selling at 15c and 16c a pound. An abundance of turkeys at this season of the year is most desirable, because it seems a poor Christmas without one of the favorite fowl gracing the dainty holiday table.

And talking about fowl in general. The grocers, as a rule, are very particular to secure the very choicest fowl, and it is often very hard to turn down a regular customer in the store who brings into the city a dozen or more fowl, birds that are half plucked, thin as "rakes," and that have a general appearance of being dirty and skinny. Cases such as the above sometimes happen, and the grocer is taken in, knowingly, and why? Simply because it is feared that he may lose the custom of this particular individual. If it is impossible to get out of buying such fowl, the grocer should not pinnacle the bird in a prominent place in his store, nor should he ask for it what he does for the other fowl that are of the very best type. Dispose of it at a lower price (a price that is not exorbitant for the poor bird in question) even if you do perhaps go a cent or two in the hole. It pays to advertise correctly, straightforward and honest.

Only a few more days in which to make the preparations for the great Christmas festival. Already the raisins are being stoned, the currants washed, the peel got ready the spices measured, the almonds blanched for the Christmas cakes, the puddings, and the mince pies, without which it would not be Christmas. How the children love these preparations—the greedy little dears, they want to taste everything and to scrape all the dishes, and beseech the mothers not to scrape the dish too clean. Have you grocers got everything that goes to make such happiness in your store? You should have. It's a glorious time for the children, and at Christmas time everybody has a fat purse. The question is, how can those with the fat purses be induced to loosen the strings? For the last month or so the stringency of money has caused a tightening of the purse strings. Perhaps the spirit of Christmas will loosen up the purse strings and set the money circulating. A hint to the grocers: Make your store attractive—exterior, window and interior.

The little town of Elstow has grown rapidly within the last few months. Amongst other establishments are two general stores. Mr. McIntyre's new store is almost completed and stock will be put in as soon as the Canadian Pacific Railway is in operation. The construction trains are now only a few miles on either side of the town and it is hoped that the road will be finished shortly. The Beaver Lumber Co. purpose opening a lumber and coal business at once, while a chopping mill is being installed by Mr. McGuffin.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—
Beans—Firmer.
Fish—Revised.
Eggs—Easier.
Teas—Firmer.

Montreal, December 19, 1907.

Last minute deliveries are being made by wholesalers to the retail trade, and in some instances, by the importers, of dried fruits and nuts to the jobbers. Many are finding it difficult to secure sufficient goods to make all shipments complete, but they are doing the best they can. Trade is fairly good, but is not up to the average, owing to the usual holiday business, which occupies the retailer to the exclusion of everything else. Many houses are expecting all their travelers in by Monday, while some have already brought in their representatives to remain here until after the holidays. Sugar has not changed, though the tone of the market is slightly firmer. Teas continue strong with a noticeable advancing tendency. Syrups are selling more freely as are many other lines, owing to the recent snow falls, which have resulted in better conditions in the country districts. Beans are reported a little firmer, though quotations are not affected. Cheaper grades of coffee are a bit firmer. Evaporated apples are quiet at the old price. No price changes have been made in dried fruits, dealers being busy making late deliveries of raisins, currants and nuts, which are required for the holiday trade. There is a brisk demand for poultry at prices which are well maintained. Dairy and roll butter is easier, while eggs are also cheaper.

SUGAR—There is a slightly stiffer feeling in sugar, if anything, but this does not amount to much, and no price change is looked for until after the holidays at least. Meantime orders are of fair size for the season.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—With the coming of the snow better orders are being booked for syrups, though during the holiday season there is not the general demand for them which prevails the rest of the winter. Molasses is being sold in fair-sized lots, but the market is quiet.

TEA—Teas continue firm with an advancing tendency, owing largely to the great scarcity of all grades. Blacks are stiffer and the tea obtainable is very often poor quality. Everybody is talking higher prices, and it is stated that Ceylons will be up in some instances a penny a pound in the new year. Brokers report a very nice turnover, considering market conditions.

Last days on which shipments can be made are here and passing, and it is sometimes not the easiest thing in the world to send out orders complete. Reports from the primary markets do not contain any news of particular interest. It is likely that after the holidays several lines will show an easier tendency and it is quite probable that lower prices will prevail on many lines now quoted at good figures.

CANNED GOODS

MONTREAL—Trade in canned goods is not particularly brisk this week. Stocks are pretty well all in store, and wholesalers are now able to meet practically all calls made upon them for canned fruits and vegetables.

TORONTO—There is some call for gallon lots for restaurant trade, but otherwise there is little business passing.

Toronto, Dec. 19, 1907.

With the rush of Christmas buying over, wholesale markets are very quiet this week. A hand to mouth business in staples continues but the volume of this is of course at this time of the year considerably below ordinary. Retailers are hustling with Christmas business and have no time to bother with the wholesaler or his travelers. The beginning of sleighing in the woods has opened a demand for goods sold in the lumber camps.

The financial side of the business is not too bright. The majority of jobbers report collections as fair but seem to be somewhat pessimistic over the outlook. Renewals are slightly more frequent and frequent cases are reported in which when a cheque on account for, say $300, comes along, an order for $250 of goods comes with it. Altogether, however, prospects seem fairly good for a resumption of business early in January, aod the situation is much better than was anticipated a month ago.

TEAS—Business locally continues small at the continued high prices.

A cable received yesterday by a local firm from a house in Colombo states that the quality of stock there promises to be exceedingly good.

A London report, dated December 5, summarizing the situation, says: "The keenness of the demand for the lower grades has again been the feature of the auctions, and ¼d per lb. advance has frequently taken place in the commonest descriptions, there now being practically no leaf under 7½d per lb. With moderate sales next week this tendency seems likely to become further accentuated, and the market closes with a stronger tone than on Monday. So far the healthier feeling has had little effect in raising the values of good medium grades, the average price of Assam teas being still fractionally lower than last year, but the advice of better quality coming forward gives hope for an improvement before long.

COFFEE—Commenting on the coffee situation, Willett & Gray say: "The Centro de Cafe, meaning a combination of coffee people in Rio, practically a chamber of commerce, estimates the current Rio crop at 3,000,000 to 3,500,000, and the next crop at 2,000,000 to 2,500,000. This latter figure appears low, but as it was reported by several of the largest firms in Rio that the flowering in August and September had almost entirely failed, the result in that light is no larger than could be expected from the previous reports. The Santos crop does not improve either, and it looks to-day as if the next crop in Rio aad Santos is likely to result about the same as the present one, which means that this crop and the next will not produce any more than the last crop alone."

SUGAR—The activity in the world's markets has not been reflected locally. There is perhaps a firmer tone, but nothing particularly new in the situation.

DRIED FRUITS—Supplies in the local market are small and prices are feeling slightly firmer as a result, though no immediate changes have been made in quotations. Foreign markets also seem to be pretty well cleared of stock. A recent advice from a Spanish firm regarding Valencia raisins says that markets there are entirely cleared out, scarcely 1,000 cases being left and this will scarcely suffice for home consumption. The shipments of Valencia raisins to American points is said to be increased by 150 per cent. this year.

MANITOBA MARKETS

(Market quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 noon Thursday, Dec. 19, 1907.)

Wholesale trade is now comparatively quiet, the rush of shipments for holiday business being over. The holiday trade is reported to have been quite satisfactory. Collections show considerable improvement and there is a more confident feeling among the trade than has been noticeable for some time past.

CANNED GOODS—As noted last week, Libby's goods are being advanced from 15 to 30 per cent.

TEAS — All teas, particularly low grade teas, have been advancing in price during the last year. Packers are no longer putting up 1-lb. packages to retail at 25c, and 4-lb. tins to sell at $1.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS—There is a tendency towards lower prices in nearly all lines of foreign dried fruits and the trade will probably be wise to refrain from buying heavily for future delivery. Prunes and raisins are declining, seeded raisins for delivery in January now being sold at ½c to 1c lower than the prices quoted now for immediate delivery. We quote:

EDMONTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Edmonton this week bids welcome to a new mayor in the person of John A. McDougall, who was elected as mayor of the city for 1908 by a majority of 780 over his opponent, Joseph H. Picard. This is of special interest to grocers, as the mayor-elect is a retired grocer, fur trader and general merchant of this city. Mr. McDougall has lived in Edmonton for over twenty years, and during that time has been very successful in business. He has recently retired from active business and is counted among Edmonton's millionaires. Next year will doubtless be a critical year for Edmonton as for many other western cities, and the citizens have, therefore, placed the affairs of the city in the hands of a man experienced in financial matters, trusting that he will use for the advantage of the city that knowledge and experience which he has gained in the building up of his own private business.

On Tuesday evening of this week a very pleasant and enjoyable concert and social evening was held in the Pythian hall by the Retail Clerks' Protective Association of this city. After a delightful programme of songs and music was rendered, refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in. It is hoped that this is only one of many similar entertainments by the Retail Clerks' Association this winter, which will promote the feeling of good fellowship among the clerks in the city.

At the last monthly meeting of the Board of Trade a resolution passed at a joint meeting of the transportation and wholesale committees of the board was read. The resolution condemned the new freight rates in force on the C.P.R. as unfair to Edmonton. J. C. Dowsett, of the Ross Bros. Hardware Company, suggested that the matter should be referred to the transportation committee with power to act. A motion to this effect was adopted by the board.

Charles R. McAdam, of Moose Jaw, representing the Moose Jaw Flour Mills and Cereal Company, was in the city recently on a business trip. He is extending the business of his company and opening up new trade along the line of the Canadian Northern Railway between Winnipeg and Edmonton.

The contract for grading the Grand Trunk Pacific for 140 miles west of Edmonton will be let on December 23.

The election for the vacancy on the aldermanic board caused by the resignation of Ald. J. B. Walker, insurance agent, who left the city some time ago on account of financial difficulties, will be held on December 30th. It is probable that Joseph H. Picard, the retired grocer, who was defeated in the recent contest for the mayoralty, will be elected by acclamation.

The grocery trade in Edmonton is unusually brisk these days on account of the approach of Christmas. Grocers and their assistants are kept busy selling groceries and provisions, and several of the stores have found it necessary to increase their staffs.

An important report regarding the assessment of manufactories in the city was submitted to the city council by the assessment committee at a recent meeting. The committee considered the advisability of according certain privileges to manufacturing industries in the matter of assessment, and recommended that in regard to all manufactories already established the assessment fixed for the present year be allowed to remain a fixed and permanent rate of assessment for ten years, say 1907 to 1916, inclusive, provided, of course, that the premises are used for manufacturing purposes exclusively, and irrespective of any extensions or increase that may take place during that time.

In regard to assessing new industries or manufacturers seeking to establish here, the committee recommended that the rate of assessment be fixed at the actual price of property at the time of establishment and continued at the same figures year by year for a period of ten years, unless otherwise arranged or agreed by special franchise granted at the time of establishment.

The council took up this matter in response to a suggestion from the Board of Trade that they lay down some definite policy, both with regard to the assessment of industries and the encouragement of manufactories to locate in this city. No special inducements will be offered manufactories to locate here other than the splendid transportation facilities afforded, the natural location of the city, and some reduction in the light, power and water rates, which are municipally owned.

"Why do not the wholesale grocers in the city assist the retail grocers' association by refusing to sell to non-members?" This was the query put recently to a prominent wholesale grocer in Edmonton.

"The Alberta Government are prosecuting the members of the Alberta Retail Lumber Dealers' Association just at present for forming a combine in restraint of trade and arranging with the B.C. lumber companies not to sell lumber to non-members are they not?" was the reply. "Well, we would be placing ourselves in a similar position if we took such steps as that. We would be charged with forming a combine with the Retailers' Association in restraint of trade. It would help out the retailers, I admit, but it is rather risky for us to place ourselves in such a compromising position. No. the retailers will have to fight out their own battles alone. I'm afraid, for we can not help them.

NOTES.

C. H. Earle, with A. H. Brittain & Co., Montreal, is visiting the trade in Ontario at present.

W. J. Wilson, with S. H. Ewing & Son, Montreal, has returned from a successful trip to the Maritime Provinces.

Frank L. Benedict & Co., Montreal, suffered damage to the extent of $3,000 in a fire which occurred in the building which they occupy, on Sunday evening.

The Miramichi Fur Tanning Co., capitalized at $30,000, is in difficulties. President Robinourich cannot be found and the creditors look to the other members of the company for payment.

A SANTA CLAUS GROCERY WINDOW

An Attractive Display for Christmas Week Which May Be Easily Arranged and Should Bring Business.

No show window is more attractive and more likely to be productive of increased sales during Christmas week than one fixed up with a Santa Claus in it. It will attract every youngster within miles of your store, and when children begin talking about anything you know where the information usually gets to in the end.

The window here illustrated has been arranged with a view to inexpensiveness and greatest attractive power, and can be made in a few hours by a grocer or his clerks.

At the back of the window make a simple imitation of a house with the end open, so as to show an open fire-grate.

First put up your frame work, then cover with red cloth, and pencil with black crayon to imitate brick. Peak the roof, and on top make an imitation of a chimney, with cotton surrounding the top and left hanging over the edge in strands to represent icicles. All this is very simply done.

Get a mask representing old Santa and place on top of the chimney, with only head and shoulders showing, giving the appearance of him in the act of descending the chimney.

Have a bag filled with candies, toys and groceries placed with Santa on top of the chimney.

The fire-place can be made very realistic by placing strips of wood across the front from one side to the other, about a foot from the floor, with barrel staves cut so as to have a half-round edge, the same to be painted black, so as to make them have the appearance of iron and to imitate the fender. Back of this place pieces of logs with red lights hidden back or between them to give the appearance of fire. This will set it off very prettily at night. A candle and red tissue paper can be used for this, or, where electric lights are used an incandescent globe covered with red tissue will serve admirably.

Of course, with such a background, you ought to have a little Christmas tree, which can be decorated with such holiday goods as bunches of white grapes, raisins, apples, oranges, etc., also toys of all kinds, not too large, however.

The signs in the illustration will speak for themselves. You might stand a neat card in front of the table, calling the attention of the public to step inside the store and examine your holiday display.

A Santa Claus Window for Christmas Week.

This display is a change from the common run of the displays made during the year, and can be made the means of attracting lots of attention to your store.

RETAIL GROCERS' ELECTIONS.

Toronto Association Chooses Officers for 1908 at Enthusiastic Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in their rooms in the Temple Building on Monday evening, Dec. 16. The minutes of the two previous meetings were read and adopted.

The annual "At Home" was discussed and the selection of the committee fixing Wednesday, February 12 as the date was endorsed. The following committee was appointed to look after the event: Printing, B. Snow, B. Panter; music, D. Bell, R. VanLoan; refreshment, F. W. Thorne, B. Snow; entertainment, B. Panter; tickets, Frank Johnson. The price of tickets is to be the same as last year, $2 per couple, and 75c. for extra lady.

A very lively and interesting discussion on the Power By-law was entered into by those present, the vote resulting in an endorsation of the proposed by-law.

A question that received considerable discussion and one that may bear valuable fruit in the future, was the Toronto City Council. It is a fact that while the council contains representative men from almost every trade, business or profession, there is not a single grocer on the board of aldermen, or among the controllers. This is so different from other large cities and towns, notably Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, etc., that it was felt such an important body of merchants as the retail grocers should have three or four representatives at the city hall. The grocers, of whom there are nearly 1,000 in the city, are an important body, more closely in touch with the life and pulse of the people than most other branches of trade and many questions of general interest to citizens appeal to them and their customers more directly than is generally known. Early closing, peddling and hucksters, food and health regulations are a few of the questions that should and would receive better attention were these matters looked after by those directly and daily in touch with them. There is no doubt whatever that if the grocers as a body would select in each district a representative grocer as their standard bearer, they could elect a fair representation to the city council. The matter was not definitely acted upon, however, but the question will receive proper consideration. Who'll be the first to enter the lists?

The nominations and election of officers for 1908 were then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

President—F. Thorne.

Vice-President—Thos. Clark.

Secretary—D. Bell.

Treasurer—D. McLean.

Executive—R. VanLoan, J. S. Bond, B. Panter, R. Beaumont, F. W. Johnson, B. Snow.

Trustees—C. T. Cbotes, F. W. Johnson, D. Bell.

An active campaign for the "At Home" will be entered upon immediately and the event is promised and bound to be "the greatest that has been."

TRADE NOTES.

A change of business has taken place in Lindsay, Corscadden & Mullen having bought out J. G. Corran. These men are both young men, Mr. Mullen being a former clerk of W. M. Robson.

DEATH OF F. C. BEVAN.

Advices received recently by J. L. Watt & Scott, Toronto, note the death at Malaga, Spain, of Franklyn C. Bevan, senior partner of the firm of F. C. Bevan & Co. This news will be received with regret by the Canadian wholesale trade generally.

The late Mr. Bevan was a son of W. C. Bevan, Esq., founder of the original firm of W. C. Bevan & Co., now Bevan & Co., Malaga. Some years ago he left the parent firm and established the firm of F. C. Bevan & Co. and J. L. Watt was requested to act as agent in Canada of the new firm, while maintaining the exclusive agency in Canada of the older house.

The late Mr. Bevan was in the habit of annually visiting the trade on this side and though for years past in a very frail condition of health, was of the happiest and most sanguine disposition and possessing as he did marked refinement of manners, wide knowledge of affairs and the most disinterested friendliness, he was held in very high personal regard by those intimately associated with him.

A. Sabourin & Co., are starting a grocery in Montreal.

T. Bechard, grocer, of Montreal, has made an assignment.

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

Steadiness characterizes the cheese market this week. There has been no material change in prices since last report, though some are quoting at figures which are a bit easier than those which ruled at that date. November cheese is pretty well cleaned up, holders having little of this month's make still on their hands. The amount received during the month was not great, and as there has been a steady demand it was quickly placed.

Current receipts do not amount to much, and after this week will very likely be still smaller.

It is September and October cheese which is now being quoted, but transactions are not numerous by any means. Cheap stuff is not in abundance, and the finest is being sold around 13c to 13¼c, some accepting 12¾c.

In the Old Country cheese is being used slowly, and buying is of a hand-to-mouth character. At that, orders are not numerous, as purchasers appear to be waiting for lower prices. They do not need the cheese very badly and think that by waiting they can obtain better figures. It is probable that their expectations will not be realized, as the trade expect better prices after the finish of the usual holiday dullness, after the turn of the year.

This is the more likely to be the case because of the fact that holdings are so much smaller than they were a year ago.

Receipts are getting smaller each week. Last week's amounted to 1,55[illegible] boxes, against 3,320 boxes previous week, and 3,070 boxes same week one year ago. Total receipts for the season amount to 2,050,410 boxes, against 2,345,292 boxes same period, 1906.

Butter prices remain about the same as they were a week ago, dealers asking in the neighborhood of 28c to 28½c for October creamery. In some instances as much as 29c is asked for finest October. Current receipts are not heavy and prices run from 26c to 27c and 27½c. Receipts of all butter are gradually falling off, last week's arrivals being about 2,000 packages behind the previous week, though ahead of the same week last year by some 600 packages.

Western Canada continues to take our eastern creamery and very nice figures are paid in some cases. The west appears to be but poorly supplied, and is likely to call upon the east for supplies right through the winter.

While taking eastern creamery, they are not shipping much dairy, and as a result the market for this grade is very short locally. The price asked for it runs at about 24½c to 25c, which figures are the same as were quoted in our last report.

Roll butter has been exceedingly scarce this fall, and few dealers have anything in this line to offer their customers.

Quality of the butter now arriving is satisfactory, being about what dealers expect it to be at this season. What butter is arriving does not stay long in store anyway, and as it goes immediately into consumption it has no chance of becoming stale, so that while it might not be up to the average, yet it would please everybody.

There is no speculation going on in the market at present so that one can rely upon prices being just about what the prevailing conditions warrant them.

Last week 3,603 packages of butter were received, against 5,251 packages previous week, and 3,064 packages same week 1906. Total receipts for the season amount to 399,973 packages, against 593,033 packages same period last year.

For having sold olemargarine under the name of "borino" and contrary to the provisions of the Butter Act, Jean Cascedi, an Italian manufacturer in Montreal, was sentenced to a fine of $200.

The complaint was laid by Mr. McPherson, one of the food inspectors for the Government. An exhibit of "borino" showed this stuff to be of about the consistency and the color of butter. The olemargarine was intended to be sold to confectioners and pastry cooks to replace lard, dripping or butter in the making of cakes. Mr. Valin, analyst stated that the substance was nothing but animal fats, cotton seed oil and a coloring matter that gave the whole the appearance of real butter. Quite a number of confectioners testified that they had bought the "borino" and tried it mixed with butter. They nearly all found it a good substitute. One of the witnesses also said that it paid better to use it than to use butter.

The court decided that the act had been infringed and sentenced the accused. Under the law in Canada, olemargarine or any other imitation of butter, even though branded as such, is contraband and it is an offence to have it in one's possession. At one time the law provided that it might be sold if branded as an imitation, but afterwards it was decided to protect the reputation of Canadian butter by forbidding the sale of any imitations. They have been permitted in the United States.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

Canadian packers' reports are somewhat more optimistic this week though the market is still in a very unsatisfactory condition. Generally speaking, the situation is quiet, as at the prices the packers are able to pay the offerings of hogs are very light. Canadian farmers seem to be in at least a fairly satisfactory condition as regards supplies of feed and continue to hold their stock for a higher market.

The British market has recovered about 2 shillings since the slump of a fortnight ago, but it still remains ragged and uncertain. The Danes, who seem to be operating under normal conditions, continue to pour in shipments which aggregate about as usual. Last week's deliveries were 36,000.

Prices ruling in the Canadian market are gradually recovering and this week sees further improvement. Hogs f.o.b. country points are quoted at $5.40, fed and watered at $5.70, and hogs at factory, $5.90.

The American market, on the other hand, is going off again. The weekly summary from the Journal of Commerce says :

"The option markets have been more active the past week, resulting in quite a sharp decline, especially in hogs, receipts of which increased very materially and generally caused the loss of the recovery of half of the late decline from 6c. to 4c. in Chicago. Packers have also been sellers of futures again, after letting up last week, and with the short interest then well covered there has been little support on the decline except to take profits on new short sales unless the packers have bought on the break, which is not supposed to be true to any extent. There has been no other feature in the market for hog products, as the money situation continues unchanged and still prevents speculation for the long account in futures and in carrying cash stock."

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Demand for poultry has made business in smoked meats and other provisions rather slight. What there is selling of the latter is for immediate use and large orders are infrequent. Lard is in very good demand at unchanged prices.

Flour Firm and Advancing in Consequ ence of Large Shipments to England and Europe—Western Wheat Moved Rapidly.

Markets are somewhat stronger this week, particularly in wheat, in which an advance is probable before this report is taken from the mails. The firmer feeling is a result of large shipments by Canadian millers to British and European ports where the demand has become very strong. Large winter port shipments have been made both through Halifax and St. John.

The movement of Western wheat during the week was very much above any week recently, railways, elevators, shippers and farmers combining to rush the crop eastward. This was shown in Saturday's inspections at Winnipeg which on Saturday mounted up to 265 cars as against 58 the corresponding day last year. It graded as follows: No. 1 northern, 11 cars; No. 2 northern, 25 cars; No. 3 northern, 45 cars; No. 4 39 cars; No. 5, 36 cars; No. 6, 14 cars; winter, 1 car; other grades, 94 cars.

The visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States increased 2,045,000 bushels during the past week. Corn decreased 54,000, while oats increased 250,000. The supply of wheat now held in the two countries amounts to 45,468,000 bushels. World's shipments for the week were 8,080 000 bushels, compared with 9,616,000 the previous week and 9,488,000 a year ago. There were no shipments from India. The amount of wheat on passage on Saturday was 1,216,000 bushels less than a week previous.

Stocks of wheat at Fort William and Port Arthur accumulated somewhat, statistics showing 153,000 bushels more in store than a week ago. There are now 3,588,000 bushels held in the combined elevators of the two cities.

MONTREAL.

FLOUR—A better feeling is noticeable in flour due to the better position wheat has assumed since last week. Millers report fair demand and do not expect any change in prices.

CANADIAN MANUFACTURER ABROAD.

Makes Extended and Pleasant Trip Through Great Britain and the Continent.

The average manufacturer is too prone to overlook the benefit of tours and trips away from his own factory or warehouses, and does not get out into the world often enough to replenish his physical energies or broaden his commercial horizon. There are exceptions to this rule, however, and it is becoming noticeable that every year more and more leaders in trade and commerce are getting away from their daily grind and seeing and living things as they are in other lands. To these exceptions Toronto is adding every year and one of the pioneers in this "get away" business is Wm. Dobie, president of E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd. Mr. Dobie, accompanied by Mrs. Dobie, left Toronto on September 19 as members of a party of nine Torontonians, sailing from New York on the Lusitania's first eastward trip. Arriving at Liverpool, they took three Napier and Brasier motors for a complete tour of England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, and across to France, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and returning via Queenstown by the White Star liner "Adriatic" to New York. In an interview with The Canadian Grocer this week Mr. Dobie expressed himself as having had the most delightful, interesting and valuable trip of his experience. Perfect weather throughout, with the exception of a few rainy days, afforded sightseeing of a beneficial character. The impressions of the magnificent English roads, the beautifully kept hedges, splendid service at inns both large and small, were such as to alter many preconceived prejudices against Old Country customs and ways. Their reception could not have been better and it was a matter of pride to the party to experience that being a Canadian seemed to put them in the way of a friendlier treatment. Canada is a word with which Englishmen are becoming more familiar.

The itinerary of the party was from Liverpool through Wales, back to Liverpool and thence by way of Manchester to London. After a three weeks' stay in the metropolis, during which, besides sightseeing, many interesting side trips were made to Oxford, Cambridge, Eastbourne, etc., they crossed the Channel to Paris. From Paris to Switzerland, with Interlaken and Lucerne as objective points, down along the historic banks of the Rhine, taking in Heidelberg and Cologne, thence by way of Brussels and Calais to London. From London along the great northern motor route on the east to Edinboro, thence to Glasgow, Gretna Green, Carlisle and Derbyshire, over to Ireland to Belfast, and from Dublin to Queenstown. A tour such as this, practically entirely by motor, gives opportunities for sights and experiences not possible by train. That the party thoroughly enjoyed every hour of their three months' outing may well be surmised.

Business observations resulted in the verdict that everybody seemed to be busy and commercial concerns flourishing. This was true not only in Great Britain, but was also noticeable in France, Switzerland and Germany. Though the trip was enjoyable throughout, Mr. Dobie thinks that Toronto and Canada are hard to beat.

INCREASE IN COST OF PACKING.

Authority on Canned Goods Gives Reasons for Higher Prices This Year.

T. E. Owens, manager of the Bloomfield Packing Company, packers of the well-known Quaker canned goods, dropped in on The Grocer a few days ago, and in conversation with him, one of the topics for discussion was the present price of canned goods. He rather startled us at the outset, by stating that he believed that never in the history of canned goods were prices so low, as at present, in proportion to the cost of packing. This statement brought forth an inquiry on our part for particulars. Mr. Owens said that he was not only willing, but anxious, to give them, as he believed that there was a feeling abroad among the retail grocers that prices were higher than the situation called for, and if this feeling were allowed to continue, it would be to the great injury of the business, as the retailers have it in their power to make or mar this industry; and if they are satisfied that an injustice is being done them and the consumers, through combinations or otherwise, they are very apt to do the latter.

Now for particulars. "As you know," said Mr. Owens, "we are affiliated with the Beamsville Preserving Company, where "Peerless" and "Quaker" fruits are packed. To commence with, we will take the cost of two articles, in the raw material lines used in the packing of these brands. We take these two articles first, as one is the largest, and the other the smallest, item in the business, peaches and solder.

"In peaches we handled 30,000 baskets this year, at a cost of $1.25 per basket. Last year the same amount of peaches cost 40c per basket, making a difference in cost of $25,500 more than last year.

"In solder we used 20 tons, costing 23c per pound. Last year it cost 15c per pound, making an increase of $3,200 on the season's requirements.

"In tin cans the increase this year was $1 per 1,000, on 6,000,000, making $6,000.

In box shooks the increase was 3c each, on 240,000, or $7,200. On labels, 6,000,000, an increase of $1,800. On strawberries and raspberries combined, 300,000 quarts, at 3c per quart, making $9,000 increase on these two items.

"On corn, 1,800 tons, at an increase of $2 per ton, $3,600.

"In sugar we used 21 carloads, and this is about the only article on the list that was not advanced.

"In addition to the increased cost of raw material, our pack in peas, corn and tomatoes was only 55 per cent. of the previous year, necessitating our carrying over in box shooks, labels, cans solder, etc., about $40,000 in value. You will understand in these lines that we have to place our order nearly a year in advance, and if there is a short pack we have to stand the consequences."

This matter will probably be interesting news to some of our readers.

SHOULD IMPORT DIRECT.

The following extract from a letter sent by Dadelszen & Co., Bordeaux, to J. L. Watt & Scott, Toronto, should be a useful hint to Canadian importers of nuts :

"Seeing there is no duty on walnuts entering France, it is very easy to give certificates of French origin for Black Sea goods; in fact, large quantities are imported at Marseilles and from there sent into the interior, where they are mixed in with French. We refuse, however, to have anything to do with these goods, which are more oily and turn rancid much more quickly. We should have thought it would have been more to the advantage of importers on your side to buy each quality separately and do their own mixing and thus avoid the expense which French packers who mix them incur in labor and carriage."

Freight Congestion in Montreal

Ontario Importers Complain of Delayed Shipments and Unsatisfactory Deliveries—Montreal Attributes Trouble to Increased Business Before the Close of Navigation.

Grocery brokers and wholesalers in Ontario have been puzzled, troubled and exasperated, particularly during the last month or two, over delays, mix-ups and seeming laxness of method in shipment of goods via Montreal.

Toronto brokers are very strongly condemning the railroads for their apparent inefficiency in handling this kind of freight. And they complain not only of unreasonable delay, but also of the fact that shipments, when they do arrive, come in sections, perhaps a third at a time, with the other part of the consignment straggling in a week or two after the first section has arrived. "Why," said a prominent broker to The Grocer this week, "I had a shipment of 1,000 boxes of currants coming via Montreal recently. The steamer arrived and I got my invoice and wondered why the stock did not turn up, but I saw nothing of them for three weeks, and then only 213 boxes arrived, the rest straying in in two lots over a week later. This shipment should have been here in a week."

This gentleman voices the complaints of the majority of the Toronto wholesalers, who have had very similar trouble.

Then there are complaints of a different nature, which say that when the goods do arrive in Toronto and the bills of lading are received, the cars are sent to the wrong street terminals and thus additional delay is caused. This also has occurred very frequently of late.

Nor is Toronto the only receiving point which has suffered. Here are a couple of paragraphs picked from our regular correspondence for this week, which show that similar conditions exist elsewhere.

This one from London, says : "A well known local broker complains of the annoying delays in the bringing of goods from the seaboard to London. As an instance of the way in which goods are neglected by the railways, he tells of a consignment which he had been anxiously awaiting that did not arrive here till yesterday, although the steamer which brought the goods over has since returned to Liverpool and discharged her cargo. This is particularly aggravating at a time when the goods are badly needed for the holiday trade.

And here is one in similar vein from Pembroke : "Considerable trouble and inconvenience has been experienced lately owing to the manner in which freight has been delayed and damaged in transit, goods arriving in anything but a perfect condition. In one instance last week a merchant ordered some fish in Montreal, which were promised by Thursday, for Friday's trade. On enquiry on Friday no fish had arrived and on Saturday, on making a search in the freight shed, part of the consignment was found, carefully covered up, waiting for the other part to arrive. These instances are of frequent occurrence and there seems to be little remedy for it, for if a claim is made scarcely any notice is taken and by the time a merchant has written about a dozen letters or more, he is little better off than before."

Montreal offers some explanation of the situation as follows :

Explanation is to be found in Montreal, to a greater or lesser extent, of the delays in shipping goods from that city to Toronto and other points. The congestion of freight in the former city is something beyond the imagination of those who have not been directly interested in securing goods from that terminal.

The congestion is felt this year a little more than formerly, but the situation is by no means new to Montreal. It is part and parcel of the closing of navigation every year, and the majority of the trade, accepting the trouble as inevitable, are inclined to treat matters philosophically.

Who is to blame ? Such a question cannot fairly be answered. No man can point out one party and say they alone are to blame. And no man, after viewing the tangled state of freight in Montreal, would endeavor to place the blame.

Is not the merchant himself more or less responsible ? Every importer desires to secure goods at the last minute. As a result, orders are given that shipments shall be made by late boats and in consequence these vessels arrive crammed with freight. They have, in many instances, refused much cargo, which will have to come later by St. John at winter rates.

Arriving at Montreal, the freight cannot be unloaded as satisfactorily as might be desired. Harbor improvements are going on and the sheds are not yet in a position to permit of systematic, temporary storage. The result is that part of the freight is unloaded in one section, another lot finds a temporary resting place somewhere else, and so the entire cargo is scattered.

Then the railway companies begin activities. Teams are sent to the sheds, which cannot be approached by cars. The carters cannot locate all the freight ; no more can the consignee or his agent ; everything is grandly tangled. The railway companies do what they can, which means that they secure what of the goods they can find and ship them on to their destination. This accounts for the arrival of large lots in Toronto in two or three instalments, perhaps days apart.

It cannot be doubted the railways are rushed to such an extent that they hardly know where they stand. New cars, new engines are turned out in large numbers every year, and still they cannot cope with the growth in trade. But it is not alone the growth in trade with which they have to contend. They have to handle this "last minute" traffic. It is this which knocks them out in their calculations. If merchants would accept goods a month before navigation closed ; if they would do away with late boat deliveries to a great extent, as it is quite possible for them to do, then there would be relief. Boats could deliver this merchandise in two or three consignments. The railways could then handle the goods more expeditiously and the situation would show improvement all around.

As it is now, the mess the railways have on their hands at the close of navigation keeps them busy untangling until the second and third months of the year.

Some suggest more cars and motive power. Suppose the railways should order new stock, they would perhaps be able to move the freight more quickly, but what about all this new stock which would lie idle at other seasons. At present the railroads are manufacturing to the pace of the country's growth and the natural increase in their business. They cannot be expected to perhaps double their rolling stock for one month's traffic. On the other hand, it may be said, as corporations serving the public, they should be provided with the wherewithal to meet all emergencies.

But by co-operation the situation might be wonderfully improved.

Importers, by ordering goods shipped earlier, would facilitate deliveries by rail here by receiving merchandise at least a month before the closing of navigation.

Thus the grand rush would be done away with and the congestion materially relieved.

In Montreal there is no great complaint about slow deliveries to Toronto and other western points. One firm did wait three weeks to get a carload of through freight from Montreal to Toronto, but they were not complaining as they could not expect better considering the present state of affairs. They were pleased to get it as far as Montreal intact and eventually through to Toronto.

Sharp Temporary Break in Oranges—Vegetable Market Featureless—Brisk Business in All Lines of Fish.

The approach of Christmas has improved the fruit market. Business is quite satisfactory. The expected break in oranges has happened. There has been a sharp decline, especially in Mexicans and navels. The range of prices quoted is very wide, as always occurs when the bottom falls out of any market. This drop is due directly to the glut of oranges reported last week. Some of the oranges were in poor condition and this circumstance helped the decline. At present the market for oranges is completely demoralized. But this condition is only temporary in its nature. Already shippers are diverting their shipments to better markets. Some of the packing houses have been closed. Business cannot be conducted at the ruinous prices which have been ruling during the past week. An improvement is certain to take place, but for a while there will be cheap oranges. Other lines are selling satisfactorily. Cranberries are slow and will continue so if the prices do not become easier.

A slightly dull feeling exists in the vegetable market. Potatoes are plentiful and selling at easier prices. There has been no particular feature otherwise. Imported goods are arriving regularly.

Fish is meeting with a brisk demand, in spite of the fact that Advent is practically over. Oysters are very active. Supplies have greatly improved for all lines, although a slight scarcity of ciscoes and finnan haddie is reported. Prices remain practically the same. A few lines are a shade lower.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—Business is getting more brisk with the approach of the real holiday season. Inquiries for various lines are numerous and indications point to a good turnover for the next fortnight. There have not been many price changes since last report as will be noticed from the list below.

FISH—Although Advent is practically over, fish men are quite busy with their orders. There is a good consumptive demand for all lines, while oysters are selling freely in every section. Supplies are better now and prices are lower, which has resulted in the creation of large sales. Dore and smelts are lower this week. Haddies have advanced ½-cent. GREEN FRUITS—As predicted last week, oranges are away off. There has been a break all round but Mexicans are the chief sufferers. The market is completely demoralized. Various prices are being quoted, the range being so great that some of the big dealers refuse to give definite quotations. Some of the fruit is unripe and wasty. It is generally believed that the unhealthy tone is but temporary and will serve to clean up the market. Oranges can't remain long at present prices. Under the circumstances last week's quotations are repeated, it being impossible to give satisfactory prices at present. Lemons are holding their own and selling steadily. Apples are slow at easier prices. Cranberries are not moving freely. Holy is going briskly. Almerias are steady.

VEGETABLES—There is no distinct feature in the market. Potatoes are a shade easier, though there has been no sharp break. Delawares are arriving in good lots. Some fine Green Mountain potatoes have also been handled. Sweet potatoes are meeting with a good demand as are also imported celery, lettuce and cucumbers. Other lines are fairly active.

SASKATOON CORRESPONDENCE.

It is rumored that Saskatoon will soon have a meat and vegetable market. This will be something for the new council to take up early in the new year.

On Thursday there was a fall in bread at least so the local papers said. But it proved to be only a temporary one. The delivery wagon belonging to Booth's bakery was overturned owing to the horse taking fright. The contents were strewn along the street, but willing hands soon restored order. A rig belonging to Currie Bros., grocers, also had a spill.

The Prince Albert Board of Trade is considering a proposition from a large American match firm to establish a factory at a cost of $100,000. The secretary has been corresponding with the firm for some time, but a definite proposal has now been submitted. The company, which owns a factory in North Carolina, has been contemplating one in Canada and several locations have been examined for the purpose. A more suitable one than Prince Albert could not have been found, with its extensive area of suitable timber, and favorably situated as it is in the heart of the west with every facility for transportation. There is also a sulphur mine in the north, which can be used at any time. When established, it is expected the plant will have a capacity sufficient to supply all Canada.

The secretary of the Asquith Board of Trade is in receipt of several enquiries regarding the town and its surroundings. As a result new businesses have located and others are expected to follow. Business has been very good this fall and it is expected to be better when the wheat moves more rapidly. Farmers were storing their grain in temporary granaries around town until the Canadian Pacific Railway should run a regular freight service. This has now been done and the situation is greatly relieved. The merchants too will put in larger stocks and receive their goods more regularly.

Several other small towns are becoming prominent as business centres in this vicinity. Business is booming in Borden, where there are two departmental stores. There are two elevators in town and the surrounding country is rich farming land and well settled. Nearly every place of any importance has its seed fair at this time of the year, when grain is judged and prizes awarded.

The Rogers Fruit Co. have just received a consignment of fruit from their Winnipeg warehouse, consisting of three cars. One car contained one hundred and eighty barrels of apples, mostly spies. Another car contained three hundred and forty-four boxes of oranges. The other car contained a miscellaneous assortment of fruit, consisting of cranberries, grapes, snow apples, onions, dates, figs, raisins and bananas. Half of this shipment, including the car of apples, will be sent out to Asquith merchants. The remainder is being delivered to dealers in town. Although delayed in transit the fruit arrived in good condition. This will probably be the last shipment to arrive this year as dealers are now well stocked for the Christmas trade.

Mr. J. Young, one of Nutana's prominent young merchants, was married last week to Miss F. MacDonald. The wedding took place at Prince Albert, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. MacDonald.

It is rumored that the Canadian Northern Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific will build a union station in Saskatoon, on the property belonging to the former. The report originated with a party who is in touch with the officials of both roads. The Grand Trunk has no station here as yet and it is said that the Canadian Northern will build a new station to replace the present one so that there may be some truth in the matter. It is known that while here in September, F. W. Morse, of the Grand Trunk, stated that his company would come into the heart of the city and that they were willing to enter into certain negotiations with the Canadian Northern. The latter owns a good deal of property in the centre of the town and a union station here would be very convenient for the general public. A good deal of interest is aroused as it is thought that the road which was proposed into Nutana is not a feasible one.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

President Harry Ranahan, of the Retail Grocers' Association, has returned from Chicago, much improved in health.

The custom of grocers giving Christmas presents to their patrons, which was long ago abandoned by the trade generally, is still not altogether unknown in this city, some dealers handing out small presents at the festive season to their best customers. As a rule, however, these presents are in the shape of picture calendars, which prove a thing of beauty for a day or two and of considerable convenience throughout the year. One of the oldest men in the grocery trade in London told your correspondent recently that years ago he gave away at Christmas time goods to the value of $300 and $400, which meant probably the entire profits of the holiday season's trade. Finally dealers began to realize the folly of such a business method and gradually stopped the practice, the change in the license law separating the grocery and liquor businesses settling the matter.

A number of grocers, confectioners and others are sufferers from the assignment of the New York Chinese Cafe on Richmond St. The concern was conducted by a Chinaman, Wesley Wong and had been in existence for three years. Business had been falling off of late and the various creditors asked for an assignment.

Whether the milkmen of this city have left themselves open to the charge of conspiracy is a question which is being discussed just now. It is stated that they held meetings, at which nine or more members have been present, solely for the purpose of forcing a raise in the price of a public commodity. What makes the people particularly angry with the milkmen is that so many find it necessary to raise prices, while the remainder do not. If those who have not raised find that they can get along all right, the people argue, why should the remainder feel it incumbent upon themselves to impose on the people? It is essntially the poorer classes that feel these raises most, and something should be done to put a stop to the imposition.

Local grocers declare business is very good and believe it will remain so until after Christmas, at least. Some of the dealers express indignation at the statement of a morning paper that they are selling poultry at a profit of three and four cents a pound. T. A. Rowat, when interviewed, said that, talking the year round, there was no difference between the market and the store price for poultry. Instead of 12 cents a pound grocers are not getting more than 10 cents. The effect of this knocking is to send buyers to the market, where they are sold culls of the worst kind at about the same price choice birds are sold in the stores. Harry Ranahan said he had not made two cents a pound on his sales. He laughed at the talk of "hard times," declaring he saw no sign of a slump. John Diprose expressed himself to the same effect as Mr. Rowat.

That poultry will be cheap this Christmas there is every reason to believe. Flavelle's, Limited, have shipped from their London factory this season over a million fowls, and other firms have also sent out large quantities. Buying for export has now ceased and there are indications of a glut in the market, and a drop in prices.

The city clerk is receiving many communications from other municipalities regarding the resolution of the London City Council asking co-operation in memoralizing the Legislature to pass a by-law regulating the weights of bread, butter and other commodities all endorsing the proposal. The latest to fall into line is the town of Niagara Falls.

At the regular meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association on Wednesday Dec. 4, the communication from the Dominion Retail Merchants' Association, asking the local body to affiliate, was discussed, the result being that Treasurer Ed. Ryan was instructed to reply that the association had no desire to affiliate at the present time, particularly in view of its experience with the secretary of the Dominion organization. It was reported that certain grocers were cutting prices of sugar, and deputations were appointed to interview the offending parties.

BUSINESS BRISK IN NOVA SCOTIA

Retail Stores Busy With Christmas Trade—Commission Men Rushed With Outside Orders—Large Potato Shipments to Havana.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 17.

The retail grocery stores are now looking their best, and every preparation has been made for a big Christmas trade. The shelves of the stores are laden with bright new canned goods, and the windows have tempting displays of dried and green fruits, nuts, confectionery, etc. Despite the financial stringency in many places, business here is very good, the retail trade thus far being fully equal to that of the same period last year. There is every indication for a large holiday trade. Business also appears to be very good in the outside districts and many of the city firms are shipping large quantities of goods into the country. There has been a heavy demand for mixed confectionery and chocolates, and also fancy mixed biscuits. The demand has been principally for large packages. One city firm sent more five-pound boxes into the country this year than ever before. Some of the firms are so busy in getting away orders that the purchaser has received the goods two days before the arrival of the invoices. This occasioned no surprise to the buyer, however, as he had received brief notification of the conditions. Sugars are in good demand. Prices quoted here are: Extra standard, $4.40; Austrian granulated, $4; bright yellow, $4.20; No. 1 yellow $3.90, and unbranded yellow, $3.75. The commission men now have more business than they can handle. They are rushed with orders. The weather so far has been very favorable for the delivery of goods, there being very little frost so far.

The shipments of apples to the British market continue very heavy, but very little fruit is being placed on the local market. No. 1 stock is worth $3.50 per barrel. There is a scarcity of No. 1 Bishop Pippins. Shipments of potatoes from the Annapolis Valley to the Havana market continue heavy, some vessels taking as many as four thousand barrels on a trip.

ASSOCIATION PROGRESSING.

New Organizations and Interest in Several Western Towns.

The association idea has taken strong hold of the minds of the Western retailers, and their association continues to grow in membership and influence. W. Ledoux, the assistant organizer, has been visiting many towns in Saskatchewan during the last two months, and the result has been a substantial increase in the membership of the general association and the forming of strong local organizations to deal with all local matters. Among the towns recently visited and in which the association work has been greatly extended, are. Bruno, Dana, Humboldt, Aberdeen, Warman, Davidson, Girvin, Wolseley, Wapella, Grenfell, Craik, Hanley, Dundurn, Saskatoon, Battleford, Yorkton.

Strong local organizations have been formed in most of these towns.

MARITIME TRAVELERS ELECTED.

Officers of Eastern Association Chosen at Halifax Last Week.

At the annual meeting of the Maritime Commercial Travelers' Association held in Halifax city last week, Harry E. Pyke, of the wholesale grocery firm of Pyke Bros., was elected president. The association now has a membership of 846, and its total resources amount to $42,858.40. The various reports for the past year were presented and proved highly satisfactory. The membership has been increased from 781 for 1907, to 816 for 1908, of which 475 are registered at Halifax, and 341 at St. John.

NEW TRADE COMMISSIONER.

Further Attention to be Paid to Canadian Trade in West Indies.

E. H. S. Flood, of St. John, N.B., has been appointed by the Dominion Government as trade commissioner for the West Indies, Bermuda and British Guiana, with headquarters at Barbadoes. His salary is $3,000 a year. There are at present some four agents representing Canada in the West Indies, but only half of their time is taken up with this work. Mr. Flood will devote all his time to Canadian trade matters.

Allison Coupon Books

Eliminate the Non-essentials

Many a business man is so loaded down with details that his really important problems can receive only secondary consideration.

This condition is overcome in any mercantile house by the adoption of the Allison Coupon system. With it, accounts are kept better and more accurately, at about one-tenth the usual cost.

THE PLAN

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

3 PER CENT. OR MORE?

Put your money in a savings bank and you get three per cent. every year. In other words it will be a third of a century before your money doubles itself.

Put the same money in a Bowser Tank and your money will be repaid to you many times over in a lifetime. The Bowser Perfect Self-Measuring Oil Tank saves enough in oil, time and labor to repay its own cost within a very short time.

The Bowser draws trade, the trade that appreciates up-to-date methods. It reduces the fire risk by preventing oil soaked floors, overflowing oil and evaporation. The Bowser is clean and neat and it saves space. The Bowser stops over-measure, spilling and leakage of oil—saves three-fourths of the time now required to wait on customers. With the Bowser your other goods are free from contamination, and there are no unsightly barrels, funnels and measures in sight, as none are used.

If you want to know all about an investment that will pay you the best, send for Catalog B.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

& SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

Terminal Warehouse and Cartage Co. LIMITED

Any Boy who has One Cent can Turn it Into Ten Dollars

One cent invested in a post card to us will bring you information about how we start you in business, so that you can earn money for yourself. You can make plenty of pocket money all the time—money you will enjoy more because you made it in business for yourself. Hundreds of boys are doing this. SO CAN YOU.

No money required. We furnish capital.

We also give prizes. There is a prize for every boy, whether he lives in a large city or a little village. Very fine prizes have gone to fellows in small places. Don't delay a minute. Write us to-day. A post card will do.

JAMESTOWN, 1907 agrees with ST. LOUIS, 1904 that was the best tea their judges could buy in the open market. ST. LOUIS gave LIPTON'S TEA not only the GOLD MEDAL, but also the GRAND PRIZE, which was awarded no other tea. JAMESTOWN confirmed this by giving the GOLD MEDAL, their highest award, to

Naptho SOAP

MADE IN CANADA

In every walk of life there are men who stand out prominent among their fellows. They possess something which distinguishes them from all the rest.

It is so in things that men produce, as for instance, Laundry Soap; the public are quick to recognize the best from the second best or lower grades.

NAPTHO IS A SOAP that was bound from the first to be successful because it possessed just those qualities which make it stand out above others.

LOOKING BACKWARD 15 YEARS

Do you realize that there have been about 75 brands of Packet Teas launched upon the market during that period?

Some of these have entirely disappeared, others are scattered about on many grocers' shelves eating their heads off in interest, many of them being four or five years in the same position. No demand, therefore no sale, and the retail grocer is victimized.

The moral is to buy Tea only on the condition that it is returnable if it does not sell.

"SALADA" Toronto and Montreal

BLACK—MIXED—GREEN

"Salada" Uncolored Green Teas are displacing Japans wherever they come into competition.

They are better Teas in every way, that's why.

A sample Order will demonstrate this, in double quick time.

1/5 of the entire tea consumption of Canada is "SALADA."

"CAMP" COFFEE

The Golden Rule!

Once tried, always wanted—that is the golden rule that governs the sales of "CAMP" Coffee. Through all weathers and all seasons this delicious, easily made and economical coffee steadily grows in favour with all coffee drinkers. "CAMP" Coffee yields excellent profits and also adds to your reputation for selling only the very best of everything. Stock it freely. Stock it now.

will prove to be a better seller than any other Baking Powder you ever carried

People are being educated on every hand into the importance of pure Food.

The government, the magazines, the newspapers, are all in the good work—and the demand for adulterated articles must cease.

Your customers are learning how pure and good St. George's Baking Powder is—how free it is from alum, ammonia, lime and other adulterants. They have been reading about the law in England that makes it illegal to sell alum baking powders. They are beginning to realize what a large percentage of Canadian baking powders contain alum and acid phosphate. They know St. George's Baking Powder is guaranteed to be made of Cream of Tartar, 99.90 per cent. pure—and they will be asking you for St. George's.

It will pay you to stock St. George's—Alum and other adulterated brands will soon be impossible lines.

The Happy Homes of Canada

CANADIAN homes are happy homes this Christmas. As happy as any homes anywhere in the world. For Canada has her full share of the comforts which make people happy. And thrifty Canadians love Canada for her bounty.

Thousands of homes in every Province are happier since following the advice of Cottam Bird Seed which has been persistently advertised for years.

This advice is "Never keep house without a Canary." Love in a cottage may start all right, but you've got to get the blithe, happy Canary-spirit to keep it going. And there's no better cure for surliness, no better example of happy, good nature to set before children or their elders, than a spick and span Canary hopping merrily from perch to perch and warbling over his Bird Bread and Cottam Seed.

As a result of this advice being constantly advertised for years the grocers of Canada now sell ten pounds of bird seed for every one pound that was sold before Cottam Bird Seed took up their advertising campaign. And more advertising is being done and more Canaries are being kept every year. Our Free Advice Department is kept constantly busy helping the beginners and bird-keepers who write about their birds from all parts of the country. And soon we hope to realize our ambition to get a trained singing Canary into every home in Canada and give thousands of women profitable and pleasant employment in breeding them.

Our Senior says he'd rather feed the Canary birds of Canada and make those who keep them happy, than have a seat with Laurier in the Cabinet. Perhaps one of these days he'll do both. For the Government is taking into its "most serious consideration" the creation of a new Department to be known as "The Department of Singing Canaries and Happy Homes."

And Sir Wilfrid has promised this new portfolio to Cottam Bird Seed. Indeed, bird-keepers in all parts of Canada have shown in unmistakable manner their desire that only the name of Cottam Bird Seed be mentioned in connection with the "Ministry of Canaries and Happy Homes." And Sir Wilfrid with his usual penetration and sunny ways has gracefully yielded to their request.

So important an announcement ought to have been left for the Premier to deliver, but no patron of Cottam Bird Seed will disclose the information until Sir Wilfrid hands down the Bill in the House.

So, then, here's to the Happy Homes of Canada. Here's to the Canaries that help make homes happy. And may 1908 be a bumper year for us all.

COTTAM BIRD SEED

MANUFACTURERS GROCERS' SUNDRIES

LONDON, CANADA

Interested Grocers can get trained singing Canaries from us at wholesale prices. These birds are imported from Germany specially selected by us and have a sweet, mellow song with numerous variations in bell, water-bubble, flute, deep roll and other charming melodies. Their song is not at all like that of the Canaries commonly kept in Canada.

One or two such birds in nice brass cages make the choicest ornament and a desirable pet for home, store or office and a good profit can be made by selling them. Write for prices and will send you free a copy of our new 25c book, "Money in Canaries or Canaries vs. Chickens."

THE IDEAL NEW YEAR'S GIFT BUSY MAN'S MAGAZINE

That's right, because it's a present that lasts throughout the year, giving the recipient increased delight with every passing month. Busy Man's is not an ordinary magazine. It's a magazine which contains every month the very cream of the contents of the world's many magazines, an easy-to-get-at index of their other contents, besides specially-written articles on Canadian topics by the best Canadian writers.

Here is what Mr. C. Edgar Wood, Sales Manager of The Dominion Cartridge Company, Montreal, says about Busy Man's ; and his opinion is shared by hundreds of others :

> "I cannot resist telling you how well I like the Busy Man's Magazine. It is the only publication that I keep a file of; in fact, I have to, because practically every article in the various issues has been blue-pencilled by me for future reference. I have never found, under one cover, so much that will interest a business man. You have certainly succeeded in obtaining all of the articles of value from the principal magazines of the world, and as a consequence, I have not only been enabled to save a great deal of time by reading your magazine, but also a great deal of money. For instance, I had subscribed for thirty-two different publications, and I now find that The Busy Man's Magazine covers the gist of the majority of them. It is with a great deal of pleasure that I note your addition of articles on Canadian subjects by Canadian writers."

Have you an employee or Business Associate to whom you wish to give a New Year's gift ? The best, the most useful gift you can make him is to take advantage of our special offer and have us send him Busy Man's Magazine for one year, with a copy of the beautiful Christmas Number free. You can make this ideal gift to any number of people, and the more you give the less the cost of each individual gift.

One Subscription (including free Christmas Number) costs	$2.00
Two Subscriptions " " " " "	1.50 each
Four and more Subscriptions " " "	1.00 each

This means that for four dollars you can give four friends a present which they will receive and appreciate every month during the year.

This is the card which goes with each Christmas number, telling your friend of your gift.

With the Season's Compliments

in extending to you the Season's Greetings, requests the MacLean Publishing Company to announce that Busy Man's Magazine will be sent to you for one year commencing with the January number, 1908.

The publishers wish to join in the hope that you will receive from every number the same enjoyment that prompted the gift.

Montreal Hoping for Inspector

Tea Importers Are Anxiously Awaiting Government Action in Matter of Testing—Specific Instances of Troublesome and Expensive Delays—Reply to Petition Sent by Wholesalers.

Tea importers and brokers in Montreal are optimistically looking forward to favorable Government action in the matter of appointing a tea inspector in Montreal.

With the New Year turned the officials at Ottawa will be better able to give their attention to this very important matter. Before them they have the petition of the trade, which was sent them a few months ago, and they have also the individual opinions of many leading tea dealers and merchants who privately wrote Hon. Mr. Paterson, Minister of Customs, at that gentleman's request. Besides this they have the whole matter summed up in The Canadian Grocer of November 8. In this issue the pros and cons of the matter were laid before the trade. Leading spirits in the tea importing and brokerage trade pointed out the necessity of an inspector in a port so important as Montreal. Every phase of the question was discussed by Grocer reporters with those who are best qualified to speak of conditions as they affect tea people in the metropolis. Leading points brought out were put before the Government. Copies of The Canadian Grocer were forwarded to Hon. Mr. Paterson and John McDougall, Commissioner of Customs. Both gentlemen acknowledged receipt of the paper and the letter sent by the editors drawing their attention to the article. The replies of both gentlemen are reproduced on this page.

It was not generally thought that the authorities would take any steps at the time, in fact, nothing was expected in 1907, as the season of navigation was just about closed and the Government was busy with other matters of national importance. Parliament, too, was about to open.

Now, the session of Parliament is well advanced. The right parties are in a position to go into the matter thoroughly, not that it is very difficult to come to the conclusion that an inspector is required in Montreal.

Wholesale grocers, a class greatly affected, are now able to discuss the appointment of the desired official with representatives of the Government. Their holiday trade is over and they can devote some time to advocating necessary improvements in conditions in the grocery trade.

Charge of Demurrage Delay.

One of the points lightly touched upon by The Canadian Grocer was the fact that importers were charged demurrage for delay in relieving the railway companies of the tea consigned to them. This delay is caused by the samples sent to Ottawa being held there or delayed in transit, or something of this sort, possible because of the lack of an inspector in Montreal.

As there is at present no such thing as reciprocal demurrage between railways and consignees it is hardly fair to expect the latter to stand for a charge which is made possible by Governmental delay, delay which could be avoided if there was an inspector in Montreal.

In The Grocer of November 8th we manager for Shaw T. Nishimura, one of the Montreal tea importers that a railway had threatened to charge demurrage on a shipment of teas held up while samples were being sent to Ottawa for inspection. To-day we publish an instance where demurrage has been charged and paid.

The Grocer called on Takezi Kusanobu manager for Shan T. Nishimura, one of the largest native tea houses in Montreal. He gave the following facts :

On October 1 entry was passed on a shipment of teas worth between $15,000 and $16,000. The entry number was 11095A. From the moment of passing entry, one of his men was in constant attendance, to hurry matters as much as possible. On October 10 or 11 the goods were received, and demurrage, amounting to $9 paid. Nor was this the only loss connected with the shipment. These teas were all sold in advance, and every effort was made to have them delivered as promptly as it was humanly possible, one man giving his whole time and attention to the matter, yet it was eighteen days from the date on which the goods reached Montreal until they were delivered. During this time, of course, Mr. Nishimura lost the interest on over $15,000.

"This," said Mr. Kusanobu, "is the condition of affairs, in spite of the utmost attention and efforts on our part. If we simply let matters take their course there is no saying when our goods would be released."

Speaking further on the subject, Mr. Kusanobu said that three years ago he attended to the releasing of the goods himself. There was a large shipment of teas coming, all sold, and delivery promised for four weeks from the date of reaching the coast. The teas arrived in Montreal, and he attended every day, yet it was four weeks from the date of reaching Montreal when the goods were delivered to the customers. "Such instances," said Mr. Kusanobu, "need no comment."

Reason for Delays.

When asked how such delays occurred, he explained that it was caused, partly, at least, in this way :

"Car No. 1 comes in and is unloaded. Samples are then sent to the customs and these are forwarded to Ottawa. Meanwhile, Car No. 2 comes in, and has to be put on a siding, because the space in the freight shed has not been set

The letters received herewith at the Montreal office of The Grocer in reply to enquiries regarding the appointment of a tea inspector for Montreal:

"Gentlemen,—

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th instant, together with a copy of The Canadian Grocer, on the subject of a tea inspector for Montreal and have noted contents.

"The tea at present subject to inspection, as being prohibited from importation, is described in Schedule C. of the Customs Tariff, as follows:

" '1205. Tea adulterated with spurious leaf or with exhausted leaves or containing so great an admixture of chemical or other deleterious substances as to make it unfit for use.' "

"I have the honor to be, gentlemen.

Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) JOHN McDOUGALD.
Commissioner of Customs.
The Canadian Grocer,
Montreal, P.Q.

"Dear Sir,—

"I have received yours of the 18th instant, and have noted the article in The Canadian Grocer dealing with the tea trade of Montreal. You say that should I have any comments to make on the matter contained in the article in question, you would be pleased to hear from me.

"I thank you for your courtesy in offering me an opportunity to make such comments, and would say, that unless I have overlooked it, you do not print the reply sent to the petitioners from the Customs Department, and as you may not have seen it, I beg to send herewith a copy of it.

"Perhaps I might add just another word to say, that the permission that Mr. John Patterson, of John Duncan & Co., speaks of, viz.: That the Customs Department allows his firm to have their goods conditionally, without waiting for the decision of the Ottawa Inspector, is not confined to that firm alone, but applies to all the tea importing firms in the city."

Yours very truly,
(Sgd.) WM. PATERSON.

free. Then comes car No. 3 and blocks the way for bringing up car No. 2 when the goods brought in car No. 1 are finally released and removed. Thus days and even weeks are lost; every day of which means money to the importer."

No Inspectors—Wholesalers Losses.

Alex. Orsali, of Hudon & Orsali, when seen, complained that shipping conditions were far from what they ought to be.

"Montreal," said he, "is an enormous freight centre and anything whatever which causes goods to be tied up in freight sheds for any length of time simply creates such a congestion that it is impossible to tell when the goods will be finally delivered." Mr. Orsali pointed out two results of not having a tea inspector at Montreal, which have not been emphasized before.

Orders Cancelled.

In the first place, he explained, they frequently have retailers cancel their orders, because they are unable to wait for the goods, which are lying tied up in Montreal. "And these retailers," said Mr. Orsali, "are our best customers. A man who can sell the goods he has ordered and who intends to pay for them promptly, is the customer we want, and he is just the one who neither will, nor can, wait indefinitely for his orders to be filled. The result is that the goods are left on our hands until some other person wants them; meanwhile we are losing the interest on the money invested."

"There is another point to be noted," continued Mr. Orsali, "We are frequently making up a carload of various lines of goods for one customer. He wishes to have his order of teas included; and simply because we cannot get our teas, even though they are in Montreal, the shipment of that car is delayed indefinitely; which is far from being either businesslike or satisfactory. The situation is serious. There is only one solution. We must have a tea inspector at Montreal."

Standards Advocated.

Geo. Forbes, wholesale grocer and tea importer, was next seen. He expressed himself as being very much in favor of having a tea inspector at Montreal. "When the experiment was tried before," said he, "it gave good satisfaction. To me it is inexplicable why the largest centre in the Dominion should be without an inspector." When asked if they ever had retailers cancel their orders, he said: "It is a very common occurrence to have teas in Montreal, and have retailers cancel their orders, simply because we cannot get hold of the teas to fill those, often very pressing, orders. There is little use in going after the goods in person, as you scarcely ever see anyone but irresponsible clerks, who shrug their shoulders as proof of their total innocence of any knowledge whatever."

"But," concluded Mr. Forbes, "an inspector at Montreal would radically change the situation, and most of these delays would be avoided. It would be necessary, however, to have well defined standards, and an inspector who knew teas, and who was given a free hand in the matter. This, I think, is a necessity, and the sooner it is put into operation the better."

Lockerby Bros., wholesale grocers, expressed themselves to be in favor of having a tea inspector located at Montreal. On Wednesday, October 20, they were without any quantity of tea on the premises. Orders were in which they were obliged to refuse, and yet entry had been passed over a week before that date on a large shipment of tea, which at that moment was lying a few blocks from their own door, but which, nevertheless, was unavailable. One of the clerks humorously put in, "If the powers that be only tried to get through a single shipment of tea, a great deal of argument could be dispensed with."

Immediate Action Desirable.

Action taken by the Government in this matter should be taken early. If the matter is allowed to hang fire until well on into the spring, say March, the appointment of an inspector will likely cause some trouble to importers, who make all arrangements before spring for the active season. Prompt action is required.

WALTER C. GADEN.

The following is the reply to the petition forwarded to the Department of Customs by the Montreal wholesalers:

"Gentlemen,—I have your letter of the 27th instant, enclosing petition of the tea importers of Montreal, in favor of having teas inspected at that port.

"In reply I would say to you that the testing of teas at some of the ports is, so far, only experimental. The Department thought that, in the case of ports distant from Ottawa, where considerable delay is necessitated through having the teas forwarded here for inspection, we might try whether the testing might not be done locally, subject to appeal to Ottawa. It was not because we were not aware of, and appreciate, the importance of the trade at Montreal and Toronto that officers at those ports were not named as inspectors, but because, being so near to Ottawa, it was considered that it would be quite as convenient and expeditious for such ports to have the testing done in Ottawa as in their respective cities. Samples come by express—the charges on which are paid by us—reaching here in a few hours, and the result will be telegraphed to the collector at our expense.

"Will you please confer with the petitioners, and ask them if they do not consider this arrangement to be as much in their interest if not more so, than that suggested by them?

"I will be pleased to hear from you again on this point.

"Yours truly,

(Signed) "WM. PATERSON."

WILL WRITE LIFE INSURANCE.

Walter Gaden, of Red Rose Tea, Goes Into Financial Business.

Walter C. Gaden, who has been for five years Montreal representative of T. H. Estabrooks, St. John, N.B., severs his connection with that firm with the beginning of the new year, to enter the employ of the Sun Life Assurance Company. While proclaiming the merits of Red Rose Tea to the trade of the city, "Walter," as he is familiarly known, made a host of friends, who will be sorry to miss his customary visits. Mr. Gaden has as good a connection with the retail grocery trade in Montreal as any traveler selling in the city and all his customers are his friends, for he has made a practice of giving every man the square deal. Besides, he can tell a good story with the best of them. He invented Victorine, the washing powder, and for a few years pushed it, eventually selling out to get "among the boys" again. At the grocery picnics and at all gatherings of the trade, Mr. Gaden has been a prominent figure, always helping along the fun at playtime. It is to be hoped that he will, on occasion, take a day off whenever the grocers get together for a day's pleasure. He has the heartiest good wishes of the trade in his new field and in these The Canadian Grocer joins.

TO REFORM CIVIC AFFAIRS.

Montreal Manufacturers' Association Take Steps Toward Improvement.

Efforts are being made by the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association to start a campaign of reform in civic affairs in Montreal.

At the meeting of that body last week, over which the chairman of the Montreal branch, S. W. Ewing presided, the various aldermen now in the council came in for a share of commendation or criticism as the case might be. In most instances the manufacturers were not favorable toward the present members of the body. Nothing definite was done toward the planning out of a course of action, except that co-operation on the part of the Board of Trade and the Chambre de Commerce will be sought. The Chambre de Commerce later promised their support, while it is thought that there will be no difficulty in obtaining the assurance of the Board of Trade's assistance in anything that may be undertaken.

Grocery News from Coast to Coast

News of the Trade From Every Part of Canada—Business Generally is Quieter After Holiday Rush—Outlook is Bright for New Year's Business.

EDMONTON.

The closing weeks of the year find everything bright and prosperous in Edmonton, in spite of the gloomy reports that have gone abroad regarding the failure of the crops and the financial stringency. The boom period in Edmonton has come and gone and things have settled down to a steady growth. Real estate agents and property speculators are becoming fewer and those who remain are finding things slow in the city, but the merchants, the working people and the manufacturers are finding conditions improving and the town has started in a steady, resistless growth that it is expected will before long place it at the top of the list of prosperous, growing cities in Western Canada. It is expected that there will be a slight depression in the trade for a month or two after Christmas, but the depression will only be temporary. In the meantime grocers and other merchants are finding the Christmas trade fully equal to that of other years.

In response to the query: "How does your trade compare with this time a year ago?" merchants in almost every line state that business is better than during December last year in Edmonton. Some stated that it was harder to get trade, but that by judicious advertising the returns were found to be very satisfactory. Other business men gave it as their opinion that business was noticeably increased, and two merchants went so far as to say that their returns were almost double those of the closing months of 1906.

"We are doing easily fifty per cent. better than at this time last year," said a member of a firm of a Jasper Avenue grocery and bakery. "The general tenor of the retail trade in this town is good, and I think the bulk of the depression is mere talk. We would feel it as much as any one, I suppose, if there was any diminution of business. I have been here for years and am intimately acquainted with trade conditions in Edmonton, and I have no hesitation in saying that trade is very good here this year. If there is any slackness in real estate it seems all the better for the merchants.

"Our trade conditions are very much better this year and in all departments," declared the manager of a departmental store. "Our whole trade from the beginning of the year has been one continual march forward. Every month has brought us larger returns than the corresponding month last year, and next year is going to be even superior to this year. It has got to be and that is all there is to it. That is what we are here for, and with the continued growth of the city it is only natural that our trade should grow too."

"We don't find business slack at all," said the head of another departmental store. "The propitious weather this fall has had a most beneficial effect, and trade has continued good without a break. People are buying just as freely as last year. Probably the larger amounts are not spent as in former years. That is, there are not so many $100 or $200 orders or so many purchasers of $500 sets of furs, but the smaller, steady trade, on which every merchant depends, continues unabated. There may not be the demand for higher grades of goods this year that there was formerly, but this phase of the business will soon right itself."

The croakers will have to revise their programme and substitute some other cry than that of little business doing and no cash circulating. This plaint gets a decided offset from the storekeepers, generally regarded to be a part of the community that spends a good deal of its time in airing its worries and grumbling at conditions. These men are constrained to admit that they are satisfied with their business conditions, especially in comparison with trade at the same time a year ago. "How can these bland shopwalkers keep their most debonair and gayest aspect with the talk of depression" was the question that suggested itself, but an interview with the manager of the store at once adjusted the perspective. With the trade done from 25 to 100 per cent. better than a year ago, it is small wonder that the optimist on the floor below could appear radiant. The statements quoted above are specimens of a whole round of enquiries made among the city merchants, and whether it was the man who provides cradles and other articles of furniture, the grocer and provision dealer, or the clothing store, none failed to answer that they were considerably busier than a year ago. People may be a bit more cautious about giving $100 orders, but smaller goods they are buying in larger quantities than ever.

The Alberta Poultry and Pet Stock Association held a meeting in the city last week to transact business and to made the necessary arrangements for the annual winter exhibition. A sample and tender of exhibition coop front was presented and approved of. It was decided to hold lectures in the city each month on the raising and marketing of poultry. A meeting will be held on January 6, 1908. The subjects to be dealt with are: "Straight breeding and feeding of poultry for winter egg production," and "Preparing poultry for exhibition," by A. W. Foley and J. Longmore. A poultry breeders' directory is being prepared by the association. It will be distributed free to poultry breeders of standard bred fowls.

A. E. Gallagher, one of the firm of the Toronto Commission and Produce Company, known as Gallagher Bros., who has been making an extended tour of the west, was in the city last week. He went east on the C.N.R.

A new company, known as the Scales System, has recently established a messenger service in the city. They have applied to the city council for permission to put wires on the telephone poles in order to place an electric bell in every hotel and business house in the city, so that a messenger boy may be called quickly when required.

This week sees the Christmas trade in full swing, and the merchants are keeping "open shop" until ten or later every evening, in order to serve the rush of Christmas buyers. The book stores and novelty stores have been doing this for some time now.

Ideal fall weather has prevailed this year and not till last week did the first snowfall come. The weather has not been very cold as yet and has not reached the zero mark. Old timers prophesy an open winter.

"What we want in Edmonton is a good, live retail grocers' association." This was the opinion expressed to The Canadian Grocer representative last week by one prominent grocer in the city and enquiry among other merchants along the same line proved that a movement to form such an association would be a popular one. One reason why the Edmonton grocers favor such an organization is that many of them have only recently started business in the city. Before coming here they have been in touch with the grocery business in other places and have seen such an association formed and successfully conducted. Then, too, they have read in The Canadian Grocer of the success of retail grocers' associations and are of the opinion that one could be formed here.

A few years ago an association was formed in this city. The majority of the grocers then in business joined the association and for a time it proved a success. By an arrangement among the association members groceries were sold all over the city at a uniform price, this placing all on the same footing. The association did not make the mistake of raising the price of groceries too high so as to be a burden to the consumers but they merely kept the price at a level that assured the retailer of a fair profit on every article sold. In addition to this they did much to curtail the credit system that was causing grocers a large loss in bad debts each year. A black list was formed to which was added the names of consumers who purchased goods on credit and did not pay for them. These people at last found it impossible to obtain groceries on credit and were of necessity forced to pay cash.

As the town grew, however, many small merchants opened stores on the side streets of the city who did not belong to the association. They refused to join and proceeded at once to cut prices, foolishly believing that they could stand a smaller or no profit for a time in order to build up a trade. The action of these small stores would not have affected the association but just at this time a large departmental store recently established in Edmonton started to cut prices in order to build up a business. Among other merchants the grocers at once felt this. It is asserted that one firm in particular lost thousands of dollars in selling goods at cost price or less. They had strong financial support, however, and in the end won out. They attracted a large number of customers from the association stores until at last the association members could hold out no longer. They were forced to cut prices in order to compete with outsiders and the Retail Grocers' Association in Edmonton fell through.

"There is really only one way to revive this association and place it on a practical basis," said one grocer, "and that is to get every grocer in town to join. This would be almost impossible. Many of the so-called grocers in Edmonton to-day are farmers and others who, in many cases have made a failure of the work they were at. They have come here with a little money and laid in a supply of groceries and opened a store. They have not had sufficient experience in the business to realize that they are standing in their own light when they refuse to join an association formed for their benefit. The old motto: "In union is strength," is not yet theirs and probably never will be. Instead they prefer to play the lone hand and thus not only hurt themselves but effectually hinder others from forming an association."

There is a growing feeling among the more prominent grocers, however, that a retail grocers' association would pay and should be established and it is probable that steps will be taken in this direction before long. When the movement does start let every grocer help it along in every way possible thus working for their own welfare and for the good of the trade.

The proposal of the Edmonton Produce Company to establish a cold storage plant in Edmonton has fallen through for the present, owing to the death of the manager, Mr. Williamson. Negotiations were in progress with the city and the company were about to receive concessions in the form of cheap water, light and power. Mr. Williamson, the head of the firm, was taken ill, however, and his death has caused the matter to be dropped. The business of the company is still being carried on by the other members of the firm, but it is not thought advisable at the present to make the outlay required to start a cold storage plant. This will mean that no help can be looked for at present from the establishment of a cold storage plant here, and butter, fruits, and indeed all lines of provisions of a perishable nature will still be sold at the prevailing high price.

The grocery business that has been carried on for some time by Messrs. Matheson and Jacobson on Jasper Avenue East, has been taken over recently by C. C. Thompson. Mr. Thompson is well known among grocery men in this city as a thoroughly competent man in the grocery line. He was employed by A. McDonald Company, wholesale grocers, for a year and a half, and was with the Hudson's Bay Company for three years, in the same line of business. He has a full line of groceries, fruits, confectionery, etc., and with an up-to-date store and modern methods, Mr. Thompson should do well in the grocery business in this city.

Robert H. Best.

GUELPH.

The Christmas season, the gladdest time of all the year in the grocery business, is on with a rush. Good sleighing has brought the farmers from the surrounding country that have not done business in Guelph for years. Long before daylight the roads leading here were black with all kinds of sleighs and cutters coming to the Guelph market. As the grocers appear on the scene to open up their stores, in a great many cases they were astonished to find farmers from miles away waiting with loads of fowl and produce to do business. The market was the largest in years, and prices took a drop accordingly; geese from 7c to 10c a pound, turkeys 11c to 15c, and chickens and ducks at your own price made business in the Royal City hum as it has not done for a long time. The Christmas spirit seemed to be in the crowds, and while some few took home their fowl to return again Tuesday in hopes of better prices, the majority by far sold and took the drop in prices good naturedly and bought and went home happy and contented. One farmer put it this way, however. He said he did not think it fair for people who were not regular attenders at our market to be allowed to come in from such long distances and spoil the market for regular attenders. But he was only one, and, like lots of others, did not know how many poor people were able to buy a fowl for Christmas that would not have been able if the long price of 18c and 20c for turkeys last year had continued. The stores were crowded all day and away into the night. It was near midnight when some stores got closed, and it was a real treat to see the happy faces and the good natured jostling of one another in the crowd. They bought freely, and certainly not cheap stuff either, as on looking over the stocks most merchants found it was the better class of goods that had been the best sellers.

The stores are all very tastefully and artistically dressed up for Christmas and each grocer has done his share. This year for some reason the windows are not up to the usual standard for Guelph. We have a lot of good windows and lots of good window dressers, but they have not come up to the mark in a great many instances this year. W. T. Doughty in his feed and seed store has an original idea in a frame barn with china horses, cows, pigs, and a general barnyard appearance, with even little chickens feeding. It is quite a good drawing card and reflects credit on the designer. Another fancy dressed window in one of our grocery stores, dressed by two ladies, who do not want their names mentioned, was quite an attraction. But for an out and out good grocery window I have not seen one this year yet, and I have been looking around for them.

Little & Costigan have a nice new delivery sleigh on the road.

Most of the grocers have sent fancy calendars for their customers, and some wonder if it pays. "It certainly doesn't pay, but they all do it," said one grocer. But if the grocers all got together and all did not do it for next year, do you think the people would all quit eating? Not much, Mr. Grocer. The valuable time spent at this time of the year in rolling up and trying to please everybody about their calendar and in trying to explain to Mrs. So and So how her poor neighbor got one just like hers, would be much better spent in dressing a good old-fashioned grocery window like we used to have before the calendar business was thought of in the grocery business. You and everybody else who gives calendars know that each year you disappoint some and probably lose a few customers that you have no idea of because you did not give them one for mother who lives in Toronto and another for somebody else out west, etc. Give them good honest groceries at a good honest price and never mind this something for nothing business and you will find it pays. But you must get together and stop the calendar business; give them after the Christmas rush is over and not throw away good time after bad money spent in calendars. This is one grocer's opinion.

GEORGETOWN, P.E.I.

Business has been exceptionally good in Prince Edward Island during the year now drawing to a close, thanks to the abundant yields from the sea and soil and the splendid prices paid for marketable products.

Collections on the whole have been good, and the general prosperity of the province is much in advance of previous years.

The fisheries have been good, the lobster pack alone amounting to nearly three-fifths of a million dollars. Oysters, while not anything like as plentiful as last year, brought an exceptionally good price, the inferior grades selling for as much as $8 per barrel on the shore.

FOR A GOOD NEW YEAR.

In a few days more our readers will be looking a new year in the face. What is it going to hold for you? Is it going to be a better year in business and family life than the ones that are gone or is it going to follow along in the same old rut, with the same mistakes and same unpleasantness on troublesome occasions? The beginning of the year is as good a time as any to make beginnings along other lines and in spite of the hackneyed stories about the failure of good resolutions, one cannot but believe that a great many that are never heard of are kept and kept with great advantage. There is no reason why good resolutions, if made in a serious and calculating mood, should not be carried out. It needs only eternal vigilance and a good supply of determination to do so. A promise to ourself should be kept even more carefully than a promise to another.

Let's make 1908 the best year of our life's history up to date. We can have a better year not only in business, but also as regards personal happiness if we will only do or refrain from little things that we know are easily possible.

And with this The Grocer wishes all its readers the best year they have yet experienced, as regards both business and personal welfare.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

The manager of a large jobbing business in Winnipeg who called at the Toronto office of the MacLean Publishing Company on Monday strongly commended the position taken by this paper in its articles on the financial situation during recent months. He particularly commended the series of articles on "The Situation in the West," as being a most accurate size up of existing conditions in the West, he having been traveling in the three Western Provinces himself during the greater portion of 1907, and, therefore, in a position to pass judgment upon the articles.

Strong condemnation was given the daily papers for their inaccurate statement by the visitor, he holding the view that much of the existing unrest is due solely to the scare headings and reports written by space writers in the daily press. While admitting that our articles have not been overflowing with optimism he held the view that what the trade wanted were the true facts and to the best of his judgment our articles had hit the nail squarely on the head.

"Merchants in the West are confronted with a situation largely of their own making," said the visitor. "Jobbers have been over-generous in their credits and retailers are following the example of the wholesalers. Both have been forced to draw in and a general movement towards the adoption of the cash system is a result. Smaller merchants as a rule are in a better position than the large firms, not having so much money tied up in unproductive real estate or so much money on their books. Everything depends on next season's crop. If we have an early spring retailers generally will take heart and a revival in trade will at once follow.

Some criticism has been heard from readers that our special Western correspondent has not painted a more optimistic picture. The trade generally, however, wants the true facts and this is what we have endeavored to publish. As early as June last we urged our readers to go cautiously, and this being merely a common-sense view of the situation, we lay no claim to financial foresight.

That our financial articles have been a tremendous factor in making the position of the retailers strong to-day is evident from the movement towards the cash system and the good collections made by the trade last fall. In response to our suggestions retailers everywhere lost no opportunity in pressing collections most aggressively when the fall crops were harvested. That they succeeded is clear from the jobbers' reports that collections have been better from country retailers than from city merchants or manufacturers.

Some retailers, however, have taken an extreme view and have been scared by daily newspaper reports of bank runs in New York into hoarding their money. A case reported last week is that of a wholesaler who tried to collect a $600 account from a general merchant in a country village. Growing impatient at his failure to secure satisfaction he took train to the nearest station and drove out to see the merchant, finally securing his $600 out of a roll of bills amounting to over $3,000 that he had been afraid to bank.

Present conditions do not demand the hoarding of money and anything of this nature tends to aggravate the situation. Indications point to money being more plentiful after the first of the year and many factories now closed down or on short time will re-open as soon as money loosens up. Hoarding of money, therefore, only delays activity and prevents manufacturers from employing men, thus decreasing the home consumption of the factory products.

The best policy for merchants to pursue is to continue pressing for the collection of outstanding accounts, to adopt the cash system in its entirety if possible, and to take advantage of every discount offered by jobbers so that the cycle of business activity can be made complete. Do this and talk optimistically and the future will brighten materially, with resultant benefits to all branches of industry.

COMPETITIONS CLOSING.

A very great deal of interest has been manifest in the competitions which The Grocer has been conducting for the benefit of its readers. Now that the Christmas rush is over grocers generally will have a chance to attend to this matter. We wish to remind all interesting competitors, however, that our advertising and window-dressing competitions close on December 31st. There is still ample time to get into these contests. Get hold of your local paper at once and send in that Christmas advertisement you've been intending to. And if you haven't removed that fine Christmas grocery window you had last week get your local photographer, or even an amateur to snap it, and send in a print to us. As you will remember, we are offering $25 in prizes for these events, on a basis that will permit of equal chances to all our readers.

$400 FROM A GROCERY WINDOW

Toronto Retailer Gets Very Satisfactory Results From Mechanical Windows—How a Disadvantage in Store Location is Overcome.

Grocers generally seem to stick to staple goods sold in the store for window display, and as a general rule they are right, but a novelty introduced occasionally may be very effectual, as the following instance shows :

The store of McLeod & Son, corner Sussex and Spadina, is set well back from the street behind the line of other stores. As far as the value of the window in concerned this fact in this case is a serious drawback, for ordinarily the public pass and never look toward the window. To counteract this, about this time of the year, when other grocers are showing oranges, raisins and confectionery, McLeod & Son always plan to exhibit something novel, usually in the shape of a mechanical window.

This year they hit one depicting a section of sea and shore, with lighthouse at one end and a life-savers' house at the other. In the foreground on a foamy sea of cotton wool, with copper sulphate to imitate the green of the water, pitches a wrecked schooner, and half way between her and shore a lifeboat filled with rescuers is making a hazardous way.

When the window is lighted up and set running, it presents quite a novel sight. A shaft running the length of the window and operated by a midget water motor, is provided with cams, which provide for the tossing in a very vivid way of the schooner and the lifeboat. The shaft is connected to another in the lighthouse and this actuates blue and green revolving lights, which show at regular intervals. A beach of real sand runs along windingly, as beaches usually do, from the lighthouse to the rescuers' station house, and at one point a small wharf has been erected.

A home-made searchlight, consisting of a small kerosene lamp placed in a tin-lined box, placed behind the window, adds to its vividness.

And the window has proved very attractive. "Why," said Mr. McLeod, to The Grocer reporter, "people come in and look at that who never knew the store was here before. It's a great attraction for the children, too," he said, "and you may be sure that the fathers and mothers will come to the store which attracts their children."

Asked as to whether the people came in the store, Mr. McLeod said, "Well, I guess they do. We were so filled up last night that we could scarcely move around. "Why," he continued, enthusiastically, "last year we had an old mill of something of the same style of window, no groceries, simply something running to catch the eye. We can trace at least $400 in business directly to the attractive power of that window. We expect to get even better results this year."

Such a window is not particularly easy to put in and seems to need a hand with a good deal of mechanical genius to make it turn out really well. The details must be carefully looked after, and to show to what an extent Mr. McLeod watched these when arranging this window it is only necessary to say that over 300 pounds of sand alone were used in making a natural-looking ocean beach.

DISPLAY OF FRUIT CAKE MATERIAL.

At this season of the year a display of groceries for the making of cakes and puddings is sure to be attractive. A window may be tastily dressed with such materials as follows :

In front of window have six small saucers or plates. On each saucer make a small pyramid of cloves, cinnamon, allspice, ginger, cream of tartar and baking soda. In the centre make a large pyramid of currants. At each side of the currants a small pyramid of seeded and seedless raisins, also one box of figs and one box of dates. After floor of window is dressed take a coil of half-inch rope, which can be found in almost any store, and make a lattice work in each corner, leaving a diamond-shaped centre open.

Then have a card printed to hang in open space, something similar to the following :

> FRUIT CAKE MATERIALS.
> We Have Everything You Need in Finest Qualities.

The card is suspended in the centre of open space by four very thin threads, one at each corner.

WHOLESALERS' GUILD MEETS.

Montreal Grocers Elect Officers and Discuss Business.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild took place in the Board of Trade on Thursday of last week. Retiring president, Alex. Orsali, was in the chair. The report of the proceedings of the guild during the year as submitted by Mr. Orsali, was unanimously adopted.

Reviewing the work of the guild during the past year the president called attention to the proposed uniform bill of lading which had come up for discussion at several meetings, and which resulted in the calling of a special meeting on April 8. A draft of the bill had been submitted by the Railway Commissioners to the Board of Trade, which body in turn sent it to the guild asking for the opinion of the members on it, and inviting suggestions. The guild had considered the bill in its various aspects and had proposed certain changes and made suggestions. The draft of the bill was returned to the Commissioners eventually, with the comment of the guild and other trade bodies. Unfortunately, owing to pressure of work, the Commissioners had not yet been able to take the matter up again, but hoped to get through with it in the coming year.

The serious delays in the delivery of goods was a question which had engaged the attention of the guild at more than one meeting. The railway companies had written to the Board of Trade stating that in many instances the trade were to blame for delays, because they had not the proper facilities for handling goods, or were tardy in taking delivery. This the guild strongly repudiated. They also suggested that some action should be taken whereby merchants might obtain compensation from the railway companies when they suffer loss through their negligence.

A matter which is before the Council of the Board of Trade is the establishment of a Transportation Bureau with a railway freight expert at its head, the idea being to protect the interests of Montreal as a distributing centre. The establishment of such a bureau would entail the financial support of members of the Board of Trade. It is thought that the idea is a good one, and in his report the president hoped the guild would give its support to the project. A subscription of $25 a year from each subscriber, if sufficient number could be obtained, would maintain the bureau, which it is felt, would be of great benefit to the trade in Montreal generally.

JOS. ETHIER,

President Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild.

Chevalier, Pouliot & Co., Joliette, were admitted to the guild.

Officers elected for the coming year were: President, Jos. Ethier, of Laporte, Martin & Co.; vice-president, A. L. Lockerby, of Lockerby Bros.; treasurer, N. Gendreau, of Lacaille, Gendreau & Co. Directors, A. J. Corner, of Birks, Corner & Co.; Jos. Lalonde of Lalonde & Desroches; Arthur Robitaille, of A. Robitaille & Co.

Alex. Orsali, who, during the past year has been the representative of the guild on the Council of the Board of trade, was unanimously chosen the guild's nominee for re-election.

CORRESPONDENCE

Our dairy products, which turn over one-third of a million dollars into the pockets of our farmers, were not equal to the demand. Eggs, too, have been higher throughout the year than ever before, while the crops have been enormous, twelve million dollars being a safe estimate of their value. All of which goes to show that the Garden of Canada will close its accounts for the year with a very satisfactory balance on the right side.

The Department of Agriculture estimated the yield of oats this year at 8,000,000 bushels. A large quantity of this sold at 50c to 52c per bushel; but the price has gradually declined, 40c being the ruling figure throughout the province to-day.

* * *

A large percentage of our farmers were holding their potatoes for 30c, but the price held firm at 25c. The principal markets, Halifax, Sydney and Glace Bay may be termed glutted.

Canned goods are slow on the island this fall and no doubt will continue so throughout the season. As a matter of fact, grocers are selling them at a loss.

There is just enough snow for good sleighing, and the country people are coming in for their Christmas supplies and buying generously.

Although the winter steamers are in commission, the summer boats still continue on route carrying huge quantities of poultry, meats and oats.

Large quantities of smelts and eels are being shipped to the Boston and New York markets. The ruling price is five cents per pound. The returns from New York are generally conceded to be the best. Quite a few are shipped by express, but the exorbitant rates charged by the company make a big hole in the profits. In this connection we would suggest that the Montreal and Toronto commission people get more actively in touch with the exporters on the island. Enormous quantities are being shipped, and as the stock is first-class in every respect, we feel sure the benefit would be mutual.

Green fruits are very active. The demand for Almeria grapes is particularly strong. Oranges are plentiful, but the demand is only fair. Other fruits are moving well.

GALT.

The once prevalent custom of grocers presenting their patrons with a gift at Christmas-tide appears to have passed into oblivion. When a grocer was to-day asked as to the cause of the passing of the custom he spoke as follows: "Way back, probably 100 years ago, a dealer, wishing to show his appreciation of the patronage of a certain customer, presented him with a gift at Christmas. The recipient, proud of his good fortune, spread the news of his gift and those not remembered became offended, and transferred their patronage. Next Christmas the merchant found it advisable to present all his customers with a gift. He probably realized his folly, but it was too late to draw back. And so the custom spread from one business to another, but the grocers were always hit the hardest, as all good things come to an end, so did this custom. While it is still observed in a very small measure, the sometimes costly gift has been generally replaced by a fancy calendar or a neat little Christmas card. And," he concluded, "the relief to the merchants was great."

I am pleased to see that other correspondents are discussing the advisability of providing waiting accommodation for customers. The plan of placing seats along the counter appears to be inadvisable. The suggestion of the Montreal correspondent that tables and chairs might be provided, the former to contain samples of new lines of goods, appears to be very feasible and might be tried with satisfaction. At any rate, some scheme should be devised whereby those awaiting attention, especially ladies, should have proper accommodation.

A very pretty Christmas window is that of Bloon Bros., on South Water St. Strings of Christmas bells have been placed about 10 feet above the window proper. The window space has been used to display a very limited number of boxes of Christmas crackers, the bright colors of which continue to make an effective and attractive display.

* * *

Galt grocers are coming to the front. At the annual meeting of the Galt Board of Trade, Mr. John Sloon, was elected to the position of vice-president. That he is a man capable of filling the position with credit is evidenced by the success of the large and up-to-date grocery business of Sloon Bros.

PEMBROKE.

With the near approach of the election season, both political and municipal, the adherents to both parties and the candidates for municipal honors are beginning to make a stir. Among the latter Isidore Martin, the present mayor, and a prominent grocer, has expressed his intentions of again standing for mayoralty honors.

The discontinuance of the ferry between this town and Alumette Island, owing to the blocking of the river with a thin coating of ice, has caused a considerable difference in the trade of the town, as the islanders are unable to cross, the ice not being thick enough to allow their sleighing or walking over, and too thick for boat use.

Tradesmen are all wishing for colder weather to quickly set in, as very few have yet bought their supply of Christmas turkeys, the danger of their being spoiled being too great.

LONDON.

In wholesale lines business is quiet, as is usual at this season. Travelers are in until after New Year's, and, in most cases, are busy helping in the warehouses, getting samples ready, etc. The season has been a good one, and payments are fair.

Last week was the busy time with the retailers, business picking up so well as to make the month as a whole, compare well with last December.

Charles McCormick, the Wellington St. grocer, whose failure was announced recently, has, it is said, secured the appointment of store-keeper at the asylum for the insane here.

The Western Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association, at the annual meeting on Saturday, decided to join the Travelers' Club in urging the Ontario Government to amend the local option clause of the License Act so as to provide suitable places for lodging, eating and sample rooms for the traveling public. A resolution in accordance with this decision was adopted and a committee was appointed to amplify it as to the requirements and also to arrange to present the resolution to the Government.

The reports, as presented at a meeting previously held were adopted after complimentary addresses by Past Presidents Dillon, Grant, Underwood and Lind. In the speeches special favorable reference was made to the abolition of the license tax on commercial travelers by the Provinces of Quebec and British Columbia; also to the many favorable features of the financial statement, which showed an addition to the permanent reserve fund of nearly $18,000. This fund now stands at $15,380.

President Nicholls then, on behalf of the association, read a complimentary address to Past President Lind, one of the founders of the organization and presented him with a handsome gold-headed cane and a meerschaum pipe. The recipient replied in feeling terms and the president-elect was then installed by the retiring president. E. J. Dawson and H. E. Screaton were appointed auditors; Col. J. W. Little was reappointed trustee, and Alf. Robinson, secretary.

A pleasant evening was spent at the Travelers' Club on Saturday, when the retiring president, Chas. McGuire entertained his fellow members. A sumptuous dinner was served and the evening was passed in toast, sentiment and song.

The number of cigarettes consumed in this city annually is increasing at a 20 per cent rate, two and a half million having gone up in smoke here last year.

VANCOUVER.

There is some danger that press reports being sent out from Vancouver over the very live question of taking care of the unemployed in the city, may have the effect of creating a false impression as to trade conditions here. It is well to point out that the unemployed are very emphatically not Vancouver's unemployed. They are the unemployed of the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba very largely. There is a percentage of the large army of unemployed which is admittedly from Seattle, a city which has had much more serious labor difficulties than Vancouver with no advertising of the fact at all. Indeed, with "fiat" money, as the clearing house certificates may be legitimately termed, Seattle in common with all the other Western cities of the United States, has experienced a very stringent time financially. Labor has been the first to feel this, and one place that is easy to reach is Vancouver.

Certainly Vancouver's "unemployed" problem arose primarily from the adverse publicity given the city by the so-called riots of three months ago, the demonstration against Oriental immigration. From one end of the continent to the other it was trumpeted that Vancouver wanted white labor, that Orientals were being brought in by thousands because white labor was scarce and hard to get. Add to this the fact that there is an agreement in existence between the Provincial Government and the Salvation Army to bring immigrants to British Columbia from England. Again, let it be recalled that there is always a large percentage of the population of the three prairie provinces out of work in the winter time, owing to climatic conditions, and that this year times are none too lively on the prairie and there is enough said to satisfy every reasonable person that the labor question is not chargeable to local conditions in Vancouver. Vancouver is the best advertised city in Canada to-day. It is the Mecca of the ambitious, the dissatisfied, and often, it is feared, of the unsuccessful. When the railway companies very kindly made a $25 rate from Winnipeg to Vancouver, it was no trouble to fill the trains. It was cheaper to come than to stay and there was no special inducement for the foot-loose artisan or laborer to stay over the winter on the prairie. Consequently there are two or three thousand unemployed men in Vancouver to-day, who are not of Vancouver's settled population.

Careful canvass among leading business men in the city leads to the conclusion that trade is as good this winter as it was last and that is saying a good deal. Wholesale grocers cannot complain when they admit that their trade for each month this fall is greater than for the same months last fall, and the total volume of business for the year has in each case far out-reached the total of last year.

The fruit exhibit of the Northwest Fruit Growers' Association at the City Hall attracted much attention. The sessions of the convention were public and as exhibits of apples from all parts of the province as well as from Washington and Oregon were displayed a splendid opportunity was afforded to show just what the coast and mountain districts can produce. The handsome commercial displays from several well-known districts of British Columbia were afterwards sold to the dealers so that the public wil have some fine Xmas apples in Vancouver.

To form a union which shall control the sale of all fruit in British Columbia was the topic of most interest to British Columbia members of the convention. A paper read by Mr. Shepherd, manager of the Hood River Fruit Growers' Union, described its workings and what a revolution it had accomplished in that part of Washington State. If British Columbia growers adopted somewhat similar lines and formed a central association which would control all sales, it was felt that similar improvements in prices to the growers and in conditions attached to the industry would result.

The arrival of the Blue Funnel steamer Oanfa relieved the shortage of currants in the wholesale market. Several carloads were included in her cargo. A consignment of 1,200 bags of salt was another item in the manifest. Large shipments of staple articles from Britain were also received by local merchants, the vessel bringing in all over 4,000 tons for British Columbia ports.

In fruits the feature of the market is the supply of Jap oranges which are now abundant. The wholesale price has dropped until the quotation is from 50c to 60c. There are annually large quantities shipped east for Christmas, the territory covered being as far east as Winnipeg. The Dominion Express Co. makes a special rate for this fruit, so that the wholesale dealers are enabled to ship many hundreds of boxes. The California oranges are not readily salable until the Japs go off the market, which is usually some time in January. At that time the California oranges are much better matured any way, so small loss is experienced. They are now quoted at $4 with trade nominal. Navels are the only variety. The California grapes are cleaned up on this market, having had a longer season than ever before. Malagas are the only variety now. They quote at $7.50 per bbl. Cape Cod cranberries are quoted at $12.50 to $13.50 per bbl.

Local apples are still in good supply, and there is a larger quantity of the better grades than usual. These bring $1.50 to $1.75. Cooking grades bring 90c to $1.25. Few Okanagan apples are coming to this market, the competition of the large stock of cheaper grades keeping them out. The same is true of apples from Washington, nothing but a few boxes of fancy table apples being imported.

* * *

In vegetables sweet potatoes are quoted at 3½c per lb. In the Irish, Ashcrofts are $26, and limited. Local stock is still $18 per ton. Supply is fairly good. Hot-house lettuce is plentiful at $1.25 a crate. There are at the present time no ripe tomatoes on the market, being one of the few occasions when this happens throughout the twelve months. The Victoria and Burnaby hothouses will soon be marketing a few.

SHERBROOKE.

Sherbrooke grocers have been busy with their holiday trade. A member of the Montreal staff of The Grocer happened to be in Sherbrooke the other day and took advantage of the occasion to drop in upon some of the hustling retailers of that city. They certainly are a busy lot of men, but never have so much to do that they cannot give one the glad hand and pass the time of day.

Speaking of holiday arrangements, the grocers in the townships will take second place to no others. Some of the showings made are really artistic, the kind that sell groceries. Many fancy lines are noticeable, and a larger stock of fancy groceries than usual is seen.

* * *

In many instances a long counter is utilized for display at this season. Often it is just put up temporarily, but it serves the purpose.

May & Houlahan, whose store is among the brightest in Sherbrooke, are showing their customers a great selection of Christmas and holiday goods. Their displays are very nicely arranged, and embrace the whole range of Christmas and New Year staples and specialties. They have just completed some improvements, which add materially to the appearance and needs of the store. Back of the counter glass-fronted bins have been installed. They are nicely finished and give the store an even brighter look and an air of modernness such as it did not before possess.

Bray Bros.' store has assumed quite a holiday appearance and if hustling, hard work counts good results will be accomplished here.

Dean, Rowe & Lacey, the young firm which succeeded Johnston, is doing a very nice business. They are progressive in their ideas and are proud of the arrangement of their store. They have installed many of the latest devices.

* * *

Louis Olivier does a grocery and liquor business, and to do it in a way to please all his customers he has his store divided, one section being devoted to foodstuffs and the other to liquors. There is no partition, but there is a central display of canned and bottled goods which most effectually accomplishes the desired result. The liquors adorn the shelves on one side only. Being on a corner, Mr. Olivier has window space on two streets. He uses one window for liquor displays.

Markets and Market Notes

QUEBEC MARKETS

POINTERS—

Beans—Declined.

Sugar—Steady.

Teas—Advancing.

Montreal, Dec. 26, 1907.

Wire orders and late requests by mail from the retail trade kept jobbers pretty busy Monday and Tuesday of this week and a considerable volume of business was done. Express shipments are quite numerous, while the city trade was no small item. On the whole, jobbers report a very satisfactory Christmas trade.

New Year business, what there is left of it, will keep the wholesalers from being idle between now and Tuesday evening, and many of them will begin stock-taking after finishing up. Some have already taken stock, as a matter of fact.

Better business is expected by most after the turn of the year. The monetary situation appears to be improving, though many still complain of the tightness of the banks. The more optimistic hope that the financial institutions will open up when they see that there is no need to be so conservative as they have been. Jobbers are not buying in many instances, except for immediate wants, and they are not encouraging the retail trade to load up, so that after the holiday reaction is over there is likely to be a spurt in trade, which will, if not too sudden, result in a boom in prices, but which will, in any case, have a beneficial effect.

Beans have suffered a serious decline and are now quoted in the neighborhood of $1.75 and $1.80. There is talk of reduced values in dried fruits after the holidays, and doubtless some lines will be lower, but it does not seem as though the downward trend in prices would be general. In fact, California packers are already talking of advancing their prices on seeded raisins, owing to their scarcity. Teas continue very strong with an advancing tendency. The Indian market has closed for the holidays and will not re-open until January 10. Sugar is steady to firm, with buying rather larger than is usual at this season.

SUGAR—Judging from the buying which is being done an advance is expected in some quarters, though others do not anticipate a rise until after the first of the year at least. Prices have been steady for a long time, and it is just possible that an advance will take place shortly.

TEA—Demand has fallen off and trade is not expected to pick up again until the holidays are over. Ceylon teas are very firm and advancing. Advices from India state that the markets there are closed until January 10, in observation of the holidays, so that no sales which might influence the market, will take place until the re-opening. It is likely that higher prices will rule toward the middle of January. Other lines remain unchanged.

DRIED FRUITS—Higher prices for California seeded raisins are talked of as being possible and probable after the turn of the year. Reports from the coast say that the supply on hand is not enough to go around and consequently the packers are going to get their own prices. Valencias are reported somewhat firmer in feeling, but no higher prices are asked locally, while the New York market is weaker in tendency. Currants are still selling quite freely. Lower prices are said to be likely after the first of the year, but there are those who believe values will be fully maintained on most lines. There will, doubtless, be some reductions, but the downward tendency is not likely to embrace all dried fruits.

CANNED GOODS

Montreal.—Considering the season, dealers report a very satisfactory trade in various canned goods. Naturally consumption is not as great during the holidays as at other times, but no complaint is being made. Fancy imported lines of canned fruits and vegetables had quite a sale for Christmas.

TORONTO.—Business is very quiet, the dull condition of holiday business seemingly reflecting all round.

Collections—Fair.

Toronto, Dec. 26.

It is quite apparent in wholesale circles this week that holiday time is in evidence. While the retailer has been rushed to the highest point, the wholesaler, whose big business was done a month ago, has been going along quietly and considering the outlook for the new year.

A good many wire orders for last minute goods have come in this week from retailers who evidently had not faith or foresight enough to order up to their requirements a few weeks ago. Altogether the wholesalers express themselves as well satisfied with December business, several of them putting the last four weeks above the same period last year.

The majority of the wholesalers are decidedly cheerful over the financial situation. Collections are surprisingly good, they say, for the season, and considering the much talked of financial difficulty. They one and all are optimistic over the outlook for the new year. "Things seem to be shaping up," said a prominent man on the street on Tuesday, "so that we expect to do a bigger business in 1908 than ever before. And indications point," he continued, "to the fact that this business will open with a rush early in January."

TEA—Business locally is dull. A report from London, dated December 12, says: "Expectations of a continued improvement in tone, following the small auctions of the past few weeks, have been fully realized, since our last, and the knowledge that there will be a considerable interval after next sales has resulted in a sharp advance in price for practically all teas up to about 8½d per lb., which are quite ½d per lb. dearer on the week. The feature has been the strong demand for the grades above common, which have hitherto been stationary, very little useful liquoring Assam leaf being now obtainable under 8d, although the average of the district has so far undergone no change for the better. The total offerings for next week are rather heavier than of late, but there is every indication that the closing sales will well maintain the present basis of values."

SUGAR—There is a much firmer feeling evident in the local markets but as yet this has had no reflection on prices.

MONTREAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Several matters which are of interest to the retail grocery trade throughout the Dominion were discussed at the third annual convention of the Retail Merchants' Association, mention of which was made in last week's Grocer.

What should be the weight of potatoes in a bag was a subject which was warmly discussed by the delegates. It was thought that the weight should be uniform throughout Canada, and 90 pounds was thought to be about right. Nothing definite was arrived at as nobody was in a position to give exact figures as to the weight of potatoes, and other little details which it was deemed advisable to know before taking any action toward placing the matter before the Government. Finally it was decided to have the executive look into it.

That grocers and other retail merchants should do their utmost to control their local trade to the exclusion of mail order houses and departmental stores was another resolution of the convention. It was pointed out that retailers could easily beat out the mail order people and the departmental stores if they set their minds to the task, and it was shown that unless they acted at once, these people would very soon gain a hold on the trade of the home towns which it would be hard to break.

As a result of the meeting it is probable that delegates will go to Ottawa in the near future to confer with the Government regarding the possible enactment of a law to prohibit wrong statements being made on packages of foodstuffs, such as baking powder, spices and other package foods. It is deemed high time for some action along this line, and it was pointed out that unless something was done the market would become glutted with impure foods.

The much-talked-of co-operative bill, which is likely to come before Parliament this session, was the subject of a warm discussion. It was thought that the special committee appointed by the Government to look into the scheme (and which has already reported favorably on it) should be placed in possession of further information which they might bring to the attention of the Government, before that body seriously thought of enacting any law in this matter. During the discussion it was shown that the retailers of the country would be placed at a serious disadvantage if the law, as it is at present mapped out, were to be passed. The trade do not object to competition, but they do draw the line at competition which gives the other fellow unfair advantages. The matter will be placed before the Government once more by the association.

Good cheer was evident at E. W. Gillett Co., Limited, Toronto, on Monday afternoon. The firm, as is their custom, placed in each of their employes' salary envelopes an additional amount in gold, as a Christmas remembrance.

TRADE NEWS OF NEW BRUNSWICK

Flour and Sugar Stiffer, Prices in Gen eral Unchanged—Large Winter Export Business to Date—Bright Outlook for New Year.

Special Correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 23, 1907.

No changes of importance took place in the local markets during the past week. In groceries, flour and sugar are both reported stiffer, but no change in price has taken place. Feed is somewhat cheaper. There was a good supply of poultry, meats and vegetables for the Christmas trade. Turkeys are selling at 16 to 18 cents, which is cheaper than at this time last year. The quotations on butter and eggs remain unchanged.

The Christmas trade has been fully up to previous years, and both wholesalers and retailers feel well satisfied with the volume of business. The rush with the jobbers is about over, but retailers are kept very busy.

* * *

Some very attractive window displays have been made, the stores of F. E. Williams, Vanwart Bros., Walter Gilbert and W. Alex. Porter making very attractive showings. The interiors have been decorated with evergreens and this year a great deal of fancy tissue paper ornaments, mainly in reds, are being used.

Locally, trade in the flour and feed market has been quiet on account of the holiday season. The statistical position of wheat in the Maritime Provinces market is the strongest it has been this year and much stronger than a year ago. There has been a slight cut in the mill price of middlings and sales as low as $26 to $27 are reported.

* * *

Samples of frosted wheat have been received and ground up and sold as feed at $27 a ton. Oats are slightly easier and quotations on Island oats as low as 52 cents have been made.

In Fredericton last week turkeys were sold at 14 cents a pound.

Eighteen winter port steamers had arrived in port up to Friday the 20th. Ten of these that sailed for the United Kingdom took away goods valued at $1,946,027, according to returns at the customs house. Included in the cargoes were 604,639 bushels of wheat and 4,887 boxes of cheese. Several small coasting steamers have brought shipments of apples for forwarding to Great Britain on the winter port steamers. The outlook for the biggest year's business yet looks bright.

That St. John's city fathers recognize the need of improving the civic government is evident from recent actions. Less than a month ago Ald. Frink gave notice of a motion to take a plebiscite at the next civic elections regarding the abolition of the common council and the election in its stead of a commission composed of five competent men, to take charge of affairs. At a meeting last week to consider the reorganization of the work of the various departments, Ald. Kelley proposed that an executive committee of the council should manage the affairs of the city with the assistance of an engineer and controller. Ald. Kelley's suggestion is that the mayor should act as chairman and the members would be chosen from the committee. This committee, with the engineer and controller, would constitute the city government, except in matters of expenditure, when a two-thirds vote of the council would prevail over their decision.

Important changes which it is planned will add to the attraction of the Island of Campobello as a summer resort, and the development of its trade in fishing, are promised from the policy of the Campobello Corporation, Ltd., which is now applying to the provincial government for incorporation, with a view to developing the resources of the island. H. N. Merriman, of New York, treasurer of the new corporation, was in the city a few days ago, interviewing the government with reference to the matter. To The Grocer correspondent he stated that the corporation had bought out the interest of the Campobello Island Company, and now owned 8,000 of the 10,000 acres which compose the island. It is proposed to modernize the hotels and to develop the natural resources of the island, including the fishing and lobster industries. Much is expected from the development of the fisheries. A drying plant is to be put up and it is expected that large shipments will be made to the West Indies. Lobsters, it is expected, will find a ready market in the U.S. The Dominion Government is building a wharf and an hourly steamship service will be run to Eastport in the summer. The capital of the company is $250,000.

On Sunday, Dec. 15, the store of W. W. Pride, general merchant, at Harcourt, was broken into and a number of articles stolen. A reward of $25 has been offered for a clue to the identity of the guilty parties.

The Sussex Packing Company is preparing to run its cold storage plant at Sussex to its fullest capacity in order to handle produce which is offering for storage. Last season large quantities of lambs were shipped to the Winnipeg market, some thousands of carcases being sent, and this year provision is being made for a repetition of the business. Several shippers have applied for space sufficient to store 3,200 carcases. The animals will be killed at once and laid down for the winter trade.

That there is room for great development in the dairy business is the opinion of J. A. Ruddick, dairy and cold storage commissioner, of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, who was in the city last week. Mr. Ruddick inspected the plant of the new cold storage warehouse and reports it to be thoroughly up-to-date in every particular. Speaking of the dairy business in Canada and the position of the products in the English market, he said there had been very little dairying for the last four or five years.

Two years ago he said he was in England and while there he saw some choice Canadian creamery butter selling as high as the Danish article. This showed what could be done by Canadian dairymen, but the export of butter from this country was too insignificant to make any impression on the market. Then again the quality was not so uniform as in the Danish butter.

The position of Canadian cheese was unquestioned in the English market today, Mr. Ruddick said. England imported a good deal of cheese from the continent of Europe. It was, however, of soft varieties, and did not come into competition with the Canadian article.

The commissioner believes there is a great opportunity for the development of the dairy business in the Maritime Provinces. He referred to the capture of the West India trade from the Danish by the people here as a good move. That trade he said, naturally belonged to these provinces because of their geographical position.

He believes that the orchard industry ought to go hand in hand with the dairy. Canadian apples occupied in the estimation of the English market a position from which no other country could oust them. There were almost unlimited possibilities open to farmers in this line and he expressed surprise that they had not been more fully taken advantage of.

The report of the management of last fall's exhibition at Fredericton shows that there was a small surplus of $300. The total expenditure was $16,201.13. The amount paid in premiums was nearly $6,000, of which N.B. exhibitors received $3,723.50; N.S., $1,395.75, and P.E.I., $842.25.

One of the best known and most highly esteemed commercial travelers in the Maritime Provinces passed away at Dorchester on December 4, in the person of Frederick S. Hutchinson, of St. Stephen, representative of Ganong Bros., confectioners. Palpitation of the heart was the cause of Mr. Hutchinson's sudden death. The news of his death was heard everywhere throughout the provinces with deep regret, for he was very well known and highly respected. He had a bright, sunny disposition that won him hosts of friends.

Mr. Hutchinson was for a number of years a popular conductor on the New Brunswick Southern Railway. About twenty years ago he entered the employ of Ganong Bros., and was for a short time a member of the firm. He then entered the employ of the company as salesman, in which capacity he was employed at the time of his death. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Willa Berryman, and two sons, the eldest about 15 years of age. He was a member of Sussex Lodge A.F. & A.M., and of Borden Lodge K. of P. The body was taken to St. Stephen, where the funeral was held on Sunday, Dec. 7.

BEWARE OF THESE GOODS.

A large manufacturing establishment in Montreal was recently offered a lot of powdered cream of tartar at a price below market value, and it was represented to them that this lot came into the hands of the owner in a special way. They agreed to take the article if it tested proper strength. The sample was submitted to their chemist, and to their surprise it was discovered that the so-called cream of tartar contained a very large percentage of barium sulphate and only 40 per cent. of pure cream of tartar.

They were also offered a lot of powdered ginger at an attractive price. They also agreed to take this article if it answered the test, but it was discovered that this so-called ginger was ground from gruffs and other ingredients with a sprinkling of ginger to give it a flavor.

tI is fair to say that the gentleman who had these goods was no party to the fraud, beyond offering goods whose purity he had not ascertained to be beyond reproach.

The unfortunate part of the foregoing illustrative instance is that large quantities of the same goods have gone out for general consumption, and the people of Canada are being fed with these adulterated stuffs. The wise grocer is well advised to be assured of the purity of the lines he buys, and to be on his guard at all times.

BUSINESS MEN IN PUBLIC LIFE

MAYOR JOHN A. McDOUGALL, of Edmonton.

John A. McDougall, recently elected mayor of Edmonton, who is, by the way, a retired grocer, is quite a western pioneer. He was born at Woodville, Victoria county, Ontario, in 1854. In 1873 he came as far west as Winnipeg, or, as it was then known, Fort Garry, having to travel from Port Arthur to Winnipeg over the old Dawson road, made by Col. Wolsley, a journey which occupied twenty-eight days. Arriving in Winnipeg, Mr. McDougall opened a grocery store and traded with the Indian, half-breed and white traders and trappers, who had penetrated the country west of Winnipeg. From them he heard of the rich country on the North Saskatchewan river, around the Hudson's Bay post of Edmonton, and he was at once fired with a desire to visit this country. In 1875 he came as far west as Prince Albert, where he spent the winter buying treaty from the Indians. He did not reach Edmonton until 1878, coming overland from Winnipeg with his wife in the now famous Red River carts. Mr. McDougall has lived in Edmonton since that time. At first he did his trading in a small shack. Later he entered into partnership with Richard Secord. As their trading business expanded they erected the large, modern departmental store on the corner of First street and Jasper avenue. Last year they disposed of their business to the firm of Duncan Bros. & Butters and since that time Mr. McDougall has devoted himself to his private interests.

During his residence in Edmonton Mr. McDougall has gained some municipal experience. He was alderman for two years, in 1894 and 1895, and was mayor for one term in 1897. Mr. McDougall proposes to work out carefully the scheme of municipal ownership, regulating the expenditure of money for public improvements according to the growth and development of the city.

EXHIBITION OF GROCERS IN APRIL.

Advisory Committee Strengthened to Represent Wholesale Trade.

In view of the marked success of the exhibition of groceries, held in the "Arena" last April, it has been decided to hold another practically on the same lines. The exhibition ran beyond even the hopes of those who were interested in it, so it was thought advisable to strenghten the advisory committee with a view of making it better able to handle the large proposition involved.

The exhibition is held by the grocery section of the Retail Merchants' Association, but the committee as arranged for last year, called an advisory committee, which consisted of a number of representatives from the different firms exhibiting, the names of the committee more or less shows its scope.

The idea is that the committee in a way supervises the different rules and regulations governing the show and sees that the interests of exhibitors are thoroughly protected in every way, and on the other hand, they give to the public a guarantee that the exhibition is being conducted on the very highest possible lines.

The committee this year is as follows: H. C. Beckett, W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton; J. F. Eby, Eby-Blain Co., Ltd., Toronto; J. M. Dillon, A. M. Smith & Co., London; J. Ethier, Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal; Albert Hebert, Hudon, Hebert & Co., Montreal; S. J. Mathewson, Mathewson's Sons, Montreal; Alex. Orsali, Hudon & Orsali, Montreal; Armand Chaput, L. Chaput, Fils & Co., Montreal; W. H. Dunn, W. H. Dunn, broker, Montreal; Col. Labelle, Ogilvie Mlg. Co., Montreal; W. W. Hutchison, Lake of the Woods Mlg. Co., Montreal; H. Clark, Wm. Clark, Montreal; J. Hewitt, Shredded Wheat Co., Toronto; A. P. Murray, Edwardsburg Starch Co., Ltd., Montreal, chairman.

The idea of forming this committee was to make it as strong as possible, and to make it represent the wholesale trade, grocery brokers and manufacturers.

It is with great regret that the rest of the committee find that they cannot have the help of Mr. Laflamme, of Rose & Laflamme, whose death would no doubt be noticed with a great deal of sorrow by the grocery trade.

The retail trade is of course represented by the actual executive of the exhibition.

The exhibition will be held in the Arena, Montreal, April 15th to 29th.

Fielding delivered an address on the new Insurance Bill and was tendered a vote of thanks by the members. The annual general meeting of the association will be held on Jan. 25.

CORRESPONDENCE

LINDSAY.

One of the chief features in Lindsay business at this season is the large poultry business carried on by Flavell's, Limited. Mr. Parkin, the foreman, in conversation with The Grocer, stated that it had been a very busy season. They had handled in all about seventy-five thousand birds amounting to about half a million pounds. During the plucking season they employed over two hundred pluckers regularly. Their plucking rooms are one of the unusual sights. Everything being a mass of feathers. Very often a whole family will be seen even down to a baby sitting at its mother's knee. The prices paid for plucking are as follows: Chickens, 3½c apiece; ducks, 5c apiece; geese, 8c apiece and turkeys, 4c. At these rates very often extra large wages are made as the employes work from about seven-thirty a.m. to ten-thirty p.m. Their weekly pay roll for plucking only runs between five and six hundred dollars. This firm have shipped several cars out West and also to England.

WOODSTOCK.

This is the season of the year when old, weather beaten, fly marked, printed signs, bearing the legend, "The Compliments of the Season," or some similar expression of good will, are resurrected from behind the flour barrel, or from some out-of-the-way corner, where they have reposed for twelve months of the year. It is the season when business thrives, and people may be seen hurrying along the street with mysterious looking parcels, at all hours of the day or evening. It is the season that merchants in all lines of business count upon to make up for dull summer months and periods of comparative idleness, and seldom indeed are they disappointed.

The stores in this city are decorated and bedecked in all the glory of the holiday season, with bells, bunting, cards, etc., and have their silent share, not less potent, in bringing money from the pockets of Christmas shoppers. Grocers have shown ingenuity and enterprise in decorations and in the placing of fruits and groceries of various kinds.

Your correspondent wished to close this brief budget by wishing The Grocer, his fellow correspondents, and indulgent readers a very merry Christmas and a very happy New Year.

ST. CATHARINES.

Our merchants do not lose sight of the fact that a handsome window display draws custom to their stores. A few of the old-timers stick to the rules of 40 or 50 years ago, but these are beginning to see the folly of their ways and are adopting modern practices. Speaking to some of the merchants, and they are all busy, they one and all say that business was never better.

TORONTO ASSOCIATION OFFICERS.

Sketches of Recently-elected Officials of Retail Grocers.

Last week The Grocer noted the elections of the officers of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association for 1908. We have pleasure in submitting herewith photographs of the president and vice-president with brief sketches of their lives to date.

C. F. THORNE,
President Toronto Retail Grocers' Association.

C. F. Thorne, the new president, conducts a well-appointed grocery at the corner of Nassau St. and Leonard Ave. He was born on this corner 32 years ago and says he has been in the grocery business from the time he was able to run messages. His mother kept the store during this time. He took over the business about ten years ago; has been a member of the association ever since that time and has always taken an active interest in the monthly meetings. For nine years Mr. Thorne was in the 48th Highlanders, as his photograph shows, and attained the rank of Color Sergt. serving with Major Michie, of Michie & Co.

Thos. Clark, the vice-president was born in London, Eng., and came to Canada when 7 years of age. He was educated at the old John St. school. Seventeen years ago Mr. Clark started a grocery at the corner of Wellington and Tecumseth Sts., and has carried the business forward to a success. Two years after entering the business Mr. Clark joined the association and has ever since been an enthusiastic member.

TORONTO GROCER IN ELECTIONS.

Frank W. Johnston Running for Alderman in Ward Three.

Toronto grocers in past years have not been very free to respond to the call for municipal service, and in default of this have the trade missed a good many advantages which might readily have been brought into effect.

This year one grocer, at least, is trying to remedy this condition. At the municipal nominations on Monday, Frank Johnston, whose store is at 19 Dundonald Avenue, was nominated for alderman in Ward 3 and will contest the election.

Mr. Johnston has taken a step in the right direction and deserves the support of the trade in his ward.

J. D. Bell, of Thos. Bell, Sons & Co., Montreal office, has left on a trip to

CHEESE AND BUTTER BULLETIN

A firmer feeling is noticeable in cheese this week, and taking it all round, the market is in better shape than it has been for some time.

There has been during the past week much better inquiry from the other side. Dealers there are beginning to experience a shortage, and they are coming into the market expecting to buy pretty well at their own prices, since many of them seem to feel that business here has been slack, entirely owing to the slight interest displayed in cheese by Old Country houses. As a matter of fact a great percentage of the cheese held here is not for sale at the prices which have been quoted lately. It cost too much to be dropped at the quotations which have been made, and offers from the other side have not interested holders to the extent of enticing their cheese away from them.

This accounts largely for the lack of business which has characterized a market which never shows a great deal of activity at this season.

Another fact which may be held accountable for the laxness is that large shipments were made to English firms just before the close of navigation, and as a result they were filled up for the time being. This stock is gradually going into consumption and the holders are coming into the market again. Few shipments of any account have been made to England lately, but some nice little lots are now going out.

October cheese is being quoted 13¼c. to 13½c., though some are letting go at 12⅞c., but not for the best grade. Some of the larger houses report practically no trading except at figures around 13¼c., with sometimes 13⅛c. obtainable.

Receipts are dwindling off to a mere bagatelle, being last week but 970 boxes against 1,533 boxes previous week and 1,433 boxes same week last year. Total receipts for the season amount to 2,051,380 boxes, against 2,346,725 boxes same period 1906.

Prices have not altered much since last report, the market not being very interesting, owing to the holidays.

The market for fresh creamery, choice stock, is very firm. Winter butter is not up to the average in quality, and such as comes up to the market standard finds a ready market at highest ruling prices. Some good lots have arrived lately, the texture being very fine, while the butter lacked most of the usual characteristics of winter butter. This was quickly placed. October creamery for a price, is still on the market, though stocks are naturally decreasing with the continued consumptions of holdings, which are none too heavy.

Fresh rolls are reported as coming a little more freely by some dealers, though others are not securing any to speak of. For this butter 23c. to 23½c. is being asked. Dairy is quoted 23c. to 24c. It is still very scarce.

For October creamery 28c. to 28½c. is asked, while current receipts bring 26½c. to 27½c. Arrivals of butter are not large. The receipts for last week were over 1,000 boxes short of those of the same week in 1906. In that year, corresponding week, 3,816 packages were received, while this year but 2,708 packages arrived. Receipts for the season continue about 200,000 less than they were for 1906, being to the end of last week 402,681 packages, against 596,849 packages last year.

Some dealers expect better prices after the turn of the year. Their argument is that the stocks held are not heavy, and that a shortage is sure to be experienced if the steady demand now felt continues. Increased business is not looked for before the middle of next month, but it is thought that a much better feeling will be observed then, resulting in stiffer prices.

At the present rate of going, it does not look as though there would be a great deal of Australian butter brought into the country as planned. Some was bought which would require a 30c. market here before it could be brought in with a profit. It is understood, however, that much of this butter, (which was purchased in London for January-February shipment) was resold in the English market at a good margin of profit, so this would let out holders of this stock in case the expected market did not develop here in Canada.

THE PROVISION SITUATION

The past week has witnessed another advance in prices offered to Canadian hog raisers. In spite of this, receipts are very light, and, generally speaking, the market is dull. Reports from western Ontario tell of freer deliveries of hogs by farmers under the improved prices of the last two weeks, but this condition of affairs is not at all general. Toronto packers report very light deliveries.

Prices this week are as follows : F.o.b. country points, $5.40 ; fed and watered, $5.70, and on cars at factory, $5.90.

The English market is demoralized again this week, principally as a result of the holiday season, which seems to have a greater reflective effect there than it does in this country. The Danes still continue to ship freely, last week's shipments being 39,000, an advance on recent weekly averages.

The American market also is off again as is evidenced in the following review from the New York Journal of Commerce : "The past week witnessed an active market early in future hog products at declining prices in sympathy with hogs, but after the short interest was covered packers had either to support the market or let prices lower, and they preferred the latter for its effect on the hog market, though there was an appearance of their buying on the decline to cover old short sales, which checked the decline. After this trade became very dull and the market dragged, with a marked falling off in speculative business, though hog receipts kept up until the last of the week. In the meantime spot business has been reduced to the minimum and although stocks are light of cured goods, the market has been weak and only demand for immediate wants has been realized, either from exporters or home trade. This has left some pressure on the market and further concessions would be made on most goods if it would increase the outlet. But with all the rushing, as it has been for some time past, indicating that the farmers are disinclined to feed high-priced corn, or that it is in such damp condition that they are afraid of hog cholera and are selling their hogs rather than risk this epidemic. Whatever the reason the average weight is very light for this season of the year, notwithstanding the large increase in receipts."

MONTREAL.

PROVISIONS—Packers have not made any change in their quotations lately. Smoked meats and heavy provisions are not in demand, but a good trade is still being done in lard. Sales of this article were very good before Christmas and are keeping up for New Year's.

BUTTER—A fairly firm market rules, especially for fancy winter creamery, of which there is not a great deal on the market. October stock is selling at steady prices. Fresh rolls are rather scarce, with a consequent firm feeling in the market for them. Dairy is slightly easier.

CHEESE—More inquiry for cheese from the other side is reported. Stocks held in England are becoming smaller, owing to continued heavy consumption, and it is likely that buyers there will have to replenish their stocks at the high prices now ruling locally. Dealers here expect higher prices after the turn of the year. Some nice lots of Canadian cheese were exported this week to the English market.

POULTRY—Higher prices ruled for poultry this week owing to the fact there were but two business days before Christmas, and because stocks held were not heavy, as the trade had bought pretty freely and the jobbers were almost cleaned out, and to make matters worse, receipts were small, compared with the needs of the market. The result was that the advanced prices were firmly maintained. All last minute lots coming in were quickly picked up by anxious dealers. Prices will likely hold till after the holidays, though they may be easier for New Year's provided receipts pick up to such an extent as to warrant a reduction.

FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET.

Perhaps no greater tribute could be paid the management of any commercial concern than that which has been accorded the directors of the Codville Co., Limited, of Winnipeg. On Dec. 17th the employes of this company gave a banquet in honor of their directors, J. J. Codville, H. B. Gordon, A. W. Chapman and Lawrence Bonny, and presented each of them with a handsome gift as a token of their high esteem and appreciation.

This concern has long been noted for the good will and whole-souled co-operation which exists between the members and employes, and that such things as this will tend to even further promote that perfect harmony goes without saying.

The banquet was held in Manitoba hall, the rooms and tables being decorated for the occasion and covers laid for more than 100 guests. J. H. Dickie, one of the Gold Standard Specialty salesmen, acted as chairman, and there were many toasts and much speech-making, both by the officers and employes.

When the banquet broke up about 1 o'clock it was unanimously decided that it had been a great success and should become an annual event of the Codville Company, Limited.

Commencing with the first of the year, H. C. Baker, who is well known in Northern Ontario and the western provinces, will look after the interests of James Turner & Co., Limited, Hamilton, on the territory reached by the Grand Trunk from Burks Falls to North Bay; the Toronto and New Ontario from North Bay to terminus; the C. P. Ry., North Bay to Soo and North Bay to Chelmsford.

He will also look after some old business he has in Port Arthur and Fort William.

Business Brisk in Fruit Markets—Good Vegetable Demand—All Lines of Fish Selling Well.

An easier tone pervades the cereal markets this week in all departments, the holiday week's effect on business generally reflecting in general dullness. Canadian millers continue to ship largely to Great Britain and Europe and with this in view it seems likely that the market will be somewhat firmer after a couple of weeks of the new year have passed.

The movement of wheat eastward continues to be very rapid. An encouraging feature, too, is the fact that the grain is beginning to grade much more satisfactorily. Last Thursday's gradings at Winnipeg, for instance, showed a percentage of less than 30 of grain below feed grades. Inspections on Saturday were 272 cars, compared with 90 a year previous. Grading returns showed 102 cars of inferior wheat, with but 80 of "northern." No. 1 northern, 15 cars; No. 2 northern, 25 cars; No. 3 northern, 40 cars; No. 4, 30 cars; No. 5, 28 cars; inferior, 102 cars: winter wheat, 5 cars. Inspection of oats were 19 cars, barley 10 cars, and flax 10 cars.

Stocks of wheat at Fort William and Port Arthur were increased 1,038,000 bushels during the past week. There are now 4,626,000 bushels of wheat in store at the head of the lakes.

The visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States decreased 149,000 bushels during the past week. Corn increased 155,000 and oats 483,000.

The special correspondent of the New York Evening Post takes a very bullish view of the wheat situation. In a recent cable letter to the Post he says: "The best experts in the grain trade believe that the world's wheat supplies are very much below normal requirements, and consequently look for higher prices."

MONTREAL.

CARS SCARCE IN WESTERN TOWN.

The following letter addressed recently to the secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association of Western Canada and signed by the merchants in Gilbert Plains reveals a serious car shortage in that town:

Dear Sir,—We the undersigned merchants of this place desire to bring to your notice a condition which exists here at the present time in reference to the movement of the crop. We made a thorough examination of the books and records of the railway company and find these facts.: On Saturday, November 30th. there were 114 names on the list for cars, this includes elevators and farmers, and up to that date there has been fifty cars billed, out of these fifty there were eight lying on the side-track which had been there for periods varying from 10 to 13 days.

In addition to this, we find that, owing to the congested state of the yard in Dauphin, loaded cars from western points had been left off here, with the result that at present it is an impossibility to get in a single empty.

The railroad company may justify their action by stating that the elevators are not full, and while this is quite true, our farmers can hardly be expected to sell their grain to the elevator when the difference between their price and the track price is so great, being from eight to ten cents net.

This year, as it is well known, the farmers need to realize every cent possible on their crop and that as quickly as possible.

Anything you can do to relieve this situation will be greatly appreciated by us.

DESSICATED EGGS.

New Method From Australia for Which Large Claims Are Made.

In his recent report in the trade and commerce reports for Canada, J. S. Larke, of Sydney, N.S.W., speaks of a process for dessicating eggs devised in Melbourne, and carried out in Sydney. For this process, high claims are made. It has thus been described:

"Dessicated eggs are not substitutes for eggs, but newly-laid eggs treated by a process by which only the shell and water contents of the egg are removed and the whole substance of the egg, yolk and albumen, converted into powder. The eggs first pass through a dark room, being carried on a perforated rolling table over a fifty candle-power light. Any eggs not perfectly fresh, or dirty in any way are at once detected and put on one side. The sound eggs are carried along and go into a centrifugal separator, revolving at a tremendous rate. Here the eggs are smashed, and the shells separated from the liquid matter, which flows into a small tank, and is then pumped up into another tank where a preservative is added. Below this tank in a very hot room, with a temperature of 120 to 130 degrees, there are great cylinders or drums, slowly revolving at the rate of 1 to 2½ minutes. The liquid egg substance goes from the tank into troughs below these cylinders, and as they revolve become attached to them. By the time a cylinder has completed its revolution the coating has dried, and a further coating adheres. Ultimately this coating comes off in flaky pieces, which are ground into a powder. This powder will, it is claimed to have been proved, keep for years, and only requires the addition of milk or water, when the powdered eggs will reconstitute, and be ready for use for any purpose the same as a newly-laid egg. The powder is rich and attractive looking, and is reported by the Government analysts of New South Wales and Victoria to contain no chemical preservative. No part of the egg, except the water, has been removed.

"It must, however, be added, that the process is not yet perfected," says the correspondent. "The inventor has some difficulties still to overcome before it can be a commercial success; one of which is the reduction of the dried egg to powder. It is hoped that this and other obstacles to success will shortly be overcome. If so, the appliance should receive consideration in Canada, where a cheap process of preserving eggs would be most useful."

AN ENTERPRISING GROCER.

H. G. MacDonald, who has been running one of the brightest of the live grocery stores in North Parkdale, at the corner of Wright and Sorauren avenues, shows a little more than ordinary enterprise. He has recently improved and enlarged his store, taking in about 20 feet at the rear, improving the entrance to the apartments above, putting in electric light and redecorating the whole interior.

The store was re-opened with considerable eclat on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. Mr. MacDonald issued a neatly printed announcement and invitation and made preparations to make the public of that locality thoroughly acquainted with the new store. To add to the attraction, one of the city's best Italian orchestras was secured and favored the visitors with an excellent musical programme on both Thursday and Saturday evenings. The store was very tastily decorated with palms and holly, and everything in a new dress proved very attractive. Demonstrations of three prepared articles also added to the interest.

When asked regarding the success of this method, Mr. Macdonald said:—"Well, we had the store jam full for three hours last night and will have to-night."

"But, did you get cash returns?" The Grocer reporter persisted. "I haven't figured it up yet," said Mr. Macdonald, with a satisfied smile, a chronic characteristic, by the way, "but I heard the cash register bell jingling pretty steadily last night."

Every lady who visited the store on the opening nights was presented with a souvenir, a book of songs prepared specially for Mr. Macdonald, and every child was also given a memento. Mr. Macdonald should do well in his new premises in this rapidly-growing section of the city.

The Why and How of Advertising

Newspaper Publicity Beneficial for Grocers, Especially at Holiday Time—A Couple of Well-planned Advertisements of Canadian Grocers With Their Strong and Weak Points—Hints by R. W. Ralph.

A country town publisher said, the other day, that not one grocer in his town had yet put as much as a "Merry Christmas" card in his paper this season. He admits, however, that he has not canvassed the grocery trade for business. This is certainly a mistake on his part, no matter how firmly he may be convinced of the indisputable fact that it pays grocers to advertise. Certainly any business man who has really given the subject of advertising the consideration of which it is due, should buy newspaper space, and keep it filled with the right sort of copy, without much solicitation on the part of the publisher. It is in the interest of the grocer to advertise just as much as it is in the interest of the publisher to secure the grocer's contract. It is a matter of mutual business interests between the publisher and the grocer, and neither one is doing the other a favor.

It is a remarkable thing, though, that the grocers of any fair-sized town should neglect to advertise in their local papers at this festive season. This is the season of all seasons when advertisements are read with buying intent. Money is said to be tight, in some quarters, but the merchant who advertises in the cheerful tone inspired by the season, will find it loose enough to move his Christmas stock and exemplify for him the benefit of good advertising.

Advertising is such a reasonable, such a plainly logical, department of retailing, that the bare statement of its necessity ought to be sufficient to convince even the most conservative members of the trade. Surely it is quite natural to assume that every man in the grocery business wants more than a mere living out of it, wants more customers than his relations and those who enter his store by chance! Acting on such an assumption, what is the first requisite of doing more business? Get the stock and let the public know about it! Tell them who you are, what you are and where you are, and tell them so often that there'll be scant chance of them forgetting it.

What better means to this laudable and businesslike end than bright, snappy advertising in the newspaper? Hundreds of thousands of successful retailers in all lines of trade are a standing and ever-growing testimony of the soundness of this logic, that newspaper advertising pays and pays well.

That every town does not contain grocers of the illogical kind, such as attempt to succeed in the town we have referred to, is evidenced by the number of attractive grocery ads. appearing in the daily and weekly press. That this season is likely to be a good one for the trade in spite of the alleged business depression, is indicated by the great army of business building, money circulating, retail advertisements.

The ad. of Delahey Bros., from the Cobden, Ont., Sun, is a fine example of good "quality talk." Talk of this kind, run frequently, cannot help but impress the mind of the grocery buying public. If it has any fault, considered as an ad., it is that prices are lacking. From first to last the language is convincing, and the generous space occupied permits of the use of a large, easily read type. By the time the reader reaches the end of the fourth paragraph—and it takes less than a minute to get that far—he or she would be just in that state of mind where a few specific seasonable articles, priced, would have good effect. A combination of straight convincing talk with specific instances of economy really does

Some Grocery Facts

Looked at from any standpoint there's no more important part of this store than the Grocery Section.

It is there where our care in buying is exercised to a more than ordinary extent. It is there where care in selecting shows.

We hold this Grocery department of ours up to you as a model of dependableness. Each article in it has received the very closest attention as to freshness and general excellence, and it is with the utmost confidence that we invite you to do your buying from this stock.

We can assert with positiveness that when buying your Christmas grocery supplies you will find no more complete, no fresher and no more high class stock of groceries in all the county than right here in our Grocery Department. All we ask is that you give us an opportunity to talk groceries to you for a couple of minutes. If you do not buy we will not try to force you to do so.

Everything in our store is wide open to inspection.

draw business. Note the tone of confidence that runs through the talk—confidence without bombastic exaggeration—and remember what your observation has often taught you, that confidence inspires confidence.

McKenzie & Martin, of Vernon. B.C., have sent us in a number of ads. which show that they have someone on the premises who knows how to prepare good copy. They take the form of long single and double-column space with heavy borders. One of these ads., while not a grocery ad., contains a good idea. It has a large heading "Watch Our Tie Window Next Saturday." It seems like a good scheme to make the newspaper ad. co-operate with the window trim. Then the enigmatic statement which follows the heading, "The purchaser of every fourth tie will get it free"—may be well calculated to arouse curiosity and bring people down on Saturday. Just to see what there is in it, and curiosity is a step on the road to business. We are reproducing one of their single-column ads., which is a very good one. The particular points of merit are contained in the little items of information, given in a brisk, unobtrusive way, about the priced articles. Take the first item "Osborne (slightly sweet) per pkt., 20c." Many ads. have such items put in as "Osborne, per pkt., 20c." The customer wants to know, naturally, something more about it than its name, and the addition of "slightly sweet" improves the item wonderfully. It is often these little thoughtful bits of information that make the difference between a good and a bad ad.

One of the recent items in Rusty Mike's Diary—which tome of wisdom has often been quoted in this column—says: "A standing card, like a disconnected telephone, is as good as any other to look and swear at, but you can't talk ter than nothing—a little. But certain-Mike, to some extent, anyway. Even a standing card in the newspaper is better than nothing—a llittle. But certainly. the proper use of space is to talk in it. Say something different, or perhaps the same thing in a different way, every time the paper goes to press. Among the varied stock of a grocer, there are scores of things which admit of brief, breezy, enthusiastic description. Describe the goods. If it is oranges you are advertising, say what kind, seedless or otherwise. A word or two often suffices, without which the ad. would lack life and "snap."

It is not a bad idea to study the ads. of city departmental stores. In these institutions advertising is a very important matter, and is attended to by experts. All the items reflect the breezy tone of the jaunty opening paragraph, and describe the goods well and tersely with the maximum of effect for the minimum of words.

BUSINESS GOOD IN NOVA SCOTIA

Confectionery Trade Growing, Particularly in Chocolates—Pork and Poultry Plentiful—Large Oyster Shipments With Opening of Season.

(By The Canadian Grocer's Special Correspondent.)

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 23.

The week just closed has been a very busy one for the retail grocery trade, the consumer laying in large stocks of goods for Christmas. None of the grocery stores in Halifax make a specialty of window dressing for Christmas. All, of course, have neatly arranged windows, displaying fruit, confectionery, nuts and other such lines, but outside of these nothing of a really attractive character is attempted. It is noted this year that the grocers are handling more lines of confectionery than heretofore, some of them having quite large stocks of package chocolates. All the high grades of confectionery are very high, and many of the retailers fear that the increased prices will have the effect of reducing the sales. One large dealer stated to The Grocer correspondent the other day that the demand for chocolates is growing greater every year. The sales of cheap confectionery are comparatively small to what they were formerly, the public seeming to want the best in a limited quantity even at the higher price. Creams and caramels are also going out of favor, there being little call for the former except at Christmas. The sales of first-class chocolates throughout Nova Scotia this season were very large.

There is a good demand for eggs and butter, but the receipts of both are very light.

Very little fresh stock is now coming on the market. The choicest eggs are worth 40c per dozen, and fresh-laid stock is scarce. Some small tubs of dairy butter, which were marketed last week, sold at 34c per pound at retail. This is a record price.

Lots of fresh pork is now being marketed, but the open weather has made the demand rather light. The best hogs are quoted at 8 to 8½ cents. The receipts of turkeys, geese, ducks, chickens and fowl are quite large and the quality of the stock is exceptionally good. The prices are very high, however, and this will have some effect on the demand.

* * *

A large crowd witnessed a very interesting game of basketball in the D.B. C.A. gymnasium last week between teams from the grocers and butchers of the town. The grocers played a great game throughout and won by a score of 28 to 20. The teams were : Grocers—J. Cleveland, J. Moore, L. Teasdale, J. Kane and J. Patterson. Butchers—L. Lennerton, F. McPherson, R. Ross, W. Wiseman and E. Teasdale.

* * *

H. E. Stirdee, of St. John, representing Quaker Oats and flour, was in several of the Nova Scotia towns last week calling on the trade.

Thomas F. White, president of the White Candy Company, of St. John, was in Yarmouth the latter part of last week, on the invitation of the Board of Trade, to see if the prospects would warrant the firm moving the factory to Yarmouth.

* * *

The lobster season is now open and as usual there is a good demand, both at home and abroad. The first big shipment to the American market was made last week, when 566 crates, collected at points along the western shore, were sent to Boston. A record shipment of lobsters was made from Nova Scotia last week, when M. Neville & Son shipped by rail 107 cases of live lobsters for points from Amherst, N.S., to Spokane, Washington. Medium-sized lobsters are selling here for fifteen cents each.

STUDYING CANADIAN TEA TRADE.

J. Campbell Black, of Brooke, Bond & Co., is visiting all the principal centres of Canada in the interest of this firm of tea distributors with offices in London, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Bradford, Calcutta, etc., who are known to most grocers probably as the first to start selling blended teas to the single shop grocer in England 35 years ago, and to combine with that the system of cash with order.

This company has used a singular selling system. Without the aid of a single traveler they have now something like 30,000 buyers of their blends in the Old Country who send cheques along with their orders. The elimination of travelers alone, Brooke, Bond claim, is worth 10 per cent. to their customers, although they have, of course, the advantage of the organization of the English wholesale houses or jobbers, whose interests they are far-seeing enough to protect.

In the course of an interview Mr. Campbell Black (who is a practical tea man and who has sold tea and studied markets for Brooke, Bond & Co. from the frontiers of Afghanistan and the Shan States to Egypt, Tripoli, Tunis, Algeria and Morroco as well as in most countries in Europe), would not say much about the policy of his company in Canada. He remarked, however, that the blended trade with "value" the link which would bind every grocer to the company, as in England, would be the most alluring. The object of his visit is merely to mark, learn and inwardly digest. Whatever they do they will sell what the Canadian public want, whether in Vancouver or Nova Scotia.

The importance of being conversant with the most expeditious and economical means of landing goods at each centre is also having attention.

Fred. J. White, of Minto Bros., accompanied by Mrs. White, left last Thursday for a pleasure trip to New York, Atlantic City and other points.

FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND FISH

Business Generally Dull in Consequence of Holiday Season—Wheat Movement to East Continues Large—Winnipeg Inspections.

The demand for green fruits has improved greatly and buying for Christmas has been quite satisfactory. An abundance of orders made the market very active. Oranges are still low, but a firmer feeling is reported and an advance should result in a fortnight's time. Lemons are selling well and are slightly lower. Christmas wreathing has been very scarce. Some dealers were sold out of holly and could not obtain supplies under any consideration. Cranberries are meeting with a better demand and are being quoted lower.

A good last-minute business is reported in vegetables. Imported varieties have been active, though prices are inclined to be high. Potatoes are easier and are being quoted slightly lower. Parsnips, carrots and turnips are the best selling domestic vegetables.

Fish continues to be active. Business is not quite as brisk, owing to the bigger demand for poultry for Christmas. Supplies have improved and dealers have not as great difficulty in filling orders. Oysters are steady. Cod and finnan haddie are brisk. There is a slight shortage in ciscoes and whitefish.

MONTREAL.

GREEN FRUITS—A very satisfactory Christmas trade was transacted Monday and Tuesday, last orders being abundant and karied in their requirements. Many dealers secured late shipments of green fruits from across the border, and this was shipped by express to their customers at the last moment. Several price changes will be noticed in this week's quotations. Kumquats are quoted 25c quart.

VEGETABLES—A good last minute trade was done by local dealers Monday and Tuesday of this week. Many of them received the first day their late shipments of American vegetables and these were delivered to their customers in time for the Christmas trade. Prices generally were felt to be high, but a good trade was transacted nevertheless. Late advances made early purchasers feel that they were wise in placing their orders as they did. TORONTO.

GREEN FRUITS—Business has been very brisk. In addition to considerable outside trading, the local demand has been strong. Dealers report all lines to be selling well. The orange situation has a steadier tone. Arrivals are not as heavy and are a finer quality. Prices are still unusually low and cover a wide range. They can't remain at this low level long and should be higher in a fortnight or so. Lemons are meeting with a fair demand and are being quoted lower. Holly is very scarce and is practically done. Chilliwack District Takes Awards at New Westminster Exhibition.

The accompanying photograph illustrates the exhibit of the Chilliwack district at the recent R.A and I Society's exhibition at New Westminster. The district was fortunate in carrying off first prize on this exhibit, this, by the way, being the third time it has been awarded that honor. The exhibit in quality of fruit packing and general arrangements makes an exceedingly fine showing.

INCREASED APPLE EXPORT.

Montreal and Quebec Show Larger Shipments for 1907.

There is noticeable a substantial increase in the apple exports from the ports of Montreal and Quebec this year, as compared to 1906.

In all 602,309 barrels of apples were shipped from Montreal ,against 378,777 barrels last year, an increase of 223,532 barrels. Of boxes, 28,972 were shipped, against 23,430 last season, an increase of 5,542.

From Quebec 24,701 barrels were shipped, as against 13,882 barrels in 1906, which means an increase of 10,814 barrels. This season 796 boxes were exported, against nil last year.

South Africa took 2,830 barrels and 350 boxes but all the rest was distributed through the Old Country as follows:

London, 60,514 barrels and 1,081 boxes; Liverpool, 259,646 barrels and 4,165 boxes; Glasgow, 228,447 barrels and 22,751 boxes; Leith, 9,138 barrels and 619 boxes; Manchester, 22,202 barrels; Bristol, 18,758 barrels and 6 boxes; Dublin and Belfast, 161 barrels and 613 barrels which were distributed over various ports.

INCREASING OYSTER TRADE.

Grocers and retail fish dealers throughout Canada are enthusiastic over the merits of the National Oyster Company's "Sealshift" method of handling oysters. "Why," said a Toronto grocer in a choice residential section, the other evening, "that method has increased my oyster sales fully twenty per cent. The people are delighted with the clean appearance of the bivalves and come again and again for them.

Geo. E. Bearns, of John Bearns Co., Winnipeg, was calling on the trade in Toronto last week.

Mr. Wagstaffe, of the Wagstaffe Preserving Co., Hamilton, was in Toronto on Monday and called at The Grocer office. The company has just received the first car of Seville bitter oranges for marmalade and to receive these goods at this time of the year constitutes a record.

MARITIME PROVINCES HOPEFUL

Bright Outlook for Future Business in Eastern Canada—Interview With a Leading Business Man of St. John.

"The turn of the Maritime Provinces is coming," said W. Shives Fisher, of Emerson & Fisher. leading wholesale firm of St. John, N.B., with cheering confidence, when interviewed as to the state of affairs in his part of the country by the MacLean Publishing Co., at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal. The vigorous personality of the speaker seemed to illustrate the progressive spirit now dominating the provinces, while his inspiriting optimism as to the future was a welcome relief to the hard times talk of the present moment.

In reply to a question as to how the financial situation was likely to affect the commercial progress of the Maritime Provinces, Mr. Fisher said that the business depression of to-day was less likely to influence seriously that portion of the Dominion than any other. Business, as a rule, was steadier there than elsewhere, and while the progress in trade had been of consistent growth, there had been no boom, thus giving no loophole for slumping reaction of a similar ratio. Again the natural resources of the Maritime Provinces, while rather slow in their development, were becoming more fully recognized. The people too, were more imbued with the possibilities of the country. "It only requires a little consideration," said Mr. Fisher, warming to his topic, and a glance over the field, to see the reason for this progress. and for confidence in the future. Take, for instance, the vast coal areas of the Maritime Provinces, Cape Breton, Pictou and Cumberland counties are practically great coal beds. The percentage of the area that has so far been opened out, as compared with the total that is available, is very small. In New Brunswick, a province which, at one time, was not supposed to be possessed of any mineral wealth, there has been developed in the past few years large coal areas in Queen's County which suggest possibilities of greater hidden wealth in other districts. Then again, recently in Gloucester County, a very large iron deposit has been found, and within a few weeks the entire rights to the property were purchased by the Drummonds of Montreal. The new owners claim that they have in this property one of the largest and most important deposits of iron in all Canada, estimating the amount of good trade ore at not less than 10,000,000 tons. The company state that it is their intention to develop the property without delay, and if the results equal their expectations they will construct large furnaces on the spot. Then again, the Dominion Iron and Steel Company are spending considerable money at Lepreaux on the Bay of Fundy in making tests as to the quantity and quality of the iron ore known to exist there. Up to now the results have been very satisfactory. In many sections of Nova Scotia gold is found, while copper is known to exist both here and in New Brunswick.

"What about the other sources of wealth in the provinces?"

"Well," replied Mr. Fisher, "in considering these, lumber naturally heads the list. The growing scarcity of timber for the production of lumber, pulp, and all wooden goods, is becoming more keenly felt the world over. You can see therefore, that the great lumber areas of the provinces are becoming yearly a greater source of wealth. Within the past year or two a new market for New Brunswick lumber has been found in Ontario, and during the past season the consignments sent west were large.

"Then," continued the speaker, "take the fisheries. With 5,600 miles of sea coast in the three provinces, the fishing industry is one of great and growing importance. The annual value of the yield is about fourteen million dollars. With the improved methods of handling, curing, and marketing, the industry, as new markets are continually being found, will become increasingly valuable. The shipments of fish from the Lower Provinces to the west are now quite an important factor in the trade. The fruit industry, too, is one of growing importance, the yield of apples from the Annapolis Valley for the past year exceeding 500,000 barrels. The fruit finds a ready market chiefly in Great Britain, where shipments are made regularly through the winter. Storage warehouses have been built at various centres, which, coupled with greater care in packing and inspecting. are helping very much in marketing the product, and securing the highest ruling prices.

During the past few years, it has been fully demonstrated that the St. John River Valley is capable of growing apples of excellent quality. Each season a large addition to the acreage under cultivation is being made, and it is expected within a few years that apples will be one of the most important crops in that district. Another interesting phase in the development of the past few years, has been the shipment of large quantities of potatoes from the counties of Carleton, Victoria and Madawaska to Ontario where the quality of the New Brunswick tuber is greatly appreciated. A few years ago there was a big business done in shipping potatoes into the States, but the prohibitive duty placed upon them by the Americans shut them out of that market. Ontario, however, has proved an excellent substitute.

"Then, again," said Mr. Fisher, "while treating of the natural resources of the Maritime Provinces the present and prospective value of their agricultural wealth must not be overlooked. Unfortunately up to a very recent date, and in fact even at the present time, too little attention has been paid to farming pursuits, with the result that taking the country as a whole, there exists a good deal of backwardness in this direction. Some districts, however, notably Prince Edward Island and some sections in both Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, are happy exceptions. The possibilities in store in connection with agricultural development, especially dairying and sheep-raising, are hard to estimate. But the farmers must be educated to a fuller realization of their opportunities. At the present time they are buying food products which they should raise for themselves. In fact, the farmers should go a great deal further than this, and should produce large quantities of food products for export, for they have at their command lines of steamers running regularly from the ports of St. John and Halifax to London, Liverpool, Bristol, Glasgow, the West Indies, as well as to European and South American ports, thus giving them easy access to the greatest markets of the world.

"You ask me as to the industrial outlook. Well, this is greater than is generally supposed, and it may be interesting for you to know that in many lines of manufacture which have grown up in the past few years our people are not only able to meet the requirements of our own markets, but are making extensive shipments to Quebec, Ontario and the Northwest. I have now before me a list of the names of some 120 manufacturers scattered through the Maritime Provinces who are shipping increasing quantities of their goods to the West. In fact, in talking with the general freight agent of the Intercolonial, a few days ago, he informed me that whereas it was quite the rule a few years ago to haul a great many empty cars west, this had become a thing of the past, and that the shipments of manufactured goods, and natural products, from the Maritime Provinces west over the Intercolonial had grown so large that such a thing as an empty car going west was unheard of. In fact, all the new cars being built by Rhodes, Curry & Co., Amherst, were generally sent west loaded. This, as you can see, shows the change that has gradually, and almost imperceptibly come about. These are the reasons, therefore, why the people of the Maritime Provinces have cause to look hopefully to the future, and to feel that the turn of the east, for its share in the great national prosperity has arrived."

Replying to a question as to the development that has taken place at St. John in connection with the winter traffic, Mr. Fisher continued: "The people of this country are pretty well aware of the sacrifices that the citizens of St. John have made in order to equip the port with the facilities required to divert the traffic from American to Canadian channels. Up to now about one and a quarter million dollars, in round figures, have been spent to bring about this end. At the outset, no thought of spending any such sum was entertained, but year by year the steady growth of the traffic has made it necessary to add to the equipment of the port, always in the expectation, that the Government of the country would finally take over and make it a national undertaking; and it has been with this idea constantly before them that the St. John people have been willing to face the burden of increased debt thus placed upon their shoulders."

POINTS ABOUT CHEESE.

Dominion Dairy Commissioner Addresses Ottawa Retail Grocers.

J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner, recently addressed the Retail Grocers' Association, of Ottawa, on points in the handling of butter and cheese. The substance of the address, which will be of interest to grocers generally.

In opening, Mr. Ruddick said that he recognized the retailer as a great factor in business, and he always took care when on his Old Country trips to interview the small shopkeeper as to the state of trade. In regard to cheese, Mr. Ruddick spoke his emphatic belief that it was one of the best foods in the world. One pound of it was equal to two and a half pounds of beef, and he would like to see as much as possible sold in Canada. In the Dominion the annual consumption per capita only equalled three pounds, against thirteen in Great Britain. The speaker made a good point when he called the attention of his hearers to the fact that grocers did not get the best cheese from the manufacturers. "It is almost impossible to get good cheese on the average Canadian table," he said. "Without disrespect to their ability as business men," he went on, "the average grocers are not good judges of cheese, and are frequently imposed on by the manufacturers. The cheese they get are too often culls. The cheese-makers know that they cannot sell a poor batch of cheese to the exporter, so they palm it off on the grocer.

"Beware of the cheese man offering a few boxes for sale," continued Mr. Ruddick. "They're acid, or dry, or sour, or soft, or wrong in some other way, in plain language, they're culls."

The Dairy Commissioner thought that a few cents here or there was not to be considered against the getting of a good article. A year-old cheese, to the speaker's mind, was better than a three-months'-old article. It was better to buy a year's supply in June, and the cheaper price would pay the keeping over. Later on, during the hot weather, making caused a strong taste. Sixty degrees was the best temperature to cure in. In curing cheese, it lost about one pound a box a month, but dipping it in paraffin wax prevented this loss to a great extent.

A good and well noted aspect of the home trade was referred to in the words. "There is in Canada an enormous demand for good cheese, which is not satisfied because the people do not get what they want."

In regard to purchases, Mr. Ruddick said he would prefer to buy from a big dealer rather than from a smaller one, as there would be less danger of getting poor cheese. After a cheese is cut, one of the halves should be dipped in wax if the demand was not sufficient to use up the whole cheese at once. This was doubly true in reference to small cheese. This dipping prevented serious loss from evaporation, which might be considerable, as one-third of cheese is water.

Butter, the speaker said, was best when first made. Keeping it at too high a temperature was ruinous to the goods. But it could be kept for a year well at zero, and, of course, the higher the temperature the shorter the life. In country stores, where a great deal of butter is handled in trade, a cold storage equipment of some kind should be put in. Butter should not be shipped in second-hand boxes, and any creamery man who did so showed very poor taste and hurt the trade. Every precaution should be taken to prevent butter and cheese, too, from absorbing odors.

TO BOOM ST. JOHN INDUSTRIES.

The Board of Trade of St. John, N. B., has recently issued a booklet calculated to develop an interest in the commercial and manufacturing possibilities of this bustling eastern city. Typographically, the book is beautiful and altogether it is the equal of anything of the kind we have seen. The illustrations, which are excellent, as well as profuse, show the city's harbor, wharves and shipping facilities, municipal buildings and the extensive manufacturing concerns already established.

J. A. Vailancourt and F. X. St. Charles were re-elected directors of the Bank of Hochelaga at the annual meeting recently held in Montreal.

Sir Robert Reid was elected a director of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, replacing the late F. H. Mathewson, at a meeting of the directors last week. Sir Robert is a director of the Bank of Montreal, C. P. R., Reid Newfoundland Company, and Royal Trust Company.

This condition is overcome in any mercantile house by the adoption of the Allison Coupon system. With it, accounts are kept better and more accurately, at about one-tenth the usual cost.

THE PLAN

If a man wants credit for $10 and you think he is good for it, give him a $10 Allison coupon book and have him sign the receipt or note form in the front of the book, which you tear out and keep. Charge him with $10—no trouble. When he buys a dime's worth, tear off a ten-cent coupon, and so on till the book is used up. Then he pays the $10 and gets another book. No pass books, no charging, no lost time, no errors, no disputes. Allison Coupon Books are recognized everywhere as the best. Let us send you a cancelled sample free.

For sale by the jobbing trade everywhere.

TRADE WITH ENGLAND

Every Canadian who wishes to trade successfully with the Old Country should read

"Commercial Intelligence"

(The address is 168 Fleet St., London, England.)

The cost is only 6c. per week. (Annual subscription, including postage, $4.80.)

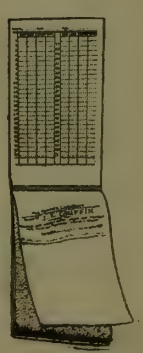
Moreover, regular subscribers are allowed to advertise without charge in the paper. See the rules.

Prevent Misunderstanding!

Keep an accurate and simple record of all goods sold by using our

"DUPLEX"

COUNTER CHECK BOOK



Many grocers have felt the need for a check book that has both white and colored checks—one for originals, the other for duplicates. That's the simplest way of knowing how much is coming to you, from whom and what for. Write and let's tell you all about it!

The Box is Attractive

It isn't very much work to remove the covers of the boxes. Why not open up several and place them in your window during the dull season. They make an attractive display—a bright color effect.

We will be pleased to send on application advertising designs that will assist in making a good display.

It is worth while to continually call to the attention of your customers that you handle the BEST in every line.

While "Surprise" Soap is a pure, hard soap, it is sold at the usual laundry soap price.

QUOTATIONS FOR PROPRIETARY ARTICLES

Quotations on staple articles, prepared by our own staff, will be found in the market reports in the centre of the paper. The following are prices of proprietary articles which are supplied by the manufacturers or their agents, who alone are responsible for their accuracy. For charges for inserting quotations in this department apply to Advertising Manager, The Canadian Grocer, at our nearest office.

A Guarantee that is Worth Something

RISING SUN STOVE POLISH IN CAKES

SUN PASTE STOVE POLISH IN TINS

is printed and packed in every box of SUN PASTE Stove Polish. Our guarantee stands at par because all you have to do is to notify us if any of our SUN PASTE is found defective in any way and we do the rest. It is no surprise to us, however, that so many thousands of storekeepers are selling our SUN PASTE year in and year out with never a defective tin. We make the goods right. That is the kind of Paste Polish you find it worth while to push.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

Lucky Canners

We know of some canners with headquarters in Ontario and the West who are shaking hands with themselves to-day. Because their foresight was as good as their hindsight, and, foreseeing a scarcity and likelihood of increased prices in the East, they put large quantities in our storage warehouse, where from time to time lately they have been letting them out at increased profits.

At times last year we had as many as 60,000 cases for different enterprising canners.

We have special facilities
for storage of Canned Goods, Teas, Coffees and all Grocer's Sundries, Wines, Liquors, etc.

Deliveries and transhipments to all Steamship Lines, Railroads, and Merchants in the city and vicinity.

Lowest rates of Insurance. Loss by vermin and deterioration reduced to a minimum.

Customs, Storage, Cartage, Transhipping and Delivery of Goods, Insurance and Warehouse Receipts arranged by one Company, by one Letter. Less worry for merchants and manufacturers when dealing with a Company of large financial responsibility.

BATGER'S

Machine-cut Mixed Peel

In ½-lb. and 1-lb. Drums.

Prepared and packed by machinery, thus ensuring cleanliness and uniformity.

Saves time, trouble and loss of weight.

The three kinds of Peel, Lemon, Orange and Citron, properly blended, are all cut ready for immediate use. If you once sell this line to your customers they will always ask for it, because every housewife likes BATGER'S Machine-Cut Peel, once she uses it. Your profit is sure and substantial. Ask your jobber for it. In ½ and 1-lb drums.

LAMONT, CORLISS & CO., 27 Common St., MONTREAL

THERE'S AS MUCH DIFFERENCE IN COCOANUT as in anything else.

The kind that turns sour or discoloured isn't the kind that pleases your customer.

We have been in the business now for many years and have turned out more good, pure, wholesome Cocoanut than all the other factories in Canada put together.

Doesn't it stand to reason we can give satisfaction with our WHITE MOSS BRAND?

Are you selling it?

Ask our agent in your district for samples and information.

"GLOBE" with Percolator.

This pot speaks for itself. When tea is drawn take the Percolator out and tea remains free from tannin.

We make seven sizes of this, also The Champion Tea Pot. Send for price list.
